Mr. Fred Darcy, manager of the Peterborough Automobile Company will begin his regular trips between this city and Lakefield at eight o'clock this morning. The powerful and fast automobile recently purchased by the company will start twice daily, morning and evening from the National Hotel, and will be run by an experienced chauffeur. The regular schedule of trops, which will appear in a few days in these columns, will be published and take effect on May 1st. This speedy and pleasant means of travelling between the city and Lakefield, will enable people to make accurate steamer connections at each end of the route and will doubtless become very popular.

Local Man's Nephew Wins a Prize Fight

While many of our readers are acquainted with Mr. M. Pappakeriazes, or as he is generally known "Mike Pappas," there are more who do not know that his nephew, John Pappakeriazes, or as his ring name is "Jimmy Ryan," is one of the leading middle weight fighters of the world. A Dayton O., paper of last week, noted that Mike Ryan, who is a brother of Mr. Geo. Pappas, at present employed in the George street cigar store, last Tuesday went up against the Italian middleweight, Jon Percente, in a 20-round bout. The fight, however, did not extend through 20 rounds, as in the sixth "Ryan" knocked out his man, who failed to come to the scratch and was counted out. After going through this fight on Tuesday, Ryan met Jack Morgan, a noted middle weight in Indianapolis, the next night and secured his scalp also. Mr. Pappas or Ryan is a veritable hurricane when he gets busy within the ring.

A Banker Pedestrian

A Keene, Ont., despatch says: Mr. A. St. A. Smith, manager of the Bank of Toronto here, walked to Millbrook on Saturday last. Mr. Smith has quite a reputation as a walker. He covered the eighteen miles in four hours and fifteen minutes.

Many Muskrat Skins

Several thousand muskrat skins were brought to the city from Rice Lake, Saturday morning by steamers The Water Lily, Monarch and Rainbow arrived in port at the Wolfe street wharf and returned to Rice Lake during the afternoon. A large number of passengers were on board. In addition to the pelts from Rice Lake, quite a number were brought in from Chemong. Messrs. Leeh & Sons secured most of the skins.

COFFEE DELIRIUM

To be active during the day and keep in good health requires sound sleep at night.

This is especially true of children when mental and physical development is more rapid than later on.

An intelligent mother discovered that coffee was harmful, not only to herself and husband, but that it was doubly so to her boy. She writes:

"For more than twenty-five years I have been a great coffee drinker; have often tried to give it up because it made me nervous, constipated, and I could not go to sleep for several hours after retiring.

"About six months ago I finally quit coffee and began to use Postum. Now we use it three times a day; I am entirely cured of constipation, can sleep all night and do not get those nervous spells. While under the coffee habit I was pale and sallow; now every one tells me I have such a healthy complexion. Postum has certainly won the victory in our house.

"There are two persons especially who have been greatly benefited by drinking Postum instead of ordinary coffee. One, a gentleman who has been cured of dyspepsia; the other my own little boy, was cured of a most annoying affliction, without our even consulting a physician.

"Whenever he took tea or coffee, he would lie awake at night probably three or four hours, with his eyes wide open, talking to himself and grasping at imaginary objects in the air.

"We commenced giving him Postum in place of tea or coffee. He is now a robust boy and is entirely free from those spells of wakefulness." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—The annual camp supper of the Y.M.C.A. boys will be held in the building on Wednesday evening, May 1st, at 8.30. o'clock.

—Mr. Wm. Rutherford, of South Monaghan, has given up farming and intends moving to the city this week.

—Visitors from Keene on Saturday day noted that the water in the Indian River has lowered almost to its normal height.

—An "at home" will be held in the Foresters' Hall on Wednesday night of next week under auspices of the Tool Makers' Club.

—Mr. John Gilman leaves today for Jubilee Point where he intends getting his summer residence in shape for the summer trade.

—The last meeting of the St. John's A.Y.P.A. before the tennis season will be held tonight when a good program will be given.

—Mr. Wilfrid Shiner lead the Saturday Bible Class Study at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday evening. The subject was "With the Disciples and Martha—about Lazarus."

—The Toronto Grenadiers have definitely decided to visit Collingwood on May 24th. This ends the chances of Peterborough having a visit this year by that crack regiment.

The prizes won by the several contestants last season will be presented at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club on Wednesday night at eight p.m., at the Dominion Bank Chambers.

—At the Mark street Methodist church yesterday morning Mrs. Alex. Morrow, for a number of years a missionary in British Columbia, gave an address in connection with the Women's Missionary Society.

—Saturday afternoon Mr. Chris Wood and his staff of lieutenants, paddled down the river to Stewart's Landing, below Dungerfield, where they are erecting a summer cottages for the convenience of the boys during the outing season.

—It is now up to the local fishery inspectors to keep their eyes on creeks entering the river. The maskinonge are now coming up to spawn and every fish killed now is not only an unsportsman like murder, but hundreds of fish for the future thereby destroyed.

—The bowling tournament which attracted so much interest from Thursday of last week in the Majestic Bowling alleys, ended Saturday night. It was the most successful bowling tournament ever held in the city and will doubtless create more general interest in this splendid healthy and enjoyable exercise.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. D. H. Moore, of Keene, was in the city Saturday.

—Mr. W. J. Edmondson, of Harwood, was in the city Saturday.

—Mr. Harry Nesbitt has almost recovered from his recent attack of pneumonia.

—Messrs. T. Hanker, T. D. Doughty and R. A. Peters, of Peterborough, were in town yesterday.—Lindsay Post.

—Mr. Wm. Croft, who was injured by a fall the other day, has recovered sufficiently to be able to walk outdoors.

—Prayers were offered in St. John's church last night for the recovery of Mr. Alfred Belcher, who is very dangerously ill.

—Mrs. Rutledge has returned very much improved in health, from Preston Springs, where she has been visiting during the past three weeks.

—Mr. Jas. W. Calder, St. Thomas, returned home on Saturday after a two weeks' visit with friends in Dummer, and his brother, of Elm street.

—Mr. and Mrs. David Mirriam, of Fenelon Falls, passed through the city on Saturday, on their way to Harwood, where Mr. Mirriam's mother lies seriously ill.

—Mr. Arthur Wood, son of Mr. R. E. Wood, county crown attorney, who is taking a course at Queen's University, Kingston, leaves today for Cobalt.

—Sergt.-Major Fee, formerly of the R.C.H.A., Kingston, is now engaged in instructing the 24th, local battery of artillery, in the east ward. As a result many recruits are expected to join.

—Mr. Arthur Stevenson leaves on the 8.10 train for Whitby to attend the funeral of Mr. Thornton, late manager of the Dominion Bank in that town. Mr. Thornton who passed away on Saturday married Miss Edith Grove of Whitby, a first cousin of Mr. Stevenson's.

Local Lady's Voice Praised

The Toronto Star, says:—Miss Clara Bellegham, soprano soloist, of Peterborough, Ont., sang at the concert given last evening in Wesley Methodist church, Dundas street. Miss Bellegham possesses a soprano voice of rich, clear quality, and sang with splendid enunciation, being recalled each time she appeared.

Good Music in George St. Church

Yesterday the music in George street Methodist church, was of a particularly high class, including the following well rendered selections:

Anthem, "Magnificat," Rainder.

Duet, "In the Cross of Christ We Glory," Howe—Miss Rennor and Mr. Freeland.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $300,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

The retraction printed in said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that the analyses of "Favorite Prescription" from eminent chemists all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs. These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

Oddfellows at All Saints' Church

Last night the members of Otonabee and Peterborough Lodge's I.O.O. F., turned out in good numbers, and marched, two by two, decorated by their respective badges and jewels to All Saints church to attend a special service, Rev. W. Major, pastor of the church preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon.

Boy Has a Leg Broken

On Saturday morning as a boy named Walter Moore, aged eight years old, who lives on Perry street, was taking a ride on a delivery wagon the horse became frightened and ran away. The boy was thrown to the ground and had one of his legs broken. He was taken to the Nicholls Hospital, and is progressing favorably.

Eloquent Curate for St. Luke's

It seems that the congregation of St. Luke's church are to be congratulated on securing the services of Mr. T. H. Perry, the curate who will, about the middle of next month enter upon his duties as an assistant to Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, at St. Luke's parish, as this gentleman at the Wycliffe College Convocation was presented with a medal as winner of the oratorical contest. In addition to the persuasive eloquence of the rector, this church has still another gifted speaker.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these Nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

CITY COUNCIL IN SPECIAL SESSION

Sign Bylaw Will Not be Enforced Till After Next Monday Night---Italians Will Have to Pay a Poll Tax---Ald Morgan Fathers this Measure and Insists That it be Carried Out.

The City Council met in committee of the whole last night, when there were present, Mayor McWilliams and Aldermen Johnston, Bradburn, Leary, Parker, Duncan, Elliott, Wilson, McIntyre and Morgan.

The fire escape bylaw was taken up with the result that the original bylaw should stand, excepting that ladders be permitted to be used where such exists.

Ald. Bradburn advanced that the market pig pens were either not kept clean or the hogs were kept in the pens too long. The stench from these pens, he urged, is simply unbearable.

The Property Committee was instructed to see that these hog pens are kept clean.

The above motion was made to include the keeping clean of the market building and stairs leading thereto.

Ald. Henry Morgan offered that all Italians should pay a poll tax. It is true, he said, that they have been heretofore assured for statute labor, but they never pay it. No Italian, he said, should be permitted to work in the city unless he pays his poll tax, which should be collected on the works.

Ald. Johnston suggested that all poll tax should be payable within 30 days.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the solicitor be requested to advise the committee as to the earliest time in which poll tax can be collected.—Carried.

COUNCIL IN SESSION.

The council met in special session at 9.30, with all the members present as enumerated above.

COMMUNICATIONS.

F. S. Wadsworth, engineer in the fire hall, applied for an increase of salary.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The Bell Telephone Co. applied for permission to erect poles on certain streets—Referred to Board of Works.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That the application of G. W. Green for a sewer up London street, from Park to Downie Sts., to be advertised be referred to the Board of Works.—Carried.

Many requests for permanent street improvements were referred to the Board of Works.

COMMITTEE ON SEWERAGE.

Ald. Bradburn submitted the following:—

Gentlemen,—Your special committee appointed in regard to a method for providing sewerage for the property of the Dickson Company on Harvey, Waterford and Dublin streets, beg leave to report that we have visited the property and conferred with a committee of the Board of Health and the city engineer in regard to the matter. We cannot recommend allowing the Dickson Company to run sewerage into the river and as nothing can be done in the way improving sewers for the property with such a time as a new outfall sewer is built on Aylmer street, at a lower depth than the present one, so that a sewer can be built from the corner of Harvey and Dublin streets west along Dublin street to connect with a new outfall sewer, the only recommendation your committee can make is that the owners of the property be allowed to use cesspools but that they must first obtain permission and authority from the local Board of Health and the construction of the cesspools to be under the supervision of the said board.

The report was adopted as read.

RAPID TOOL BYLAW.

Ald. Bradburn submitted the following:—

Gentlemen,—Your Manufacturers Committee beg leave to report and recommend;

That the bylaw to aid the Rapid Tool Company be given its third reading and that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare such agreement and declaration as may be necessary to authorize the payment to the company of the amount of the bonus granted to them under the bylaw and that upon the solicitor reporting that the necessary papers have been signed the amount be paid but he company.

The report was adopted as read.

WEST END PARK.

On motion of Ald. Leary, the special grant of $50 to improve a small park at corner of Charlotte and Park streets was increased to $60.

SIGN BYLAW.

The bylaw governing overhanging signs came up for its several readings. It appeared that as prepared the measure would inflict a hardship on some merchants in prohibiting the display of a certain class of goods outside the stores. Messrs. Jordan and Mason pointed out that in their flower and plant business it was absolutely necessary, in the interest of trade, that they be allowed to display outside their shops on a shelf of 12 or 18 inches in depth plants and flowers for about six weeks in the year at least.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That this bylaw be referred back to the committee of the whole, council to be dealt with next Monday night.—Carried.

OTHER BYLAWS.

A bylaw authorizing the grant of $500 to the Peterborough Horticultural Society passed its several readings.

A bylaw regulating the size of bread as previously prepared, passed its several readings.

A bylaw to assess the sewerage rates passed couples times demanding sewerage connection ties between Aylmer and Water streets and Chamberlain and Brock streets. The bylaw will come into force September first, allowing ten days grace thereafter for any variation of this name.

A bylaw to provide for the laying out of a "dead end" Bi-ard street, to be known as Waddell street, passed its required readings.

A bylaw to authorize the construction of sewers passed its three readings.

A bylaw to authorize the construction of granolithic walks also passed its required readings.

ROMAINE STREET SEWER.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That the city engineer report on the condition of Romaine street sewer and the cost thereof.—Carried.

SPITTING ON SIDEWALKS.

Ald. Leary thought something should be done to prohibit dogs from running at large to the nuisance of citizens generally. This was left in abeyance.

NEW FIRE HALL DEFECTS.

From remarks made by several aldermen it appears that the doorways from the horses' quarters in the new fire hall are too low and narrow for practical utility.

According to Ald. Johnston the construction of these doors is not in accordance with original plans. The fault however can and will be readily remedied.

The council then adjourned.

Italian Charged With Inflicting an Injury

It seems that a well-known former local Italian citizen, Mr. Nicolas Rensett, now living in Lakefield is in trouble. Yesterday morning, it is alleged that he hit Donato Cascino of Lakefield in one of the local hotels inflicting severe injuries on his face. Cascino with a friend stepped into the hotel to have a glass of beer, when Rensetti, it is stated, butted into the conversation. He accepted the hospitality of the Lakefield countryman, and afterwards threw the glass at the face of the other with such force that it broke and cut Cascino in several places.

The injured man was taken to Dr. Greer's office where it was found that he had been wounded above the eye and on the side of the nose. Three stitches were necessary to close the cuts.

It is alleged that Rensettis assault was made to get even with Cascino for some wrong done in the past.

Furious Fight by Hogs on the Market

Yesterday morning the pens at the market (weigh scales were simply crowded to repletion with hogs brought in from the various townships. It is worth the while of those whose tastes lead them to love a "scrap" or fight to attend the market when hogs from different localities are herded together. Yesterday morning, a Times representative, by actual timing counted 47 different fights in the market pens. When hogs were admitted from the weigh scales to a pen already containing, say some 15 to 30 hogs, a fight would at once take place. The hogs from different herds would at once make for those of a different locality and attempt to grab ears, tails, front or hind legs of the "intruders (?)" The attack would be at once responded to, and fights all over the pen would be in progress, accompanied by vigorous squeals. As the hogs have such thick skin and are so plump it is useless for one pig to try to grasp in its teeth any but a projecting part of its opponent's body, such as ear, tail, back or leg. However in connection with the Saturday hog sales in the market, the Times was informed that hogs in their legal bankruptcy succumb and die. The blood in these animals coagulates so that not a direct injury but is sometimes contracted from their natures. To quote the words of a buyer present, which are not entirely grammatical as correct, "You know hogs are mighty funny and when they fight and make you hot the devil in them comes and runs into their hearts and heads turns them."

BRONCHIAL COUGHS

The most irritating and annoying form of cough is that termed bronchial. People subject to bronchial troubles whenever there is a change in the weather or they are exposed to a draft will "catch" a bronchial cough, which is very disagreeable, irritating and annoying.

Bronchial troubles cannot be cured by stomach dosing. The medicated air of Hy-o-mei is the only treatment that reaches the affected parts and gives relief and cure. It destroys all the disease germs that are present in the nose, throat and lungs, soothes and relieves the irritated mucous membrane in all parts of the bronchial tubes and quickly overcomes the irritation.

Bronchitis is really an inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air passages and is purely a local disease, so that it needs a local treatment like that afforded by Hy-o-mei.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Cuba as a State Would be a Curse

New York, April 29.—Ex-Ambassador Andrew D. White, who returned yesterday on the steamship Bluecher, after a trip in the Caribbean Sea, said of Cuba, which he visited:

"I regard the Cuban question as more serious than our Philippine problem. Cuba is a great negro State, incapable of self-government, and everything that I saw there strengthens my conviction that Cuba as a State would be a curse to us—simply a vast rotten borough with a few wealthy men in the midst of a negro population incompetent to govern themselves, to say nothing of aiding in the government of the United States.

"If Cuba were a state of the Union it would, in my opinion, rapidly become a curse to itself and the nation."

T. A. S. to Grant New Altar

The T.A.S. of St. Peter's has offered to provide an altar for the new Roman Catholic church to be erected in the south end of the city. Bishop O'Connor has expressed his willingness that the altar should be provided by them. The members have finally decided to make arrangements for collecting the necessary funds. The altar will cost $1,000, and it is assured that it will be in keeping with the church and its furnishings.

Peterboro' Has Lost a Good Citizen

Late Alfred E. Belcher's Funeral Will be Held this Afternoon.

In our issue of yesterday we published the first intimation of the sad death of the late Mr. Alfred Belcher, C.E. Owing to the late hour at which the lamented news was received The Times could but note the departure of this old time and respected citizen.

The late Mr. Belcher's death resulted from various complications, arising from typhoid fever, while engaged at work on the Crow's Nest Pass Railway. The late Mr. Belcher was a civil engineer by profession, and during his lifetime was associated with a number of public works, including the Trent Valley canal. He was employed on construction work, until the completion of the locks at Burleigh Falls, Peterborough Falls, and Lovesick. After completing his work for the canal, Mr. Belcher went to San Francisco, where he remained some time.

After his return from California Mr. Belcher went to the Crow's Nest Pass for the C.P.R. It was here that he contracted typhoid fever.

The late Mr. Belcher was, prior to coming to Canada, stroke for the Queen's College crew, in Ireland, and on arrival here, organized a crew composed of Messrs. R. B. Rogers, the late Geo. Rogers and Mr. Shaw, with himself as stroke. This crew won from Toronto and Hamilton, at Barrie.

The deceased was a son of the late Samuel B. Belcher, C.E., of Cork, Ireland, and was one of five brothers, two only of whom are now living, James E. and Samuel, both of this city.

Mr. Belcher was married some years ago to Miss Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, who with one son, still survives him. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, Stewart street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Mrs. Hugh Walker Has Passed Away

There are many living in this city and county who will learn with deep regret that of Mrs. Hugh Walker, passed away at her home at Warsaw, Port Hope, at the ripe old age of 72 years. The deceased, whose maiden name was Fitzgerald, was born on the old Fitzgerald farm on the 7th line of Smith, near Lakefield, and has yet many relatives in that locality. Her husband predeceased her some ten or twelve years. She leaves to mourn her loss two brothers and two sisters, and eight children. The funeral will be held this afternoon to take place to the cemetery at Warsaw.

Women Unite to Horsewhip Man

London, Ont., April 27.—George H. Ward, a prosperous farmer near Roscoe, Madison County, was whipped yesterday by sixteen neighbor women for alleged wife beating.

Mrs. Ward died Thursday, and Friday Ward buried her, digging the grave himself. The women met at an appointed place after sending to town for buggy whips. When Ward came from the funeral they attacked him, crying "beast" and "brute." Mrs. Ward before her death, filed a petition for divorce, alleging cruelty in that Ward drove her out of bed and made her feed the livestock.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Colquhoun of James street, east ward, was brought to the police station by P. C. Newton and appeared before Magistrate Dumble charged with threatening to take his own life on the preceding evening.

At yesterday's session of the police court, J. S. Richardson, Dalhousie street, was fined two dollars for allowing certain building materials to stand on the street in front of his residence after the completition of the work of building for longer than one week. It had been there all winter and his worship imposed a fine of two dollars to show that the bylaw must not be overlooked.

Another and a sad case was tried whereby a well-known young man was fined $2 for being drunk and in default of the price was given ten days in jail to enable him to sober up. The young man in question has held a good job in the city and it is only about once a year that he transgresses the limits of temperance. Still the man was next door, or possibly between the sills to that state known as the "D.T's".

Pope Plus Urges War on Divorce

New York, April 29.—Pope Pius X. has issued a call to society women of New York, made public today, to aid in preventing the spread of the divorce evil, and in the restoration of the social ideals of the Catholic church.

The pope's letter was written to Miss Eliza O.B. Lummis, founder of the Daughters of Faith, and was read by her at a meeting of the organization presided over by Mgr. Lavelle and addressed by Archbishop Farley.

In his letter the pope lays down rules governing the duties of society women in connection with divorce. He says:

"Among these duties we mention particularly that of protecting Christian marriage against the disgraceful stain of divorce; of providing for proper education within the domestic walls as well as within the schools; of checking those pests of society, namely, the shameless license of spectacular representations and immoral books, of idle and wanton conversation and gatherings and the shameful extravagance of dress."

The Daughters of Faith was founded by Miss Lummis with the approval of Pope Pius, with a view to bringing women of high social position into the movement to check the divorce evil.

German Princess Is a Kleptomaniac

Berlin, April 29.—Criminal action against Princess Camille Von Wrede for the theft of silver from Berlin hotels is to be abandoned and the princess is insane. The accusations against the princess, which caused a sensation, were made by a valet of Prince Von Wrede. He told the prince that the princess was a kleptomaniac and demanded $12,000 for silence. The valet was arrested, charged with attempted blackmail.

The police, however, searched Basedow castle, Mecklenburg, leased by the Von Wredes, and found silverware valued at $46,000, which was stolen from leading hotels in Europe. The princess was Carmen Dolores Josefa de Benitez, a rich Argentine woman. The Von Wredes have a palace in Madrid which is filled with rare art treasures.

Denmark as Kaiser's Ally

Copenhagen, April 29.—Negotiations are going on between the Danish and German Governments concerning the arrangement of the Danish army and navy in case of war. Germany requests the concentration of the Danish army in Zealand, new fortifications at Copenhagen, the establishment of a naval base, and the expansion both in material and personnel of the navy. The negotiations which commenced under King Frederick's visit to Berlin are now nearly concluded. In military circles it is considered that the fulfillment of Germany's requests would have the same effect as the Kaiser's favorite plan of closing the Baltic in time of war.

Why did Market Clock Toll?

Quite a large number of citizens were puzzled by the clock on the market building striking one stroke about every half hour. More than several times since a Times representative heard the question, "Say whose funeral is the market bell tolling for?" We are unfortunately able to answer the question but was informed late on the evening that the caretaker had to sound those seemingly false alarms whilst making repairs. It was also suggested that possibly the regular knell of the requiem to the present pavement obstructions (?) by-law.

Dog Owners Should Buy Tags

Yesterday the chief of police interviewed quite a number of the local newspaper reporters and asked them to insert an item as to the dilatory action of most of the dog owners of the city in getting out their dog tickets for the year beginning May 1st. The chief stated that whilst there are truly over thousand dogs in the city, that up to yesterday only 137 had paid the tax, i.e., $1 for males and $2 for females. On the first of May the local police will go out fully armed, both mechanically and with intention to exterminate all such dogs as are not paid for on May 1st. Not only will such untagged dogs be destroyed, but their owners are liable to be brought before the police magistrate and fined.

Jag With D.T's. Sent Up

Only one case was tried at yesterday's session of the police court, viz., that of a local man who has, for some time been addicted to an excessive consumption of alcoholic stimulants. The man in question had been sent to a local hospital to try and get the patient divorced from the booze he craved for. Unfortunately, on Sunday night, the patient managed to secure his clothes and made a break for freedom and more booze. On arrival in the centre of the city, the ex-hospital patient found what he sought, and was quickly gathered in by the police. At his trial yesterday morning he was given a $2 fine "to be paid forthwith or ten days in jail in default, not having the necessary collateral the patient was given a ten days' sobering residence in Castle Nealey.

SCHOLARSHIPS GIVEN TO THEIR WINNERS

Crowded Meeting Held in Y. M. C. A. Hall Last Night Under Auspices of Collegiate Philomathean Society.

Last night the fine hall at the Y. depicted is sustained with a realism M.C.A., George street, was crowded that thrilled his audience and engendered to its utmost capacity with repertoires a combination of horror and sensations, emotions or friends of the sympathy that removes green in Collegiate Institute Philomathean Society. Among the large audience present, the fair sex was largely predominant, and, whilst many of Canada's future statesmen, lawyers, doctors and business men were present, there is no doubt but what many a coming charming belle and sometime matron of this city was in the majority. That part of the hall nearest the stage was entirely and, not to be captious against uncomfortably crowded by scores and hundreds of bright eyed, rosy cheeked girls of this progressive little city of ours.

The main feature of the entertainment, as exploited by Mr. Fred Brown, who acted most ably as chairman, was the presentation of the scholarships won in the local Collegiate Institute.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS.

The scholarships were won respectively as follows;

Miss Emma Kelly, of the 4th form, $50. Mr. W. Barmey, $15, and Mr. Bruce Ingham, $15.

THE PROGRAM.

The programm of the evening was as follows;

Reading—Miss Young.
Violin Solo—Miss L. Sanderson.
Reading—Miss Mannell.
Dialogue—
Reading—Miss Ellis.
Reading—Miss Young.
Vocal Solo—Miss Hallihan.
Reading—Miss Dean.
Reading—Miss Campbell.
Piano Solo—Miss K. Burnett.
Violin Duet—Misses Wells and Burnett.
Presentation of Scholarships— Mr. Fessenden.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"The Bells"

Mr. Tubs. E. Shea, the noted tragedian, was greeted by a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night, when he presented the late Sir Henry Irving's greatest success, "The Bells," a tragedy teeming with pathos and sentiment.

Mr. Shea stands in the front rank of later day tragedians, and transports his audience from out of their own personality into the thrilling scenes he is delineating. He is eminently capable of impersonating the difficult roles demanded by high class drama, and his splendid work last night infused his audience with a maximum measure of enthusiastic appreciation. He has a histrionic individuality of his own that captivates as well as pleases.

In act IV., where Matthias, the beloved of the village, dreams on the night of his daughter's marriage, that he is being tried in court for the murder of the Jew, a deed he had committed 15 years previous, and which not paved his way to wealth and exalted station, Mr. Shea is simply sublime. Every detail of the scene

Bishop O'Connor's Eighteenth Anniversary

Tomorrow his Lord Bishop O'Connor, will celebrate the 18th anniversary of his elevation to the dignity of the episcopate. The Bishop's work in this diocese has been marked by progress on every hand. The late Bishop Jamot was the first to occupy a bishop's chair in Peterborough, and at his death, Bishop Dowling, now of London, succeeded him.

Bishop O'Connor was formerly a dean of the diocese of Toronto, being pastor of the church in Barrie. Tomorrow he will officiate at a high mass.

Lover Must Pay for His Flokleness

ST. THOMAS, April 30.—An interesting breach of promise case was tried on Saturday, Miss Ida Bearss, daughter of a well-to-do farmer of the township of Malahide, sued Fred Trim, only son of a wealthy farmer of the same township, for $5,000 damages.

The plaintiff is a bright, pretty, girl of 21 years. She swore that she had been keeping company, with defendant since 1902, and in July, 1906, while out driving, defendant told her to prepare and that they would be married in time to go to the Toronto Exhibition. She did so, but he not carry out his promises, and on September 7th her father went to defendant's home and told the young man that his daughter wanted to see him. He went over, and in presence of her father and mother stated he would marry her about Nov. 1, and not later than the 15th. This he failed to do.

The defendant, Fred Trim, testified that he was 21 years of age. He swore positively he never asked plaintiff to marry him or had such conversation with her while driving. The defendant did not make a very good impression, and the judge insinuated in his address to the jury that the young girl was better off without defendant than to marry him. The jury, brought in an verdict of $800 for plaintiff after an adjournment of ten minutes.

Serious Accident

At six o'clock last evening, near Indian River, an Italian laborer, named Grasso Creazanza, while returning from construction work, with a gang of fellow workmen, fell from off a wagon on to the hard road and sustained serious injuries to his head. Dr. Grey was telegraphed for and he left for the scene of the accident on the local last night.

The injured man was brought to Peterborough, and conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is doing as well as can be expected.

Beware of Mercury

You May be Using this Harmful Drug and Not Know it.

Drastic cathartics will weaken the strongest. With old people they are a positive menace to life.

Merely to restore normal bowel action and gently stimulate the liver is all that the wise physician recommends.

To keep the system pure and clean, nothing is so efficacious, as the vegetable pills of Dr. Hamilton, which are composed of such herbs as mandrake, butternut and dandelion; they contain not an atom of any substance that could injure even an infant.

By their certain action on the Liver Dr. Hamilton's Pills cause bile to be secreted which forms the stimulus that moves the bowels; this is nature's own method and the best one.

Mr R. Hambly, of French River, Ont., writes as follows: "I was inclined to bilious attacks and frequently was too ill to work. Most remedies purged and weakened my bowels, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills gently stimulated my liver, and by strengthening the stomach made a perfect cure. My health has been just splendid since I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Get. Dr. Hamilton's Pills from your druggist or storekeeper, 25c per box or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

LABOR LAWS FAIL

In the London Times of April 8 there appeared a three-column letter from an Australian correspondent of that newspaper, in which communication the story of three strikes, all of them serious, is told. In each case the arbitration act was ignored, its penal provisions were defied, and concessions were extorted from the employers without appeal to the court. The correspondent says that New Zealand "can no longer be called a land without strikes," and announces "a crisis" in connection with the working of the arbitration system.

The Minister of Labor, in a public statement, expressed deep regret at the action of the men in violating the law and announcing vigorous prosecutions. The employers' federation, the correspondent further says, has little faith in the act, and feels that the strikes in question spell its utter breakdown. It is fully expected that a number of unions will "cancel their registration so as to apply the strike principle when the demands of workers are not acceded to by employers." A leading paper is quoted as thus expressing itself editorially:

Whatever happens, nothing can alter the fact that certain bodies of men, working under an award of the court, have chosen, in defiance of the law, to go back to the barbaric method of the strike in order to secure higher pay, and in two cases have forced their employers to concede their demands. In face of this it is difficult to see how anybody can contend that the system of industrial arbitration has not broken down.

Perhaps these views are too pessimistic. A few violations of a law do not argue its failure. But in considering the New Zealand example it is well to hear all sides.

CONVENIENCES BEFORE CREED

VIENNA, April 28.—The 700 inhabitants of the Ruthenian village, Niedzielna, near Alt-Sambox, Galicia, have formally notified the authorities that they have gone over to a body from the Greek to the Roman Catholic Church.

The reason given is that the latter church is ready to allot a priest to the village, while the authorities of the Greek Church treated Niedzielna as part of a larger parish. The inhabitants objected to walking to the next village for their devotions.

Does Coffee disagree with you? Probably it does! Then try Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee. "Health Coffee" is a clever combination of parched cereals and nuts. Not a grain of real Coffee, remember, in Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee, yet its flavor and taste matches closely old Java and Mocha Coffee. If your stomach, heart, or kidneys can't stand Coffee drinking, try Health Coffee. It is wholesome, nourishing, and satisfying. It is nice even for the youngest child. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Effort to be Made to Coerce the Transvaal Government

JOHANNESBURG, April 28.—It is said here that the following scheme has been decided upon by the heads of the mining houses.

When the Transvaal parliament meets in June their representatives in the hemmber will move an amendment in the constitution to enable the contracts of the Chinese to be renewed; and, in view of the fact that probably half the Chinese will refuse to renew, the amendment is so designed as to enable further Chinese to be imported to keep up the present strength. If the Transvaal government opposes the mines will be closed and a crisis provoked, causing financial panic on the Rand. The mine owners calculate that this will cause the government to give way.

The magnates regard the imperial government as a negligible quantity. They boast that they will make Lord Elgin climb down as quickly over the Chinese in the Transvaal as he did over the Zulus in Natal.

Dr. Jameson's proposal at the Colonial conference is part of a scheme to exhibit the Liberalg overnment as anti-colonial.

Another factor in the scheme is that the mine owners are interesting themselves in pushing the protectionist propaganda in London.

Altogether, a sinister movement is now being engineered here and in London by cosmopolitan finance to discredit the Liberal government in England, and to force the Transvaal government into the maintenance of the infamous system of Chinese labor on the Rand.

"MINES AND NEAR-MINES"

We told you last week about "get rich propositions," where promoters owned a piece of barren ground, incorporated a company and sold stock for their personal uses.

In locating claims, a claim being 600 feet by 1,500 feet, the long way of the claim lies along the location ledge. A claim located on the side line adjoining, while advertised as being near such a property does not follow that it is as good or any good, compared with the mine they are using to sell their stock. In some cases they have proved bonanzas, but the chances are against it. We have two claims end to end, on a rich ledge, 3,000 feet of ledge matter. We are selling stock at 25c. per share (par value $1.00) to place a mill on the property, when no more stock will be sold at this price. We have ore enough in sight to warrant this investment, and we anticipate that the stock will go above par.

We want you to write us, and we will tell you all about it. Silver Queen Mining Co., 34 Bacon Bldg., Oakland, California. Mines in the "Wonder District," Nevada.

Some High Priced Animals.

A spinster with money to burn recently paid $5,000 for a bulldog. A man in Massachusetts has just bought a cow for $8,000. Walter Garvey has a hog for which he refused a cash offer of $4,000. James Keene refused $200,000 for Sysonby, a race horse. There are several roosters of fashionable blood priced as high as $900 each. You can buy a fine lion for $300 and a tiger for $700. By and by we shall have a crane for breeding fishes, and a fine male salmon educated to pond life might be worth $1,000. The $8,000 cow has one calf a year, worth $4,000. The female salmon may become the mother of 200,000 little fellows in the same time, worth in the aggregate possibly as much as the calf.—Kansas City Journal.

Saving Up the Heart.

Several years ago when a fight occurred in Chicago one of the combatants received a stab wound in the heart. The first physician to reach the apparently doomed man was Dr. Daniel H. Williams, a negro practitioner, who succeeded in sewing up the man's heart. This was the first time any such operation was ever reported in the history of medicine. At the last account the patient in this remarkable case was still alive. Dr. Williams has since served on the Illinois state board of health.

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,
CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:

W. F. PARSONS, President.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered; the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 6200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted, difference in Nestorius. His dusky little face was shining with a sudden, weakening perspiration, his limbs lay lifelessly, with a lack of their usual comfortable looking grace.

"Go!" she said quickly. "Fetch Miss Gordon!"

Jocelyn came, and Maurice and Guy Oscard; for they had been together in the dining room when Joseph delivered Marie's message.

Nestorius was wide awake now. When he saw Oscard his small face suddenly expanded into a brilliant grin.

"Bad case!" he said.

It was rather startling, until Marie spoke.

"He thinks you are Mr. Meredith," she said. "Mr. Meredith taught him to say 'bad case.'"

Nestorius looked from one to the other with gravely speculative eyes, which presently closed.

"He is dying—yes!" said the mother, looking at Jocelyn.

Oscard knew more of this matter than any of them. He went forward and leaned over the table. Marie removed a piece of salted bacon that was lying on the table near to the pillow. With the unconsciousness of long habit she swept some crumbs away with her apron. Oscard was trying to find the pulse in the tiny wrist, but there was not much to find.

"I am afraid he is very ill," he said.

At this moment the kettle boiled over and Marie had to turn away to attend to her duties.

When she came back Oscard was looking, not at Nestorius, but at her.

"We spent four days at Msala," he said in a tone that meant that he had more to tell her.

"Yes?"

"The place is in ruins, as you know."

She nodded with a peculiar little twist of the lips as if he were hurting her.

"And I am afraid I have some bad news for you. Victor Durnovo, your master"—

"Yes. Tell quickly!"

"He is dead. We buried him at Msala. He died in my arms."

At this moment Joseph gave a little gasp and turned away to the window, where he stood with his broad back toward them. Maurice Gordon, as white as death, was leaning against the table. He quite forgot himself. His lips were apart, his jaw had dropped. He was hanging breathlessly on Guy Oscard's next word.

"He died of the sleeping sickness," said Oscard. "We had come down to Msala before him—Joseph and I. I broke up the partnership, and we left him in possession of the simiacine plateau. But his men turned against him. For some reason his authority over them failed. He was obliged to make a dash for Msala, and he reached it, but the sickness was upon him."

Maurice Gordon drew a sharp sigh of relief which was almost a sob. Marie was standing with her two hands on the pillow where Nestorius lay. Her deep eyes were fixed on the Englishman's sunburnt, strongly gentle face.

"Did he send a message for me? Yes?" she said softly.

"No," answered Oscard. "He—there was no time."

Joseph at the window had turned half round.

"He was my husband," said Marie in her clear, deep tones, "the father of this little one which you call Nestorius."

Oscard bowed his head without surprise. Jocelyn was standing still as a statue, with her hand on the dying infant's cheek. No one dared to look at her.

"It is all right," said Marie bluntly. "We were married at Sierra Leone by the English chaplain. My father, who is dead, kept a hotel at Sierra Leone, and he knew the ways of the half castes. He said that the Protestant church at Sierra Leone was good enough for him, and we were married there. And then Victor brought me away from my people to this place and to Msala. Then he got tired of me; he cared no more. He said I was ugly."

She pronounced it "ogly," and seemed to think that the story finished there. At all events, she added nothing to it. But Joseph thought fit to contribute a post scriptum.

"You'd better tell 'em, mistress," he said, "that he tried to starve yer and them kids; that he wanted to leave yer at Msala to be massacred by the tribes, only Mr. Oscard sent yer down 'ere. You'd better tell 'em that."

"No," she replied, with a faint smile. "No, because he was my husband."

Guy Oscard was looking very hard at Joseph, and, catching his eye, made a little gesture commanding silence. He did not want him to say too much.

Joseph turned away again to the window and stood thus apart till the end.

"I have no doubt," said Oscard to Marie, "that he would have sent some message to you had he been able, but he was very ill—he was dying—when he reached Msala. It was wonderful that he got there at all. We did what we could for him, but it was hopeless."

"The sleeping sickness," she said, "what will you? There is no remedy. He always said he would die of that. He feared it."

In the greater sorrow she seemed to have forgotten her child, who was staring open eyed at the ceiling. The two others, the boy and girl, were playing on the doorstep with some unconsidered trifles from the dust heap after the manner of children all the world over.

"He was not a good man," said Marie, further to Jocelyn, as if she alone of all present would understand. "He was not a good husband but"—she shrugged her shoulders with one of her patient, shadowy smiles—"it makes so little difference—yes?"

Jocelyn said nothing. None of them had aught to say to her, for each in that room could lay a separate sin at Victor Durnovo's door. He was gone beyond reach of human justice to the higher court where the extenuating circumstance is fully understood. The generosity of that silence was infectious, and they told her nothing. Had they spoken she would perforce have believed them, but then, as she herself said, it would have made so little difference. So Victor Durnovo leaves these pages, and all we can do is to remember the writing on the ground. Who among us dares to withhold the extenuating circumstance? Who is ready to leave this world without that crutch to lean upon? Given a mixed blood—evil black with evil white—and what can the result be but evil? Given the climate of western Africa and the mental irritation thereof, added to a lack of education and the natural vice inherent in man, and you have—Victor Durnovo.

Nestorius—the shameless—stretched out his little bare limbs and turned half over on his side. He looked from one face to the other with the grave wonder that was his. He had never been taken much notice of. His short walk in life had been very near the ground, where trifles look very large, and from whence those larger stumbling blocks which occupy our attention are quite invisible. He had been the third—the solitary third child who usually makes his own interest in life, and is left by or leaves the rest of his family.

It was not quite clear to him why he was the center of so much attention. His mind did not run to the comprehension of the fact that he was the wearer of borrowed plumes—the sable plumes of King Death.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children, insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by J. D. Tully.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE.

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

par value $1.00. As a result of last summer's work numerous veins of rich ore were uncovered, assaying from $10 up to $5000. There is every indication that this property will prove sensationally rich, and with the low capitalization of $500,000, $150,000 of which is in the Treasury, the dividends should be large, and the stock become very valuable. This is a thorough business mining proposition, and will stand the most critical examination. As there are only a limited number of shares offered, intending subscribers should send in their orders without delay.

ADVERTISING PAYS

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic.

How Are Your Nerves?

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it.

He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

He needs Ferrozone!

Its first action is upon digestion.

It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can be at once assimilated.

Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferrozone is marvelous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl E. Newsome of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferrozone which saved my life after a severe siege of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work, and found that three doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferrozone as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferrozone I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was completely cured. Ferrozone braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvelous restorer and tonic."

The presentation was accompanied by a suitable and laudatory address, expressive of the esteem in which the reverend gentleman is held and conveying most sincere wishes for a pleasant trip.

Peterboro is Self Respecting

We just happened yesterday to look through the report of public libraries, etc., issued by the Provincial Government. This booklet shows many handsome buildings which date their inception from grants made by by the American steel king, Carnegie, whose funds, amounting to millions were wrung from the workmen of the various plants Mr. Carnegie's wit, brought under subjection of a combine and system that was stronger than bands of steel. Whilst Peterborough may not have a so-called "public library," for which her citizens would have to pay ten per cent. for countless years, of the amount subscribed by Carnegie to satisfy his conscience or square himself with the public, the city still holds her self-respect and is beholden to no agent of a combine that preys on the people.

Scientist May be Under Trial

It is now possible that, owing to Mr. Todd's Christian Science report in a local contemporary that members of the local Ministerial Association may take the subject up for discussion at their next meeting. If so, it is to be hoped that themembers, who are working for the cause of Christ and mankind will discuss the "treatment" at "so much per," of the poor young man who died under the "care" of a man who, it was alleged deprived him of medical aid until near the point of death, and who, after his death, confessed to going through the pockets of the deceased, when faced with this charge in the coroner's court.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of "American Dispensatory"; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Additional Equipment for the New Fire Hall

Building to be Opened With Public Festivities---Salary of Drivers and Engineer Increased---Open Arc Street Lamps are a Back Number--Machines for Same Only to be Found in Junk Shops.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night when there were present, Chairman Ald. Johnston, his worship Mayor McWilliams and Aldermen Morgan and Duncan.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the two drivers in the fire hall be given an increase of $50 a year.—Carried.

The salary of Sam. Wainwright will be increased $35 a year as engineer of the fire department, and pressure will be brought to bear on the Board of Works and Property Committee to grant a proportionate increase for the work he does for those departments. (Wainwright's salary is made up from three sources as follows: From Fire, Water and Light Committee for duty as engineer in fire hall; from Property Committee for heating of city buildings; from Board of Works for work with steam roller.)

Mr. Larmonth informed the committee that but very few more open arc lamps for street lighting are available. Should any more street lamps be required the closed lamps would have to be installed. This means that where many additional lights are demanded that particular circuit would have to be renewed to provide for a closed lamp circuit of 40 lamps. Again, Mr. Larmonth would not commit himself to change one circuit without transforming all circuits, he also pointed out that the machines for open arc lights are not made today; they are away up to be found in junk shops. Should any one of the present open lamp machines burn out, it is altogether probable that the company would be unable to furnish that particular circuit with light through their inability to renew said machine.

The matter was left in abeyance.

NEW FIRE EQUIPMENT.

The committee have $3200 to hand yet for expenditure in connection with the new fire hall.

Chief Rutherford offered that Maltese Cross rubber hose should be secured especially for street purposes, to save wear and tear on present fire hose in flushing sewers. Mr. Rutherford also reported that the department have now some 3000 feet of effective fire hose, which is not up to standard requirements.

Chief Rutherford advised that the department needed a No. 4 Seagrave hook and ladder wagon with a nest of ladders, the longest to be of 54-foot length, will be purchased at say $1200 or $1,400. 400 feet rubber hose at $1 a foot; a combined chemical and hose wagon, which he thought could be built in town for $825 or $650.

It was also advocated that the yearly supply of 400 feet of hose should be supplied to keep up the standard requirements in fire hose, this is necessary to replace the natural wear and tear in fire hose. This item of course does not come out of the bylaw appropriation.

The auditor moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the chairman of the committee and Fire Chief Rutherford be authorized to report as to what equipment can be procured for $2,500.—Carried.

FIRE HALL OPENING.

The new fire hall will be opened with general festivities, comprising refreshments, a musical entertainment in the evening, followed by a dance. The hall to be opened to visitors all day.

Ald. Johnston offered that the hall will be opened about the middle of May.

The committee will go into this matter in detail before next meeting.

The man on duty at the hall will be uniformed.

Chief Rutherford reported that the firemen had not been supplied with uniforms for 13 years.

The foreman will report as to the conditions of the fire hall men's uniforms.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Napoleon the Great"

The story of Napoleon's life, from the inception of his great ambition to reign as emperor of France, to the closing scenes at Waterloo, were admirably portrayed at the Grand Opera House last night by the talented tragedian Mr. Thos. E. Shea and his excellent support. Only a fair audience was present, whereas the character of the presentation called for a record house.

Mr. Shea excelled himself as Napoleon the Great, and offered a conception of this difficult historic role that afforded his audience an extremely vivid realization of the insatiable ambition of the great military hero he was impersonating. This eminent actor is peculiarly fitted for the cast of Napoleon, physically and histrionically, and his realistic portrayal of the terror of Europe elicited from his enthusiastic audience frequent rounds of applause.

Mr. Shea was splendidly supported by Alice Endres as Duchess Guiche, and Charlotte Burkett as the ex of Madame Josephine, both actresses winning from the audience a full measure of endorsations of their highly meritorious interpretation of the indispensable parts allotted them. In fact, the support throughout left but little to be desired.

The drama was very effectively staged, especially the battle field of Waterloo, which was presented with a fascinating finish of detail, both in character and scenery, that called for demonstrative approval.

The only regrettable feature of the production was the fact that Peterborough citizens did not rise to the occasion offered for witnessing a truly great actor in a great play. The house should have been crowded to the doors.

Kidnap Young Bride as Joke

Toledo, O., May 1.—The bride of Walter Coe, of Toledo, was kidnapped by practical jokers immediately after the wedding service at Portage last night and was taken from the church door to an automobile in which she was held prisoner until she became hysterical at an early hour today.

The husband secured a carriage, in which he gave chase and attempted to overtake the jokers. He failed, however, and waited at Bowling Green for an early train to Toledo.

When the bride became hysterical, the kidnappers, frightened, took her to Bowling Green, where she was reunited with her husband.

The kidnappers had intended to keep the girl prisoner for two or three days.

Miss Annie Guthrie Now Mrs. Gibson

Local Lady Leaves, as a Bride, for Far Off Regina.

Last night a pretty wedding was celebrated at the residence of Mrs. John Guthrie, 308 Aylmer street, when her third daughter, Miss Annie E. G., became the bride of Mr. Arthur J. Gibson of Regina, junior partner of the firm of Watson & Gibson of that far western city. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her mother, and was attired most becomingly in white crepe de chine, trimmed with allover lace, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

As the bridal party entered the drawing room Miss Florence Kitney played Mendelssohn's Wedding March, after which Miss Minnie Kitney sang "The Voice that breathed o'er Eden." The bride was given away by her mother.

The bridesmaid was Miss Violet Guthrie, a sister of the bride, whilst Mr. O. M. Blewett of the Peterborough Hardware Co., acted as best man. The happy groom presented to his bride a cabinet of silverware of 109 pieces, and to the bridesmaid a handsome ring. The young couple will leave this evening for their future home in Regina.

An Interesting Brief From the Chief

Next Tuesday will see the first trial under the new fire bylaw for the season. The brigade will be called out for practice.

On this occasion the new fire engine and new team will make their bow to the public at seven o'clock, p.m. It is necessary that every member of the brigade be present.

The route covered will be from the present fire hall premises on Simcoe street, to Logan's Bridge, corner of Aylmer and Brock streets.

In connection with these notes of the brigade's actions, it might be mentioned that the Bell Telephone Company are pushing along their work in connection with the new fire alarm system. Chief Rutherford notes that the old system is practically useless. It is anticipated that within a week or so that the new fire alarm system will be in good order.

Wag Their Tails at the Martyrs

LONDON, April 30.—The most beautiful and the least known theatre in London, is La Scala, which is hidden away in a network of mean streets in the Bloomsbury district. The proprietor, who is attempting to revive, or rather, to establish the fortunes of the house, has produced a melodrama which is called "The Judgment of Pharaoh." As a spectacular show London has seen nothing more lavishly and beautifully done, but the play moves to laughter in the wrong places, especially when two fierce lions enter and pass over the Christian victims, and mildly attack their persecutors, while a stage hand does the roaring in the wings.

The lions, which are well endowed with manes, have tufted tails, which unfortunately wag in friendly canine fashion when they should lash fiercely. The lions, indeed, cannot hide the fact that they are a most palpable pair of bull hounds, most thinly disguised.

London has laughed so much over this that the management has now hitched five trained lions, and will apply for permission to have them chained on the stage, though they protest now that "the dogs have lost their nerve-nerve, and got more thoroughly into the skins of their part, and are doing vastly better than on the first night.

Irish Railway Stolen Piecemeal

LONDON, April 30.—The wholesale theft of a railway sounds like a large order, but it has been accomplished in Ireland, according to a story told yesterday before the Viceregal Commission on Irish Railways. A line was built between Birr and Portumna in 1868. The Great Southern and Western worked the line until 1876, when it failed to renew the lease. The neighboring population then stole the railway. The telegraph wires went first, and the rails followed in short order. Then the gates, buildings, in fact the total equipment was carried off. In the words of Deputy Lieut. Trench, up to the present the last of the railway alone arrived. This testimony was corrected, however, as a bridge spanning the river Brosna has up to the present escaped. A mine, however, did come down with cranes and other appliances, intending to carry off the girders of the bridge, but the police station happened to be close by, and the sergeant of police took it up on himself to prevent the man from taking the bridge away.

Bishop O'Connor's Anniversary

Today Bishop O'Connor will celebrate the eighteenth anniversary of his elevation to the episcopate. His lordship is enjoying excellent health and bids to have many more years of usefulness and devoted service in the Church to which he has consecrated his talents and his life. Previous to his consecration as bishop he was dean of the diocese of Toronto, and spent many years as pastor of the church at Barrie. High mass will be celebrated by his lordship at the cathedral this morning.

Directors Must Pay Up Any Damages

Decision Given in Appeal re Peterboro Cold Storage Co.

Osgoode Hall notes published at Toronto yesterday contained the following:—Before Boyd, C. Re Peterborough Cold Storage Co.—Judgment (H.) on appeal by the liquidator of the company in winding up proceedings from order or decision of local Master at Peterborough. The letters patent for this company, issued on November 13th, 1903, incorporating the original subscribers to the memorandum of agreement and such others as should become subscribers for stock therein. Subsequent stock was applied for and obtained by other shareholders upon the terms of paying a deposit of 25 per cent. of the par value of the stock, and an agreement to pay a further sum of 25 per cent. upon allotment. The original corporators avoided making such payment of 25 per cent., and took steps to get rid of the bulk of their stock by transferring to persons of little or no substance, not a great while before the company's insolvency. This transfer of stock by the directors en bloc was impeached upon this appeal. Held that the position taken by the appellant was well founded, viz., that the directors were incapacitated from making the transfers while yet the 25 per cent. representing the first payment on the shares was an outstanding liability. The transaction is within the mischief granted against by sec. 30 of R.S.O., ch. 191. The transaction cannot be upheld. There was a violation of duty on the part of the directors, a breach of trust, which renders them liable to make good as damages any sums which in the winding up may be required, and which cannot be made good by the defaulting transferees, who are to be called upon in the first instance. The liquidator's costs of the appeal to be paid by the respondent. R. E. Wood (Peterborough), and W. E. Middleton, for the liquidator. D. O'Connell (Peterborough), for the respondents.

Gold Bond Mining Stock Will Pay Large Returns.

One of the most promising of Colorados recently located gold mines is that owned by the Gold Bond Mining and Milling Company, who hold four claims, three of which are patented, and all close to the famous Addison claim, which has made the Golden Message stock advance rapidly in value. On the Gold Bond Company's property is a vein running from the Addison, with ore of the same quality and richness. Receipts of ore from the Gold Bond have shown values as high as $24,000 per ton, and their veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with some of the rock of extraordinary value.

The Golden Message Mine is located within a few yards from the Gold Bond Mine, and stock in the former has advanced from 10 to 25 cents per share within the past few weeks. The Gold Bond Mining and Milling Company are for a limited time offering stock at five cents per share, which are worth at par $1 per share. Not only is this extraordinary cheap price quoted, but investors may obtain the stock for 25 per cent. cash, the balance to be paid 25 per cent. per month.

For full particulars of stock, write or wire the Gold Bond Mining Company, J. E. Embree, secretary, Boulder, Colorado.

Fished up Infants' Bodies

Elgin, Ill., May 1.—While fishing in Fox River yesterday, Stephen Boras hooked a bundle of clothing, which he pulled ashore and found to contain the bodies of three infants, twin boys and a girl.

Coroner Morton is of the opinion that the bodies may have been hurled from a passing train. The clothing found with them was of fine quality, but had no marks.

WOMEN PAY MORE

Why Insurance Companies Discriminate Against the Gentle Sex.

Medical examiners of insurance companies say that the reason a woman pays more for the privilege of insurance than a man, is from the fact that women more readily fall victims to indigestion and stomach troubles and the fatal ailments that spring from these causes.

All persons, they say, who have a weakened digestive system and suffer from sick headache, dizzy spells, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion, soon lower the tone of the whole system and are most susceptible to a fatal illness.

For curative power in all stomach troubles, nothing else is as safe yet effective, nothing else can be thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known, and is really one of the valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not the acute attacks that influence the insurance examiners alone, but the constant feelings of weakness, headaches, indigestion and stomach troubles—these things, physicians say, kill more people than many more serious diseases.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-ona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER FAVORS STAND TAKEN BY PREMIER LAURIER

Supports Sir Wilfrid Regarding Imperial Council.

AND QUESTON OF DEFENCE

Sir Charles Denounces Use of Intermediate Tariff as Contemplated by the Canadian Ministers.

London, May 1.—Sir Charles Tupper contributes a fourteen page article to the Nineteenth Century for May on the Imperial Conference. Speaking generally and especially after thirteen years' experience as High Commissioner for Canada in England he supports Sir Wilfrid Laurier's action in the conference, in defeating the schemes for an Imperial Council.

He exposes what he calls the fallacies of Sir Frederick Pollock's and the Right Hon. A. Lyttelton's proposals for a permanent commission to effect the continuity of the conference between meetings. He quotes many instances to show how efficiently this has been done through the secret diplomatic agency of the High Commissioner.

The inner history of recent breakdowns in the relations of the Colonies and the Motherland, such as the Alaskan Boundary and the New Hebrides affairs, were not brought about by Colonial blunders, such as presumably Sir Wilfrid Laurier's early utterances on the Alaskan Boundary question. He shows how much of the troubles might have been avoided if the Imperial and Colonial Governments had kept closely in touch with one another through the High Commissioner.

Sir Charles suggests that all that is necessary is for each High Commissioner's office to be made a department of its own Colonial Government, the High Commissioner himself being both Privy Councillor here and Cabinet Minister in the Colony.

Sir Charles also supports Sir Wilfrid Laurier in opposing Colonial cash contributions to naval defence. He proves that Canada has fully acted up to her defence duty to the Empire as laid down by the Imperial defence committee.

Sir Charles also submits cogent arguments and gives illustrations in support of the preference which is this week's subject of debate in the conference.

He warns the conference of the dangers of the intermediate tariff as now being used by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to negotiate treaties with foreign powers without recourse to the agency of the Imperial Government, even without reference to the Canadian Parliament. These treaties whittle away the preference. Moreover it is conceivable that in the negotiations with Great Britain's astute industrial rivals Canada may be so led to fix and limit the margin of the British preference as to bar the way to any further arrangement of mutual preference within the Empire toward which the British electorate is undoubtedly moving.

In what may be his last lengthy public utterance Sir Charles prays that the British Empire be preserved from the disintegrating influences that overwhelmed so many Empires of the past.

Miss F. Kearns to be Buried Today

The funeral of the late Miss Florence Kearns, who passed away Monday evening at the age of eighteen years, and who was the only daughter of Mr. Frank Kearns of 270 Smith street, will be held this morning at 8.30 to St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore. The deceased had been ill for some time, suffering from tuberculosis. Her death has caused deep regret among a large number of friends.

Her father and one brother, residing in Ennismore, are left to mourn their loss.

Bar Tenders Get Their Licenses

Yesterday License Inspector Joseph Stewart was kept busy by the various bartenders of the city applying for renewals of their licenses. As is generally known, not only do the proprietors of the various hotels require to take out licenses, but it is incumbent on those serving behind the bars to take out somewhat similar papers for which a charge of $2 per annum is made Inspector Stewart, who, as is generally acknowledged, is the best license inspector Peterborough has had for many years, takes a most active interest in every detail of his position, so more than one bartender who applied yesterday for renewal of license was answered "Nay," because Mr. Stewart had heard of such man or men taking internally too much of the stuff he or they were licensed to sell only, as well as other offences.

Whilst a full list of the licenses granted up to a late hour last night, may not be absolutely complete, we know that the following wine clerks have so far been granted their licenses and paid their fees,—W. Honeybird and E. Greedonning, of the New Oxford Hotel; Oscar Hellman, Snowden House; Ernest Reaston, of the same house; Leo Cluney and Joseph Guerin, of the National; Eugene Downey and James Bagshaw, Northern Hotel; W. Monaghan, Maple Leaf Hotel; Martin Connors, Jas. Mein and Jos. Donahoe, City Hotel; M. Harris, Royal Hotel; Steve Highland, J. Hughes, of the American House.

Former Peterboro' Man Has Gone

Mr. Fred G. Cox Passes Away After an Attack of Pneumonia.

With feelings of the deepest regret, The Times has to note that Mr. Fred G. Cox, of Toronto, a son of Hon. Senator Cox, has passed away. For some days the city has watched for news of "Freddie" condition, as he was an old Peterborough boy.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, a cousin of deceased left yesterday morning for Toronto, where he will remain until after the funeral, the time for which has not yet been fixed.

A Toronto paper contains the following:

Mr. Frederick G. Cox, vice president of the Central Canada Loan & Savings Company, and second son of Hon. Senator Cox, passed away at his home, 47 Queen's Park, at 12.30 this morning. For several days he had been unwell, but on Saturday night he developed pneumonia. There were no alarming symptoms, however, till yesterday afternoon, when he took a sudden turn for the worse. After a consultation of doctors called by the attending physician, Dr. J. L. Davidson, it was reported that there was no chance for recovery. Hon. Mr. Cox and the other members of his family were at the bedside when the end came. Notice of the funeral arrangements will be announced later.

The late Mr. Frederick G. Cox, was born forty years ago in Peterborough, where he was educated, subsequently coming to Toronto with his father some eighteen years ago. From the organization of the Imperial Life Assurance Company in October, 1897, until January of this year, he was its managing director, retiring to become president of the Provident Investment & Mortgage Company. Mr. Cox was closely associated with the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, of which he was vice president. He was also a director of the Toronto Savings & Loan Co., of Peterborough. Mr. Cox was a great lover of horses and an ardent yachtsman, having been at one time part owner of the Canada. He was a member of the Toronto Hunt, of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the Toronto Club and the Masonic Order. In religion he was a Methodist, having been connected with Sherbourne street church for some years. Besides his widow, a daughter of the late Dr. Swann, of Woodstock, and his father, Hon. Mr. Cox, he is survived by two brothers, Messrs. E. W. Cox, vice president and general manager of the Canada Life Assurance Co.; and H. C. Cox, manager for Eastern Ontario of the Canada Life, and two sisters, Mrs. A. E. Ames, and Mrs. A. L. Davis, both of Toronto. Mr. W. G. Morrow and the Misses Morrow, of Peterborough, are cousins of deceased. Mrs. Ames is at present in New York in a very critical condition, and too ill to be removed to her home on Sherbourne street here. She has been in poor health for about a year.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

Only one case was tried at yesterday's session of the police court. Wm. Richards was charged with creating a disturbance on Hunter street on Monday evening. He pleaded that the disturbance was in a house which he paid rent for, and not on the public highway.

The complainant, Mrs. H. Kerr, in the box, swore that she had rented rooms to Richards and his wife, but only until they could procure other quarters. She said that the couple had been some weeks in her place and on Monday evening, despite the fact that she had warned them to leave, the roomers were "under the influence," and had become quarrelsome. The magistrate then ordered Richards to "git." At this juncture, Mrs. Richards arrived in the court room with every evidence of a "hold over," of the preceding night's jag. When asked where they came from, she replied, "From Campbellcroft." "It is a pity you didn't stay there," remarked Chief Ruttel.

Mrs. Richards then made all sorts of threats to the chief and policemen and created much amusement by her talk. After considerable pulling by her husband and having been warned to stop talking or she would be locked up, she was finally got down to the sidewalk. She then went at her husband for not wearing his cap, shouting to him, "Put on your cap."

Peterborough to Have Mail Delivery

As a result of the visit here of post office inspector Murrick of Kingston, it is anticipated that Peterborough will soon have a free street delivery of mail matter, the Government having placed an appropriation in the estimates this year for such a purpose in all cities of 10,000 inhabitants and over.

It is believed when the service is inaugurated here there will be a delivery of mail to every house inside the corporation limits once a day, and to all places in the central portion of the city, twice a day. It will require six mail carriers to cover the territory. The central part of the city, where letters will be delivered twice a day will be Dublin street on the north, Dalhousie on the south, Bethune on the west, and Water street on the east.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accumulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland; "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor in St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATION

The third session of the eleventh parliament of Ontario is now a thing of the past, and it is encouraging to note that it has been marked by a distinct elevation in the tone of legislative work and debate. In important constructive legislation, in a certain courtesy and harmony, so far as compatible with divergent views, honestly advocated, between the two political parties whose existence is a feature of constitutional government, and which have each their distinct functions of public usefulness — the party upon which devolve administration and responsibility and that whose duty it is to object and to criticise. The work of the session is most creditable, and cannot fail to be of advantage to the interests of the province. This includes:

The act to amend the mines act, 1906; the act to encourage the refining of metals in Ontario; the Ontario companies' act; the act to supplement the revenues of the crown; the Ontario game and fisheries act; the act to amend the public schools' act; the act respecting qualifications of certain teachers; The act for the improvement of the public highways; the act respecting colonization roads; the act respecting railways and other corporations; the act to amend the department of education act; the act respecting the salaries of members of the executive council; the power commission act; the succession duty act; the statute law amendment act, 1907; the municipal amendment act, 1907; and the assessment act, 1907; as well as a number of other very desirable and valuable enactments.

Wise measures have been adopted to encourage the vast mining interests recently developed in New Ontario, and care has been taken to secure to the people of the province their rightful interest in this vast and apparently inexhaustible source of wealth. Credit is due to Mr. Whitney and his colleagues for the excellence and practical character of their legislative work, while the beneficial influence of the opposition leader and Messrs. McKay and Preston upon results achieved may also be recognised.

The Outing Magazine for May

"A geographical romance" is the one terms that will describe Emerson Hough's article about the "Saskatchewan" in The Outing Magazine for May. The river that bears this title is the subject under treatment, and Mr. Hough tells with all the picturesqueness of his forceful style the story of this river whose arms embrace an empire larger than Europe and destined to play a very large part in human history. Vance Thompson contributes some very interesting sociological material in his "Slums of Paris," wherein the toughness of it is graced in a truly French fashion by wit and philosophy.

In "The Carolina Banks" Thomas Clarke Harris describes the three hundred and some odd miles of North Carolina's shore line, and he pictures forcibly the racial modifications that must follow the physical transformation that is coming over this part of North Carolina. "The Backbone of Our Sailing Fleet," by James G. McCurdy, is a review of the decline of the sailing schooner and is likewise a convincing argument for its reinstatement as a carrier of commerce. "The Forest Primeval," by T. S. Van Dyke, is a timely prose lyric. "The One that Got Away," by David Henry, is a large, large fish story for spring consumption; in fact it will set the pace for the countless breed of piscatory yarns that are now in order. In "The Long Labrador Trail," by Dillon Wallace, in the May issue, the travelers are homeward bound.

In "The View-point," Mr. Caspar Whitney reviews the shameful attempt of the corporations to steal the rights of the people in the Adirondacks. His words should act as a call to arms for preserving one of Nature's greatest pleasure grounds.

To complete a number abounding in readable and valuable articles, Ellen E. Rexford writes of "Making a Country Home." Charles H. Morton tells of the "Warfare Against the Wild Fowl." F. M. Ware speaks with authority on "The Everyday Abuse of Horses." Clarence Deming has a word to say about "The Catching and Care of Bait." Besides this, the number is rich in illustrations, made up of striking photographs and paintings that deal in fact and sentiment.

A GENIAL DESPOT.

Bonaparte Smiles and Smiles, but Has His Own Way.

Charles J. Bonaparte, the attorney general of the United States, can be the suavest man in all creation. He smiles so sweetly while he talks that people have gone away quite pacified and never realised till after it was all over that he had calmly gone ahead and done precisely what he proposed to do.

To return to that smile. It is so like the poor. No one ever saw Bonaparte who could think of much else. True, the first thing one sees on meeting him is the bullet round head—the Napoleon head—with its bold forehead, just bald enough to make it yet bolder.

Then one notes the nose, a dominating nose, the full eyes between heavy eyebrows, the short, thick mustache. Then the smile. It starts with the eyes, droops to one corner of the mouth, slips over to the other, then becomes audible in a queer kind of chuckle in the throat, which shakes an increasingly prominent double chin.

The upper chin is very timid and retiring, but there's a dimple in it which works in wonderfully with that smile. But don't flatter yourself and pat yourself on the back and think the attorney general is dead easy. That smile is only a cloak to cover up—you will never know what it covers up till you come away and discover where you are.

He will cut your throat with a feather while he chuckles and smiles. If you are not satisfied with being thus graciously beheaded and answer back, you'll find an adept at sarcasm and irony using a penknife.

If you still rebel, the next you know a backwoodsman will be at you with a brute of an ax. But he will be smiling and chuckling through it all.—World Today.

Where They Eat Muskrats.

One dealer on Dock street sells about 3,000 muskrats a week. These are purchased principally by negroes, who are very fond of the dish, though it is whispered that in season at some of the restaurants muskrat after masquerades as rabbit. It is somewhat similar to the latter in taste, but sweeter, and those who have eaten it pronounce it all right. For this market the rats come already skinned and, when possible, frozen. They are found everywhere in the vicinity of Philadelphia, but a chief source of supply is Salem, N. J., where the catching of them is something of an industry. Whenever they are found they are frozen and kept until the supply on hand is sufficient for a shipment and then dispatched to this city. They are eaten in many small places by people who catch them, but are not sold at retail except in the larger cities.—Philadelphia Record.

VIENNA, April 28.—The 700 inhabitants of the Ruthenian village, Niedzielna, near Ak-Sambor, Galicia, have formally notified the authorities that they have gone over in a body from the Greek to the Roman Catholic Church.

The reason given is that the latter church is ready to allot a priest to the village, while the authorities of the Greek Church treated Niedzielna as part of a larger parish. The inhabitants objected to walking to the next village for their devotions.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed membranes, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,
CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:
W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.
D. A. McFARLANE, Treasurer and General Manager.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assayays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

He had always wanted to get on to the kitchen table. There was much there that interested him and supplied him with food for thought. He had risked his life on more than one occasion in attempts to scale that height with the assistance of a saucepan that turned over and poured culinary delicacies on his toes, or perhaps a sleeping cat that got up and walked away much annoyed. And now that he was at last at this dizzy height he was sorry to find that he was too tired to crawl about and explore the vast possibilities of it. He was rather too tired to convey his forefinger to his mouth, and was forced to work out mental problems without that aid to thought.

"Bad case!" he said, and, turning over, he nestled down into the pillow, and he had the answer to the many questions that puzzled his small brain.

As through an opera runs the rhythm of one dominant air, so through men's lives there rings a dominant note, soft in youth, strong in manhood and soft again in old age. But it is always there, and whether soft in the gentler periods or strong amid the noise and clang of the perihelion, it dominates always and gives its tone to the whole life.

The dominant tone of Sir John Meredith's existence had been the high, clear note of battle. He had always found something or some one to fight from the very beginning, and now, in his old age, he was fighting still. His had never been the din and crash of warfare by sword and cannon, but the subtler, deeper combat of the pen. In his active days he had got through a vast amount of work; that unchronicled work of the foreign office which never comes through the cheap newspapers to the voracious maw of a chattering public. His name was better known on the banks of the Neva, the Seine, the Bosporus, or the swift rolling Iser, than by the Thames, and grim Sir John was content to have it so.

His face had never been public property; the comic papers had never used his personality as a peg upon which to hang their ever changing political principles. But he had always been "there," as he himself vaguely put it. That is to say, he had always been at the back—one of those invisible powers of the stage by whose command the scene is shifted, the lights are lowered for the tragedy or the gay music plays on the buffoon. Sir John had no sympathy with a generation of men and women who would rather be laughed at and despised than unnoticed. He belonged to an age wherein it was held better to be a gentleman than the object of a cheap and evanescent notoriety, and he was at once the despair and the dread of newspaper interviewers, enterprising publishers and tuft hunters.

He was so little known out of his own select circle that the porters in Euston station asked each other in vain who the old swell waiting for the 4 o'clock "up" from Liverpool could be. The 4 o'clock was, moreover, not the first express which Sir John had met that day. His stately carriage and pair had pushed its way into the crowd of smaller and humbler vehicular fry earlier in the afternoon, and on that occasion also the old gentleman had indulged in a grave promenade upon the platform.

He was walking up and down there now, with his hand in the small of his back, where of late he had been aware of a constant aching pain. He was very upright, however, and supremely unconscious of the curiosity aroused by his presence in the mind of the station "canaille." His lips were rather more troublesome than usual, and his keen eyes twinkled with a suppressed excitement.

In former days there had been no one equal to him in certain diplomatic crises, where it was a question of browbeating suavely the uppish representative of some foreign state. No man could then rival him in the insolently aristocratic school of diplomacy which England has made her own. But in his most dangerous crisis he had never been restless, apprehensive, pessimistic, as he was at this moment. And, after all, it was a very simple matter that had brought him here. It was merely the question of meeting a man as if by accident, and then afterward making that man do certain things required of him. Moreover, the man was only Guy Oscard, learned, if you will, in forest craft, but a mere child in the hands of so old a diplomatist as Sir John Meredith.

That which made Sir John so uneasy was the abiding knowledge that Jack's wedding day would dawn in twelve hours. The margin was much too small, though, however, no fault of Sir John's. The west African steamer had been delayed, unaccountably, two days. A third day lost in the Atlantic would have overthrown Sir John Meredith's plan. He had often cut things fine before, but somehow now—not that he was getting old, oh, no!—but somehow the suspense was too much for his nerves. He soon became irritated and distrustful. Besides, the pain in his back wearied him and interfered with the clear sequence of his thoughts.

The owners of the west African steamer had telegraphed that the passengers had left for London in two separate trains. Guy Oscard was not in the first—there was no positive reason why he should be in the second. More depended upon his being in this second express than Sir John cared to contemplate.

The course of his peregrinations brought him into the vicinity of an inspector whose attitude betokened respect while his presence raised hope.

"Is there any reason to suppose that your train is coming?" he inquired of the official.

"Signaled now, my lord," replied the inspector, touching his cap.

"And what does that mean?" uncompromisingly ignorant of technical parlance.

"It will be in in one minute, my lord."

Sir John's hand was over his lips as he walked back to the carriage, casting as it were the commander's eye over the field.

"When the crowd is round the train you come and look for me," he said to the footman, who touched his cockaded hat in silence.

At that moment the train lumbered in, the engine wearing that inanely self important air affected by locomotives of the larger build. From all quarters an army of porters besieged the platform, and in a few seconds Sir John was in the center of an agitated crowd. There was one other calm man on that platform—another man with no parcels, whom no one sought to embrace. His brown face and close cropped head towered above a sea of agitated bonnets. Sir John, whose walk in life had been through crowds, elbowed his way forward and deliberately walked against Guy Oscard.

"Hang it!" he exclaimed, turning round. "Ah—Mr. Oscard—how d'ye do?"

"How are you?" replied Guy Oscard, really glad to see him.

"You are a good man for a crowd. I think I will follow in your wake," said Sir John. "A number of people, of the baser sort. Got my carriage here somewhere. Fool of a man looking for me in the wrong place no doubt. Where are you going? May I offer you a lift? This way. Here, John, take Mr. Oscard's parcels."

How Bees Refuted the Scientists.

Maeterlinck thinks it is a man's vanity which causes him to doubt the proofs of intelligence in flowers and the lesser animal creatures. He relates in Harper's Magazine an incident to prove the intelligence of bees. Two English entomologists declared that they would admit the reasoning faculties of bees when it was proved that bees had ever "had the idea of substituting clay or mortar for wax and propolis." Just at this time another naturalist, Andrew Knight, made a cement of wax and turpentine and with it coated the bark of trees. The bees at once used this new and unknown building material, which they found already prepared, and ceased gathering propolis altogether, thus proving that they not only had a new idea, but acted upon it.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160-acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

THE
DOUGLAS MINING COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of 80 cents per share

ADVERTISING PAYS

SINKING SENSATIONS IN THE STOMACH.

Do They Affect You?

These unpleasant feelings of weakness and collapse indicate that the sympathetic nervous system is out of order.

Acute indigestion follows and the natural result is mental depression, and a feeling of collapse and extreme weakness.

It acts at once upon the digestive and assimilative organs— it fortifies the stomach—makes the blood nourishing, gives it a rich, red color, the best evidence of health.

"For ten years I suffered acutely from stomach trouble," writes Mr. Maxwell Thompson, of Toledo, "I always had a headache and full feeling after meals. My appetite was poor, and I didn't relish food. It was all due to a weak, defective stomach. I read about Ferrozone and ordered six boxes from my druggist. It was no time at all before I felt much better, and when all the Ferrozone was used I really took a new lease of life. I am stronger, brighter, and feel more like work than before trying Ferrozone. It is a splendid tonic, the best I ever used."

Ferrozone is unrivalled in curing stomach ailments, try it and be convinced. Sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes

Miss A. Clarke is Now Mrs. J. Allen

Yesterday morning in St. Peter's cathedral, Miss Amelia Clarke became the bride of Mr. James Allen. Miss Margaret Allen was bridesmaid, and Mr. Ed. Scully was best man. Rev. Father Galvin performed the ceremony, after which the bridal party drove to the residence of Mr. E. J. McCarthy, Hunter street, West, with whose family the bride had lived for a number of years, where a wedding breakfast was served. The happy young couple left on the 8.25 G.T.R. train for Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside on MacDonnell street, city.

Mrs. W. Mahoney Has Passed Away

Mrs Wm. Mahoney, a respected resident of Ennismore, passed away Monday night, after a long illness. The deceased was eighty years of age and was born in County Cork, Ireland. Her maiden name was Ellen Cree. She was married in Syracuse. She had resided in Ennismore for 48 years.

Besides her husband, three sons and three daughters are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Messrs. Patrick, of Chicago; and John, and James, of Ennismore. The daughters are Mrs. R. Torpey, of Otonabee, and Misses Kate and Maggie, residing at home.

The funeral will take place this morning to St. Martin's church, Ennismore, and thence to St. Martin's cemetery for interment.

Satisfactory Finances at St. Luke's

At the adjourned vestry meeting of St. Luke's church, the auditors presented their report on the finances, the total receipts from all sources amounted to about $3,200. The missionary contributions from the church amounted to $375. The various reports from the different societies showed excellent work done. The Woman's Auxiliary raised about $200 for missionary purposes as well as sending two bales of clothing, etc., to the missionary field. It was decided to build a granolithic sidewalk from the gate to the rectory.

Concert at St. Andrew's Church

Last night a well attended and most enjoyable concert was held in the Sunday school room of St. Andrew's church. The concert was held under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Mission Band of that church. Those taking part all belonged to the city and a splendid program of vocal, instrumental music and recitations was rendered.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.80 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

Can't Hold Down the Price

MUCH LONGER

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable. 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $34,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

FIVE CENTS PER SHARE

Says all Spiritualists Are of Unsound Mind

HAMILTON, May 2.—One of the most remarkable legal actions tried here in years ended yesterday afternoon when counsel for William Strong, a former well-known real estate dealer, suing his wife to recover property valued at $70,000 deeded to her during his confinement in the Hamilton Insane Asylum, comprised with lawyers for the defence, and agreed on a division of the estate.

FORTUNATE IN BUSINESS.

Strong, who is 51 years of age, 40 of which he has spent in Hamilton, never sustained a loss in his real estate speculations. Since embracing Spiritualism, he has devoted most of his time to advancing its interests. Now that he is again in possession of part of his estate he will re-engage in business, exploiting valuable lands owned by him in east Hamilton.

Seven years ago Strong became a convert to Spiritualism, convinced, after attending a number of seances that he could communicate with departed friends and relatives in the other world. It was a remarkable story he unfolded on the witness stand. He said he was an inspired writer, writing with a higher mental capacity than his own, his hand being guided by a greater thought. He soon became so enthusiastic in his new beliefs that he spent his money lavishly, and went to great extremes to persuade people of their truths. Alarmed by the dissipation of his wealth, Mrs. Strong consulted lawyers, and on doctors' advice, Strong was put in an asylum. He claims this was done by trickery. In the witness box he boasted of securing his release by smothering his spiritualistic ambitions for the time being, and promising to sign all his real and personal property over to his wife. Strong swore he was afraid to seek a lawyer's advice at the time, fearing that he would be taken back again to the asylum.

A SPIRITUALIST'S PLEDGE.

To Mrs. Strong's lawyers, Strong admitted signing an agreement with Mrs. Susan Harris, a medium, which read as follows:

"We, the undersigned, of our own wish, each in the exercise of full reasoning powers, and personal freedom, do hereby join hands to give the truth of the new revelation called spiritualism to the world, and do hereby pledge ourselves to a true life and obedience to divine laws."

His explanation of signing this document was that he did not wish to have anyone think that he was entering into a clandestine arrangement. He confessed to bringing Mrs. Harris to his home, and telling his wife that she was to be the medium's servant. This was because women generally quarreled, and he was determined to bring things to a climax by declaring war that cease might ensue. She was a big, strong, healthy woman, and he considered that he needed such a friend to back him up. He had spent about $50 on Mrs. Harris, including a leather boa, because her neck was cold, and a brooch she admitted visiting her in Columbus, Ohio, a week ago, and seeing her with her husband.

It was a pathetically sad story, Mrs. Strong told Mr. Justice Riddell of how she had tried to retain her husband's affections, prevent him squandering money on spiritualistic mediums, and keep him from the powerful influence wielded over him by Mrs. Harris, the medium. The straightforward way in which she gave her evidence, the absence of jealousy, and her charitable disposition, were most impressive. To humor her husband she consented to a seance at her home, her pastor, Rev. Dr. Lyle of Central Presbyterian church, being one of the circle. The medium failed, however, to have communication, "conditions not being favorable."

HAD THREATENED DIVORCE.

Mrs. Harris first visited her home in 1904, and from then on she had little peace of mind. Her husband, she said, had written Mrs. Harris poetry, calling her endearing names, and had threatened to get a divorce. It was not until he said he was going to turn all his property into cash and go to the Old Country with Mrs. Harris that she said he should make some provision for her and her children. She appealed to Hon. J. M. Gibson, because he went to her church. He advised that her husband be sent to the asylum. Her love rebelled against that. "Oh, it is too terrible!" she cried.

Friends prevailed, however, on her to take this action, Strong after being released suddenly announced one day that he was as strong a Spiritualist as ever. It gave her much pain, and caused her children to weep bitterly.

"Oh, if you could know what Spiritualism meant to me and my children you would know why they cried," sobbed Mrs. Strong.

"No, I cannot call it foul play," she replied, when asked by the judge if she was jealous of Mrs. Harris. She protested that she always loved her husband, and always wanted to live with him.

ARE THEY ALL CRAZY?

Are all Spiritualists mentally unsound? That was a question that entered in the trial, and Dr. James Russell, medical superintendent of the asylum, one of the foremost alienists in Canada, expressed an opinion that they were. Justice Riddell differed from him. Dr. Russell said Strong was only a lunatic, and described his form of lunacy as "delusional insania."

"What was his particular delusion?" he was asked.

"Religion."

"In what form?"

"He was a Spiritualist, and believed in spirit communication."

"Do I understand you to mean me to believe, doctor, that anyone who believes in spirit voices and the touch or spirit hands, is insane?" asked his lordship.

"I do," said the doctor.

"There are many able men who believe in it," said the judge.

An incident illustrating the strange relationship of Strong towards his wife was his action in charging her $12.50 commission on a rat he sold for her.

ROYAL Baking Powder preserves its leavening strength until used. The last spoonful in a can is as good as the first, and its work is always uniform. Housekeepers have been vexed when using other powders to find their work uneven. If good when fresh, before the can is empty they make sour or heavy food, and the flour, eggs and butter used therein are wasted. This is because they are made from alum or other cheap and inferior ingredients.

Gentleman Known Here at Great Banquet

Mr. Jas. Stevenson's Nephew at Prominent San Francisco Affair.

The San Francisco Cal., Chronicle, of April 19th, recently received at The Times office, contains a large three-column portrait of those present at the San Francisco merchants' banquet. Among those present, the list of whom fills some four columns, is the name of Mr. Bertie Swayne, one of the leading citizens of that rapidly rebuilt city. Mr. Swayne, who was born here, is a nephew of Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P. Mr. Swayne is a very large real estate owner in San Francisco and Alameda, Cal., and was agent for the Chinese government at the time of the Chicago world's fair in '93. Mr. Swayne has a large number of friends in this city, who will be interested in this report.

MINES AND QUICK FORTUNES

There are three classes of mining investment—the prospect, the partly developed property and the fully developed mine.

Owing to the small price at which the prospect stocks are sold this class of investment appeals strongly on account of the possibilities of large profits. But this is speculation.

On the contrary the fully developed property has few opportunities for immense profits, its stock is valued on a basis of dividends, and is liable to fluctuations.

The Silver Queen Mine is in the middle class, has proved the body of ore, and in sufficient quantities to warrant a mill on the ground. The price of the stock is 25 cents per share (par value $1) and being situated near Wonder the largest and most phenomenal of all the new camps in Nevada, insures a large and rapid increase in the value of its shares.

Send for free information, booklets, assays, engineers' reports, etc.

Looal Option Gets Good Encouragement

In reference to such townships where local option was carried by the necessary majority but upset by irregular proceedings at the elections, Premier Whitney has said:

"It would seem that so far as older Ontario is concerned the government has not the power to forbid the issuing of liquor licenses; the power of issuing or refusing resting with the commissioners. Instructions have however, been sent to the commissioners in every one of the municipalities where local option by-laws having been passed have been set aside by the courts for technical reasons, instructing them that the government desires that no licenses be issued for the coming year."

Port Hope Forger Gets Four Months

It will be remembered that Reginald Travers was sometime since committed to Cobourg for trial on a charge of attempting to pass a forged cheque at the Bank of Toronto in Port Hope, alleged to have been signed by S. O. Taylor, of Hope township, who up for trial. Mr. E. C. S. Huycke, for the prisoner, entered a plea of insanity. On Monday he was tried again and on the plea of first offence was given a term of four months' imprisonment.

River Water Was Inspected Yesterday

Yesterday morning Mr. Geo. Ball, the indefatigable sanitary inspector, recently appointed to look after the health of our city left for Lakefield to thoroughly inspect and investigate the source of the city's drinking water supply.

The inspector kept a sharp eye on the Otonabee river to see that it was not being contaminated by filth being dumped into the water. Mr. Ball is anxious that the source of the city's water supply shall be kept as clean as possible and is working hard with this object in view.

Mr. Roddy's Death Recalled Accident

The Belleville Ontario, adverting to the recent death of Mr. R. N. Roddy of this city, notes that this passing away of a well-known local Orangemen, recalls the fact that most of the victims of the terrible Shannonville disaster, on the Grand Trunk in June, 1872, in which 75 people were injured, and 38, died, were employes of Mr. Roddy, they having been employed by him in building a new telephone line. It was that fatality, which led to the establishment of the Belleville hospital.

The accident was caused by a wheel of the engine striking some obstruction. Steam from the safety valve entered a second-class car scalding many to death.

Special Excursion to the Ball Game

Local Enthusiasts Will Run Special to Toronto on Saturday.

Interest in the race for the pennant in the Eastern League this year promises to be the best in years, with the two Canadian teams well up in the fight. Arrangements have been made by which Peterborough fans will have an opportunity of witnessing the game on Saturday in Toronto, which will be practically the opening of the season, so far as Toronto is concerned.

A few of the Peterborough baseball enthusiasts have arranged for a special train to leave the C.P.R. station at 12.45 p.m., on Saturday, arriving in ample time to get to the grounds in time for the game. There will be a special train returning the same night, but allowing those who wish, to attend the theater. Those who so desire, however, may remain in the city until Monday, the tickets being good until that night. The return fare has been set at $2.05, which is very low, and doubtless many will take advantage of the opportunity of seeing the ball game and visiting over Sunday with friends.

Promised Her Witch Sent Her Relative

BRANTFORD, May 1.—An Indian by the name of A. Marlow is in the third grades of the reserve because of a joke he is said to have played on another woman. S. C. Hill. Mrs. Hill had also Marlow treated her. One afternoon, as the story goes, he informed his spouse that the fits were caused by a witch. He sat a bottle of medicine, telling her that it would bring the witch to her door at eight p.m. Then, it can be truthfully said, he went to Peter Hill's and told Peter to call on the sick woman about eight o'clock, as she wished to know if the Christian Aid Society could render her any assistance. Peter obeyed. He was met at the door by the husband and a big stick. Now he knows what it feels like to be a witch. The whole household joined in the attack, and the visitor was badly beaten before he could proclaim his identity and make explanations. The Hills then united in a search for Marlow, but he was not to be found. Now they threaten to arrest him for false pretenses.

A Serious Flood at Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 1.—A cloudburst over Capitol Hill, a suburb of this city, just south of the Canadian river, flooded that place. Seven persons are missing, and believed to be drowned. Many persons encamped on the lowlands near the river were caught unawares, and had but little time to make their escape. The river is bank-full, and it will be some time before it can be determined whether any were really were lost. There was another heavy rainfall today, which caused the river to rise higher, endangering property in the lowlands.

An area covering several square miles has been flooded, causing much damage to railway and farm property. Railway traffic is at a standstill. One miles of Santa Fe track has been washed out. The Canadian River is rising rapidly, and persons in the lowlands are moving out.

BRONCHIAL COUGHS

The most irritating and annoying form of cough is that termed bronchial. People subject to bronchial troubles whenever there is a change in the weather or they are exposed to a draft will "catch" a bronchial cough, which is very disagreeable, irritating and annoying.

Bronchial troubles cannot be cured by stomach dosing. The medicated air of Hy-o-mei is the only treatment that reaches the affected parts and gives relief and cure. It destroys all the disease germs that are present in the nose, throat and lungs, soothes and relieves the irritated mucous membrane in all parts of the bronchial tubes and quickly overcomes the irritation.

Bronchitis is really an inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air passages and is purely a local disease, so that it needs a local treatment like that afforded by Hy-o-mei.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Citizens Attend the Late F.G.Cox's Funeral

Special Car Provided for the Local Friends of Deceased.

It was our melancholy duty in yesterday's issue to chronicle the death of a former Peterborough citizen, Mr. Fred. G. Cox, second son of Hon. Senator Cox, Toronto. The funeral will be held at three o'clock this afternoon from the deceased's late residence, 47 Queen's Park.

Among others who will leave by special car, per G.T.R., at 7.20 this morning, to attend the obsequies are:—Messrs. Richard Hall, D. W. Dumble, Thos. Fortye, R. H. Fortye, Alex. Elliott, Harry Phelan, H. LeBrun, G. W. Hatton, W. H. Bradburn, A. P. Poussette, Robt. Fier, R. G. Kingan, W. Rudkins, R. J. Soden, G. Edmison, Geo. E. Elliott and others.

Warne Bros. Buy a New Automobile

Messrs. Warne Bros., George street, have purchased from F. R. J. MacPherson, a Russell car, which will seat five persons. The car is provided with a 20-horse power gasoline engine, with two cylinders. It has a speed of between 35 and 40 miles an hour. The new automobile will be here in a few weeks. This makes the second "auto" which Mr. MacPherson has sold in Peterborough this season.

Let me send you free, for Catarrh, just to prove merit, a Trial size box of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. It is a snow white creamy, healing antiseptic balm. Containing such healing ingredients as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., it gives instant and lasting relief to Catarrh of the nose and throat. Miss A. Wareham Is Now Mrs. Clarke

In the Charlotte street Methodist church on Tuesday evening, in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties, Miss Ada, eldest daughter of Mrs. G. Wareham, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Henry Clarke, of Springville, son of Mr. Wm. Clarke of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Manning. The bride and groom were unattended.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride. 149 Aylmer street, where a wedding repast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside in Springville.

Did He Invent the Telephone

WOODSTOCK, May 1.—Did William Grant invent the telephone? An old man of that name who came to the house of refuge from Embro died the other day, having been in that institution for six months over one year. He was seventy-three years of age, and is not known to have any relatives.

It is said that in his younger days Grant discovered the principle upon which modern telephones are operated. At that time Alexander Graham Bell of Brantford had not made his discovery. Grant had no money, and his discovery never came to the front for that reason.

The old man was known to be possessed of considerable inventive ability. When living at Embro he worked for farmers in the summer, earning enough money to keep him during the winter, during which season he spent his time in trying to discover the secret of perpetual motion. This was only one of the many problems—some of them quite as impractical—upon which his energies were centered. Many of his inventions, however, were of more or less value, but these he was never able to put on the market for lack of funds.

The Leather Workers' Strike

Many Chinese Enter Canada

VICTORIA, B.C., April 30.—During the month of April 18 Chinamen were admitted to this province.

These are the first Chinamen to enter the province for two years and since the head tax was imposed only one had previously come in.

Eighteen Chinamen bring to the Provincial revenue of $9,000, and the cost of the upkeep of exclusion service for the three years it has been in force has been about $1000 more than that sum.

Will Again Run Auto-Bus

Arrangements were completed yesterday whereby Mr. Ernest Hannah, who last fall so successfully operated the auto-bus between the city and Chemong, will this year once more be at the wheel of the bus. By retaining Mr. Hannah's services, the thousands who patronize this bus are assured of safety and celerity. Mr. Hannah is now engaged in overhauling and repairing the auto preparatory to opening of the season.

A Quiet May Day all Over the World

Few Strikes in Foreign Cities---Several Men Were Killed at Lodz--Paris Garrison Kept Under Arms.

WARSAW, Russian Poland, May 2.—The general strike ordered for May Day here resulted in practically a complete tie-up of the business and traffic. No meat or bread were available, no street cars or cabs appeared on the streets, nor papers were printed and the stores were closed. Warsaw today is practically a military camp. The strong patrols of cavalry and infantry in the streets during the morning quickly scattered the crowds which attempted to congregate and prevented any disturbance.

Lodz, Russian Poland, May 2.—Many sanguinary fights in the streets here yesterday marked the May Day cessation of work in the factories, stores and newspaper offices. The Nationalists who opposed the strike and the Socialists who declared it were in conflict throughout the forenoon. Several men were killed or wounded and many arrests were made.

The street cars were kept running under the escort of armed soldiers.

Lens, France, May 2.—Practically all the miners in this district obeyed the orders of their unions not to work yesterday.

Bordeaux, May 2.—About 1000 dock laborers here struck work yesterday.

New York, May 2.—May Day found the working men in comparatively few of the trades of the city ready to assert any demands for increased wages and in consequence strikes were few.

Boston, May 2.—An unusually quiet May Day throughout New England with the exception of this city was experienced in labor circles yesterday. Minor disputes in the building trades in some of the cities and towns were the most discordant notes outside the Greater Boston district, where 1,500 men went out for higher wages yesterday, while the teamsters strike which started a month ago was still in force with almost daily scenes of disorder.

New Haven, Conn., May 2.—The first of May found industrial peace at hand all over Connecticut, except for a small freight handlers' strike at Waterbury.

Rome, May 2.—The police forbade a public meeting here yesterday, organized by the Socialists to commemorate May Day, at which Maxim Gorkey had promised to speak, but he was absent. It was stated that Gorkey had been notified that he would be expelled from Italy if he attempted to cause any disorder. After the meeting in the Botanical Gardens the workmen who had participated in it attempted to march in procession through the principal streets of the city but were prevented so doing by troops of cavalry who charged and dispersed the processionists.

Paris, May 2.—Although the entire garrison of Paris was under arms and 600 mounted Republican Guards and vast police reserves were on duty in order to prevent the gigantic May Day manifestation planned by the Socialists, the city presented almost its normal aspect yesterday morning. Troops were massed at the Prince Eugene barracks, the Bank of France, the Opera, the Grand Palais, the Bourse, the Rue Druct and other strategic points. They were discreetly kept out of sight to avoid unduly alarming the population.

Lille, France, May 2.—Striking wool carders from Tourcoing, near here, marched into Lille yesterday, broke the windows of several factories and then returned to Tourcoing.

Young Lady in a Very Sad Position

Toronto, May 2.—"It shows what brutes there are in this world," was the remark passed by Judge Winchester, when Miss Alice Taylor, from near Newmarket, appeared before him yesterday morning.

Mrs. Taylor is 20 years of age, and the mother of a three-months-old babe. Some time ago her husband left her, and since then she has been living with another man. One day while under the influence of liquor he beat the child, bruising its little body. Mrs. Taylor was afraid to say anything, but some neighbors laid a charge against him. He came up for trial at Newmarket, and Mrs. Taylor was again afraid to speak against him. In fact, it is claimed, she swore he did not strike the child, and as a result was sent to Toronto to be tried on a charge of perjury.

"Where is your home?" asked Judge Winchester.

His honor, Crown Attorney Drayton, and the woman talked the matter over privately, with the result that she and her child were sent to the Bellamy Home to be looked after.

Threaten to Kill a Canadian M.P.

Montreal, May 2.—Ald. Mederic Martin, M.P., who created quite a stir in the House of Commons in connection with the Oliver incident, yesterday received a letter stating he would be assassinated before night. He represents the division in which local socialists have a large following.

The police regard the letter as a joke, but Ald. Martin is very much worked up over it, and has police guarding his home, and he decided not to venture out in case he might tempt fate.

20 Young Ladies Injured in Fire

Chicago, May 2.—About 20 women were injured yesterday at a fire which broke out in the building at 255 Wabash avenue, the three upper floors of which were occupied by the Lotus Lunch Club, patronized by women.

When the flames were discovered, fully 200 women were in the place, and a panic ensued. A number of women leaped from the windows of the second and third floors, but the greater number rushed to the fire escape. This was soon crowded. Several women lost their holds and fell to the street, while others were pushed off.

The flames cut off several women in the front part of the building, and about two-thirds of these leaped to the grounds. The others were taken out by the firemen uninjured. Mary Studemeyer, aged 25 years, is said to have lost her life, and it is feared several others were suffocated.

Not Married There

Port Hope, May 2.—W. A. Miller is a son of W. M. Miller, former manager of the Port Hope Canning Co., who still resides here, retired. The son, W. A. Miller, came to Port Hope from the United States about eight or nine years ago, and lived here for about two years with his wife, said to have been a "Miss Palmer," daughter of an American railway magnate. One child was born to them in Port Hope. Mrs. Miller's younger sister spent some time with them here. Young Miller was engaged in the canning business, under his father, and also for a short time the former ran the Hotel St. Lawrence. His wife never attended school in Port Hope, the marriage having been contracted elsewhere. Mrs. Miller was a remarkably pretty woman, and Miller, himself, was also good looking.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Sleepless?

Nerves Are Racked.
Vitality is Lowered.
Brain is Congested.
Health Undermined.

Opiates, Sedatives, Narcotics, Worse Than Useless. Produce No Permanent Good.

First, the blood circulation must be improved:

Irritation in the brain must be relieved.

For building food and nerve, for instilling force and life into overworked organs, for establishing strength and vitality, where can you find anything so sure as Ferrozone.

Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep, or break down.

You can if you'll use Ferrozone and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep.

Ferrozone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use.

Absolutely safe is Ferrozone.

Take it for a month, take it for a year—no harm, but immeasurable good will result.

To sleep well, look well, feel well, to be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozone. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless—sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 3, 1907.

A NOTABLE DISCOVERY

Close on the heels of the discovery of a chemical mixture, which, when applied to coal ashes, makes them more productive of heat than coal itself, comes the report of the United States consul at Plauen, Saxony, that "yarns" are being produced there from waste paper.

These "yarns," called xyolin, are woven into fabrics used as substitutes for cotton, jute, linen or even silk goods. The yarn is not brittle, has a smooth surface, and neither shrinks nor stretches to any appreciable extent. From it canvas, cloth, rugs, carpets, shoes, hats, clothing and a large number of similar useful articles are made. The goods bleach as white as the finest cotton, are impervious to water, take and hold their dyes in every delicate shade far outmatching the range of colors to which cotton or silk is susceptible. Moths do not attack them. They are easily cleaned by beating or washing, and can be produced at one-third the price of cotton and one-tenth the price of silk.

The consular report states that xyolin was invented by Emil Claviez, of Saxony, after many experiments, and that the processes by which it is produced are patented in all civilized countries.

And so, as the 20th century opens, the beginnings of the 19th century seem to be repeating themselves. Then the full effect of the discoveries of Hargreaves, Crompton, Arkwright and Stephenson in the spinning jenny, the power loom and the steam locomotive manifested themselves. They destroyed the domestic industries of carding, spinning and weaving, made possible the present factory system and revolutionised the industrial world. Indeed, so mighty was the force of these inventions in increasing the wealth of England that a very potent argument has been made to prove that the overthrow of Napoleon was attributable more to them than to any other cause, or series of causes.

But, however that may be, there is no doubt that the secrets of nature have not by any means been all discovered, and that the needs of mankind are still met by some simple, useful invention or discovery which comes at just the opportune moment. The discoveries of Ellmore in Pennsylvania and of Claviez in Saxony, even if they "make good" all that is claimed for them, are not likely to surpass in usefulness those of the great Englishmen named, but it may prove in time that they have added more to the wealth and happiness of mankind than anything discovered for the past fifty years.

And now will somebody please discover a substitute for wood pulp in the manufacture of paper, to the end that our forests may be saved from destruction, while paper still remains cheap.

Husband a Traitor, Revolutionist Suicided

ST. PETERSBURG, May 1.—The funeral today of Mme. Madezhda Baradina, a well-known revolutionist, who committed suicide abroad, aroused the greatest interest in revolutionary circles on account of her romantic history.

Mme. Baradina was the daughter of a rich manufacturer of good social position and left her home to engage in the revolutionary propaganda. She was sent to Kiev, where she was arrested and imprisoned for two years, being released in October, 1905, on condition that she went abroad, where she met Mr. Baradina, who was known as an energetic member of the organization, and married him.

A few days ago Mme. Baradina accidentally opened a letter showing that her husband was a traitor who had successfully planned the arrest of an important group of terrorists and even proposed to bring his wife back to Russia in order to deliver her into the hands of the police. The police advised him to delay the latter step in order to avert suspicion. Mme. Baradina after reading the letter took poison.

Her body was brought to St. Petersburg and was interred here today, the coffin being buried under wreaths of crimson flowers.

NEAR A GAS FAMINE.

New York Had a Narrow Escape in the 1902 Strike.

Poor householders in New York city who were buying coal during the great strike of 1902 will ever forget that emergency. It was indeed a time to try men's souls—when no one knew whether the price of coal would become prohibitive the next week or the next month.

People were making all sorts of experiments with fuel—bricks soaked in oil, compressed peat and other things which had never been used for fuel before. The coal men did their best to husband the resources of the city, but as time went on they began to talk of refusing to sell to theaters and other places of amusement and of doling out the remaining supply in such proportions as to meet the need of all who would actually suffer without coal and let the loss fall on people who could stand it. It seemed as if the population were about to be ranged in two camps, the strikers and the struck, the struck being, as usual, the consumer.

In the memories of New York gas men there is an interesting little chapter of unwritten history which has to do with that strike. It never even happened to get into the newspapers, and no one suspected at the time how near the great city was to one of the most terrible crises it has ever known.

At the time of the settlement of the strike there was less than two weeks' supply of coal in the possession of the gas company and no more coal in sight.

Two weeks more and it would have been exhausted.

Four million people would have found themselves facing an unusually severe winter without an adequate supply of coal, without gas and with the price of oil and the price of oil stoves both higher than in ordinary times.

What is more, the order went out to close all sales departments where ranges and gas appliances were sold as soon as the strike assumed a threatening aspect. The men in control of the gas plant realised that if the people who had money to spare rushed to purchase ranges and heaters of all kinds and used gas altogether in their houses there might not be a sufficient supply to see the city through the strike and that every resource of the company must be carefully guarded against a possible period of actual famine. That this care was justified is shown by the fact above stated—that even with every possible precaution the available supply of coal would have been made to last only two weeks.—Gas Logic.

California Gallantry.

They tell me the story of a well known gentleman of San Francisco who, charging through all the smoke and flames and litter on the first day of the fire, came upon a fashionable lady of his acquaintance trudging along the middle of the street in her bedroom slippers, with a window curtain thrown over her shoulders. He stopped his automobile to offer her his assistance, explaining at the same time that the auto was all he had saved out of the wreck, and even that had been commandeered by the soldiery.

"I, too, have lost all," she sighed.

"All but your beauty," said he, with a courtly bow.

The czar lives alone, with the czarina and their children, in a little maison-nette at Peterhof, apart from the immense palace. It is the house of a bourgeois on holiday, quite isolated under great trees by the seashore. No guard is visible. Thus the master of Russia lives retired from his empire and even from his court.—Revue de Paris.

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,
CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:
W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.
D. A. McFARLANE, Treasurer and General Manager.

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassys. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

He could not have done it better in his keenest day. Guy Oscard was seated in the huge, roomy carriage before he had realized what had happened to him.

"Ah—Mr. Oscard—how d'ye do?"

"Your man will look after your traps, I suppose?" said Sir John, hospitably drawing the fur rug from the opposite seat.

"Yes," replied Guy; "although he is not my man. He is Jack's man Joseph."

"Ah, of course! Excellent servant too. Jack told me he had left him with you."

Sir John leaned out of the window and asked the footman whether he knew his colleague Joseph, and upon receiving an answer in the affirmative he gave orders, acting as Guy's mouthpiece, that the luggage was to be conveyed to Russell square. While these orders were being executed the two men sat waiting in the carriage, and Sir John lost no time.

"I am glad," he said, "to have this opportunity of thanking you for all your kindness to my son in this wild expedition of yours."

"Yes," replied Oscard, with a transparent reserve which rather puzzled Sir John.

"You must excuse me," said the old gentleman, sitting rather stiffly, "if I appear to take a somewhat limited interest in this great similacine discovery, of which there has been considerable talk in some circles. The limit to my interest is drawn by a lamentable ignorance. I am afraid the business details are rather unintelligible to me. My son has endeavored, somewhat courtesily perhaps, to explain the matter to me, but I have never mastered the—er—commercial technicalities. However, I understand that you have made quite a mint of money, which is the chief consideration—nowadays."

He drew the rug more closely round his knees and looked out of the window, deeply interested in a dispute between two cabmen.

"Yes—we have been very successful," said Oscard. "How is your son now? When I last saw him he was in a very bad way. Indeed, I hardly expected to see him again."

Sir John was still interested in the dispute which was not yet settled.

"He is well, thank you. You know that he is going to be married."

"He told me that he was engaged," replied Oscard, "but I did not know that anything definite was fixed."

"The most definite thing of all is fixed—the date. It is tomorrow."

"Tomorrow?"

"Yes. You have not much time to prepare your wedding garments."

"Oh," replied Oscard, with a laugh, "I have not been bidden."

"I expect the invitation is awaiting you at your house. No doubt my son will want you to be present—they would both like you to be there no doubt. But come with me now; we will call and see Jack. I know where to find him. In fact, I have an appointment with him at a quarter to 5."

It may seem strange that Guy Oscard should not have asked the name of his friend's prospective bride, but Sir John was ready for that. He gave his companion no time. Whenever he opened his lips Sir John turned Oscard's thoughts aside.

What he had told him was strictly true. He had an appointment with Jack—an appointment of his own making.

"Yes," he said, in pursuance of his policy of choking questions, "he is wonderfully well, as you will see for yourself."

Oscard submitted silently to this high handed arrangement. He had not known Sir John well. Indeed, all his intercourse with him has been noted in these pages. He was rather surprised to find him so talkative and so very friendly. But Guy Oscard was not a very deep person. He was sublimely indifferent to the long drawn motive. He presumed that Sir John made friends of his son's friends, and in his straightforward acceptance of facts he was positively well aware that by his timely rescue he had saved Jack Meredith from the hands of the tribes. The conversation was that Sir John knew of this, and it was only natural [illegible] should be grateful exceptionally gracious to the man who had saved his son's life.

It would seem that Sir John divined these thoughts, for he presently spoke of them.

"Owing to an unfortunate difference of opinion with my son we have not been very communicative lately," he said, with that deliberation which he knew how to assume when he desired to be heard without interruption. "I am therefore almost entirely ignorant of your African affairs, but I imagine Jack owes more to your pluck and promptness than has yet transpired. I gathered as much from one or two conversations I had with Miss Gordon when she was in England. I am one of Miss Gordon's many admirers."

"And I am another," said Oscard frankly.

"Ah! Then you are happy enough to be the object of a reciprocal feeling which for myself I could scarcely expect. She spoke of you in no measured language. I gathered from her that if you had not acted with great promptitude the—er—happy event of tomorrow could not have taken place."

The old man paused, and Guy Oscard, who looked somewhat distressed and distinctly uncomfortable, could find no graceful way of changing the conversation.

"In a word," went on Sir John in a very severe tone, "I owe you a great debt. You saved my boy's life."

"Yes, but you see," argued Oscard, finding his tongue at last, "out there things like that don't count for so much."

"Oh, don't they?" There was the suggestion of a smile beneath Sir John's grim eyebrows.

"No," returned Oscard, rather lamely. "It is a sort of thing that happens every day out there."

A Curious Notice.

This curious official notice was once published in Germany: "At the request of Herr Wilhelm Leigson of Innsbruck the seaman, Johan Leigson, who was drowned in May, 1869, on a journey from Stockholm to Hamburg in the Kaiser Friedrich, is hereby called upon by the courts to appear and report himself on or before April 1, 1881, under pain of being declared dead."

Financial Note.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

Tiredness Comes in the Spring

What are You Doing to Overcome It?

The cold of winter exhausts vitality and exposes everyone to disease. Spring is sure to bring tiredness and languor that will not go.

Spring sickness doesn't cure itself—the cause is in the blood, and that that cause must be remedied. It is easily done with Ferrozone, a marvelous remedy that purifies the blood and expels those humors and poisons that depress and weaken.

Just think of it—Ferrozone uplifts the entire nervous system, renews the blood, makes it rich and red—gives the sort of aid that's needed in throwing off weakness and spring languor.

Tens of thousands enjoy the advantages of renewed health through Ferrozone;—if you'll only use it, you'll surely grow strong too; it's beneficial action is noticed even in a week—you see it goes right to work, removes the causes of the trouble and then quickly makes a cure.

For those who sleep poorly and have nervous apprehensions, Ferrozone is a boon; it is a specialist in such cases.

Where there is paleness, poor appetite and languor, Ferrozone makes the patient feel like new in a few days.

In tiredness, nerve exhaustion, spring fever and debility, the power of Ferrozone is known from coast to coast and universally used with grand results.

Let Ferrozone build you up, let it win you back to robust health—it will do so quickly if you give it the chance. Sold by all dealers, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name Ferrozone.

Will Get Insurance

It seems that the Quaker Oats Company will get their full insurance on good recently destroyed by fire in the Ontario Storage and Cartage Company's warehouse, west of the Don and north of Queen street, Toronto, on Tuesday night. The Quaker Oats Company sustained loss of goods to the extent of about $10,000. These goods destroyed consisted of Quaker Oats and other cereal products of the company that were stored in the warehouse.

Mr. Gardiner to Hold Local Sale

Mr. J. B. Gardiner, the silver-tongued auctioneer, who last week took out a city license, will on Saturday hold an important sale at the Peterborough Horse Exchange, of Bruce Lee's livery stables, to the rear of the Snowden House. Some 17 to 20 valuable horses of all grades and purposes will be disposed of, as well as some milch cows, buggies and harness of all kinds. We venture to predict that Mr. Gardiner will get his share and possibly a little more, of the local auctioneering business, as he is known to nearly every farmer of the county, and surrounding counties as well as to most of the citizens of Peterborough.

Trout Season Opened Yesterday

From yesterday morning for some time to the future, parties of local sports, armed with lunch baskets, sundry bottles of snake bite antidote and rods and lines will be seen taking trains and buggies to the various points where trout are to be found. The open season for these game and beautiful fish opened yesterday and a number left the city for Cavanville, Millbrook and Springville. A local statistician yesterday computed that the trout caught by local fishermen cost their captors $2.17 1-2 per pound, by the time travelling and refreshment bills are paid.

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that GOLDEN MESSAGE?

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $75,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development, Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Property Committee in Session Last Night

Revised Plans for Remodelling the Old Fire Hall Accepted and the Work Will be Done by Day Labor---Other Matters Considered.

The Property Committee of the City Council met last night when there were present, Chairman Ald. McIntyre, the mayor, Aldermen Morgan and Elliott.

The first business taken up was the discussion of the revised plans submitted to the city engineer for the city's offices in the old fire hall which will be vacated in two weeks. The new plans were approved of by the committee after having been carefully considered and the work will be done by day labor, the matter being in the hands of the chairman.

The engineer's revised plans provide an office for the assessors' accomodation for whom was not made in the first plans. The committee felt that this office should be given to the assessors and at a previous meeting had instructed the engineer to draw up the plans with this change made.

The office for the assessors is next to the tax collector's office in the front of the building. Behind these offices is a public room for the benefit of the people waiting to see any of the officers. At the city clerk's suggestion the files of the three daily newspapers will be stored here where they will be available for use by the public.

The city engineer will have a commodious office at the rear of the building, and with him will be the street commissioner, the plumbing inspector will also have an office at the rear, and provision has been made for a lunch room.

Sanitary Inspector Ball will be provided with an office on the second floor, formerly used as a bedroom by one of the firemen. The medical health officer will use the same office.

Moved by the mayor, seconded by Ald. Elliott,—That this committee approve of the revised plans for the improvements in the old fire hall as now submitted by the city engineer, and recommend that this committee be authorized to have the improvements made, and that the expenses be paid on the certificate of the city engineer.—Carried.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Elliott,—That the chairman be authorized to make the best arrangements he can for the removal of the old hose tower and stables at the rear of the fire hall.

CARTERS' SHELTER.

Moved by the mayor, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the lease of the property belonging to the Chamberlain estate to be used for the purpose of a carters' shelter, be approved, and that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw.—Carried.

On motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald. Elliott, the city engineer was instructed to have the roof of the market scales building extended, four feet at each end.—Carried.

The estimated cost is $62.

The committee next discussed the enlarging of the council chamber room which is not large enough at present to accommodate the council especially when there are any deputations present. The purpose will be accomplished by the cutting out of the partition between the committee room and the wash room at the rear.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by the mayor, that this committee be authorized to have the committee rooms enlarged and that the expenses be paid on the certificate of the city engineer.—Carried.

GARBAGE BYLAW.

Good progress was made in connection with the garbage bylaw introduced by Ald. Elliott. The matter was carefully discussed and an amount of preliminary work accomplished. Sanitary Inspector Ball was present and reported on his recent trip to Brantford.

Mr. Ball said that he would like to see Peterborough adopt the system used in Brantford. There they had three wagons when he was in the city. Since he had been there the area had been extended so that it took in the whole city, and more wagons were to be added. The way of payment was also changed by payment being by general tax. Peterborough needed such a system. Brantford in the parts in which the system was used when he was there was very clean and neat. In this respect the city was superior to Toronto.

The committee discussed what service should be given and the following draft was approved of. The prices to be charged were also discussed but any information along that line would be premature.

Residents in outlying districts, collected every two weeks.

Outlying residents collected every week.

Boarding houses in which there are five or more boarders, collected twice a week.

Stores inspected twice a week.

Fruit dealers and hotels collected three times a week.

Factories collected three times a week.

York Loan Affairs to be Wound Up

The York Loan liquidation will likely come up before the courts in a few days, when the liquidator will ask for the necessary instructions. Fully 114,000 claims were filed, and these may roughly be divided into about thirty classes. These classes arise because of changes in the certificates and other causes. Certain of the claimants have classed themselves as preference shareholders, and a decision has to be given on their claims.

By the new arrangement the creditors will gain considerably, and as far as it is possible to expedite such a winding up the York Loan business will probably be pushed to completion. There cannot be, however, very great speed until the rights of every shareholder have been fully inquired into and placed beyond all doubt.

WOMEN PAY MORE

Why Insurance Companies Discriminate Against the Gentler Sex.

Medical examiners of insurance companies say that the reason a woman pays more for the privilege of insurance than a man, is from the fact that women more readily fall victims to indigestion and stomach troubles and the fatal ailments that spring from these causes.

All persons, they say, who have a weakened digestive system and suffer from sick headache, dizzy spells, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion, soon lower the tone of the whole system and are most susceptible to a fatal illness.

For curative power in all stomach troubles, nothing else is as safe yet effective, nothing else can be thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known, and is really one of the valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not the acute attacks that influence the insurance examiners alone, but the constant feelings of weakness, headaches, indigestion and stomach troubles—these things, physicians say, kill more people than many more serious diseases.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Miona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Herbert Pearson Has Passed Away

Well Known Local Carpenter Dies from Peritonitis.

Yesterday morning Mr. Herbert Pearson, son of Mr. John Pearson, passed away at his late residence on Pearl avenue. The deceased was 30 years of age and his death was due to peritonitis. He was born in Smith, where he lived until four years ago, when he came to this city.

The late Mr. Pearson was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters, Selwyn, and also a member of the Carpenters' Union. Three brothers and five sisters are left to mourn his loss.

The brothers are Messrs. Fred and Robert of this city, and Thomas of Minnesota. The sisters are Mrs. S. Pearson, Bethune street; Mrs. M. Furber, Thompsonville, Conn., and Misses Delia, Ada, and Carrie, at home.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence, Pearl avenue, to Ray's cemetery, in Smith.

MINES AND QUICK FORTUNES

There are three classes of mining investment—the prospect, the partly developed property and the fully developed mine.

Owing to the small price at which the prospect stocks are sold this class of investment appeals strongly on account of the possibilities of large profits. But this is speculation.

On the contrary the fully-developed property has few opportunities for enormous profits, its stock is issued on a basis of dividends, and is liable to fluctuations.

The Silver Queen Mine is in the invasible zone, has proved the body of ore, and in sufficient quantities to warrant a mill on the ground. The price of the stock is 25 cents per share (par value $1) and being situated near Wonder the largest and most phenomenal of all the new camps in Nevada, insures a large and rapid increase in the value of its shares.

Send for free information, booklets, surveys, engineers' reports, etc.

The Silver Queen Mining Co., 24 Bacon Block, Oakland, California.

First Arrival of Stony Lake Crowd

One of the most enthusiastic and invariably earliest members of the Stoney Lake summer visitors Mr. E. S. Hopkins, of Roxbury, Mass., was in the city yesterday on his way to his summer cottage at Mount Julian, where he will remain until the late fall. Last spring Mr. Hopkins took possession of his cottage on April 25th and did not leave until November 15th. He will likely be the first to open a cottage at the lake this season.

Races Considered for May the 24th

That the Peterborough Turf Club is fully alive and looking after races during the coming season is now assured. The Turf Club with Mr. P. P. Cunan, president in the chair, will meet tonight at 7.30 in the City Hotel, to discuss the races now proposed at the Driving Park on May 24th.

It might be mentioned that the Turf Club had, with a dig or scrape, considered dropping the 24th of May races as it was supposed that the Royal Grenadiers at Toronto were coming here on that date. Now, however, as the Grenadiers have decided to go elsewhere, and thus local races would not interfere with any program contemplated in the city for that date, Peterborough is assured of good horse races on this one of the most patriotic holidays Canadians celebrate.

Mr Geo. Andrews, who has been manager of Messrs. Dametrie Bros. fine restaurant at the corner of George and Charlotte streets will leave for Toronto on Tuesday morning, to enter into partnership with Mr. Paul Smith, who for some years has operated a large business for the past ten years at Hanlan's Point, Toronto, Island. This business includes a large confectionery business, coupled with the more important trade of running amusement branches, row boats and canoes.

Local W. A. Delegates at Toronto Convention

Annual Meeting of Woman's Auxiliary Well Attended.

Delegates from the Woman's Auxiliaries of St. John's, All Saints' and St. Luke's churches are in Toronto attending the annual convention. The following taken from the Mail and Empire:—

The annual convention of the Woman's Auxiliary to Anglican missions opened in St. James' Cathedral yesterday morning. Holy Communion was celebrated by his Grace the Archbishop of Toronto, assisted by Ven. Archdeacon Sweeny, Canon Welch, Canon cCyley, Canon Macnab, Canon Abbott, Canon Dixon, Rural Dean Morley, of Brantford, and Rev. McLean Ballard.

Adjournment was then made to Guild Hall, McGill street, where the first afternoon session was held.

According to Secretary Miss Fennie Jones, seven mission branches have been formed during the year, making a total of 172 branches, the full membership (senior) being 5,871. This includes 325 life members, 44 of whom were added this year. Treasurer's report gives the total receipts as $4,696.96. Dorcas Society secretary's report shows 179 boxes and 528 quilts sent on to Northwest; total amount received $5,409.63. Parochial missionary collections amounted to $4,582.82.

Following upon the reports of the various secretaries, the president, Miss Tilley, addressed the meeting.

In the evening the junior branches of the Women's Auxiliary met in Guild Hall, when Miss Dart wright, the vice-president of the Diocesan Board, occupied the chair. Several interesting addresses were heard during the course of the proceedings, and papers on "What has Been Helpful in Our Branch," read respectively by Miss Amy Wright, of St. James'; Miss M. Howe, of St. Thomas, and Miss Nettie Norris, of St. Paul's, proved particularly noteworthy.

Miss Makepeace, of the Training Home, Matsumoto, Japan, spoke on the curious customs of the Japanese, such as their manner of visiting and accepting invitations. Passing on to the more serious portion of her address, Miss Makepeace spoke of her evangelistic work, and pleaded most earnestly for a helper to enable her to continue her mission work.

The audience subscribed about $100. This sum will be divided among the three speakers of the evening for their respective works.

Will Mules be Used in Fire Hall

Veteran Ex-Fireman Thinks Doors on New City Building too Low.

Yesterday afternoon a veteran member of the local Fire Brigade happening to meet a Times representative, walked with him to the present almost completed, but evidently in some respects to be re-altered fire hall on Aylmer street. This old fire fighter who has now left the department called attention to some of the improvements (!) made on the original plan. When the two investigators arrived at several doors, through which the various horses of the department will have to pass, whether on a hurry call to a fire or otherwise, the veteran remarked, "Well, I guess the city must be going to employ mules instead of horses for their work!" The natural question was "What do you mean by that?" To this the veteran answered, "Say did you notice the height of those doors?" Our representative not being posted on such matters asked "Why do you mention same?" In reply to this natural question, the veteran said, "Tell me don't you know the difference between a mule and a horse when you touch his ear?" No, candidly admitted the reporter. Thereon the veteran said, "Well I'll tell you, when you take a straw or straw and touch a mule's ear the hybrid lowers its head immediately, whilst if you in similar manner touch the ears or head of a horse, up goes the animal's head. Now these doors through which the animals dragging the fire appliances must pass, have evidently been arranged for the city's use of mules. I think they (presuming the city officials) must have decided to employ mules to do the fire brigade's work, and intend to hang straps or rods to let the mules know they must, as is done in hundreds of cases on the continent, lower their heads when required."

It is still in abeyance whether these doors are too low or not.

It is Rumored that Duma Will be Dissolved

St. Petersburg, May 3.—A note published in the semi-official Rossia yesterday, dealing with President Golovin's statement in the lower house of parliament yesterday that the war minister had been notified of the fact that the abolition of drumhead court-martial was to be discussed, declares that the minister was entirely unaware that the parliamentary committee proposed not only the abolition of drumhead court-martial, but that the cases of those condemned to penal servitude by such courts should be transferred to the ordinary courts. "This," the note considered, "is tantamount to quashing the sentences of these courts, and claims for the Duma powers which it does not possess. This claim deprived the minister of justice of the possibility of making the reply which he intended to make."

The Rossia's announcement has again revived the rumors of the approaching dissolution of parliament. However, a Cabinet official assured the correspondent of the Associated Press that such action was not contemplated.

At 22 Years of Age Men Used to Marry

Boston, Mass., May 3.—At the 122nd convention of the Episcopal Church, diocese of Massachusetts, the Committee on Public Morals brought in a report which, in part, is as follows:

"We call upon parents to feel their sacred responsibility for judicious instruction of children as to sex and the relation of personal purity to health and happiness."

"The ambitious standards of social life and the increased cost of living are largely responsible for the postponement of marriages; and late marriages are in part answerable for immorality. The average age of the first marriage of man has within a century changed from 22 years to 27 years. Public sentiment should honor young people who are willing to endure comparative poverty and privation in order to establish a home."

Favors Blacksod Scheme

Lacrosse Schedule Made May 8th

Mr. Ambrose Began, secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, received word yesterday that a meeting of the representatives of the club in the district in which Peterborough is grouped will be held at Beaverton on May 8th for the purpose of drawing up the schedule for the season. Mr. Began will be the representatives of the local club.

Mr. W. Croft is Photographed

Yesterday afternoon Mr. William Croft, the veteran, but still alert ginger beer manufacturer, seeing a crowd about the peripatetic photographer, near the Empress Hotel, stopped and had a couple of photos made. As several of his friends remarked, "William, the photograph makes you look like life, and fully fifteen years younger than your confessed years, would admit."

The Sale of a Wife Satisfactory to All

Woman Who was Sold for $60 is Well Satisfied with the Bargain---Says that She is Sorry that Husband was Alive

Montreal, May 3.—Mr. O. H. Skrodor, secretary of the Society for the Protection of Women and Children, gives the following detailed story of the sale of a wife for $60:

The other morning a young woman—she seemed no more than twenty-five years of age—walked into the society's office on Lagauchetiere street. She was rather poorly dressed, a pronounced blonde, and, in the words of Mr. Skrader, "not at all ugly." She came to ask the secretary's advice and plunged into her story without delay:

About the beginning of February her husband had sold her to another man for $60. The secretary stopped—but she proceeded. The sale price was $60. Her present owner did not have the $60 in hand, and the matter was negotiated on the instalment plan. Ten dollars was paid down, an overcoat and a watch were thrown in, making up about half the necessary $60, and the remainder was to be paid in weekly instalments of $5 monthly.

A PRETTY BLONDE.

The pretty blonde wanted to know if the sale held good. To say that Mr. Skroder was astonished, is to put it mildly. He explained to the woman that the sale was by no means binding, and advised her to have nothing to do with such a proceeding. She had hung breathlessly on his words, and was visibly disappointed. Her face told plainly that she was anxious to be rid of her husband, and not at all averse to passing unfettered for the other man.

Then a light broke in upon Mr. Skroder. He said even the woman before, and he queried her, "Why," said he, "I thought your husband had been frozen to death, while lying drunk on the street at the beginning of the winter." "Oh, no," she said, "I had no such luck as that."

ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

About the middle of March, 1906, the husband was arrested for non-support of his wife and child. He was allowed to go on suspended sentence. The prosecution was conducted by the agents, and the complainant was a neighbor who had sent the husband twenty-five cents to buy meat for the child. The quarter went as an gin for the husband and father.

Shortly after this the husband disappeared. There were several deaths from exposure at the beginning of the winter, and the husband was reported to the agents as having been one of those who perished in this way.

All throughout the summer the woman worked hard to support herself and child. Not long before the sale was effected the husband returned to this home and said the wife of the transaction. He knew she would be pleased, and she was pleased.

Then it was that she came to Mr. Skroder and asked his advice, and then it was that she was disappointed when she heard his answer.

SALE HELD GOOD.

"However," said Mr. Skroder, "the sale so far seems to have held good. I saw her walking across Victoria Square yesterday morning, right in front of the Herald office, hanging on to a man's arm. The man was not her husband, and she wore an unusual aspect of happiness and one of prosperity."

The husband and wife who could not live together came from the Old Country about three or four years ago. He was about 35 years of age, a laborer, and she ten years younger. She had to provide most of the family support.

The purchaser, or at least the man who escorted the now happy couple across Victoria Square, was a fisherman by appearance, but he was neatly dressed and looked well behaved and prosperous.

Minister Eloped

New York, May 3.—Members of the fashionable St. Georges episcopal church at Hempstead, Long Island, were astonished yesterday when they learned that their pastor, Rev. John Knode Cooke, had departed from Hempstead and that Miss Fioretta Whaley also had left her home and had written letters saying she would not return. Rev. Mr. Cooke is married. A formal statement issued yesterday by Bishop Burgess says the vestry is inclined to the belief that Dr. Cooke cannot be of sound mind. Three years ago with Mrs. Cooke and a party of Sunday school children, he was in a trolley car collision and has been a nervous wreck ever since.

Reported that Ghost Commits Arson

London, May 3.—A series of mysterious occurrences, locally attributed to supernatural agency, have been taking place in the town of Otney, county Monaghan, Ireland, recently.

A resident of the place died, and soon afterwards an inexplicable series of smart fires began to occur in the house where he had lived. Bedding, clothing, and similar articles caught fire from no discoverable cause, and from time to time were destroyed. The relatives of the dead man became so alarmed at the mystery that they moved to another building.

According to local report their most alarming feature is that they cannot be extinguished by ordinary methods, but have to be allowed to burn themselves out. The neighborhood is in a state of intense excitement.

Bell Telephone Co. Place More Cables

The Bell Telephone Company with their proverbial progressive interest devoted towards the public's advancement, have placed two cables under Stony Lake.

Mr. Dunn, the popular local manager, assisted by an efficient staff of skilled telephone experts, left on Wednesday morning, accompanied by a Times representative for Lakefield, where the party embarked on the fine steamer Majestic. On the steamer were three heavy coils of waterproof cable. On arrival at McCracken's Landing, the steamer forthwith proceeded to assist in laying the cable from that point to Juniper Island, where a telephone is to be located in the store. After this work was accomplished, the party aboard the steamer returned to McCracken's, and there laid a heavy cable thence to Mr. A. L. Davis island. It took quite a load of cable to complete the most recent addition to the local office's very efficient outside service, and much credit is due both to the company and Mr. Dunn their local agent, for this progressive and soon to be appreciated addition to the local service.

A STAUNCH COMPANY

Where Canadian Capitalists May Safely Place Their Money.

The Denver Banking Corporative Mining Company, whose adv. appears in another part of this issue, is a prosperous colony of business men of Denver, Colorado. The company was formed during the early excitement occasioned by the rich discoveries of miners in Nevada. The company promptly put two prospectors to the front, and secured 40 acres of very valuable mineral ground. Since then 32 additional acres have been added to their property; assays made during a seven months' prospecting of this ground, prove a mineralization covering nearly the whole field. During the last few days in one of their prospecting shafts at a depth of 80 feet from surface a rhyolite (which is the characteristic of gold-bearing rock in Goldfield) was encountered that was liberally sprinkled with gold "in place" and plenty of it. This is a most important "big strike," up to date no estimate can be given as its value, it however, is recognized as a most important discovery by the miners in this camp of confidence as it is pleasant to call themselves called.

The management assures us there is enough for all interested and promises a dividend payer at an early date, in the meantime work is being pushed on two other parts of the property from which big results are expected. The hard work of the company seems to be nearing its end. The management is in conservative and competent hands and claim to accomplish on a given capital twice the work of any other company operating in the Rainy River District.

THE BOERS AND THE EMPIRE

From now on there will be little condolence with the Boers by those who read the words of Gen. Louis Botha, the premier of the Transvaal, which were spoken in London, says the New York Globe, under the above caption. And those who have criticized Great Britain for almost a hundred years of harassments which she has imposed upon the Dutch in South Africa will be likely to forget their criticisms. For the success of Great Britain, as it at last appears, is of a kind to wipe out old scores. History affords few parallels to the speech of General Botha. When has a late enemy ever given evidence of a more sincere change of spirit than is given in these words:

"The manly, courageous confidence shown by the British in the people of the Transvaal is the best seed ever sown in South Africa. We will prove by our acts that we are worthy of this confidence. Our government is as jealous of the honor of the British flag as any other colony of the empire. The message from the Transvaal is that she wants to strengthen the bonds of co-operation and love and unity of the empire."

An explanation of this, that only partly explains, is found in the liberality manifested by the present British government when it drafted the Transvaal constitution. It so regulated the franchise and fashioned the Transvaal parliament as to give the Boers—while the proportion and distribution of their population remains what it is—a preponderating voice in the internal affairs of the colony. The most signal manifestation of this was given by the choice of a Boer as the first prime minister. But the explanation only partly explains. Why do not the Boers grudgingly accept what Great Britain gives them and claim that it is no more than their due? They could rest their contention upon the terms of the treaty of peace. Why has the new premier expressed such whole-hearted loyalty? Was it due to the excitement of the moment and the ovations with which he had been received in London? The explanation can be summed up in two words—British tact. No nation in history has known so well how to handle conquered peoples—to weld them to herself and make them bone of her bone almost before the struggle is over. This is the real British victory. She who was lately called oppressor now becomes a sort of mother.

Not Married There

Port Hope, May 2.—W. A. Miller is a son of W. M. Miller, former manager of the Port Hope Canning Co., who still resides here, retired. The son, W. A. Miller, came to Port Hope from the United States about eight or nine years ago, and lived here for about two years with his wife, said to have been a Miss Palmer, daughter of an American railway magnate. One child was born to them in Port Hope. Mrs. Miller's younger sister spent some time with them here. Young Miller was engaged in the canning business, under his father, and also for a short time the former ran the Hotel St. Lawrence. His wife never attended school in Port Hope, the marriage having been contracted elsewhere. Mrs. Miller was a remarkably pretty woman, and Miller, himself, was also good looking.

Five Men Hurt in Terrible Explosion

Quebec, May 2.—A terrible explosion in a lumber shanty in the upper part of Montmorency took place a few days ago. The shanty is situated between the town plots of Moore and Armand, and was occupied by a party of men, who were breaking an ice jam in the river, for which purpose they were employing dynamite. The dynamite cartridges were being dried on the stove in the shanty, in which there were at the time seven men, all of whom were sitting about the stove. One of the men came along with a pail, which he unthinkingly placed on the stove with a sudden jar, and immediately there was a terrific explosion, which knocked down the seven men, all of whom were so badly mutilated, five so horribly that they are in a critical condition. The names of the five unfortunate men are: Emile Robin, Art Robin, Cleophus Gilin, G. Morin, and Simeon Picard, Jr. Emile Robin was the most terribly injured of the party.

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Can't Hold Down the Price

—MUCH LONGER—

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

Sir John turned suddenly, and with the courtliness that was ever his he indulged in a rare exhibition of feeling. He laid his hand on Guy Oscard's stalwart knee.

"My dear Oscard," he said, and when he chose he could render his voice very soft and affectionate, "none of those arguments apply to me because I am not out there. I like you for trying to make little of your exploit. Such conduct is worthy of you, worthy of a gentleman; but you cannot disguise the fact that Jack owes his life to you and I owe you the same, which, between you and me I may mention, is more valuable to me than my own. I want you to remember always that I am your debtor, and if—if circumstances should ever seem to indicate that the feeling I have for you is anything but friendly and kind, do me the honor of disbelieving those indications. You understand?"

"Yes," replied Oscard untruthfully.

"Here we are at Lady Cantourne's," continued Sir John, "where, as it happens, I expect to meet Jack. Her ladyship is naturally interested in the affair of tomorrow, and has kindly undertaken to keep us up to date in our behavior. You will come in with me?"

Oscard remembered afterward that he was rather puzzled, that there was perhaps in his simple mind the faintest tinge of suspicion. At the moment, however, there was no time to do anything but follow. The man had already rung the bell and Lady Cantourne's butler was holding the door open. There was something in his attitude vaguely suggestive of expectation. He never took his eyes from Sir John Meredith's face, as if on the alert for an unspoken order.

Guy Oscard followed his companion into the hall, and the very scent of the house—for each house speaks to more senses than one—made his heart leap in his broad breast. It seemed as if Millicent's presence was in the very air. This was more than he could have hoped. He had not intended to call this afternoon, although the visit was only to have been postponed for twenty-four hours.

Sir John Meredith's face was a marvel to see. It was quite steady. He was upright and alert, with all the intrepidity of his mind up in arms. There was a light in his eyes, a gleam of light from other days not yet burned out.

He laid aside his gold headed cane and threw back his shoulders.

"Is Mr. Meredith upstairs?" he said to the butler.

"Yes, sir."

The man moved toward the stairs.

"You need not come!" said Sir John, holding up his hand.

The butler stood aside and Sir John led the way up to the drawing room.

At the door he paused for a moment. Guy Oscard was at his heels. Then he opened the door rather slowly and motioned gracefully with his left hand to Oscard to pass in before him.

Oscard stepped forward. When he had crossed the threshold Sir John closed the door sharply behind him and turned to go downstairs.

CHAPTER XXIII.

GUY OSCARD stood for a moment on the threshold. He heard the door closed behind him, and he took two steps farther forward.

Jack Meredith and Millicent were at the fireplace. There was a heap of disordered paper and string upon the table, and a few wedding presents standing in the midst of their packing.

Millicent's pretty face was quite white. She looked from Meredith to Oscard with a sudden horror in her eyes. For the first time in her life she was at a loss, quite taken aback.

"Oh-h!" she whispered, and that was all.

The silence that followed was tense, as if something in the atmosphere was about to snap, and in the midst of it the wheels of Sir John's retreating carriage came to the ears of the three persons in the drawing room.

It was only for a moment, but in that moment the two men saw clearly. It was as if the veil from the girl's mind had fallen—leaving her thoughts confessed, bare before them. In the same instant they both saw—they both sped back in thought to their first meeting, to the hundred links of the chain that brought them to the present moment—they knew; and Millicent felt that they knew.

"Are you going to be married tomorrow?" asked Guy Oscard deliberately. He never was a man to whom a successful appeal for the slightest mitigation of justice could have been made. His dealings had ever been with men, from whom he had exacted as scrupulous an honor as he had given. He did not know that women are different—that honor is not their strong point.

Millicent did not answer. She looked to Meredith to answer for her, but Meredith was looking at Oscard, and in his lazy eyes there glowed the singular affection and admiration which he had bestowed long time before on this simple gentleman—his mental inferior.

"Are you going to be married tomorrow?" repeated Oscard, standing quite still, with a calmness that frightened her.

"Yes," she answered, rather feebly.

She knew that she could explain it all. She could have explained it to either of them separately, but to both together, somehow it was difficult. Her mind was filled with clamoring arguments and explanations and plausible evasions, but she did not know which to select first. None of them seemed quite equal to this occasion.

These men required something deeper and stronger and simpler than she had to offer them.

Moreover, she was paralyzed by a feeling that was quite new to her—a horrid feeling that something had gone from her. She had lost her strongest, her single arm—her beauty. This seemed to have fallen from her. It seemed to count for nothing at this time. There is a time that comes as surely as death will come in the life of every beautiful woman—a time wherein she suddenly realizes how trivial a thing her beauty is; how limited, how useless, how ineffectual!

Millicent Chyne made a little appealing movement toward Meredith, who relentlessly stepped back. It was the magic of the love that filled his heart for Oscard. Had she wronged any man in the world but Guy Oscard, that little movement, full of love and tenderness and sweet contrition, might have saved her. But it was Oscard's heart that she had broken; for broken they both knew it to be, and Jack Meredith stepped back from her touch as from pollution. His superficial, imagined love for her had been killed at a single blow. Her beauty was no

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

THE DOUGLAS MINING COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

WHY SPRING BRINGS WEAKNESS

Winter starts out fresh all from many homes, and only a few get even a little sunshine. The blood naturally grows thin, colorless and diseased,—we have candy, sleep poorly and have headaches. In this condition we are easy prey to sickness and fill the hospitals and graveyards.

You must create resistance and strength.

The blood must be purified, must be given power to expel the seeds of spring fever.

Ferrozone is the only remedy. It fills frank vim and energy, it fills the body with vitality, makes every fibre sing with new found life and health.

That gnawing tiredness leaves you —Ferrozone drives it away. Sleepless nights are turned into periods of rest, and you pick up fast. Day by day your appetite improves—this means more food is transformed in nutriment that will build and energize weak organs. The inclination to worry passes away because Ferrozone imparts nerve—tone and bodily strength that prevents depression.

Think it over—Ferrozone is a wonderful tonic, in fact it is more because it establishes health that lasts. Thousands use it in the spring and thereby cleanse and restore the entire system to a perfect condition. You'll feel the uplifting power of Ferrozone in a week,—it's bound to help you if you only give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 be sure of the name FERROZONE.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's father, and was attended by only a few friends. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson have taken up their residence in their new home at Bethany.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Rare Chance to Get Farm Lands

In these days of the many "get rich quick" but in too many instances "stay poor permanently," propositions before the public, it is refreshing to see one where there is no advertized or insinuated "get rich quickly" scheme offered, but a good sound business proposition that will doubtless be eagerly sought so long as the opportunity is open. Mr. W. Malkin, of Toronto, offers those seeking safe and remunerative investments an unusually good opportunity to purchase land in Western Canada, particularly well improved farms near that great grain center, Indian Head, Sask., on exceptionally easy terms. Mr. Malkin is forming a company, with which anyone possessing some small capital can become associated.

In this proposition one simply pays a small amount of the farm purchase price down and then makes up the balance by placing one-half the crop in the nearest elevator until such time as the property is fully paid for. There are thousands of western farmers who give up half their crops in rentals alone, but in the offer made, one would in a very short time own his farm outright.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

Board of Works in Session Last Night

Petitions for Granolithic Sidewalks Granted---Look Street Residents Must Pay for Sewer Connection or They Will be Cut Off from the Outfall Sewer.

The Board of Works of the City Council met last night. There were present Mayor R. F. McWilliams and Chairman Ald. Duncan, and Alderman McIntyre.

Mayor McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre.—That the Bell Telephone Company be permitted to erect poles asked for on Bubbs Lane at points indicated by the engineer, and on Homewood avenue, if the Bell Company will make arrangements with the power companies satisfactory to the engineer.—Carried.

Ald. Harry Morgan and R. M. Glover, asked the Board of Works for a granolithic walk on Mark street, outside the tree line. The petitioners urged that this walk going outside the trees would add to the street's appearance, and do away with six or eight feet of surplus surface, which residents have now to hoe and clean up annually in order to give a presentable appearance. Ald. Morgan contended that were the work constructed as petitioned for a clear 34 feet of solid roadway would be guaranteed. All the residents on Mark street have signed for this walk to go outside the trees.

As two members of the Board were absent it was thought advisable to leave this matter in abeyance.

It appears that there is a considerable jog in this street that would prove a detument to constructing the walk inside the tree line.

The Board approved of the engineer's recommendation that the standpipe on McDonnell street, opposite Mr. James' store be removed to a short distance west of Reid street, adjacent to the culvert. The engineer will be asked to report as to whether this change would be objected to by the street watering contractor, and also to the cost of such change.

The city engineer reported on the condition of the streets as left by the gas company after laying new mains last fall. He contended that these streets can be satisfactorily and readily graded now. This report will be forwarded to the gas company, who will be requested to have the streets graded as quickly as possible.

The engineer also reported as to the streets left by sewer contractors last year. While these streets are in fairly good condition, still some work is necessary to overcome summer shrinkage, and the contractors will be notified to assure these roadways being in good passable condition.

A petition for a granolithic walk on King street from Reid to Park, was left in abeyance pending a satisfactory agreement between property owners.

WAINWRIGHT'S SALARY.

The Board decided to give Wainwright, the fire hall engineer, an additional $20 a year as the Board of Work's proportion of the man's increase in salary for 1907.

The following petitions were received;

For a walk on south side of Sherbrooke street, from Bethune to Rubidge, inside tree line.—Granted subject to approval of side of tree line.

For a pipe sewer on Sherbrooke street, from Stewart to Rubidge.—Granted subject to being properly signed.

For a walk on Simcoe street, from Water to Peterborough Cereal mills.—Granted subject to being sufficiently signed.

For a board walk on west side of Park street, from Westcott to Romaine streets.—The engineer will be instructed to do this work.

The Board of Education asked that proper sidewalk and crossing approaches to the King Edward school be provided, and that Aylmer street, from Romaine to Lake streets, be opened without delay. These propositions have already been arranged for.

The petition of Thos. Begley, for a walk on south side of Victoria avenue, from Downie street to his lot, was granted, subject to the signature for the vacant lot at the corner being secured.

Sewer connections on Lock street, must be paid or connections will be severed. There are six ratepayers in this locality who have refused to pay their $25 for connection with the outfall sewer as provided for by law.

On resolution by the mayor, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, these people must pay up by May 20th, or their sewer connections will be severed.

Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by the mayor,—That Foreman Thorndyke be instructed to proceed with all sections of pavement under 600 feet, except those adjoining longer sections.—Carried.

Mr. Thorndyke will be instructed to start operations in the center, and west wards first.

The chairman was authorized to appoint a man to look after the cement crossings, the work to be proceeded with as soon as possible.

The board then adjourned.

Why do not City Officials Keep the Law?

It is Alleged Members of the Aldermanic Board do not Take Out Building Permits.

It seems that some officials of the city do not observe in their entirety some of the laws they formulate and make. It is alleged that some members of the City Council who are engaged in contractors' building operations have not, as yet taken out building permits as required by law. If this is correct as alleged there seems to be a screw very loose somewhere in the observance of our civic observances.

It seems that only two building permits have been issued by the city clerk so far this year. These were to Mr. Duncan McNevin, for an addition to his house, and to Mr. C.L. Smith, for a new house on McDonnell street near Aylmer street.

Among the public buildings for which permits have not been taken out are the Collegiate Institute, the new fire hall, the King Edward school, the north ward school, the Normal school, etc. In a few days the old fire hall is to be altered. A permit should be taken out for that.

Now if the city fathers and other civic officials break a city regulations, how are ordinary citizens to be expected to keep the laws?

Local Maccabees Hold Successful Entertainment

Last night a very pleasant time was enjoyed by members of the Peterborough Tent, K.O.T.M. and their many guests in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street. A most enjoyable program was presented including addresses given by Bro. Jos. Jenkins, of Port Huron, assistant supreme commander, and Bro. S. W. Trustler, of Camlachie, provincial commander. Both these gentlemen had something interesting to say and were excellent speakers. In addition to the addresses there was a good musical program.

After the program had been finished, and sufficient time for social intercourse allowed, members of the order had a banquet at Hopper's.

New Apsley Church Consecrated Yesterday

Yesterday this grace the Archbishop of Toronto, consecrated the handsome new church erected by members of the Church of England, at Apsley. Rev. C. Lloyd is in charge of the work in Apsley. The new St. George church at Apsley, is a credit to the community. Rev. Walter Creighton, of Lakefield, and others took part in yesterday's ceremony. His grace the archbishop confirmed a large number of candidates. He will conduct confirmation services at Minden and other points before returning to Toronto.

Several Licenses Were Cut Off

The Bancroft Times says: The license commissioners met at Marmora on Monday last and cancelled the shop licenses at Madoc, Marmora and Bancroft. The hotel license at Cox Hill was also cut off. The hotel at Maynooth, recently built by Mr. P. Reidy, is also without a license. The commissioners have transferred the license to Mr. Geo. Flynn, but Mr. P. Doyle, who is at present in possession claims that the rent is paid until next November, and refuses to vacate the premises. The house will, probably be without a license after the first of May.

Liquor Licenses Were Promptly Paid Up

Those to whom licenses for the ensueing year in Peterborough, have been granted are prompt in their first instalment of $250, payable this week. Out of the $500 charged for the year. Every licensee forwarded his cheque for $250 to Inspector Stewart. Eighteen hotelkeepers have paid in $ 4,500 altogether. The proprietor of the Royal Hotel, who was given three months' extension to sell out, took out a license for a quarter of a year and handed over $125. Besides four shop licenses have paid in $250 each, adding another $1000.

Y. W. C. A. Closing Exercises Last Night

An Interesting Display Showing Good Training Under Miss Coventry.

Last night a very pretty and well carried out spectacle, enlivened by not only accompanying and appropriate music furnished by Miss Ransie, but by vocal and other instrumental music, was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall.

This event was the closing exercises of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes for the season. The program was not only of great interest on the merits of the various performances, but reflected great credit upon Miss Coventry, physical directress of the Y.W.C.A. It might here be noted that Miss Coventry's success with those participating in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium has been so great that the board is now seriously considering the issuance of a request to this lady to accept a similar position for next season.

The senior class marching calisthenics, lantern drill, wand drill, club swinging and Japanese fan drill were admirably executed, the lantern drill was very pretty, as were also the wand and Japanese drill; in the latter the movement of the fans by those participating to correct time of the music was well rendered. The "twenty froggies" attired in specially constructed costumes of green and yellow was most amusing.

The junior class in their wand exercises, fancy steps and dumb bell drill gave much satisfaction.

The musical part of the program included an admirably executed piano solo by Miss Gumpricht, a well delivered recitation by Miss Hill, a charming vocal solo by Miss C. Reesor and an artistically given violin solo by Miss Kathleen Wallis.

A pleasing and well merited feature of the occasion was the presentation to Miss I. Coventry, the physical director, of two beautiful bouquets in testimony to her much valued services in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's police court an old man named John Powers was given two months in jail as a vagrant.

Joseph McOpalum was charged with neglecting to send his child, between the ages of eight and fourteen years, to school after being notified by the trustees. Mrs. McOpalum produced a certificate showing that the child had had the measles. The magistrate suspended judgment on her promising to send the child next Monday.

Mrs. Holland had the same charge against her; she explained her boy had bilious attacks. Mr. McDonald, the teacher, produced a report averaging three months past, showing he had been away more than half his time. Mrs. Holland said she sent her boy to the separate school although a Protestant. She complained that the teacher had beaten him too severely and she would take him from that school if it occurred again. Both the magistrate and Mr. McDonald told her that if she would punish her boy at home, and compel him to attend school regularly, he would not be beaten there. His worship further remarked, "You cannot do as you choose with your child, he belongs to the state as much as to you. If you don't send him to school after this I will fine you heavily, and if it is not paid I'll send you to jail.

Anti-European Mobs Riot in the Punjaub

Allahabad, British India, May 4.—Serious anti-European riots have occurred at Rawalpindi, Punjab.

A Hindu mob burned two bungalows, pillaged the mission church, looted the post office, burned a garage and all the motor cars in it, destroyed the plant of a power house, and smashed the windows of the residences of many Europeans.

The outbreak is attributed to the incendiary influence of a number of well-known agitators, who have been making speeches throughout the Punjab, and who are also held responsible for the recent outbreak at Lahore.

Rawalpindi is a fortified town of the Punjab, capital of the Rawalpindi division and district. It is situated 47 miles from Attock, an important strategic position on the Indus, and has a population of about 80,000. The Rawalpindi division has about 5,500,000 inhabitants.

Rawalpindi is the administrative capital of the division and district of its own name between the Indus and Jhelum, on the railway from Lahore to Peshawar. It is modern in appearance, well built, and an important grain market. The cantonments a fort, a fine public park, several European churches, and the headquarters of the Punjab Northern State R.R. Transit trade is carried on with Cashmere and Afghanistan. The Sikhs surrendered here, and in 1885 a great durbar or review was held.

Both Sides Prepare to Start Hostilities

City of Mexico, May 4.—There were few developments in the Guatemalan affair yesterday, at the State Department it was said that no reply had been received to the note requesting the extradition of General Lima, who is charged with complicity in the assassination of General Barrillas. The Government admitted that troops are being sent to the border, but denied that this can be construed as a mobilization. Nevertheless, great activity prevails in the local barracks, and reports say that similar conditions exist in the military district at Chapias, on the Guatemalan border.

Seattle Welcomes General Kuroki

Seattle, Wash., May 4. — General Kuroki and his staff representatives of Japan to the Jamestown Exposition, arrived here yesterday after being delayed by a fog on Puget Sound. They received a royal and picturesque welcome by local Japanese and Americans.

Daylight fireworks were set off, a hundred Japanese girls sang the national anthem, and the general's carriage was almost covered with flowers presented by school children.

The reception at the wharf was in charge of the Chamber of Commerce, the Asiatic Society and the Japanese Association of Seattle. With General Kuroki are fifteen army officers.

Great Tenor Singer Cuts Out His Tongue

Milan Bay, May 4.—Arcangelo Rossi, the tenor, who was with the Conried Opera Co., in San Francisco during the earthquake, and who as a result of the fright he experienced, has not since been well, endeavored to commit suicide here yesterday. Recently he lost his voice. This calamity weighed so deeply on his mind that he went crazy, and yesterday he cut out his tongue with a pair of scissors. He was taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

Three Murdered for $16

Middletown, N.Y., May 4.—Charles U. Rogers, who is charged with the murder of the two Olney brothers and Alice Ingerick, who lived on the Olney farm, was brought her yesterday. Rogers was captured in Los Angeles, after a chase which continued more than a year. The officer who brought him here from the West declared yesterday that Rogers has made a complete confession, saying that he committed the triple murder alone, and that he alone is guilty. He secured $16 from his victims.

Hamilton, May 4.—The authorities suspect foul play in the case of Simon Burdu, the Hungarian, who died under peculiar circumstances yesterday morning, and there may be interesting developments at the inquest to be held next Monday. The contents of the man's stomach has been sent to Toronto to be analyzed.

It has been discovered that Burdu had paid up insurance in his native country for 25,000 crowns, and that he was fairly well off.

The boarders in Burdu's house and Max Slade refuse to give any information regarding his death.

AND EVERY NIGHT

William Duncan Gets One Month in Jail

Geo. Coohrane's Assailant Gets Sentence---Judgement as to the Disposal of Willie Duncan Was Reserved.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Weller held court in the County Council Chambers, when William Duncan was tried with having assaulted Truant Officer Geo. Cochrane, whilst the latter was in pursuance of his duties on April 13th.

County Crown Attorney Wood appeared for the prosecution and Mr McWilliams for the prisoner. This case had been given preliminary hearing in the police court, when the police magistrate committed Duncan for trial. Mr. Goodwill appeared on behalf of the Children's Aid Society.

It might be noted that the trial of yesterday resulted in consequence of an alleged assault on Mr. Cochrane by the prisoner on April 13th, when the latter went to Duncan's house to get the latter's child away for the Children's Aid Society.

The first witness called, Mr. Goodwill, who said he is secretary of the Children's Aid Society of this city. The boy, Willie Duncan, had been a ward of this society since 1903.

Mr. Geo. Cochrane, high constable of the county, knows the prisoner. He went some years ago to Havelock and got three of Duncan's children, by order of the county magistrate, away for the Children's Aid Society. Willie Duncan had been given back to his parents and again taken by the society, and once more given to the parents. A few days before April 13th, Mr. Goodwill told witness to get the child as its was not used right. He went down and told Duncan he wanted Willie. Prisoner said, "You cannot have him." Mr. Henry, caretaker of the shelter, was with him at the time. Henry then went to telephone the police. Prisoner caught hold of witness and a scuffle ensued. Duncan again attacked him. Again Duncan, Kelly and the dog went at him, and Duncan tried to get witness head in the Duncan's mouth. Then P. C. Mehurry arrived. Then Duncan desperately struck witness a full blow in the mouth.

To Mr. McWilliams he took no warrant when he went to Duncan's house.

Mr. J. Kelly, next witness, was at prisoner's house on the evening in question. He agreed with all Mr. Cochrane said until P. C. Mehurry's arrival.

Mr. William Henry of the Shelter, said he went with Cochrane on the Saturday night to get the boy. He next showed by the books how long and at what times Willie had been in the shelter. He then corroborated Cochrane's evidence.

P. C. Mehurry next testified to going to prisoner's house, he identified to prisoner striking Cochrane.

At this point his honor noted that he was doubtful whether when a child has been returned to its parents by the shelter, if the society can retake it without the formality of new magisterial proceedings.

The prisoner then went into the box. When his wife died some years ago the children were taken from him. He has since remarried. He explained that owing to injures received, the boy used to help him during the afternoons, driving his junk wagon home.

Mr. McWilliams put up a strong fight for both his client and against the Children's Aid Society taking the boy Willie again.

His honor sentenced the prisoner to one month's imprisonment in the county jail at hard labor, but in the disposal of the little boy, took the matter under consideration until Monday when he will give judgment.

Miss H. Fitzgerald Has Passed Away

Yesterday morning in St. Joseph's Hospital, a well known young lady, Miss Helena Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. Michael Fitzgerald, Douro street, east ward, passed away. Deceased was 26 years of age, and her death will be regretted by a large number of friends. She is survived by her father and mother and two brothers, Messrs John and Herbert Fitzgerald, of this city. The family will have the sympathy of a large number of friends in their bereavement.

Local Turf Club Holds a Meeting

The Peterborough Turf Club met last night in the City Hotel parlors to consider holding races on the 24th of May. President P. Cowan occupied the chair, and there was present also, Dr. Johnston, Martin Connors, Chas. Nixon and Jas. O'Shea.

It was unanimously decided to hold horse races and a Marathon race on Victoria Day. Another meeting will be held Monday evening to draft up a schedule.

ARITHMETIC AND FOOD

School Children Must be Well Fed

A young girl in Newport, says no one has a better right to speak of Grape-Nuts food than she.

"I was a jolly fat girl in poor health, until Mamma began to give me Grape-Nuts food. I began to improve at once, both mentally and physically, and I improved so in my work at school that I got 100 in arithmetic, and during that time I gained 3 or 4 pounds in weight and am still gaining.

"There is no one who has a right to recommend the food more highly than I. Mamma neglected to supply it for about three weeks, and I began to fail in health so I commenced the use of the food again, and now I don't intend to do without Grape-Nuts."

It is well for parents to know that Grape-Nuts food contains selected elements from the grains, prepared and cooked in such a way as to present these food elements so that they can be quickly digested and assimilated; the phosphates of potash obtained from the field grains, and contained in Grape-Nuts unites with the albumen of food to quickly rebuild the gray matter in the nerve centers and brain.

It is of the greatest importance that growing children and students be given food that sustains both brain and nerves. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Bad Explosion

Hong Kong, May 4.—Great destruction of life and property was caused at Canton yesterday evening by the explosion of a gunpowder magazine. Twenty-one bodies have already been recovered from the ruins. Hundreds of persons were injured. Fifteen buildings were razed and over a hundred others were wrecked.

A section two hundred feet long of the massive city wall was thrown down. The historical many storied Pagode escaped with slight injuries.

The officials and staffs of the hospitals are doing their best to succor the sufferers.

In the Shameen suburb, where the foreigners live, a terrific shock, caused by the explosion, was felt, but the residents were unharmed.

Botha Opposes Preference

London, May 4.—The Canadian Associated Press understands that Premier Botha at yesterday's conference uncompromisingly opposed a commercial preference within the Empire, and declared himself opposed the view put forward by Premier Deakin. He took the line that it was quite competent for his government to raise the tariffs against British goods or any other country's goods if that policy commended itself.

London, May 4.—Lady Henry Somerset, who is retiring from public life in order to devote herself to private charities, made her final appearance as a public speaker yesterday afternoon before a fashionable audience in the picture gallery of the Earl of Ellesmere's residence, Bridgewater House, giving an interesting lecture.

Remarkable Invention FOR THE CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. Love, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopaecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots) without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. Moore, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the EVANS VACUUM CAP is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent post free, on application.

Even Her Blood Turned to Water

When Dying of Pernicious Anaemia Her Life Was Saved by

..Ferrozone..

Probably very few cases are on record in which an absolute cure has been made of pernicious anaemia.

But Ferrozone did cure Miss Elaine Stanhope—cured her absolutely, and her mother Mrs. G. Stanhope of Rothesay, Ont., says the following:

"My daughter complained of feeling tired. She was very pale and listless, and kept losing strength till too weak to attend school. The doctors prescribed different bottles of medicine but Elaine kept getting worse instead of better. She had Anaemia and we were afraid for a while that she might never rally. We read of a similar case, that of Miss Descent of Stirling, Ont., being cured by Ferrozone, and this induced us to get it for Elaine. It took three boxes of Ferrozone to make any decided improvement, but when six boxes were used my daughter was beginning to be her old self again. It didn't take much longer to make a complete cure, and I am convinced that there is no better blood-maker than Ferrozone. It has made a new girl of Elaine. She has gained ten pounds in weight and looks the picture of perfect health. She is stronger and enjoys the best of spirits. The credit of her recovery is entirely due to Ferrozone."

Every young girl and young woman can make herself strong and healthy with Ferrozone.

Complexion soon becomes perfect, nerves get new strength, tiredness vanishes—perfect health is the reward for using Ferrozone, which is sold by all druggists—price 50c. per box; don't fail to try it.

ANOTHER RIVAL FOR ANTHRACITE

Interest continues in the alleged discovery of a chemical compound which will convert ashes into an effective heat agent. From New York comes the information that one James G. Geyer announces the discovery of a powder, whose composition is kept secret, which will make coal ashes mixed with a third part of coal burn longer and give out more heat than an equal weight of pure coal. The powder was publicly tested the other evening in the boiler room of a New York hotel. The Times of that city gives a detailed account of the test. Seven minutes after stoking the boiler with several shovelsful of the mixture, according to the report, the furnace door was opened: "The fuel was burning briskly, a white flame appearing over the coals. This flame is much lighter in color than the flame from the usual anthracite. In half an hour the steam pressure stood the same—75 pounds, the one boiler doing the work that the three had done before. The hotel engineer said that this would not have been possible with pure anthracite." We are informed that the inventor is sanguine of perfecting the powder so that no mixture of pure coal will be necessary. This beneficent result would be a boon to humanity. If it be true that the man who causes two blades of grass to grow where but one grew before deserves well of his fellows, then the man who invents a method of burning coal ashes, or dirt, or sand, is entitled to some unusual recognition at the hands of the public. While we do not doubt Mr. Geyer's sincerity, nor question the successful test of his compound, nevertheless the householder need not fear that he is throwing money away in stocking his bin with anthracite.

A Souvenir Bible

London, May 3.—When the new legislative assembly of the Transvaal met for the first time at Pretoria, the committee of the Bible Society provided two Bibles, one in English and one in Dutch, to be used by the members of the assembly in taking the oath. These copies will be suitably inscribed and afterwards presented to General Botha, the first premier of the Transvaal, as a souvenir of this historic occasion.

Reports of Outbreak Are Exaggerated

Cettinje, Montenegro, May 3.—The authorities here declare that the Vienna reports of a grave political crisis in Montenegro are exaggerated. They add that, apart from the the street fighting at Podgoritza, during which several persons were killed or wounded, and the destruction of the offices of a radical newspaper at Hahotich, there has been no disturbance of order and no rising of the clans. Parliament was prorogued for three months a week ago because the deputies obstructed all the government business, and the members of the opposition are taking advantage of the recess to advocate a more constitutional government. Prince Nicholas probably will compromise with the opposition by the appointment of a coalition ministry with which parliament will be able to work.

At 22 Years of Age Men Used to Marry

Boston, Mass., May 3.—At the 122nd convention of the Episcopal Church, diocese of Massachusetts, the Committee on Public Morals brought in a report which, in part, is as follows:

"We call upon parents to feel their sacred responsibility for judicious instruction of children as to sex and the relation of personal purity to health and happiness."

"The ambitious standards of social life and the increased cost of living are largely responsible for the postponement of marriages; and late marriages are in part answerable for immorality. The average age of the first marriage of man has within a century changed from 22 years to 27 years. Public sentiment should honor young people who are willing to endure comparative poverty and privation in order to establish a home."

Minister Eloped

New York, May 3.—Members of the fashionable St. George's Episcopal church at Hempstead, Long Island, were astonished yesterday when they learned that their pastor, Rev. John Enoch Cooke, had departed from Hempstead and that Miss Florette Whaley also had left her home and had written letters saying she would not return. Rev. Mr. Cooke is married. A formal statement issued yesterday by Bishop Burgess says the vestry is inclined to the belief that Dr. Cooke cannot be of sound mind. Three years ago with Mrs. Cooke and a party of Sunday school children, he was in a trolley car collision and has been a nervous wreck ever since.

Gunpowder.

Upon the authority of an Arab writer, in the Spanish Escurial collection, there seems little reason to doubt that gunpowder was introduced through the means of the Saracens into Europe before the middle of the thirteenth century, though its use in engines of war was probably more like that of fireworks than artillery.

Venetian Glass.

Venetian glass is not made in Venice, but in the island of Murano.

Liszt.

Liszt when studying the piano was accustomed as a regular occupation to practice ten hours a day. To the end of his professional career he every day played the scales, as he said, to limber his fingers.

Chinese Bridges.

The Chinese are known to have built several fine suspension bridges before the opening of the Christian era. One in the province of Yunnan, built in the year 69 A. D., is still in excellent condition.

European Proverbs.

It has been calculated that there are at least 20,000 proverbs circulating among European natives alone.

Nail Spots.

The explanation of the white spots that sometimes appear on the nails is that the vascular tissue underneath is attached to the substance of the nail, but from accidental cause, such as a blow, occasionally becomes separated.

Sugar Cane.

The sugar cane is mentioned by Strabo as known in India 325 B. C. It was then used in its raw state, no method being known of extracting the sugar.

Egyptian Tombs.

The Egyptians bestowed great labor on their tombs and little on their homes. They regarded the latter as mere temporary abodes, but the former they looked on as eternal habitations.

The Power of a Mouse.

During a performance in the Royal theater at Josefstadt, in Austria, a mouse ran across the auditorium and caused a panic. Actors and actresses hurried from the stage. It was fully twenty minutes before order was restored and the play proceeded.

Australia.

Australia could be made to support 400,000,000 inhabitants of the black or yellow races able to endure the climate.

Showers of Fish.

Showers of fish and frogs are tolerably well authenticated. The living creatures were probably taken from their native element by a cyclone or waterspout, were transported through the air and finally dropped with the rain.

National Flowers.

The national flower of England is the rose, of France the fleur-de-lis, of Germany the cornflower, of Egypt the lotus, of Greece the violet, of Ireland the shamrock, of Italy the lily, of India the lotus, of Japan the chrysanthemum, of Mexico the nopal cactus, of Scotland the thistle and of Spain the pomegranate.

PE-RU-NA RELIEVES AFTER-EFFECTS OF LA GRIPPE.

La Grippe Sows the Seed of Chronic Catarrh, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration and a Host of Ailments Too Numerous to Mention.

MR. J. A. GOYER.

Nearly every person who has had the grip during the past winter finds himself left with some chronic catarrhal condition more or less intolerable.

It may be a hacking cough, or a tired, all-worn-out feeling.

We have a multitude of testimonials along this line.

La Grippe Leaves a Case of Systemic Catarrh.

Judge Horatio J. Goss, Hartwell, Ga., writes:

"Some five or six years ago I had a very severe spell of grip which left me with systemic catarrh.

"A friend advised me to try your Peruna, which I did, and was immediately benefited.

"The third bottle completed the cure."

Holds Pe-ru-na in High Esteem.

Miss Ernestine Durocher, 3611 Notre Dame, St. Henri, Montreal, Can., writes:

"During several years I experienced much inconvenience on account of weakness and heart trouble.

"The best doctors treated me, but without success.

"A year ago I commenced to take Peruna.

"I persevered with it regularly and a change took place more rapidly than I expected. To-day I am entirely cured.

"I hold Peruna in the highest esteem and I am always ready to speak a good word in its favor. I owe my cure to Peruna."

Mr. N. Beauchamp, 126 rue Notre Dame, Lachine, P. Q., writes:

"I tried the famous remedy, Peruna, which was recommended to me by one of my friends, R. Pilon.

"I have not been without this valuable remedy for seven months, and now I see that I am entirely cured.

"Formerly, on lying down I was unable to breathe through my nose and I never passed a day without headache.

"To-day I experience none of these symptoms and this is due to Peruna."

Mr. J. A. Goyer, president La Pharmacie Latouluse, 1069 Berri St., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I can highly recommend your inestimable preparation, Peruna, to all those who suffer from the bad after-effects of la grippe.

"Two bottles of Peruna have brought to me a complete cure of that sickness, and it has acted as the best tonic for the system that I have ever experienced."

Head and Stomach Were Affected by Catarrh.

Miss Olivine Perrault, 557½ rue Albert, Montreal, Can., writes:

"I write you a word to congratulate you on your famous remedy, Peruna. I tried other remedies, but my cold did not get any better, and I feared I was becoming consumptive.

"The condition of my head and stomach was very annoying. I had coughed day and night for three months, as the result of a cold which I had contracted from sudden change of temperature.

"My brother advised me to try Peruna and I did so, for he was cured by Peruna. I took it regularly and improved steadily. I have now taken three bottles of it and am completely cured."

A TASTY SALAD.

Cut the inner and crispest stalks of celery into half inch lengths. Skin a banana and cut it into neat cubes. Do the same with a tender tart apple. (A "snow apple" would be good for this purpose.) Have ready a couple of halved grape fruit, from which you have removed all the pulp so carefully that you have not torn the skin of either half.

Put all these into a chilled bowl and set on the ice or in a very cold place for half an hour. You do not need to be reminded that the mayonnaise should be made first of all and left out in the cold while you are preparing the rest of the ingredients.

The emptied halves of the grape fruit should lie in ice (cracked) until you are ready to make ready for serving.

Then empty, wipe and fill them with the fruit mixture as soon as you have poured the mayonnaise into the bowl and tossed the contents up lightly with a silver fork to insure thorough incorporation of fruit and dressing.

Put a half teaspoonful of the mayonnaise on the top of each portion of fruit and serve the filled skins upon small plates.

NURSERY NOTES.

Don't pick the baby up every time it cries.

Never force a baby to sit up. It will sit up of its own accord when its spine and muscles are strong enough.

The baby's stomach is intended for food and drink. Avoid therefore giving medicines unless they are actually needed.

Never lift a baby by its arms, but under the arms. A child's arm is very easily dislocated, and lifelong injury may result from its dislocation.

A prominent physician claims that there will be no diphtheria or scarlet fever for children if they eat plentifully of onions every day, especially when there is a scarcity of fresh fruit.

Among the various causes for crossness of children are some very common ones, such as hunger or thirst, improper sleep, overeating, uncomfortable clothing and the pernicious feeding of sweets.

A very neat and useful powder puff is made in the following way: Cut a circular piece of flowered silk, run a casing near the edge and thread with ribbon. In the very center attach a small round puff that may be bought anywhere. Powder sprinkled on this now and then is all that is necessary, and the puff is washable.

What Not to Wear.

White muslin petticoats for street wear.

Trailing skirts on a stormy day, ripped or torn kid gloves at any time.

Large buttons for fastening a waist over a stout figure.

Rose pink accessories under or over a wrinkled face or neck.

Gray or navy blue veils over a sallow complexion.

Round hats with a full face and a peaked crown with sharp faced features.

To Clean a Copper Kettle.

Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and rub over the kettle with it. The kettle should afterward be carefully rinsed in cold water and given a final polish with a clean soft cloth.

A Profitable Inheritance.

The boatman, stolidly bending to his oars, looked up quickly and said, "Illustrissimo, my grandfather was the boatman of the Signor Shelley, drowned in this bay." Saying Shelley's name, he lifted his hat as if he had mentioned one of the saints.

The quick mist of emotion rose to Carducci's eyes at the boatman's simple gesture of reverence. "I salute thee, my friend," he said, stretching out his hand. The rower drew in his oars and, bending forward, shook hands with Carducci, then rowed quietly on, driving out into the blue waters.

I have since been told—but I refuse to believe it—that every boatman in Spezia tells the same grandfather story when Shelley's name is mentioned by visitors to the bay. "It is our little story for the English," they say, with a gleaming, irresponsible smile. "They like it much. It is worth a lira or two lira—sometimes five." In our case, I remember, it was worth five and a clasp of Carducci's hand.—Fortnightly Review.

Moths and Butterflies.

Some moths look very much like butterflies, but there are two ways in which you can always tell the one from the other. Each has little slender feelers growing from the head, but the butterfly's feelers, or antennae, as they are called, have knobs on the ends. The antennae of the moth sometimes have tiny feathers on them and sometimes little spires, but thy are never knobbed. Then, too, in alighting the butterfly always holds her wings erect, while the moth's droop or are nearly flat.

No Longer Worried.

"I thought," said the visitor, "I'd drop in and tell you what your hair restorer did for a friend of mine. When he started to using your elixir there were only a few hairs on his head, but now it's completely covered."

"Indeed?" explained the patent medicine man.

"Yes; by six feet of earth"—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Martyr.

The Friend—If your married life is so unhappy, why don't you get a divorce from your husband? Unhappy Wife—Because he would then marry some other woman and make her unhappy.—Chicago News.

His Intelligence.

Purchaser—You told me that parrot I bought of you was the most intelligent bird in your collection, while the fact is he doesn't talk at all. Dealer—That's what I meant when I spoke of his intelligence.

The Secret.

He—Why did you tell me this if it was such a secret? She—But if I didn't tell it to somebody how could anybody know I could keep a secret?—Baltimore American.

Age does not make us childish, as some say. It finds us true children.—Goethe.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that
GOLDEN MESSAGE?

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $48.60 per ton, the second grade $262.80, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first
DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

HUMOR

ANNIE'S SELF RESPECT.

New Servant Ranked Below the Dog and Couldn't Stand For It.

A lady who lives on the north side had occasion a few days ago to go through the ordeal of engaging a new housemaid. The young woman who had applied for the place was evidently not a native of the United States. In fact, it was apparent that she had been in this country only a little while.

"Can you cook?" asked the woman who expected to be the mistress in case they came to an agreement concerning terms.

"Tis, Oi can that."

"How about washing?"

"Well, ma'am, not sayin' annything ag'in the washin's you may have, Oi'd rather take less and let somebody else do it."

She was a pretty girl, with rather shapely hands, and it was hardly reasonable to blame her for desiring to preserve her beauty if arrangements could be effected that would make such a course possible. So it was decided that she might by accepting a dollar a week less than she would have otherwise received omit the washing.

There was some further questioning, which proceeded satisfactorily to both sides until the girl was asked why she had "left her last place."

"Well, Oi'm that ashamed Oi hardly like to tell you," she said.

This at once aroused suspicion on the other side, and of course negotiations could proceed no further until the matter was thoroughly explained.

"You'd 'a' done it yourself if you'd 'a' been in my place," said the girl.

"That doesn't matter. I must know just what the trouble was, or I cannot engage you."

"Well, if you must know, the missus had a little dog."

"Yes?"

"And Oi had to take it out every day for a walk."

"I should think you would have enjoyed getting out."

"I did. It wasn't that Oi had anything ag'in the dog or the fresh air, but she always made me go out the front door when I took the dog, but when Oi went out by meself or with some of the young men that come after me we had to leave be the back door, and me self raypect wouldn't stand for it."

"Very well, Annie. You may bring your trunk around. We haven't any dog to be mixed."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Arctic Attractions.

"I cannot imagine," said the woman with the short sleeves, "why in the world the Eskimos live in their country after they have learned what it is to be had and seen in civilized places. Just think! They have no theaters, no hotels, no trains, no street cars, no shops, no orchestra, no churches, no clubs, no yachts, no scandals. They positively have nothing that we have."

"Possibly that is the reason they stay where they are," ventured the man with the dinner jacket.

His Admonition.

"My friend," said a literary bohemian to his friend, an artist, "since we are misunderstood by the world, we must form a society for mutual admiration among ourselves. I therefore proclaim the superiority of your art and declare you to be the equal of Michael Angelo. And what do you consider me?"

"Your good taste," said the other.—Bon Vivant.

Accuracy.

"Bicycle policeman of three seconds efficiency appeared against a man he had measured for fast riding.

"How fast was he going?" asked the judge.

"Pretty fast," answered the policeman.

"How fast as a man can run?"

"Tis, your honor, he was going as fast as five men can run."—Green Bag.

Poor Fellow!

"My husband," said Mrs. Gadabout, "is so careless about his clothes. His buttons are forever coming off."

"Perhaps," suggested Mrs. Knox, "maybe unbeknown on very well-to-do first glance."

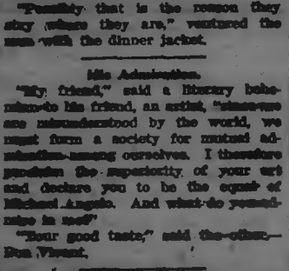
Considered Appearances.



"My dear, if you must scold, do so, but please do not beat the furniture at the same time. The neighbors might form a wrong impression."—Fliegende Blatter.

Indication.

"What makes you so sure that there is no future for the American Indians?"

"The simple fact," answered the western man, "that so many of them have quit smoking the pipe of peace and taken to cigarettes."—Washington Star.

TAKE WARNING.

Now, as to weddings, let me speak.
Avoid the kind described as freak.
When you're in love
You're apt to find the deuce to pay
If married in outlandish way,
As I will prove.

I knew a man named Abner Boone.
This chap got spliced in a balloon,
The reckless lout!
But one result could come, I wis,
Of such an episode as this—
They soon fell out.

Another fond but foolish swain
Got married on a railroad train.
Oh, being rash!
Of course he got it in the neck;
Affairs with him soon went to wreck
And total smash.

Avoid freak weddings when you go
To take a wife. They bring but woe
To sert or prince.
One chap I knew wed in a mine,
And he has ne'er, his friends opine,
Seen daylight since.

A Sporting Question.

"I ain't such a silly ass as you think I am."

"Well, I always thought so."—Tatler.

Veil Comedy.

She was standing by the mirror. He was buried deep in the sporting page.

"George!"

"Well! Well! What is it now?"

"How do you like my new veil?"

"Oh, it is very pretty. Anything else?"

"But how do you know it is pretty? Men don't know anything about veils."

"You are very polite toward our sex. I would have you understand that I have a taste for veils."

"You have a taste for veils?"

"Yes, I have tasted a dozen veils—that is—er—I mean I have—no, yes, I—what in thunderation do I mean? I"—

"Stop! Not another falsehood, George Brown! You have been kissing some girl through her veil. You know the taste of veils, eh? You deceiver. I"—

Little Bobby on Bees.

"The bee is a queer sort of an insect, that gives people a few points that they don't appreciate. The queen bee bosses the hive, just like ma bosses our house. The drone bee is like pa. He don't care much about work. There are other kinds of bees, including political bees, quilting bees and husking bees. But the best bees of all are the kissing bees. There is a kissing bee in our parlor every Sunday night, and I get a nickel not to tell about it. When it comes to a choice of bees give me a kissing bee every time." — Chicago News.

Making It Easier For Him.

"After I have worried all winter over the money I was trying so hard to save," he said, "I find that you have spent it all for your new hat."

"Yes," replied his sweet young wife. "I want to relieve you of as many of your worries as possible."—Judge.

His Cute Scheme.

"Of course," said Newlywed, "when ever my wife worries herself it worries me."

"My wife never worries now," said Elders.

"You're lucky."

"No, merely foxy. I just let her see that when she worried herself it didn't worry me at all, and so she stopped it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

He Knew.

"It takes a sixty horsepower engine to run that new auto of Bingley's."

"Don't you believe it."

"Why not?"

"I saw two horses drawing it home the other day after his engine gave out."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Modern Romeo.

"Pshaw," exclaimed May Pechis, "I wonder what makes these gloves of mine so tight!"

"Ah," sighed the lovelorn youth, "I, too, would be intoxicated were I a glove upon that hand!"—Philadelphia Press.

Opician's Joke.

"You were very kind to give that poor man a new glass eye for his old one," commented the customer.

"Not at all," laughed the optician. "'An eye for an eye' is my motto."—Chicago News.

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

A GENIAL DESPOT.

Bonaparte Smiles and Smiles, but Has His Own Way.

Charles J. Bonaparte, the attorney general of the United States, can be the suavest man in all creation. He smiles so sweetly while he talks that people have gone away quite pacified and never realised till after it was all over that he had calmly gone ahead and done precisely what he proposed to do.

To return to that smile. It is so like the poor. No one ever saw Bonaparte who could think of much else. True, the first thing one sees on meeting him is the bullet round head—the Napoleon head—with its bold forehead, just bald enough to make it yet bolder.

Then one notes the nose, a dominating nose, the full eyes between heavy eyebrows, the short, thick mustache. Then the smile. It starts with the eyes, droops to one corner of the mouth, slips over to the other, then becomes audible in a queer kind of chuckle in the throat, which shakes an increasingly prominent double chin.

The upper chin is very timid and retiring, but there's a dimple in it which works in wonderfully with that smile. But don't flatter yourself and pat yourself on the back and think the attorney general is dead easy. That smile is only a cloak to cover up—you will never know what it covers up till you come away and discover where you are.

He will cut your throat with a feather while he chuckles and smiles. If you are not satisfied with being thus graciously beheaded and answer back, you'll find an adept at sarcasm and irony using a penknife.

If you still rebel, the next you know a backwoodsman will be at you with a brute of an ax. But he will be smiling and chuckling through it all.—World Today.

Where They Eat Muskrats.

One dealer on Dock street sells about 5,000 muskrats a week. These are purchased principally by negroes, who are very fond of the dish, though it is whispered that in season at some of the restaurants muskrat after masquerades as rabbit. It is somewhat similar to the latter in taste, but sweeter, and those who have eaten it pronounce it all right. For this market the rats come already skinned and, when possible, frozen. They are found everywhere in the vicinity of Philadelphia, but a chief source of supply is Salem, N. J., where the catching of them is something of an industry. Whenever they are found they are frozen and kept until the supply on hand is sufficient for a shipment and then dispatched to this city. They are eaten in many small places by people who catch them, but are not sold at retail except in the larger cities.—Philadelphia Record.

"Oh, Jack!" she gasped; and had there been another woman in the room that woman would have known that Millicent loved him with the love that comes once only. But men are not very acute in such matters; they either read wrong or not at all.

"It is all a mistake," she said breathlessly, looking from one to the other.

"A most awkward mistake," suggested Meredith, with a cruel smile that made her wince.

"Mr. Oscard must have mistaken me altogether," the girl went on, volubly addressing herself to Meredith; she wanted nothing from Oscard. "I may have been silly, perhaps, or merely ignorant and blind. How was I to know that he meant what he said?"

"Besides, he has no business to come here bringing false accusations against me. He has no right—it is cruel and ungentlemanly. He cannot prove anything; he cannot say that I ever distinctly gave him to understand—er—anything—that I ever promised to be engaged or anything like that."

She turned upon Oscard, whose demeanor was stolid, almost dense. He looked very large and somewhat difficult to move.

"He has not attempted to do so yet," suggested Jack suavely, looking at his friend.

"I do not see that it is quite a question of proofs," said Oscard quietly in a voice that did not sound like his at all. "We are not in a court of justice, where ladies like to settle these questions now. If we were I could challenge you to produce my letters. There is no doubt of my meaning in them."

"There are also my poor contributions to your collection," chimed in Jack Meredith. "A comparison must have been interesting to you, by the same mail presumably, under the same postmark."

"I made no comparison," the girl cried defiantly; "there was no question of comparison."

She said it shamelessly, and it hurt Meredith more than it hurt Guy Oscard, for whom the sting was intended.

"Comparison or no comparison," said Jack Meredith quickly, with the keenness of a good fencer who has been touched, "there can be no doubt of the fact that you were engaged to us both at the same time. You told us both to go out and make a fortune wherewith to buy your affections. One can only presume that the highest bidder—the owner of the largest fortune—was to be the happy man. Unfortunately, we became partners, and—such was the power of your fascination—we made the fortune, but we share and share alike in that. We are equal, so far as the price is concerned. The situation is interesting and rather amusing. It is your turn to move. We await your further instructions in considerable suspense."

She stared at him with bloodless lips. She did not seem to understand what he was saying. At last she spoke, ignoring Guy Oscard's presence altogether.

"Considering that we are to be married tomorrow, I do not think that you should speak to me like that," she said, with a strange, concentrated eagerness.

"Pardon me, we are not going to be married tomorrow."

Her brilliant teeth closed on her lower lip with a snap, and she stood looking at him, breathing so hard that the sound was almost a sob.

"What do you mean?" she whispered hoarsely.

"In the unfortunate circumstances in which you are placed," he explained, "it seems to me that the least one can do is to offer every assistance in one's power. Please consider me hors de concours. In a word—I scratch."

She grasped like a swimmer swimming for life. She was fighting for that which some deem dearer than life—namely, her love. For it is not only the good women who love, though these understand it best and see further into it.

"Then you can never have cared for me!" she cried. "All that you have told me"—and her eyes flashed triumphantly across Oscard—"all that you have promised and vowed was utterly false if you turn against me at the first word of a man who was carried away by his own vanity into thinking things that he had no business to think."

If Guy Oscard was no great adept at wordy warfare, he was at all events strong in his reception of punishment. He stood upright and quiescent, betraying by neither sign nor movement that her words could hurt him.

"I beg to suggest again," said Jack composedly, "that Oscard has not yet brought any accusations against you. You have brought them all yourself."

"You are both cruel and cowardly," she exclaimed, suddenly descending to vituperation. "Two to one. Two men—gentlemen—against one defenseless girl. Of course I am not able to argue with you. Of course you can get the best of me. It is so easy to be sarcastic."

"I do not imagine," retorted Jack, "that anything that we can say or do will have much permanent power of hurting you. For the last two years you have been engaged in an—intrigue such as a thin skinned or sensitive person would hardly of her own free will undertake. You may be able to explain it to yourself—no doubt you can—but to our more limited comprehension it must remain inexplicable. We can only judge from appearances."

"And, of course, appearances go against me. They always do against a woman," she cried rather brokenly.

"You would have been wise to have taken that peculiarity into consideration sooner," replied Jack Meredith coldly. "I admit that I am puzzled. I cannot quite get at your motive. Presumably it is one of those sweet feminine inconsistencies which are so charming in books."

There was a little pause. Jack Meredith waited politely to hear if she had anything further to say. His clean cut face was quite pallid. The suppressed anger in his eyes was perhaps more difficult to meet than open fury. The man who never forgets himself before a woman is likely to be an absolute master of women.

"I think," he added, "that there is nothing more to be said."

There was a dread silence. Millicent Chyne glanced toward Guy Oscard. He could have saved her yet by a simple lie. Had he been an impossibly magnanimous man, such as one meets in books only, he could have explained that the mistake was all his, that she was quite right, that his own vanity had blinded him into a great and unwarranted presumption. But, unfortunately, he was only a human being, a man who was ready to give as full a measure as he exacted. The unfortunate mistake to which he clung was that the same sense of justice, the same code of honor, must serve for men and women alike. So Millicent Chyne looked in vain for that indulgence which is so inconsistently offered to women, merely because they are women, the indulgence which is sometimes given and sometimes withheld, according to the softness of the masculine heart and the beauty of the supplant feminine form. Guy Oscard was quite sure of his own impressions. This girl had allowed him to begin loving her, had encouraged him to go on, had led him to believe that his love was returned. And in his simple ignorance of the world he did not see why these matters should be locked up in his own breast from a mistaken sense of chivalry to be accorded where no chivalry was due.

"No," he answered. "There is nothing more to be said."

Without looking toward her, Jack Meredith made a few steps toward the door—quietly, self composedly, with that perfect savoir faire of the social expert that made him different from other men. Millicent Chyne felt a sudden plebeian desire to scream. It was all so heartlessly well bred. He turned on his heel with a little half cynical bow.

"I leave my name with you," he said.

Shadow Etiquette.

"I saluted the Kaffir chief respectfully and hearty," said the sailor. "Can you imagine my surprise when he give me a kick?

"'Get off my shadder.'

"I was standing, by orders, on his shadder, the shadder of his stomach. I skipped from there to the face. He groaned. When I got on to sunlit ground again he says to me:

"'Didn't you never have no twigein' up? Look at you now, lengthenin' out your shadow longer'n mine. Cheek comears you, or I'll warm your face with this here club.'"

Much Law, Poor Case.

Among lawyers there is a saying that in the trial of a case an attorney if light on facts must be heavy on law. The other day an attorney was preparing to leave his office in one of the big office buildings to go to the courthouse to try a case. From the shelves of his library he had taken many large law books containing decisions and opinions of higher courts. At intervals a boy went in and out of the door, and each time he bore in his arms a stack of the books, which he carried to an express wagon that stood in the street below. The attorney was to use the books in the courtroom. Another lawyer, who is of southern birth and who always addresses his friends with some army title, watched the boy as he went in and out carrying the law books. Then he dug his hands deep into his trousers pockets and said to the lawyer:

"Well, Ah'll swoah, trunnel, you must have no case at all."—Kansas City Times.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Handy Little Conveniences That Oil the Domestic Machinery.

One of the greatest conveniences of the kitchen sink is a piece of pumice stone. It may be bought wherever painters' supplies are sold or usually in a drug store, a large piece costing only a few cents. Get the irregular rough stone, not the polished down toil variety.

Every cooking utensil may be cleaned with it, and its irregular form makes it reach the most inaccessible corners of every dish. In using it you will find that it soon shapes itself, if it is not already quite satisfactory, as the rubbing works it off to fit wherever it is most needed. It does not work as well when new because of its irregular surface, but this soon disappears. Kettles which have been burned black, as they will be sometimes, are restored by pumice stone to their pristine smoothness and polish. No chain dishcloth ever can approach it, and one who tries it will never be without it again. A piece lasts a long time.

When a kettle threatens to boil over grease the rim lightly all around with a bit of butter. The contents will touch this danger line, but will not pass it. Stewpans in which vegetables are boiling may be treated in the same way.

To clean dainty table covers or silk rub magnesia on the soiled spots and put away for a few days. Put plenty on both sides. When wanted for use again brush well, and the spots will be gone.

To wash woolen blankets dissolve soap enough to make a good suds in boiling water and add a tablespoonful of aqua ammonia. When scalding hot turn over your blankets. If convenient use a pounder or any way to work thoroughly through the suds without rubbing on a board. Rinse well in hot water. There is usually soap enough from the first suds to make the second soft. If not add a little soap and ammonia and after being put through a wringer let two persons, standing opposite, pull them into shape. Dry in the sun. White flannels may be washed in the same way without shrinking.

A NEW WALL PAPER.

Effective Stripes Headed by a Framed Medallion.

The Georgian paper illustrated is quite a new departure in wall papers, although the style is an excellent sample of the period it represents. The great feature is that the design is entirely outline; there is no "mass" or space of color or tone. Some of the outline is in burnt sienna and some in a rather dark blue arranged so as to form interesting stripes, headed by a framed medallion, and herein is to be found one of the special features of the wall covering, for it is possible to introduce in these oval spaces various hand colored views or anything else suitable which the individual taste of the owner suggests, or the medallions can be left, as there is already a design printed on them. The paper itself is an ivory colored silk fiber and forms an excellent background to the mahogany furniture so much in vogue during the reigns of the Georges.

A Woman's Smile.

It is just as easy to face the world and its people with a smile as with a frown. The cheery woman finds that she can be a comfort to others and do good service in various helpful ways, social, personal and charitable. Mothers soon learn that she is one of their faithful aids. The little children love her, as she enters into their amusements and sympathizes with their small griefs. Young men and maidens confide their petty secrets to her discretion, and older people enjoy the delicate attentions she delights to bestow.

Sleep While You Can.

Some have the gift of sleep, and others haven't.

The secret of more than one notable instance of beautiful mothers and grandmothers is acknowledged to be due directly to the power of sleep, to take a quiet little nap at any time of the day when a busy afternoon or long evening is before them.

It really seems, then, one of the cleverest attainments open to the eternal feminine, this capacity of capturing forty winks whenever she pleases.

Champagne.

The loss of champagne by bursting bottles sometimes amounts to as much as 25 per cent.

Parisian Pets.

Parisians are intensely fond of canaries and other pet birds. It is estimated, figuring on the amount spent for bird food at the regular stores, that there are fully 100,000 pet birds in the city, or one to every twentieth individual, including babies.

Vatican Library.

The library of the Vatican is the successor of the Roman Imperial library, founded by Augustus, and contains manuscripts that were written during the later empire.

A Pretty Fancy.

The Lithuanian mythology says of life and death: "When a child is born the 'verpeja' spins a thread and hangs a star at its end. On the approach of death this thread of destiny breaks and the star falls headlong to the earth and is extinguished."

Dominos.

Two persons playing dominos ten hours a day and making four moves each minute could continue playing 118,000 years without exhausting all the combinations of the game.

Curiosity.

Curiosity is a thing that makes us look over other people's affairs and overlook our own. Xenocrates, reprehending curiosity, said, "It is as rude to intrude into another man's house with your eyes as with your feet."

Whalebone.

The whalebone of commerce is simply the baleen plates which take the place of teeth in certain species of whales.

Cotton.

Cotton has been cultivated since time out of memory. One of the presents received by Jacob, Joseph's father, from the royal hand of Pharaoh was a cotton rope.

Grass Nesters.

Among the large variety of birds which are to be found on the islands to the south of New Zealand is a species of paroquet, which is very plentiful. These islands do not contain a single stick of bush of any description, and the birds build their nests in the grass. They are not to be found in any other part of the world.

Ringing in the Ears.

It is said that those who eat too much meat are apt to have ringing in the ears.

Greek Colonies.

In most cases the political institutions of the Greek colonies resembled those of the Greek states, but in some cases the improvement over home usage was very marked.

Spartan Women.

Borax Curd Soap.

Borax curd soap is very convenient in the household. It is made as follows: Dissolve three ounces of borax in two quarts of warm water; add to this two pounds of best yellow soap sliced fine; stir altogether in a warm place until all is melted, stirring occasionally. When it is cool it will form a jelly. One tablespoonful will make a strong lather in a gallon of water.

English People's Hair.

Amiable Bellini.

Bellini's devotion to his piano was such that by his incessant practice he brought on the ailment which caused his death. He was singularly amiable and never was known to engage in a quarrel with any one about anything.

Ancient Records.

Many ancient records have been preserved on bricks, tiles, tablets of various substances and on oyster and other shells.

Pumping Hot Water.

Water at high temperature cannot be raised any considerable distances by suction, as the vapor discharged from the water so heated follows the receding pistons of the pump and resists the entrance of the water. Consequently to pump hot water always place the supply above the pump so that it will be supplied from a head.

Vinegar Workers.

Men who work for many years in vinegar factories experience dull pains in the joints, caused by the fumes of the acid softening the lime in the bones.

Climbing Plants.

If a prop or support of any kind be placed within six inches of a climbing plant the tendrils of the plant will surely find it, even though its position be shifted every day.

To Make Camphorated Oil.

Get the common cottonseed table oil, which is sold for sweet oil. Small bottles at retail stores usually cost 10 cents. Half fill a six ounce bottle with gum camphor, then fill with oil and let it stand in a very warm place over night. The oil will take up only just so much of camphor, and when it is used off fill with oil again, repeating the process until the camphor is dissolved. This is cheap and clean and will not soil clothing.

Lax-ets 5 Cents Sweet to Eat A Candy Bowel Laxative.

A HINT WORTH TAKING.

You can put a skirt braid on in fifteen minutes by this plan. Mark the line where your skirt is to be turned either by basting thread or use the line of chalk already marked if you have measured it by a skirt gauge. Put the bottom of your skirt into the machine, right side of goods up, before crossing the hem.

Lay the braid along on the part that is to be turned under, letting one edge always touch the marked line. Stitch it on the other edge, which you can do simply by holding it as you sew and without basting or pinning. When the hem is turned up the braid is in place and stitched at the top edge.

If liked better to be fastened at both edges stitch twice, once near the marked line.

A little more intricate is sewing braid on in a roll. Get a bit of goods and braid and mark the turning line with a pencil for a sample, as it will save the time needed to work it out later on to have both the sample and directions pinned to a blank page in your sewing book. Lay the braid along the marked line just opposite from the way you did before. It will lie up on the skirt this time instead of down. Stitch it along the marked line, slipping it down just a hairbreadth, so that your stitching will come just below the basting thread. When stitched turn the braid down, but not the cloth. You will have to baste it this time, as pressing it over would make it flat instead of in a "roll." Stitch it again at the bottom edge, and when the hem of the dress is turned up it leaves the roll at the bottom.

Corn Mills.

Corn mills are often mentioned in the Bible. The original corn mill much resembled the modern druggist's pestle. Moses forbade corn mills to be taken in pawn, for that, he thought, was like taking a man's life in pledge.

The Hannibal of Bohemia.

One of the greatest generals of the middle ages was John Ziska, the Hannibal of Bohemia, yet during the three years of his greatest successes he was stone blind.

Curfew.

Curfew comes from French "couvre le feu" or "couvre feu," meaning "cover the fire."

A DEEP MYSTERY SOLVED.

Women Blinded by Science.

The Doctor writes his prescription in Latin and the patient shuts her eyes to what she is swallowing. She takes that much on faith. If it should cure her she doesn't know what cured her. If the prescription injures her she doesn't know what did the injury. The physician is experimenting with different prescriptions all the time. Sometimes his medicine is successful in the case but often not. This mystery of a concealed prescription is intended to mystify and to blind the patient. One physician of wide experience and national reputation does not believe in mystifying the public, nor does he grasp at the stars, but believes that Nature provides that which is necessary for our health and happiness.

When the womanly system is deranged beyond the stage where it will respond to sunshine, good air, cheerfulness and proper rest; when the balance of health is seriously disturbed this doctor believes that Nature has placed at your hand the balance of power for good. Hidden in our American forests are many plants which correct and cure those distressing ailments which cause women to suffer with backache, bearing-down pains, pain in the back or front of the head, nervousness and lassitude. Most all women who love Nature, who like to wander through the woods, have at one time or another picked the beautiful blossom of the Lady's Slipper (Cypripedium). This is not only a beautiful but a very useful plant. The root of this plant when treated properly with glycerine to extract its medicinal virtues is "valuable in all cases of nervous excitability or irritability," says Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D. Another authority, Prof. F. Ellingwood, M. D., says of this plant: "Exercises special influence upon nervous conditions depending upon disorders of the female organs." Another plant which is frequently found in our American forests is Helonias, or Unicorn root. The AMERICAN DISPENSATORY says of this plant, that it "possesses a decidedly beneficial influence in an enfeebled condition of the general system, with weakness or dull pain in the renal, or lumbo-sacral (small of the back) region. In diseases of the womanly organs, it is one of our most valuable agents, acting as a uterine tonic, and gradually removing abnormal conditions, while at the same time it imparts tone and vigor to the organs." Hence, it is much used in catarrhal, pelvic drains, irregularities and painful periods. Prof. King further says, of Unicorn root: "A particular phase removed by it is the irritability and despondency that often attends these troubles (referring to the ailments just mentioned). It has been found especially adapted to those cases in which pelvic fullness, and the aching, bearing-down organs feel as if they would fall out of the body."

Dr. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., says that a combination of the active principles of these two native plants together with Golden Seal root, Black Cohosh and Blue Cohosh roots when extracted by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine of proper strength (which is used instead of alcohol), will almost invariably cure those peculiar weaknesses and maladies incident to women. That is why Dr. Pierce, nearly forty years ago, decided to put up in a ready-to-use form, a "Prescription" which he had found so useful in his large practice.

Dr. Pierce is frank and open about his ready-prepared medicine, called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—he tells just what is contained in it—he says it is not a cure-all, as it serves only a singleness of purpose, being for women's peculiar weaknesses and maladies, the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for the cure of such maladies, all the ingredients of which have the endorsement of leading medical practitioners and writers, as being the very best known remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is advised. All this will be learned to the reader's full satisfaction by perusing a booklet of extracts compiled by Dr. Pierce from standard authorities of the several schools of practice, and which will be sent free to any address on request for same, mailed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

It stands alone. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine for woman's peculiar weakness and affections, all the ingredients of which are printed upon the bottle-wrapper in plain English, so that all who take it may know exactly what they are using.

A further reason for the unprecedented popularity of the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce for the special use of women is to be found in the fact that it contains not a drop of alcohol. He does not believe that an alcoholic compound is beneficial for those affections peculiar to women because the after-effect of spirituous wines or alcoholic medicines is harmful for weak, invalid, nervous women.

What "Favorite Prescription" has done for others it will no doubt do for you, if you give it a fair trial. Accept no substitute.

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

WHAT ARE THEY WORTH?

Try and Answer This Yourself.

So dollars and cents what is the worth, of the brawn of your arm; what is the value of the staying power that permits continuous labor — what are they worth to you?

Suppose you did something so foolish as to reduce your strength, vitality or judgment one half, and it were impossible to get them back, — how much would you pay to regain the lost portion?

When you let yourself run down, you reduce your chances for success in life—if sleeplessness comes you score lower still—should appetite or digestion fail, you are scared in the face by physical bankruptcy.

Don't let it go so far, take Ferrozone, it has cured thousands and it will cure you; it builds up bodily strength, makes muscles like steel, replaces aching tiredness by energy and new life. Ferrozone rebuilds sick folks because it contains the strengthening elements that every run-down system requires.

Especially before the hot weather comes, everyone needs a purifying tonic—Ferrozone fills the bill exactly—nothing known that invigorates and uplifts so fast.

At once the appetite improves. You rest, wake and arise next morning feeling fit and fine.

Headaches disappear, weakness give way to the vigor that only Ferrozone can supply. Try it, results are guaranteed, 50c. per box or six for $2.50 at all dealers.

Pointer for Fishery Inspectors

Local men who have taken an early spring trip down the river, report having seen gill nets in the creek at Hyle's bridge. The nets could be plainly seen and there were fish in one of them. This is a pointer for the fish inspector.

Local Assessors on the Warpath

Assessors T. B. McGrath and Thos. McKee have started on their rounds. The former will assess all property in wards 3, 4, and 5, while the latter will look after the valuations in wards 1 and 2. The assessors expect to complete their work by October 1st.

Immigrants Pouring In

An immigrant train of five coaches passed through the city yesterday morning. It carried about 300 new arrivals from the Old Country. Four or five got off here, but the great majority were bound for Toronto and Western Ontario. An immigrant train has passed through the city nearly every day during the past week.

Free Samples of "Preventics" and a booklet on Colds will be gladly mailed you, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., simply to prove merit. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cure tablets. No Quinine, No Laxative, nothing harmful whatever. Preventics prevent colds—as the name implies—when taken early, or at the "Sneeze Stage." For a severe cold of LaGrippe, break it up safely and quickly with Preventics. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Sovereign Bank May Open Here

It is rumored that the Sovereign Bank, in which many local people hold stock, will open a branch in Peterborough in the near future. The city now has seven branches of strong chartered Canadian banks, but outsiders consider there is room for another institution. The Sovereign Bank has made great progress in Canada and only this week several important changes were made, as reported in a former issue of The Times.

Bricks Replaced in Short Order

A Water street resident yesterday noticed that a double brick wall at the rear of his property looked somewhat as though a gargantuan rat had nibbled it. On investigation he found that children from a nearby George street residence had climbed on sheds adjoining and deliberately knocked out the top layer or so of bricks and taken them away to make "play house." As the owner of the wall did not want the rest of the wall destroyed by entry of rain, when the top course was removed, thus allowing water to pour between the two parallel courses of brick in the wall beneath, he called on the children's parents and threatened to get out a warrant. Within fifteen minutes a search of unmerciful crude job of bricklaying was accomplished by the mischievous children.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Yesterday was Arbor Day in the rural schools of Ontario.

—The Board of Works met last night to lay out plans for this season's work.

—The boiler of the steamer Water Lily is being enlarged and other improvements made for the season.

—Street Commissioner Harry Evans, has a gang at work on the cement approach to the new fire hall.

—Just about now the ice dealers having had their carts and outfit put into shape are looking eagerly for orders.

—The Court of Revision met in the city council chamber last night to take up the special assessment on the sewers.

—The Little Lake Cemetery Company will likely call a meeting of the directors on the grounds on Tuesday afternoon next.

—For bargains in books suitable for Sunday reading see north window display in Times Bookstore. On sale today at only ten cents.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association will be held on Monday morning at ten o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. hall.

—Novels by the very latest and best authors on bargain today and all next week for only ten cents each. Hundreds to select from, Times Bookstore.

—An Ogdensburg, N.Y. man lowered an arc light to start a fire in his cigar. This was a case of justifiable homicide or guarding out a farm deal.

—Today we place on sale 700 colored stamped leather cards which will be sold while they last at five cents each. See south window display in Times Bookstore.

—Over 4000 muskrat skins were brought into Lindsay, and sold this season. The furs were in good condition and prices were from 30 to 37 cents per pelt.

—Two companies from the 57th Regiment will go into camp at Kingston, June 11th, and will form part of the composite regiment that will train there for four days.

—The annual meeting of the Park street baptist church will be held on Monday evening next, when reports for the past year will be presented and officers elected.

—It now looks as though the town of Midland, will not remain "on the water wagon." Local option was passed there by 477 to 234, but by a legal technicality the law has been quashed.

—It is announced that Mr. A. McCutcheon, of Bobcaygeon, has been appointed judge of the fifth division court, and Mr. O. R. Jones, of Marmora, local of the fourth division court, county of Hastings.

—City Engineer T. A. S. Hay has begun laying out the walks in the east ward, which are to be paved with granolithic walks this year. The street commissioner expects to start laying the walks the first of the week.

—Milk may be a mild and so Mr. Toper, insipid beverage, but its shortage is causing considerable trouble in Toronto. The local magnates in this line of business have decided to continue soaking the people six cents per quart.

—Mr. Joe Brown claims the honor of having been the first to reach Sturgeon Point with a yacht. A party went down on Sunday last and found the "Restless" Members of the party brought back huge bunches of May flowers.—Lindsay Post.

—This is the time of year when the "tired" head of the family, who has been importuned by his wife to clean up the yard, wonders whether to get busy or spring that ever worked gag of their being "frost in the ground so I can't fix that yard yet."

Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Please note it is made alone for Piles, and its action is positive and certain. Itching, painful, protruding or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Large nickel-capped glass jars 50 cents. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Astronomical Lecture by Prof. Chant

Prof. Chant, of Toronto University, arrived in the city at noon yesterday, and was met at the C.P.R. station by several officers of local Astronomical Society. During the afternoon he was given a drive around the city, in company with Rev. Dr. Morris, Dr. Neal and Mr. D. Walker. Prof. Chant lectured last night at the Y.M.C.A. hall before a large attendance.

C.G.E. Club is Kept Busy

The C.G.E. Angling Club is seriously considering the location and erection of a club house, at a convenient spot down the river. The club will hold a meeting at St. Peter's T.A.S. rooms on Monday night when a new secretary for the club will be elected, as Mr. R. H. Shepherd, the present holder of the office, is leaving the city. The club expects to have an outing down the river on May 24th.

Live Rats Shown on George Street

Yesterday some excitement was caused, when, a few minutes before noon, a new fashioned wire rat trap was suspended in Messrs. Kingan & Company's southern display window on George street. The trap contained eight rats, all alive, evidently the father, mother and four of a progeny, or so a spectator present, who had seen a picture learnedly displayed in a Peterborough window remarked, "The whole Dam family."

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists or like purposes that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

Rare Find of Indian Relics

The little village of Warsaw, is much excited by the discovery made by two young men of that place, in a cave near Quarry Lake, of genuine specimens of Indian handicraft of a long bygone age.

The cave where these adventurous youths found these historic relics was discovered some years ago but no close examination of the cave was then made, however on Friday last, they fastened a long rope to the cave's entrance and penetrated the cave to a distance of one 500 feet, taking a lantern with them. The walls of the cave in places had been hewn out to form shelves and it was upon these that the crude tools and weapons were found. On the floor were the charred remains of burnt wood.

The explorers after spending more than three hours underground brought with them several souvenirs of their exploit. Among them was a stone hatchet, smoothly carved; a stone wedge with chips broken off; some pieces of pottery; a brooch, which presumably had been carved from the tusk of a bear, and a number of stone articles, which from lack of facts, are undefinable. A small wooden pipe with an Indian's face carved on its bowl was also among the unique discoveries.

MINES AND QUICK FORTUNES

There are three classes of mining investment—the prospect, the partly developed property and the fully developed mine.

Owing to the small price at which the prospect stocks are sold this class of investment appeals strongly on account of the possibilities of large profits. But this is speculation.

On the contrary the fully developed property has few opportunities for immense profits, its stock is valued on a basis of dividends and is liable to fluctuations.

The Silver Queen Mine is in the middle class, has proved the body of ore, and in sufficient quantities to warrant a mill on the ground. The price of the stock is 25 cents per share (par value $1) and being situated near Wonder the largest and most phenomenal of all the new camps in Nevada, insures a large and rapid increase in the value of its shares.

Quaker Oats Co. Will Run Full Time

It will be pleasing intelligence not only to employes of the Quaker Oats Company, but to the community at large, to hear that this large concern will soon run the mills, full time, night and day. This encouraging news was given out Saturday morning by Mr. Denham, superintendent of the works, that the company has had considerable grain stored in the West, but the handicaps under which the railways have been working has made it impossible to get shipped. With the opening of navigation, however, the cuts, which have been in the Western elevators will relieve the situation.

When the grain comes, the roller oat mill will be run 24 hours a day. This will mean an increase in the staff of about 30 men and possibly 50 girls.

TO BRIDGE THE STRAITS

Charlottetown, P. E. I., May 4.—The announcement from Ottawa that Mr. M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways, had prepared an exhaustive report of a bridge or causeway across the Straits of Northumberland between Prince Edward Island and the Mainland, naturally excited a great deal of interest here. From authoritative sources, however, it is learned that he has not prepared such a report, but expects to do so during the coming summer.

Mr. Butler is well satisfied with the feasibility of the bridge scheme, and states that he will have no difficulty in providing for all possible lateral pressure that may be exerted by wind and ice. Tunnel advocates in this province, however, are not so sanguine as to the success of the bridge scheme.

MARTIAL LAW'S MANY VICTIMS

Numerous Executions and Few Acquittals.

MANY SENT TO SIBERIA

Bill for Abolition of Drumhead Trials to be Discussed.

St. Petersburg, May 5.—Newspaper statistics published yesterday gives the number of sentences imposed under the drumhead courts-martial law, which expires today. From these figures it appears that 1,144 persons were executed, 79 were sent to the mines for life, 710 were condemned to minor terms of imprisonment and 71 were acquitted.

In spite of Premier Stolypin's order suspending the activity of the law after the convocation of Parliament, except in the gravest cases, 29 persons have been executed since March 5.

The highest monthly number of sentences was 261, in November last. A total of 324 persons were executed in the Baltic provinces, 212 in Poland, 195 in the Caucasus and 108 in Yekaterinoslav province.

These statistics, however, are incomplete, as the sentences were subject to confirmation of the Governors-general only, who do not make any returns from St. Petersburg.

The bill introduced in the lower house on Thursday, providing for the abolition of drumhead courts-martial will be discussed in the upper house May 15.

Great Profits Made in Portland Cement

Rare Opportunity for a Safe and Lucrative Investment

Possibly no one staple commodity now produced has the annual demand increased so rapidly from year to year as has Portland cement. In the year 1900 the consumption of this cement in the United States amounted to 229,000 barrels, whilst in 1906 it took 10,682,321 to meet current demands. From States to the west of the Mississippi river nearly the whole amount required is at present thought to be imported from the eastern States and thus pay the heavy freight rates. Eastern cement costs 90 cents to produce and sells at from $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel, west of the Mississippi.

The Lehigh Portland Cement Company, which owns 20 acres of virgin natural cement property in Kansas, is now going to erect a huge cement manufacturing plant within a few miles of Kansas city, to supply the western demand for this product. The company's land is composed of limestone and shale, and is at the intersection of two competing railroads. This assures a first-class Portland cement, grade cheaply, with the inestimable benefit of cheap freight, right adjacent to a territory consuming enormous amounts of the output.

A great campaign possessed by the Victory of the Lehigh Company, as that they own their own natural gas plant, which will not only supply the Portland cement factory, with a present capacity of 800 barrels a day, but have gas to sell, and are selling it to private houses, churches, factories, etc. It is the intention of the company to erect another factory of the same capacity as the present one, so that their output in the near future will be 1600 barrels daily.

The company is capitalized with $1,200,000 of common, seven per cent. cumulative stock and $800,000 preferred stock. The shares are $100 each fully paid and non-assessable.

Each purchaser of preferred stock receives one share of the common stock for each share of the preferred. It is confidently anticipated that the stock will in the near future pay 100 per cent. annual dividends. A glance at the large adv. in this issue will at once demonstrate the high standing of the board of directors.

Brakeman After P.C. Newhall's Scalp

Aftermath of Charge Against C.P.R. for Blocking George Street.

It now seems that the case recently tried before his honor Judge Weller, when an appeal was tried from Police Magistrate Dumble's judgment, in the C.P.R. brakeman's alleged blocking George street, does not end there. Brakeman J. H. Davidson, of Toronto Junction, claims that after the hearing of the case, whilst coming down the court house steps, he was called a "liar" by P.C. Newhall.

As a result the brakeman has sent the following letter to Judge Weller, chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners, and it will likely be dealt with at the next meeting of the Board; The letter is as follows;

Toronto Jct., April 29, 1907.

His Honor Judge Weller,
Chairman Board of Police Com.
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—When coming down the stairway of the court house building, in your city, on the evening of April 20th, 1907, after giving evidence in Division Court in the appeal case of Rozzel vs. Barnes, re the blocking of George Street crossing on March 21st, 1907, I was passed by Police Officer Newhall, chief witness for the prosecution, who said to me "You are a nice pack of liars." I was astonished at hearing such a remark from the mouth of a man clad in an officer's uniform, and said "What!" He then repeated the observation, and I said "You are a nice officer to make such a statement." He then turned on me in a threatening manner, and said, "Be careful what you are saying." I replied that I did not propose to be called a liar. He said, "You are a pack of liars, and you are a liar." I replied I would go back to the court room and have him prove his remarks, adding by a complaint against him. He said I could go where I liked with my company. I met Chief of Police Russel, who is a gentleman, and reported the affair to him. He said he thought it was a very improper remark for a police officer to make, and sir, I think you will agree with me when I endorse the chief's statement. I claim I was grossly insulted by this officer when I was called a "liar" after having given my sworn testimony, which was corroborated by five other reputable witnesses. I feel that an apology is due me from this man, and I will look to the board to obtain it for me. If you desire it I can furnish sworn affidavits, besides my own, to substantiate what I have stated in this letter.

Trusting to hear from your honorable body at an early date, I am,

Yours truly,
J. H. DAVIDSON,
159 Vaus street,
Toronto Jct.

Roller Hookey Meeting

A meeting of roller hookey enthusiasts will be held in the Centre street roller rink tonight after the evening session of skating, to discuss the advisability of forming a club to enter the newly organized league. Other matters of interest will also be brought before the meeting.

All interested in this new and novel sport are given a cordial invitation to be present at the said meeting.

Horses Brought Good Prices Saturday

On Saturday afternoon Mr. J. H. Gardiner, the local auctioneer, held an important horse sale under instructions of the Peterborough Horse Exchange at their barns to the rear of the Snowden House. Notwithstanding the heavy snowstorm of Friday night, and consequent absence of farmers in the city, there was a large attendance. Quite a number of horses were sold, as well as several sets of harness. The horses, which were mostly of high grade brought good prices. The Exchange will conduct a similar sale next Saturday afternoon, when some valuable horses will be disposed of, as well as milch cows.

New Bar at Snowden House Open Today

This morning Mine Host W. Snowden will open his new, and magnificently furnished bar room for the first time for business. This recent addition to the Snowden is entered from Charlotte street, by a recently constructed stairway from the pavement, it being in the basement, as is common now in the large American cities. Access may be had by way of the hotel proper, by the broad stairway leading to the lavatories.

The new bar which is some 30 feet long is magnificently fitted through with natural quarter cut polished oak, the back of the bar throughout its length, having bevelled plate French mirrors.

Every feature of the new fixtures of most modern type, adapted to rapid and convenient handling of goods for the customers.

Throughout the whole length of the back bound below the mirrors are cupboards, neatly made of oak and plate glass for cigars, bottles etc. The bar is lighted by handsome opaque glass electroliers of the latest design. Mr. Ed. Wand who inserted the fixtures has completed a first-class job, the electric wiring being inserted by Messrs. McGregor & Reid, in their proverbial workmanlike way.

Messrs. Oscar Hallam and Ernest Reaston will be in charge of the bar to attend to customers wants. Mr. Snowden will probably use the large room formerly occupied by the bar for sample rooms.

The Ottawa Union Station

Ottawa, May 4.—Mr. William Wainwright, comptroller of the Grand Trunk, who was in Ottawa on Tuesday, said that the plans for the new union depot would be filed before July 15, the time specified. Within six months from that time the work will be commenced.

The terminal company's bill being now law, the Grand Trunk, it is understood, will at once start on the formation of the organization which such special legislation authorizes. The different companies using or to use the station—the Canadian Pacific, New York Central lines and the Canadian Northern—are expected to join with the Grand Trunk in a joint scheme along the line authorized by the bill and similar in the agreement effected by the different lines for using the Toronto Union station.

COLONIES CAN RELY ON THE BRITISH NAVY

Admiralty Promises that the Colonies Will be Protected Whether they Support the Navy or Not.

London, May 5.—The first lord of the Admiralty yesterday explained to the conference the general principles upon which the admiralty held that the defence of the Empire should be organized. The one aim of the admiralty was to maintain the naval forces on such a scale as to ensure the protection of the command of the sea in any reasonably probable contingency. He did not desire to press for further contributions of men or money, but cordially welcomed the co-operation of the colonies in the form most agreeable to themselves. Whether the colonies contributed or not, the admiralty would do the best to secure them from overseas attack.

TO DEFEND CANADA.

Fuller official reports are issued of the discussion at Saturday's meeting of the Conference on the question of military defence. From these, it appears that Mr. Haldane, the Secretary for War, said: "Supposing we were studying at home in the general staff great questions of Imperial defence, and, among others questions of Imperial defence in Canada, what an advantage it would be to us—and, I think, to you also—if we sent you a general staff officer, in exchange for one of your general staff officers, who should come over here, and who should the working with us at the very problem, which concern the defence of the Empire as a whole in Canada. And so with all the other affairs in the Crown's dominions.

"It seems to me that we might broaden the basis of this general staff which we have just created. It is a purely advisory organization, of which command is not a function. The beginning, of course, would have to be very modest. If these things were organized, and if we were to bring about such an interchange of officers as would tend to make the work of the general staff in the largest sense the work of a military mind which had surveyed the defence of the Empire as a whole, it would, it seems to me, do much to bring about that uniformity of pattern in organization and in weapons, and in other details regarding military matters, which is to some extent essential if there is to be effective co-operation in a great war."

CADETS IN AUSTRALIA.

Mr. Deakin said that the Commonwealth fully accepted the principle of interchangeability of weapons in the various parts of the Empire. A most interesting development in Australia was the growth of the cadet movement, and he noted the fact that cadets were now being passed through the senior stage at the rate of 16000 a year. Rifle clubs also were being established everywhere in Australia.

General Botha said that in the Transvaal the existing defence arrangements were not satisfactory, and the position would be hazardous if the Imperial troops were withdrawn. His idea was that if it was at yet impossible to federate South Africa politically they should at any rate try to federate in the matter of defence.

NATIONAL EXPANSION.

Sir Robert Bond, the premier of Newfoundland, made his first speech at the conference on Saturday. He said that the Empire stood before the world today as probably the greatest expression of national expansion ever known, and this, he thought had been brought about by due and proper regard for public opinion in the various states or colonies that comprise the Empire.

Woke Up to Find Herself in Cemetery

St. Catharines, May 5—A strange case of somnambulism has just come to light. On Thursday morning Superintendent Cameron, of Victoria Lawn Cemetery, was awakened by someone knocking at the door of his home, and upon opening the door found a woman clad only in sleeping apparel and a pair of rubbers, who told him a remarkable tale, which, according to all appearances, is correct.

The woman, who is a resident of Niagara Falls, Ont., states that she woke up shortly before four o'clock in the morning, to find herself in the cemetery, and her every appearance gave credence to her story.

How she got to the cemetery at St. Catharines is a mystery, but she must have walked the distance between the Falls and the cemetery, about 10 miles in her sleep.

The woman is subject to these attacks, but this is the largest walk that she ever unconsciously attempted.

Dover, Eng., May 5—A Frenchman was before the police court yesterday morning and remanded. He was arrested the preceding night after challenging two soldiers to fight and aiming a five-chambered revolver at them. He explained he was going to shoot the King and Queen when they returned to England.

The gun owner yesterday acknowledged that he was somewhat excited at the time, as he had had sixteen drinks of whiskey, but said he was not drunk.

Castro May Retire

New York, May 6.—President Cipriano Castro of Venezuela, according to information received in this city yesterday from two independent sources, is planning to retire from office on May 23. Although this date might suggest here some other cause for his retirement, the reason is his continued ill health. He will seek recuperation in the mountains of Switzerland. Gen. Juan Vicente Gomez, first vice president, will succeed Gen. Castro.

CHATTANOOGA WOMAN

Has Reason to Take Coffee Out of Her Family.

"After drinking coffee some years, I became badly run down in health, had serious indigestion, flatulency, and nervousness, with severe spells of sick headache.

"My physician advised me long ago to stop drinking coffee, but I said it would be an impossibility, that I would rather do without my breakfast and have my cup of coffee.

"About six months ago I tried Postum Food Coffee and made it strictly according to directions. I was so delighted with it that I immediately discontinued coffee and began using Postum. I have not had a pound of coffee in my house since and never expect to again. All symptoms of indigestion have disappeared entirely and my nerves are growing stronger every day. My weight has increased about twenty pounds and I now weigh more than I ever weighed in my life.

"I have known people to try Postum and throw it aside, for the reason that they made it carelessly. It has a delicious flavor and is dark and rich as Mocha or Java, if properly boiled, but if not boiled long enough, it is tasteless. Put a piece of butter in a pot, the size of a navy bean to prevent boiling over.

"My husband's weight has increased thirty pounds since he began drinking it, and my little boy, who has been very delicate and did not eat as children usually do, used to drink coffee at breakfast. After I gave him Postum for a few days, his appetite improved and he is gaining in flesh daily. You can imagine we are strong friends of Postum Food Coffee." "There's a Reason." Don't Wait. Here It Is. — $15 Invested Now Should Make $100 to $1,000

Larder Lake Gold

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

I have the claims. I have the gold. I have assays of $8,000 per ton and up. I have samples of ore where the gold is so thick in the quartz that it would be almost like assaying gold dollars to get its value. I am incorporating a Company under Ontario laws with 1,000,000 shares of $1.00 each, to take over and operate these rich claims.

I will issue a limited number of shares to a few investors at a very low price for about ten days. Then I will put the shares of my Company on the market for subscription at an advanced price. I will put men at work after May 1st to push development as rapidly as possible. I believe the shares of my Company will soon go up to 50, 60, 70, 85 cents and $1.00 par.

With me you will be interested with THE MAN ON THE GROUND—in the Mine—with mining men of wide experience. Write immediately to my Agents, P. V. FRASER & Co., 23 TORONTO STREET, TORONTO, and you will receive full particulars of this proposition.

MY FIRST OFFER, AT BOTTOM PRICE 15 Cents per Share

will remain open only about ten days and to a limited number. Write immediately to my Agents, Fraser & Co., 23 Toronto Street, Toronto, Canada. L. W. Spear, Mine Developer.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 4, 1907.

COMING OUR WAY.

It is estimated that an average of 1,000 persons a month pass through Omaha on their way north to Canada. These people are described as of the best class—farmers of Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, who are in search of homes in the Dominion. After looking about for the cause of this continued movement Canadaward, the Boston Herald comes to the conclusion that it is found in the fact that in the Western States farming is a business and not a matter of sentiment. When, therefore, a farmer who is a good man of business can sell his land at a good profit, and with only a part of the price buy as much land equally fertile, he naturally does so. The fact that his new home is in a foreign country cuts no figure with him, and, being a man of affairs, he goes where the greater profits are. Besides, in Canada, the promise is most attractive. Millions of acres are to be had in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta at from $5 to $40 an acre. On the other hand, agricultural land in the prairie States has about reached its possible limit in the prairie States of the Republic in price, and in the face of such opportunities as Canada offers it is little wonder that the people over there are so willing to throw in their lots with us. The Herald finds comfort, comments the London Advertiser, in the belief that the American takes his characteristics with him wherever he goes, and that the natural tendency must be to strengthen the ties that bind Canada and the United States. Our contemporary, continues The Advertiser, is further consoled by the thought that in exchange for those who leave Uncle Sam's domains, are many more who go there to live. Each year sees hundreds of thousands of people pour into the neighboring Republic from all parts of the world. But in the past few years the people of European countries, especially of Great Britain, like those of the United States, have been looking to Canada for homes, while Canadians themselves, who have been wont to regard the great cities to the south of us as offering the best prospect, are now realizing that in their own country are opportunities at least equal to those held out by any country the world over. Therein lies the reason why the annual exodus southward, which has drained Canada for years, is now steadily diminishing.

DARK BROWN TASTE

Your Head Aches
Tongue is Coated
Mouth is Coated
Stomach is Sick

The Gastric Juices Are Not Doing Their Duty and You're in the Grip of Nervous Dyspepsia.

Your vision is crossed with specks that float before the eyes.

Very shortly you'll have nausea, rank breath, and sleepless nights.

What you need is Ferrozone.

It regulates the gastric juices, puts new life into the stomach, braces digestive powers, gives the aid that's so badly required.

Ferrozone is the best treatment because it goes to the root of the trouble, remedies the conditions that cause dyspepsia and thereby cures permanently.

If you want proof, read the experience of Mr. E. P. Davison, a well known resident of Portland, who writes. "Ferrozone is beyond doubt a most powerful cure for indigestion and weak stomach. Food so badly disagreed with me that I was almost afraid to eat. Pastry and starchy foods fermented, caused sour risings and gave me headaches, brown taste, offensive breath. I grew weak, my weight ran down fifteen pounds and my looks fully indicated all that was wrong. Ferrozone put me on my feet again. It braced me up, renewed my digestion and made me a well man."

Doctor and patients alike speak of the merit of Ferrozone; it is different from other remedies, different because it cures so you stay cured. Try it; sold everywhere in tin boxes.

PLIGHT OF THE ACTOR.

In a way, behind the scenes is a prison. It is surely one of the very few places where intelligent men and women are locked in their place of work and where no message from the outside world is allowed to reach them. There is a tradition that actor folk are of unusually emotional temperament, and if therefore a telegram is received at the stage-door it is never delivered until after the performance. The message might be an invitation to supper, or it might announce that the actor's favorite brother has been hanged, or it might be an offer in a stock company to play twelve times a week, or it might tell the actor that he was the father of twins or that his wife would die without seeing him again unless he came at once to her bedside, but all of this information is supposed not to be good for the actor's emotional disposition, and the telegram is therefore given the same distinction as the "mash" note and kept until after the performance is finished. It cannot be said that the actor's emotional disposition is very seriously considered beyond the cast-iron rule in regard to telegrams. His comfort and intelligence have been slightly flattered in a few instances of very recent date, but for the most part the condition of behind the scenes in most playhouses is not calculated to breed particularly high thoughts of any kind. As a matter of fact, he distrusted little better than when he was only a "strolling" player—a gypsy—several centuries ago.—Charles Belmont Davis in Outing Magazine.

"PING" TOBACCO.

In the jury-room at the courthouse a few days ago an old time farmer said as he took a chew of tobacco:

"All the difference in the world in tobacco. I've tried twenty different kinds, and none is as good as that we used to make ourselves down on the farm. We would take a maple log while 'twas green and bore a dozen holes in it with a two inch auger. They were auger-holes. We selected our choicest tobacco and soaked it for a week or more in wild honey. Then we'd take the leaf to the log, get a good hickory stamping stick and go to work.

"A little ball of the honey-soaked tobacco would be put in the auger hole and tamped in with the stick and a hammer. We'd pound it in solid. Ball after ball would be rammed in and pounded until the whole became a solid ping. When the hole was nearly full, we would pound in the ping, and then the log would be put away to season. As the wood dried the moisture would be drawn from the tobacco. And when it was split the sweetest tobacco ever made was taken from it. We called it 'ping' tobacco, and that's where the name originated."

Cat Laughter.

What was the origin of the phrase "Enough to make a cat laugh?" Dr. Murray's Dictionary notices only "Enough to make a cat speak," which is explained as signifying something extraordinary, especially something very good-to-drink. "Old liquor able to make a cat speak" is quoted from an early eighteenth century source, and therewith Stephano's remark to Caliban is compared, "Open your mouth; here is that which will give language to you, cat." Miss Squeers' maidservant said that only to see Miss Squeers' friend, Miss Price, toss her head was "enough to make a cat talk French grammar." But even that is not exactly laughing. Has it anything to do with the mythical Cheshire animal?—London Chronicle.

Dress-In Old Massachusetts.

There was an ancient law in Massachusetts that "ladies' dresses should be made long enough to hide their shoe buckles." In 1650 an act of the general court prohibited short sleeves and required garments to be lengthened so as to cover the arms to the wrists and gowns to the shoe buckles; "immoderate great sleeves, knots of ribbon, broad shoulder bands, and they be, silk scarfs, double ruffs and cuffs" were forbidden. In the same colony, in 1653, I. Baldwin was tried for wearing great boots, but was acquitted.

The Early Worm.

Entertaining a children's party at a certain millionaire's house in New York, a woman professional teller of stories to juveniles happened to emphasize the proverb promptly. "But wasn't the worm foolish," he asked, "to get up early and be caught?" "My dear," said the story teller, "that worm hadn't been to bed at all. He was just getting home."

Girl Friends.

Nell — Did you tell her I confided mine? Belle—Yes, and she seemed surprised. Nell—But didn't you explain to her that I've got the chickenpox? Belle—Yes; that's what surprised her. She said you were no chicken.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Five Indispensable Drugs.

Seattle Welcomes General Kuroki

Seattle, Wash., May 4. — General Kuroki and his staff representatives of Japan to the Jamestown Exposition, arrived here yesterday after being delayed by a fog on Puget Sound. They received a royal and picturesque welcome by local Japanese and Americans.

Daylight fireworks were set off, a hundred Japanese girls sang the national anthem, and the general's carriage was almost covered with flowers presented by school children.

The reception at the wharf was in charge of the Chamber of Commerce, the Athletic Society and the Japanese Association of Seattle. With General Kuroki are fifteen army officers.

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,
CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:
W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.
D. A. McFARLANE, Treasurer and General Manager.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Did you get that MESSAGE, that GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.50 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1621.10 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 5c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

"It is probable that you will be put to some inconvenience. I can only regret that this denouement did not come some months ago. You are likely to suffer more than I, because I do not care what the world thinks of me. Therefore you may tell the world what you choose about me—that I drink, that I gamble, that I am lacking in—honor! Anything that suggests itself to you, in fact. You need not go away; I will do that."

"You need not go away; I will do that."

She listened with compressed lips and heaving shoulders, and the bitterest drop in her cup was the knowledge that he despised her. During the last few minutes he had said and done nothing that lowered him in her estimation—that touched in any way her love for him. He had not lowered himself in any way, but he had suavely trodden her under foot. His last words—the inexorable intimation of going away—sapped her last lingering hope. She could never regain even a tithe of his affection.

"I think," he went on, "that you will agree with me in thinking that Guy Oscard's name must be kept out of this entirely. I give you carte blanche except that."

With a slight inclination of the head he walked to the door. It was characteristic of him that although he walked slowly he never turned his head nor paused.

And so they left her—amid the disorder of the half unpacked wedding presents—amid the ruin of her own life. Perhaps, after all, she was not wholly bad. Few people are; they are only bad enough to be wholly unsatisfactory and quite incomprehensible. She must have known the risk she was running, and yet she could not stay her hand. She must have known long before that she really loved Jack Meredith, and that she was playing fast and loose with the happiness of her whole life. She knew that hundreds of girls around her were doing the same, and, with all shame be it mentioned, not a few married women. But they seemed to be able to carry it through without accident or hindrance. And illogically, thoughtlessly, she blamed her own ill fortune.

She stood looking blankly at the door which had closed behind three men, one old and two young, and perhaps she realized the fact that such creatures may be led blindly, helplessly, with a single hair, but that that hair may snap at any moment.

She was not thinking of Guy Oscard. Him she had never loved. He had only been one of her experiments, and by his very simplicity, above all, by his uncompromising honesty, he had outwitted her.

It was characteristic of her that at that moment she scarcely knew the weight of her own remorse. It sat lightly on her shoulders then, and it was only later on, when her beauty began to fade, when years came and brought no joy for the middle aged unmarried woman, that she began to realise what it was that she had to carry through life with her. At that moment a thousand other thoughts filled her mind; such thoughts as one would expect to find there. How was the world to be deceived? The guests would have to be put off, the wedding countermanded, the presents returned. And the world—her world—would laugh in its sleeve. There lay the sting.

"Where are you going?" asked Meredith when they were in the street.

"Home."

They walked on a few paces together.

"May I come with you?" asked Meredith again.

"Certainly; I have a good deal to tell you."

They called a cab, and, singularly enough, they drove all the way to Russell square without speaking. These two men had worked together for many months, and men who have a daily task in common usually learn to perform it without much interchange of observation. When one man gets to know the mind of another, conversation assumes a place of secondary importance. These two had been through more incidents together than usually fall to the lot of men; each knew how the other would act and think under given circumstances; each knew what the other was thinking now.

The house in Russell square, the quiet house in the corner where the cabs do not pass, was lighted up and astir when they reached it. The old butler held open the door with a smile of welcome and a faint aroma of whisky. The luggage had been discreetly removed. Joseph had gone to Mr. Meredith's chambers. Guy Oscard led the way to the smoking room at the back of the house—the room wherein the eccentric Oscard had written his great history—the room in which Victor Durnovo had first suggested the simiacine scheme to the historian's son.

The two survivors of the originating trio passed into this room together and closed the door behind them.

"The worst of one's own private tragedies is that they are usually only comedies in disguise," said Jack Meredith oracularly.

Guy Oscard grunted. He was looking for his pipe.

"If we heard this of any two fellows except ourselves we should think it an excellent joke," went on Meredith.

Oscar nodded. He lighted his pipe, and still he said nothing.

"Hang it," exclaimed Jack Meredith, suddenly throwing himself back in his chair, "it is a good joke!"

He laughed softly, and all the while his eyes, watchful, wise, anxious, were studying Guy Oscard's face.

"He is harder hit than I am," he was reflecting. "Poor old Oscard!"

The habit of self suppression was so strong upon him—acquired as a matter of social duty—that it was only natural for him to think less of himself than of the expediency of the moment. The social discipline is as powerful an agent as that military discipline that makes a man throw away his own life for the good of the many.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

DOUGLAS MINING COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

The Girl From the West

By OTHO B. SENGA

Copyright, 1908, by C. H. Sutcliffe

Paul Alger looked firmly into Mrs. Elliott's face.

"You don't realise what you're asking, Aunt Ruth," irritatedly.

"I'm not asking," calmly. "I'm simply telling you what I expect of you. The girl will be here tomorrow. My will is made with these plans in view. If you don't fall in with them, you're disinherited absolutely; that's all."

Alger rose.

"Aunt Ruth, you've been more than a mother to me, and I'd like to do everything I can to please you, but this is expecting too much. I must reserve the right to select my own wife."

Mrs. Elliott was stubbornly silent, and after a moment the young fellow said earnestly, "Aunt Ruth, give the money to the girl if you want to, but don't let her come between you and me!"

"Don't talk to me, Paul," impatiently. "I shall give it to you two—together or not at all!"

"Who is this girl," Alger demanded with heat, "that she should be thrust upon me in this style?"

"She is the daughter of my husband's brother. When this girl and my Frederick were little children the brothers promised each other that the children should marry when they were old enough. Frederick died, and after your mother's death I adopted you. You have taken Frederick's place in everything else. You must in this. Premise, Paul!"

"It is utterly impossible!" firmly.

"Paul," temptingly, "she is very pretty."

Alger smiled and shook his head.

Music was Alger's passion.

"Yes?" indifferently.

"Yes," emphatically. "She plays the violin."

"What insufferable presumption!" impatiently. "A girl from the wild west, brought up on a cattle ranch, you said. Doubtless she can ride a broncho or lasso a steer, but she shouldn't meddle with the violin. She probably never heard of Bach or Mendelssohn and wouldn't know a sonata from a sandwich. Aunt, I can fancy her bringing her violin in her arms and playing for the delectation of the other passengers in the Pullman. Ugh!"

"You refuse, then?"

"Most decidedly."

"Very well," icily. "I accept your decision as final."

The next day Alger from his desk in the library saw the girl as she entered the adjoining room, where Mrs. Elliott awaited to greet her. She was tall and graceful, with a high bred air of ease that surprised him. Her voice was clear and well modulated.

"Upon my word," he muttered, "I expected her manner of speech to be a cross between a cowboy's yell and an Indian warwhoop."

He saw the servant come in with a violin case.

"Will madam have this in the music room or"—

"Oh, no; here." And Vera held out her hands.

"You brought this yourself, Vera?" Mrs. Elliott's tone held the slightest suggestion of annoyance.

"In my arms literally," laughed Vera.

Alger in his dim corner smiled.

Vera gently placed the case on the floor and lifted out the instrument as tenderly as a mother lifts her babe from its cradle.

"Oh, Aunt Ruth," fervently, "when you see it you will understand—my beautiful violin!"

She clasped it to her bosom with a gesture of tenderness. The beauty of the girl, the unaffected grace of her pose and her evident artistic appreciation stirred Alger to instant admiration.

He met the girl at dinner. She gave him one long, earnest look that he felt at once an inquiry and a challenge, and then she directed her conversation to Mrs. Elliott.

Alger was piqued. He was accustomed to more attention from young women. She related some of the incidents of her trip.

"We had a concert each evening. There were three girls in our Pullman coming to Boston to study music. They sang well."

"And you played, I suppose, Miss Elliott?" Alger could not forbear the question.

She turned her glance upon him briefly. "Oh, I scraped my little best," coolly.

Alger felt the rebuff, but he shot a triumphant glance at his aunt.

As the evening progressed Alger began to wish that he could win some pleasant look or word from the girl and to deeply resent his inability to do so.

"Will you play for us, Miss Elliott?" he asked, more humbly than was his habit.

She was about to decline, but Mrs. Elliott added quickly: "For me, Vera, dear. I am so anxious to hear you."

The instrument with which Vera returned to the room caught Alger's discriminating eye at once.

"Where did you get this, Miss Elliott?" almost abruptly as he recognized its rarity and value.

"It is a gift from my master. He had owned it for many years. He has also a Guarnerius and an Amati. But this was his 'sweetheart.' He always called it so."

"A master of the violin does not present the instrument he loves best—a Stradivarius almost beyond price—to a pupil who merely 'scrapes,'" thought Alger.

"Did he have many pupils, Miss Elliott?" experimentally.

"No one but myself. He is old and can no longer play. Age has stiffened his fingers. But he played once—oh, how he could play! He taught me from a little child, and when I could play—to please him—he gave me this."

"Your teacher was a German?" tentatively.

She tuned the strings and played. There was certainty of chord fingering, a strength, an almost manliness, combined with emotional warmth, about her interpretation of the difficult Bach sonata that amazed Alger.

"Bach's D Minor Sonata is not for amateurs," he said gravely to his aunt. "Miss Elliott's gift is beyond question. She would rank with the great violinists of the present day."

"I think John possessed some musical ability," replied Mrs. Elliott serenely.

The girl raised her bow with an indescribable gesture of reverence. "My mother," proudly, "was a De Beriot. My master is my grandfather. I did not wish to seem to boast. He is Francis Auguste de Beriot."

As the days went by he found himself desperately in love with the girl and unable to win from her anything more than the most chilling courtesy. He had not even the satisfaction of confiding in Mrs. Elliott. Once when he tried to speak of Vera, meaning to confess his love for the girl, his aunt interrupted him coldly: "Say no more, Paul. I accepted your decision as final, you will remember, and a later will leaves all I possess to the Home For Aged Men."

She swept angrily from the room. Alger stood for a moment as if stunned; then he laughed aloud. "That's good news! Now there's no money in the way, and I'll move heaven and earth to win the loveliest girl that ever"—

"'Came out of the west,'" quoted a merry voice, and the portiers parted and Vera stepped from the window seat into the room.

Alger sprang forward hastily.

"Vera," eagerly, "you've known all the while that I love you"—

"A girl from the west, brought up on a cattle ranch?" she questioned, holding him back with her hand on his breast.

"I don't care where you're from, or anything else, if you'll only say you love me, Vera," pleadingly.

"Vera, forgive me for that and say you love me."

"Paul," seriously, "I've loved you ever since I was a little girl. See!" She drew a locket from her bosom and pressed back the cover.

Alger gazed in bewilderment. It was his own face that looked up at him.

"Aunt Ruth sent that to my father. I claimed it as mine and have worn it always."

"Vera," with his arms about her, "why have you been so cruel to me when I've tried so hard"—

"I feared you might propose to me to please Aunt Ruth and—and because of the money."

"Here, here! What's all this about?" Aunt Ruth's voice sounded harshly at the door.

"Vera has promised to marry me, Aunt Ruth."

"And my latest will"— She fairly hurled the words at them.

"We don't mind!" they cried together rapturously.

—"was never signed," added Aunt Ruth in a changed voice, and they heard her laughing as she softly closed the door and left them to their happiness.

Burns and Picric Acid.

Dr. Thierry, one of the surgeons in attendance at the Paris Charity hospital, was in the habit of using picric acid as an antiseptic, and his hands were therefore impregnated with the solution. One day, in lighting a cigarette a portion of the burning match fell on his hand; but, instead of feeling it, he did not notice the slightest pain. A short time afterward, while in the act of sealing a valuable letter, a portion of the burning wax stuck to his finger, and, though it cauterized the skin, it was no more painful to him than if it had fallen on an armored glove of steel. This curious lack of feeling set the doctor's wits to work, and he soon arrived at the conclusion that the acid had, to use his own words, acted upon the tissues and tightened them. He then began a series of experiments in treating burns with a saturated solution of picric acid. In every case he treated all pain was instantly suppressed.—Philadelphia Record.

The Dishcloth.

The dishcloth in many homes is a breeding place for microbes and contains more disease germs than almost anything else of the same size. Many diseases are in a large measure caused by filthy dish rags, contaminated water and impure air. The cheesecloth bags that sugar is sold in make good dishcloths and towels for wiping dishes. It is a good plan to have two sets for constant use. Those in use should be washed every morning in warm water, with soda, ammonia or washing powder, then rinsed and hung in the air to dry while the other set is in use. Besides this, it is well to wash each time after using and to boil them once a week. Keep your dish rags clean, sunned and aired if you value the health of your family.

CEMENT STOCK THAT WILL EARN NEARLY 100% PER ANNUM

When such a statement as this is made by reputable business men, whose reputation and known ability are beyond reproach, it should challenge the attention of the careful investor. We believe you'll agree with us on that point. Now, the officers and directors of this company are among the class of men who have helped make Kansas City what it is today, whose reputations for sound business acumen are known, and who have invested their own capital in this enterprise because it is one of the very best opportunities to make money that has ever been offered them. So, when they assert that stock in this company will pay nearly 100 per cent., they mean just what they say, and are ready to back up their belief with the cold, unimpeachable facts.

Therefore, can you afford to stand by and fail to join in with them, thereby missing a chance to make a fortune—a chance which may not present itself again for a lifetime? Thousands of people have invested in cement stocks in the past, in the securities of those companies which have been organized in the West, and not one of them has lost a dollar. On the other hand, they have all made money—often comfortable fortunes from comparatively small investments.

The capitalization of this company is very conservative, therefore the earnings will be sure and liberal. Eminent authorities, under their signatures, state that we have a veritable mountain of material, containing all the elements for making the very best Cement. And we have enough cement material to last 200 years or longer—a supply practically inexhaustible.

The officers and directors of the company, whose names and identity are given on this page, are all men of known reputation for integrity and business merit, their proven worth being shown by their success in the past. Their investment in this enterprise was made after a careful investigation as to its merits from every standpoint.

Our great advantage over other companies in our ability to pay big dividends lies in the fact that we own the natural gas field at Bonner Springs, and now supply that town with gas. We will have free fuel for the manufacture of our Cement, as well as a revenue of $15,000 a year from our gas franchise alone. As fuel enters largely into the cost of the production of cement, the full force of this statement may be realized by all.

In the distribution of our product we shall have the same advantage in freight rates as if we were located within the corporate limits of Kansas City, as both points carry the same schedule in freight tariffs. It will be the only Cement plant on the great U. P. system, which covers a territory that alone consumes millions of barrels of cement per annum.

The Market for the Product

Year 1880, consumption..... 429,000 bbls.
Year 1890, consumption..... 3,275,000 bbls.
Year 1900, consumption.....10,668,703 bbls.
Year 1903, consumption.....25,451,000 bbls.
Year 1904, consumption.....32,303,306 bbls.
Year 1905, consumption.....44,000,000 bbls.
Year 1906, consumption.....50,027,321 bbls.

In 1905, therefore, the demand was four times as great as in 1900—a cement famine, however, prevailing uninterruptedly meanwhile.

Cost of Manufacture

The inception of this home corporation is propitious, chiefly because of the hitherto unsupplied demand for Portland Cement in contiguous territory.

Eleven million barrels of Portland Cement are yearly required by States west of the Mississippi, and of this amount, only 5,500,000 barrels are produced in the same territory.

This necessitates the forwarding of 5,500,000 barrels annually from the Eastern source of supply.

Eastern-made cement costs 90c. to produce and brings from $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel, laid down in average points west of the Mississippi River.

The Bonner Portland Cemnet Company, owning 261 acres of virgin ground in the new world-famous producing district of Bonner Springs, Kansas, and being unqualifiedly possessed of every other natural and elementary advantage for the economic production of high class Portland Cement, finds a ready market for its products even at standard competing prices.

But inasmuch as the successful location and operation of an enterprise of this character not only depends upon the extent and quality of the raw material deposits, but upon the cost of fuel, labor, transportation facilities, etc., it is therefore apparent that the Bonner Portland Cement Company is assured of a future second to that of no other Western plant, for with its unusual advantages the company can profitably produce superior Portland Cement at the lowest possible price.

No product in all the world has a wider application to useful purposes than Portland Cement.

Property of the Company

The property comprised in the 261 acres abound in immeasurable quantities of first quality cement rock and shale.

These lie in close proximity, but are distinctly separate each from the other. They immediately adjoin the corporate limits of Bonner Springs, Kansas, at the intersection of the Union Pacific and Santa Fe Railroads at a point sixteen miles west of Kansas City.

The mill site is most favorably located on high ground and near the water's edge of the Kansas (or Kaw) River, which flows alongside the entire tract. Thus is the cement plant assured an unfailing water supply, as well as advantageous water transportation and shipping facilities.

The cement product in the United States in 1906 was valued at $54,-015,779, an increase of $18,003,531.

Our Free Fuel Supply

The company is even now operating its own natural gas plant. (Let it be understood that Bonner Springs is in the very heart of a great natural gas field in Kansas). The company's gas plant is at present supplying, under permanent arrangements, a large brick plant, a sanitarium, several churches, schools and 304 families.

The company owns a twenty-year franchise to supply natural gas to the municipality, and receives 10 cents net per thousand cubic feet for local consumption. There are now 304 meters in operation and an equal number will soon be added. The entire supply required by the town is furnished by one of the company's five wells; the other four are completely capped, waiting to supply cheap fuel for the company's Cement Plant upon the day of its completion. A tract of four thousand acres of natural gas land is held by lease and provides unlimited fuel resources.

The gas plant, independent of all other assets, will pay 5 per cent. on $300,000 of the capital stock of the company. In addition to this, it will furnish free fuel for the Cement plant, and cost of fuel is one of the biggest items in the manufacture of Portland Cement.

There were 45,610,822 barrels of Portland Cement manufactured in the United States last year—and not a barrel of surplus stock left over.

The Demand for Cement

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is situated in the very heart of the natural markets of the West. Kansas City alone requires 1,400 barrels of cement each calendar day in the year. The freight rate from Bonner Springs to Kansas City is 20 cents per barrel less than that of any other plant in Kansas. No less important is the fact that this is the only cement property on the entire Union Pacific Railroad, with its 7,935 miles of track traversing the tributary territory, and embracing, Denver, Portland, and San Francisco. This field alone—Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon—would consume three or four times as much cement as the company's mill can furnish.

The foregoing also magnifies the immense benefits possessed by the company for the transportation of its products. The connection with the Santa Fe contributes unparalleled transportation advantages. Adjoining the Kansas River, as the property does, it will be seen that river transportation affords relief in times of an overburdened condition of railway traffic.

The Raw Materials

The economic side of the Bonner Portland Cement Company's proposition is enhanced because of its preponderance of supply, together with the extremely fine qualities of its raw materials and their accessibility. In no other cement property, regardless of location, may be found a better grade of both rock and shale. Furthermore, the necessity of stripping the shale and rock of this property is eliminated because of the fact that the materials extend to the surface. The rock, being soft in texture, when blasted, fractures along both horizontal and vertical lines, assuming the form of small cubes, in which shape it can be powdered most advantageously and least expensively.

Presently, millions upon millions of additional barrels of cement will enter into the manufacture of railroad supplies and equipments, while we may reasonably expect to see the major portion of our dwellings, ten or twenty years hence, made solely of concrete.

The Caffery System Will be Used

The company will operate under the Caffery system.

Right here it is not amiss to state that Mr. Caffery, the founder of this very practical method and one of the founders of the Bonner Company, has proven to the public his uncommon ability in the pursuit of the Cement Industry by the fine success which he achieved in the organizing and promoting of the Kansas City Portland Cement Co.. In co-operation with his engineer, Mr. Caffery personally selected and purchased every machine, every tool and every piece of material that was used in the construction of this mammoth and successful plant—a monument in itself to his mastery of the business, even in its most trifling details.

It was here that Mr. Caffery demonstrated and proved to the stockholders that the Caffery system effects a saving of 25 per cent. in the cost of construction as against the system formerly used.

It was Mr. Caffery who first introduced large kilns in the manufacture of the product west of the Mississippi River. In the construction and equipping of mills, Mr. Caffery anticipates all competition, not alone because of his genius for the work, but for the reason that he has surrounded himself with the most expert assistants and is in co-operation with the most complete and skilled engineering force in the United States—the Freeborn Engineering and Construction Company.

The Bonner Company will receive the undivided benefit of his ablest management, while the mill will boast of the most modern exemplification of the Caffery system to date installed.

Cement is logically the steel and iron of the future. To it the builders of subsequent decades must turn. It seems to distinctly indicate a new cycle in the mysterious omnipotence of the forces surrounding us.

Cost and profits

As previously stated by virtue of its natural advantages, the Bonner property can produce its finished product at a cost of 40 cents per barrel.

The current price of Cement is $1.65 per barrel. This means a net profit to the company of $1.25 per barrel, or a net earning of $2,000.00 per day on a 1,600-barrel mill which it will erect. Thus it will be seen that the company will expect to earn the enormous profit of $720,000 per annum on a 1600-barrel mill, independent of a profit of $15,000 net per annum which will accrue from the operation of the gas plant.

Here is represented an earning of almost 100 per cent. per year, not a visionary earning, but a profit based on cold, hard facts and indisputably correct calculation, due to the fact that this company will have free fuel, unsurpassed facilities in transportation, and accessibility of its raw material.

The science of Cement Construction has merely begun, and as its achievement progresses, it will be with extreme difficulty that supply keeps apace with demand.

Purpose of the Company

The company will erect a mill of 1,600 barrels' daily capacity. This mill will be built in two sections, each with a capacity of 800 barrels. The first section is to be built and put into operation at once, thus enabling the company to pay early dividends on its stock. With the first section completed, the company will offer the balance of its stock, from the proceeds of the sale from which the other section of the mill will be builded.

If we are inclined to look upon our disappearing forests and visible supply of iron as a condition of predestination, it is well to note that this evolution of the world's mineral resources is also in perfect harmony with the demands of the hour. For, in cement, is found a building material superior to any which has heretofore been employed.

As a Safe Investment

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is capitalized for $800,000 preferred, and $1,200,000 in common—an amount sufficiently large to warrant the floating of this herculean undertaking, and small enough to enable the earning of a substantial dividend.

The stock is being floated under the well known Caffery system. Through this unique and clever plan of organization, each stockholder receives one full share of common stock with each share of preferred stock purchased.

The preferred stock is offered at par.

In the economic scheme of the world's industrial development, civilization has passed through the Stone and Bronze Ages; and the Iron Age, which is now in its zenith, will soon decline in favor of the Age of Concrete.

The safeguard of Your Investment

In considering this investment from the standpoint of safety, understand that there is no prospecting or experimenting to be done, no chances to be taken.

Money invested will go directly and immediately into the property itself, and were all the company's physical assets to be wiped out of existence tomorrow, by storm, cyclone or other calamity, $800,000 in cold cash would still be represented in the imperishable wealth of the rock and shale deposits of its 261 acres, together with its natural gas plant and franchise.

Perhaps the greatest safeguard of any investment of this character is the personal ability and integrity of the men at the head of the enterprise. This company is extremely fortunate in being possessed of that factor of success in a most unusual degree. The company will receive the competent and expert business management of men who are thoroughly familiar with every detail of the cement business, and whose experiences in the cement business have been exceptionally successful.

The visible supply of iron ore in the United States will be exhausted in fifty years, and this information comes from no less an authority than the Swiss Parliament. The world's workers will then look in vain to our timber resources, which, ever, are limited to a frightening degree.

Dear Sir:—In enclose with this letter a report to date of the cement material which we received from Mr. Freeborn. The cement which we made was of excellent quality and indicates that that the material is eminently suited for the manufacture of high grade Portland Cement.

In making the report, I should have mentioned that the sand briquettes were made with 3 parts standard Sandusky sand.

Very truly yours,

Bonner Portland Cement Company, Kansas City, Mo.

Gentlemen:—After having examined your property at Bonner Springs, Kansas, we beg to submit the following report thereon:

We found the location of the raw material in a ledge 100 feet high, about three-fourths of a mile east of the town of Bonner Springs, immediately adjoining the right of way of the Union Pacific Railway and alongside the Kaw River. It is also easily reached by a switch from the A., T. & S. F. Ry., whose line between Kansas City and Leavenworth crosses the Kaw River about one-half mile west of the proposed plant. The plant site is immediately east of the east side of the rock ledge.

The raw material is unusually accessible, requiring no stripping. The Limestone is forty-three feet thick and immediately above a stratum of shale twenty feet thick.

The analysis of the shale and limestone follow:

	SHALE.	LIMESTONE.
Si O	64.08	1.34
Al O	20.61	.40
Fe O	4.64	.16
Ca O	.80	54.96
Mg O	1.96	.32
S O3	.08	.00
Alkali	1.54	.00
Loss on ignition	6.80	42.44

We have had cement made from the raw material taken from this property. It showed light in color and made into briquettes and tested after one day averaged over 300 lbs.; after seven days, the test averaged over 575 lbs. Pats of neat cement after six hors of steaming showed no sign of checking or cracking.

Your company has 261 acres of rock and shale property, which will last over two hundred years in the operation of proposed plant.

A particularly advantageous feature of this location is the supply of natural gas immediately upon the property. The five producing wells here supply gas to the town of Bonner Springs at a profit sufficient to cover all expense incident to the operation of the gas lines to and at the plant, making the cost of fuel to your company at this location nothing and will pay a nice revenue in addition.

We figure the price of coal at $2.50 per ton, and fuel oil at 65 cents per barrel. In burning coal producing cement 210 pounds are used per barrel, which makes the fuel per barrel of cement cost $0.36. Therefore, operating a 1,600 barrel plant, say 300 days per year, using coal for fuel, means a fuel bill of $161,280.00 per annum.

In using fuel oil costing 65 cents per barrel, and consuming twelve gallons of oil per barrel of cement produced, the cost of fuel per barrel of cement will be $0.18. By using fuel oil, therefore, the annual expense for fuel, of a 1,600 barrel plant, will be $107,136.00.

It is evident then, that by using gas on this site, a minimum saving of over $100,000.00 per annum can be made over a plant using other fuel.

The accessibility of the raw material and its immense quantity, the excellent facilities for shipment to all points, the ample water supply so near at hand, the free fuel and the propinquity of a rapidly growing market, mark this as one of the most desirable properties for the manufacture and distribution of Portland Cement which we have examined in ten years.

Yours very truly,
THE FREEBORN ENG. & CONST. CO.

Excerpts from S. J. Hatch's Letter

S. J. Hatch, Civil and Mining Engineer, of Kansas City, Mo., who has made a critical examination of the company's property, says: "The location for your plant is ideal." "The Kaw River between Kansas City and Bonner Springs has an average of about three feet of water the year round." "Your raw material is the best in Kansas for Portland Cement." "There is over five times as much natural gas in your field as you will use in the cement plant."

With such a proposition as this one before the investing public it need not be surprising if this advertisement will prove the first and last announcement which the company will make—for its stock will be snapped up by discriminating investors. Therefore, we would advise you to make your reservations for stock at once, either in person or by wire. Remember, with each share of preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock, sold at par, one share of common will be given.

Concrete is in the day of its ascendancy, being unqualifiedly adapted to all modern and accepted building uses.

REGAIN NOW THE STRENGTH YOU LACK!

Winter Leaves Us Miserable, Ailing, Weak—Build up Now.

During the winter the system gets sluggish. The blood, polluted with impurities, deadens the nervous system and dulls the actions of both liver and kidneys; the foulness of the system increases and when spring comes we are dirty and useless.

Spring "system cleaning" is a duty; the body sewers must be flushed out and waste matter removed—otherwise weakness and nervousness will surely follows.

Begin by enriching the blood. Make it pure and nutritious by taking Ferrozone, the greatest blood former known to medical science.

Ferrozone makes the liver fairly sing with new life, makes the kidneys dance with renewed vitality, and thus the winter's accumulation of pollution is expelled.

Of course digestion must be improved, and probably the stomach will require aid as well. Ferrozone serves the purpose admirably. Those who use it enjoy appetite and digestive powers far beyond the ordinary.

That tired feeling is replaced by the buoyant, joy-ous sensation of health and vigor. Day by day as your strength increases, you feel new energy surging through your veins, and know that a tonic of great merit.

No remedy more nourishing or uplifting, no treatment so sure to bring lasting health, good spirits and contentment. Ferrozone contains just what run-down folks need; it cures because it supplies more nutriment than you can get in any other way. Free from alcohol and prepared only in chocolate-coated tablets, 50c. per box or six for $2.50 at all dealers. Be sure you try "Ferrozone."

A Gold Mine Showing Rich Assay

The Bonanza Group of Mines Attracting Much Attention.

The eyes of capitalists are now fixed on the rich mineralbe findings of the Larder Lake district, where fortunes are now in the making and more to be made in the immediate future. There is no doubt but what northern Ontario will soon attract capital not only from this Dominion and the United States, but also from Europe as the goods are there.

The Larder Lake Bonanza Gold Co. now is being organized to develop and operate the Bonanza Mine, from which specimens of ore are shown to have produced gold at the rate of $8000 per ton and silver of $8.40. This assay was made and sworn to by Mr. D. Johnston the well known chemist and metallurgist. This demonstrates not only the possibilities but practically the certainty of rich dividends to those fortunate enough to secure stock, particularly now on the ground floor, in the Larder Lake Bonanza Mining Co. This company is incorporated under Ontario laws with 1,000,000 shares of $1 each, of which 400,000 will remain in the treasury. Another 400,000 shares were given for the property, and the 200,000 shares remaining will be sold, a small number of which, for a limited time only are offered at 15 cents each, to realize money for purchase of some 15 extra claims and for development work. Later on the treasury shares will be sold at 50 cents each to install a working plant, etc., Those wanting to share the future profits on a cheap basis had better at once communicate with P. V. Fraser & Co., financial agents, 23 Toronto street, Toronto.

—Mr. W. E. Talbot, the local tobacconist, returned to the city on Saturday afternoon after disposing of his farm in Brook township in Victoria county. Mr. Talbot sold out the 90 acres he held there to Mr. W.D. Burgess. The price realized by him ran into a large sum.

Power Committee to Visit Toronto

The Special Power Committee of the City Council will go to Toronto this week to interview Hon. Mr. Beck, the power minister in reference to the power question, so far as it relates to Peterborough. Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., was in Toronto Saturday, and arranged a meeting with Mr. Beck for the committee.

Address to Lady Oddfellows

Yesterday afternoon Rev. W. Major, rector of All Saints' church, addressed the members of Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, No. 81, I.O.O.F., in the Oddfellows' Hall. Great interest was taken in the service, which is the first of its kind in Peterborough. Golden Link Lodge of Lady Oddfellows was organized Oct. 27, 1906, and has already made splendid progress.

To Evangelize the World

New York, May 6.—A deputation from the laymen's missionary movement in the United States and Canada will visit England at the invitation of a committee representing missionary societies of the established and non-conformist churches. The deputation goes for conferences and to make addresses throughout England and Scotland concerning the co-operation of the English-speaking peoples in the evangelization of the non-Christian world. The Canadian representatives are Messrs. H. H. Fudger and R. W. Hoyles, K.C.

Mr. A.D. Brown Revisits the City

Mr. A. D. Brown, an old Peterborough boy, who now holds a high position in printing circles in Chicago, and is business manager of the "British American" of that city, is in the city after 20 years' absence and is, with his wife, the guest of his mother, Mrs. John Brown, George street. Yesterday morning he sang in the Charlotte street Methodist church and in St. John's last night. Mr. Brown's many friends in the city will extend him a hearty welcome.

Barber Kept Customer Waiting

On Saturday a local barber went to a nearby place where refreshments are sold to get a $20 bill changed for a customer. Happening to meet a friend or two he dallied so long his friend remarked, "Say —— that customer of yours will be getting uneasy over his change, if you don't hustle back." "Oh well," responded the easy going tonsorialist, I better wait a little longer and his beard will have grown so long his wife will require another shave before leaving."

Mr. Andrews Will Remain Here

We noted a few days ago that Mr. Geo. Andrews, manager of Messrs. Demetrie Bros., fine confectionery store, corner of George and Charlotte streets, was about to leave the city to enter into partnership with Mr. Paul Smith at Hanlan's Point, Toronto Island.

Since that issue Mr. Andrews has had a very flattering offer from Messrs. Demetrie Bros., to continue in the local store. Mr. Andrews in response to this request has decided to remain in the city.

Navigation Open

The lock at Young's Point was officially opened on Saturday for the first time this season, and now will be prepared to let through all steamers to and from the lakes. The steamer Majestic left the point for Jack's Creek, from where she will bring down a tow of logs for the McDarmay Lumber Co. Today the steamer Stoney Lake will go to Lovesick for timber at the mouth of the Mississauga and Deer Bay creeks belonging to the Peterborough Lumber Co.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others, equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

CITY COUNCIL IN COMMITTEE OF WHOLE

Sat for Nearly Three Hours Before the Regular Meeting Last Night---Deputations Again Waited Upon Them Asking for Amendment of Sign and Box Bylaws.

The City Council met in committee of the whole last night, when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams, presiding, and Aldermen Johnston, Leary, Phelan, Stevenson, McIntyre, Tovey, Duncan, Wilson, Elliott, Morgan and Morrow.

The Property Committee brought in a very concise report, accompanied by plans, for remodelling the old fire hall so as to provide offices accommodation for the cityt reasurer, tax collector, city engineer, plumbing inspector and the assessors.

Ald. McIntyre reported that he had secured a man to take down the fire hall tower and stables, do the cleaning up and building necessary to leave the building in good shape, and give $25 for the old material. This is considered by experts to be a very reasonable offer.

Ald. McIntyre also offered objt neither the tax collector or treasurer are satisfied with the proposed plans as not providing sufficient accommodation for their requirements.

This matter was referred back to the Property Committee for further consideration, as it was considered advisable to have such remodelling thoroughly considered in every detail before being acted upon. The engineer to furnish new plans and estimates together with cost of proposed work at next meeting.

The committee also offered that a larger and more convenient committee room should be furnished.

On motion of Ald. Tovey, seconded by Ald. Morrow, the relief officer was granted a bonus of $50 as a reward for additional work last year.

THE SIGN BYLAW.

A committee of the Retail Merchants' Association waited upon the committee with regard to the sign bylaw. Mr. Robert Fair was spokesman and urged that the sign bylaw be amended to allow of overhanging signs projecting 24 inches from the walls of buildings.

OUTSIDE DISPLAY OF GOODS.

Messrs. Mineeplis, O'Brien, Routley, and Jas. Bell addressed the committee with a view to getting permission to expose goods outside their stores on 18-inch tables or shelves, said tables or shelves to be regulated in height as council decides.

Both these questions were promised attention later.

TELEPHONE RATES.

The mayor reported that he had received a telegram from W. D. Lyteil, to the effect that the Dominion Railway Commission would sit at Montreal in adjourned session on a revision of the Bell Telephone rates, and asked for this council's views on the question.

The committee considered that no complaints as to phone rates are coming unless it be in the way of long distance charges. This matter was referred to the council in regular session.

STEAM HEATING.

The District Steam Heating Company wrote, saying that if the city will not take up steam heating as a municipal enterprise they would wish to make a request for a franchise for installing such a system. This was left in abeyance.

$100 FOR CONSUMPTIVE HOSPITAL

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey,—That the treasurer be thorized to forward a cheque for $100 to the Muskoka free hospital for consumptives.—Carried.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

The local Board of Health wrote, urging immediate action in the direction of providing an isolation hospital, which cannot be erected and equipped for less than $7,000. The committee took no definite action in this matter.

POLL TAX.

The question of collecting poll taxes the same year in which they are assessed came up and a bylaw providing for such action approved of.

BUILDING PERMIT BYLAW.

In regard to the building permit bylaw not being observed, Ald. Stevenson offered that this measure should be rigidly enforced.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That the chief of police be instructed to take action against all parties who do not take out building permits within ten days after construction or repair work is commenced.—Carried.

Ald. McIntyre here corrected the Review for jumping on him for not taking out permits. At the time of the publication of such article he had applied for permits for all of the buildings except one for which he had only secured the contract two days.

Ald. Bradburn suggested that a copying machine be procured so that each alderman could be furnished a copy of the committee reports to examine into before meeting in council. A committee going to Toronto this week will report as to the best copying machine on the market and rice thereof.

BOX BYLAW AMENDED.

The council here spent considerable time in an attempt to agree on amending the box bylaw to allow of a certain amount of exposure of goods on the sidewalks by merchants. Ald. Elliott had a strong desire for a restricted amount of exposure of in favor of flowers, crockery, dry goods and such like wares.

Most of the aldermen felt that it would not be just to discriminate in any way.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey,—That the bylaw be amended to permit of exposure of all kinds of goods, providing they are not projecting more than 12 inches from store front and are raised not less than 24 inches above the walk.

Ald. Elliott moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That all goods be allowed to project 18 inches and on tables 24 inches high.

Ald. Elliott here withdrew his motion and Ald. Morgan's motion conceding all merchants the privilege of exposing goods on stands not projecting more than 12 inches from store front and of not less than 24 inches in height passed.

SIGN BYLAW AMENDED.

Ald. Elliott moved,—That the sign bylaw be amended to permit of non-illuminated overhanging signs providing they do not extend more than 24 inches from the wall, and are of sufficient height not to interfere with pedestrians.

Ald. Morrow moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,— That present signs be not interfered with but that all new overhanging signs protrude not more than 18 inches from the wall, and to be of not more than two feet in height; and signs not to interfere with pedestrians.

Ald Elliott withdrew his motion, and Ald. Morrow's motion carried, all the aldermen voting in its favor except Aldermen Stevenson and Duncan.

Ald. Stevenson strongly opposed the councils action in amending both the sign and box bylaws, which had been in existence for over 25 years. He could remember the time when George street looked like a wood yard with its numerous signs, which gave rise to the bylaw at that time being put into force. This bylaw and the box bylaw had effected the streets being kept in a measurably clean and presentable condition. It is true some few merchants had been permitted to violate both bylaws these many years but he regretted that the action of the committee to-night in amending these bylaws condones such infringements of measures in the public interest and weal, and also inflicts an additional injustice on those merchants who have lived up to the sign bylaw in not even permitting them at this late date to erect as large signs as those displayed for many years by some offenders, and which signs they can still retain. Early business street of Peterborough, Ald. Stevenson concluded, will shortly, by reason of the above amendments, soon look like a timber yard and a York street (Toronto) Jew thoroughfare.

Captain Casey's Body Found

Brockville, May 6.—The body of Captain Thomas Casey, of Prescott, who disappeared suddenly at Ashland, Wis., last fall, has been found floating in the harbor at that place. It is thought that on going aboard his steamer he tripped and fell into the harbor. Casey had been sailing the lakes from boyhood. He was born in Grenville County fifty-five years ago.

No Need of Enforcement

Ottawa, May 6.—It is unlikely that the act passed at the last session of Parliament regulating the exportation of electric power will require to be enforced for some time against any of the companies now exporting power from Canada to the United States. The Government do not intend to restrict the business of the electrical companies in the matter of exporting power unless it develops that the Canadian demand is not being fully supplied.

Admits Triple Murder

Middletown, N. Y., May 6.—Charles H. Rogers, who is charged with the murder of the two Olney brothers and Alice Ingerick, who lived on the Olney farm, was brought here today. Rogers was captured in Los Angeles after a chase which continued more than a year. The officer who brought him here from the West declared today that Rogers has made a complete confession, saying that he committed the triple murder alone and that he alone is guilty. He secured $16 from his victims.

King Will Visit America

Washington, May 7.—King Carlos of Portugal has accepted the invitation of President Penna, of Brazil, to visit Rio Janeiro in April, 1908, when the centenary of the opening of Brazil to the commerce of the world will be commemorated. His visit will be made an event not only in South America, but in the entire western hemisphere, as it will be the first time a European sovereign has crossed the Atlantic Ocean. It has not been determined whether the Queen of Portugal will accompany King Carlos.

A Sensational Threat

St. Catharines, May 6.—Some time ago, the Grand Central Hotel was $5 in arrears for water. The owner, Ald. John S. Campbell, was sued in the division court and judgment given.

Campbell asked the commission of water for a rebate, which was refused, whereupon he made a threat that the request had better be granted, as he knew parties who were receiving free water. He refused to give the names of the parties but repeated his demands for a rebate.

The commission's superintendent was instructed to write a letter to Ald. Campbell demanding all information along the lines of his threat.

A Vast Crowd

Ottawa, May 6.—Brigadier Howell, the head of the Salvation Army immigration work, with headquarters at Toronto, was in Ottawa today on business with the immigration branch of the Department of the Interior.

He states that already the Army has handled 7,000 men as against 13,000 in the whole of last season, and 6,000 in 1905. Four big ships are under charter to convey the Army's immigrants exclusively. The Vancouver landed nearly 900 at Halifax a day or two ago, and the Southwark is expected to arrive in Quebec on the 15th, with about 1,000 more. The feature of this year's work is that every man and woman is placed before leaving England and goes straight to his or her destination. Brigadier Howell expects 25,000 or 30,000 immigrants this year.

Work on Armories Has Actually Begun

Headquarters of Local Troops Now a Definitely Assured Fact

Was it imagination, fact, or (had one been indulging) the result of stimulants, that made every local military man yesterday walk as though he had swallowed a yet undigested ramrod? No! The fact is that work on Peterborough's fine new armories has actually begun. This does not mean that an Ottawa minister of the Crown, looking ahead to future elections, has smilingly assured a deputation that "Your most important suggestion will receive the most earnest consideration of my colleagues and myself. In fact gentleman I can assure you that in the dim and distant hurrah!" (we have forgot text to cheers) but real actual manual, spade in hand, hard work, real business, not wind, operations have begun on the local armories.

Mr. A. Simpson of Sarnia, who has the contract for the masonry, started a gang of men at work yesterday morning. Excavating will be commenced this morning. Mr. Simpson has a number of men engaged on the work and will hire as many as he can secure. Several trees to make way for the building were felled during the afternoon. The new armories will be 270 feet long by 154 feet wide.

Mr. G. H. Proctor of Sarnia, who has the general contract left last night for home. Mr. Simpson will personally superintend all the masonry work, which includes all the stone, cement and brick construction.

Free Samples of "Preventics" and a booklet on Colds will be gladly mailed you, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., simply to prove merit. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cure tablets, No Quinine, No Laxative, nothing harmful whatever. Preventics prevent colds—as the name implies—when taken early, or at the "Sneeze Stage." For a seated cold of LaGrippe, break it up safely and quickly with Preventics. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Kirkfield Look to Open on May 24th

The new lift lock at Kirkfield will be formally opened on May 24th and arrangements are being made for a grand opening ceremony. The big lock is practically completed and has been found to work satisfactorily. Various kinds of small craft have already been taken over. The lift is 52 feet and greatly resembles that at Peterborough. The experience gained in the building of the local "world's wonder" has been used to good advantage. Workmen are now putting on the finishing touches and everything will be completed by May 24th.

It is likely that several prominent Government officials from Ottawa will be present as well as all the local officials in connection with the canal. The Government steamer "Empire" will convey the party from Peterborough to Kirkfield.

Local T.V.C. Officials Off for Campbellford

Yesterday afternoon two leading officials of the Trent Valley canal, Messrs Brant and Spence left at 2 o'clock for Campbellford, to instruct the engineer of the Campbellford section as to the disposition of plans for the canal. Offices are being opened at both Campbellford and Trenton. Mr. John B. Brophy will be in charge at Trenton, and Mr. H. P. Bell at Campbellford. These two sections of the canal are to be built first. The work of construction will be started on the Campbellford section the latter part of the summer.

Provincial Detective Relates Experiences

Mr. Samuel Wright, a member of the Provincial police, attached just now to the railroad interests, spent yesterday in the city leaving last evening for Toronto. Mr. Wright in conversation with a Times representative noted that recently, thirteen "D.H." (dead head) travellers by rail were rounded up and brought into Woodstock in chains. Among them were a number of ordinary "vags," but two who claimed Detroit, Mich., as their respective homes, were proven by wire to be a husband on trial for desertion and the other wanted for a more serious offence.

Most of the thirteen arrested were given from two months in jail upwards, and several were ascertained subsequently to be notorious criminals, wanted in many places, both in Canada and the U.S. for crimes of various degrees.

Mr. Wright, whilst averse to talking in front of press representatives, told a number of experiences in modest vein of narratory, that displayed the good service he has done.

Mr. Wright left last night for Toronto. His well known services recently in connection with certain local grain stealing will be remembered by those "in the know."

After Jackson Park Summer Privileges

Yesterday afternoon a Times representative happening to pass by Mr. W. C. Andrews, who is taking miniature photographs encased in a button, on Charlotte street, near the Snowden House. Mr. Andrews noted that he is now in communication with the executors of the late Mrs. Nicholls estate with a view to obtaining a privilege of taking photos in Jackson Park this coming season. Mr. Andrews is offering to give a percentage of his receipts to the park for a privilege that he claims will not interfere with visitors and at the same time will help out of his business, to pay the park expense. It might be noted that the Brantford Exposition, in Mr. Andrews' possession, shows that this gentleman last summer handed the drill hall authorities at Brantford the sum of $150 for privileges granted him there for a short time. Full particulars will appear in these columns soon.

Canadian Students of History Will be There

A meeting that will undoubtedly attract attendance of those interested in, and posted on subjects archaeologistic and historical, will be the annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society, of which Col. H. C. Rogers, the popular post master, of this city is president, which is to be held at Kingston in July.

Part of the program consists of a visit to Adolphustown to visit the landing place of the first United Empire Loyalists. This meeting at Kingston will certainly be attended by many of Canada's leading scientists and litterateurs.

Chemong Auto Getting Ready

Mr. Roby Wilson, the well known local machinist, is now engaged in overhauling the fine automobile bus, that ran last season on the Peterborough Chemong route, preparatory to the season's work, under supervision of Mr. Ernest Hannah, the chauffeur of the auto. Mr. Hannah noted yesterday that quite a number of excursions have already been secured for the season for this bus. The regular schedule for the Peterborough Chemong trip will be issued on or about June 1st. Mr. Hannah particularly requested The Times to note that farmers or others on finding their horses becoming afraid should, at once raise a hand; on this the auto will be brought to an immediate stop and in case of necessity help will be cheerfully given. There is no use a farmer waiting until his horse or team is within a few feet of the auto. The chauffeur is no mind reader, and should have due notice several score yards away, instead of waiting until the horse is right next to the auto. The main contention of the Peterborough Chemong Auto Co., is that the farmers' rights shall and will be protected in each and every case.

Mr. J. Yelland Hurt in Railway Accident

Yesterday morning an accident that might have resulted in serious contingencies occurred to the train going to Lakefield from this city.

No. 37, the regular mixed passenger train left this city at the usual time with several loaded cars ahead of the passenger car. When the train was passing the Cement Co.'s office at Lakefield, the rear axel on the third car ahead of the passenger cars broke. This let the trucks loose and as they came in contact with the cars behind, there was a severe jar, and three freight cars left the track. The passenger cars were uninjured, Mr. Jos. Yelland a passenger on the train was thrown forward off the seat and injured his back. Other than that no one else was seriously injured. Mr. Yelland was brought to the city when the train returned, and was attended by Dr. Bradd, who had him removed to his home in a cab. His injuries are not very serious, and he will be around again in a few days.

New Algoma Land Taken Up

Toronto, May 7.—Three townships in the district of Algoma, namely, Crawford, Prosser and Lucas, have been opened for settlement, under the terms of the Volunteers' Land Grant Act. Already every location in the two first named—an aggregate of 288—has been taken up, and very few locations are now left in Lucas township. The land in all three townships is fine agricultural land.

Ottawa, May 7.—A new passenger rate schedule of the Grand Trunk Railway conforming to the order of the Railway Commission making the maximum rate three cents per mile has been approved by the Board, and will go into effect on the 15th inst.

THE CITY TEAMSTERS GO OUT ON STRIKE

For 25c. More a Day Than Offered Them by the Council---City Fathers Increased Their Pay from $3.25 to $3.50 but the Men Considered that to be Insufficient—Plenty Men and Teams Available.

The city teamsters waited upon the City Council last night, and asked for $3.75 to day, an increase of 50c above present wages. The council passed a resolution granting the men $3.50 per day, which they refused, and Mr. Williams told the board of aldermen that there would be no teams working for the city this morning.

Should the men not go to work today, we are informed that the authorities can get all the men and teams they need at $3.50 per day, which by the majority of the council is thought to be a fair wage for steady work.

This matter came up first in committee of the whole council, when Ald. Duncan, chairman Board of Works, moved that the teamsters get $3.50 a day for drawing 1 1-2 yard loads, an increase of 25 cents.

Ald. McIntyre moved, in amendment, that they be paid $3.75 per day for 1 1-2 yard loads.

Ald. Leary supported Ald. McIntyre, and offered that the sums of this city are valuable and a credit to the community, and $3.75 a day would be none too much to pay the men.

Ald. Elliott thought they might reasonably be paid $3.75 when drawing gravel, stones or sand, and $3.50 when engaged in drawing dirt from the streets, which is lighter work.

Ald. Duncan's resolution carried, was embodied in the report, and subsequently read in council when in regular session later on.

At this juncture Ald. Leary informed the council that the teamsters would not accept $3.50 a day, and he and Ald. McIntyre endorsed their attitude.

Ald. Duncan offered that $3.50 was a fair wage, and objected to the city setting a higher price which would be taxed private citizens needing similar work done for them. He contended that the council by their proffered increase would be treating the men generously.

The teamsters contended that they had no difficulty in getting $3.75 from contractors.

The report was then put to the vote and adopted, thus fixing city teamsters' wages at $3.50 a day all round.

While Aldermen Leary, McIntyre and Elliott were in sympathy with the men, the council as a whole expressed no concern in the incident, and the Board of Works are advised by the street commissioner that if these teamsters will not accept $3.50 a day, others will.

The City Council met in regular session at five minutes to seven last night, after a committee meeting of nearly three hours. All members present.

A number of communications were referred to their respective committees.

Ald. Leary, resigned from the Fire, Water and Light Committee. He was urged to reconsider the matter but would not acquiesce. His resignation is due to a misunderstanding between he and Ald. Johnston, chairman of the committee, concerning attendance at meetings.

Ald. Leary claims he has only missed one committee meeting, and he took exception to Ald. Johnston's remarks concerning the need of punctual attendance. Perhaps he took his colleagues remarks differently to what they were intended to convey.

REPORTS.

The reports of the various committees, including that of the Committee of the Whole that met previous to this meeting, were read and adopted.

ROLL TAX BYLAW.

This measure passed its several readings. The tax will be collected this year on this year's assessment.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Leary,—That this council advise the Board of Railway Commission that it should not approve of the telephone rate of the Bell Telephone Company in force in the city of Peterborough, because the company while professing to give 24 hour service charges $5 a year extra for putting in a modern telephone on the plea that it is a long distance equipment; and because the rates charged by the company for long distance service are excessive.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

Little Girl Badly Burned Yesterday

Sad Accident Resulting from an East Ward Bonfire.

Yesterday evening a number of children of the east ward, whilst merrily playing round a bonfire, were suddenly startled and thrown into excitement by one of their number, a little girl screaming with pain as her clothing caught fire.

It seems that among the children playing was the little 11-year-old Nuella Quinlan, a daughter of Mr. Cornelius Quinlan of North Roger street. This little girl in the midst of the fun saw her handkerchief, which she was using to fan the flames, afire. She at once clapped the burning kerchief to her hip to put the flames out. Unfortunately the light texture of her spring attire caught fire and the poor little girl's clothes were in an instant aflame. After some time the flames were quenched, but not before the child was seriously burnt. Mr. Bellegheim's ambulance was at once summoned, and the child conveyed to St. Joseph's hospital.

We are pleased to note that at a late hour last night, the hospital authorities reported her as doing as well as could be expected, although suffering considerably.

Roller Hookey Meeting Last Night

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the Charlotte street roller rink last night, in connection with forming a roller hockey club, when it was decided to call a general practice for Friday night of this week, said practice to take place after the evening skating. A club from which two teams will be picked will be formed after the practice.

Mr. Sheridan, manager of the rink is going to Ottawa, where a match is to take place Friday night, and when he comes back it is expected he will be able to give the local boys some useful pointers.

New Fire Hall Opening Postponed

Last night The Times was called up and informed that the long talked of exercises in connection with the new Aylmer street fire hall have been postponed from today until one week from today. This it was explained was due namely to the fact that the drill to have been given tonight, necessarily included proper manipulation of the recently purchased fire engine, would have to be put off for a week as the approaches to the new hall are still inaccessible.

It seems to us, that in the matter of the new fire hall, we might, without undue levity or profanity quote "How long! O Lord how long!"

Black Hand Leader Nabbed

New York, May 6.—In Pietro Pampinnelli, who was pounced upon by Lieut. Petrosini and three of his detectives in Catherine street today, and carried off fighting and threatening, to a cell in the police headquarters, Lieut. Petrosini, the head of the Italian Detective Bureau, declared that the brains of the Black Hand Society has been run to earth. Pampinnelli was put through every degree known to the police in efforts to squeeze secrets from him. At these trying ordeals he only laughed. He was once caught off his guard, however, and then it was learned that the prisoner is a man of excellent education. Not only does he speak several languages, but is an expert penman.

Larder Lake Gold

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

I have the claims. I have the gold. I have assays of $5,000 per ton and up. I have samples of ore where the gold is so thick in the quartz that it would be almost like assaying gold dollars to get its value. I am incorporating a Company under Ontario laws with 1,000,000 shares of $1.00 each, to take over and operate these rich claims.

I will issue a limited number of shares to a few investors at a very low price for about ten days. Then I will put the shares of my Company on the market for subscription at an advanced price. I will put men at work after May 1st to push development as rapidly as possible. I believe the shares of my Company will soon go up to 50, 60, 75, 80 cents and $1.00 par.

With me you will be interested with THE MAN ON THE GROUND—in the Mine—with mining men of wide experience. Write immediately to my Agents, P. V. FRASER & Co., 23 TORONTO STREET, TORONTO, and you will receive full particulars of this proposition.

will remain open only about ten days and to a limited number. Write immediately to my Agents, Fraser & Co., 23 Toronto Street, Toronto, Canada. L. W. Spear, Mine Developer.

THE POWER OF IMPERIAL ASSIMILATION.

No great nation since Rome has shown such power of quick and thorough imperial assimilation as Great Britain. Her statesmen know so well how to turn conquered enemies into loyal subjects that it remains an eternal riddle why the empire could not keep its eldest children.

The wiser Great Britain of the last century wins and keeps the loyalty of provincials, whether children or subjects, by large allowance of freedom in local matters, including the native civil and religious institutions of former aliens. Here she only repeats the elder wisdom of Rome, forgotten by the nations to which Rome gave birth in her decay. France, Spain and Holland lost empire in turn because, while they could hybridize races, they could not assimilate institutions and unite independent provincials in a solid empire.

The present council of colonial premiers in London attracts curious attention because Dr. Jameson and General Botha sit in it as premiers of the Transvaal and Cape Colony. Within ten years Dr. Jameson was a prisoner at the English bar for the famous raid and Botha was a commander of hostile forces in the field. Both are now heads of loyal local governments under the empire.

But there is nothing new in this. Beside the Dutch enemy and English rebel in the council of colonial premiers sits the descendant of a proud people who were in America before the British ruled the best part of it for nearly two centuries. The French of Canada, conquered only fifteen years before, remained loyal in the American rebellion, their descendants preserved their religion and civil institutions and one of them, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, governs the great and glorious Dominion now.

For that matter the British imperial ministry seldom lacks a Scot of the country conquered after a thousand years of warfare and made more British than the English.

The Canadian Magazine for May.

The Canadian Magazine for May, although not a showy number, contains some really valuable and interesting contributions. The Imperial Conference at London is attracting a good deal of attention, but all who wish to observe its significance with added intelligence should read what Mr. F. A. Acland has to say about it in an article in the Canadian. He deals with the subject in an instructive way, quite free from bias or impassioned utterance, and those who read the article may depend upon it that the writer is one of the best equipped journalists in the Dominion. "Ottawa: A Retrospect," by Mr. J. E. B. McCready, is extremely interesting, as it affords glimpses of the Dominion Capital about the time of Confederation. "Germany: A Study in Government," by Charles T. Long; "China: A Great Opportunity," by Mr. John Waddell; and an article dealing with the early Victorian poets, by Mr. O. J. Stevenson, are among the other interesting things in the May number, besides five good short stories.

Severe Pains in the Groin

The case of Mr. Chas. F. Olive, for years foreman in the "Gazette" of St. John, N. B., is a striking evidence of the power of Ferrozone.

No remedy has such a record for restoring sufferers from acute stomach and kidney trouble; it invariably does cure.

"For several years" writes Mr. Olive, "I have had kidney trouble and until quite recently I suffered torture. A few months ago my condition assumed a very serious form. I consulted several city doctors, used different pills, but without the slightest benefit. I suffered from an intense pain in the groin, and the increasing seriousness of my trouble prompted me to try Ferrozone. It gave me quick relief, and a half-a-dozen boxes cured. Ferrozone I can recommend as a specific for disordered kidneys."

Won't you try Ferrozone too. 50c. per box at all dealers in medicine.

AN ARGUMENT OF FORCE.

Napoleon Smashed a Vase, and the Treaty Was Signed.

Early in April, 1797, the people of Austria demanded peace with France. Negotiations were begun in the vicinity of Leoben. Bonaparte, in an interview with the Austrian plenipotentiaries, said to them, "Your government has sent against me four armies without generals, and this time a general without an army." In the treaty which the Austrian commissioners projected the first article stipulated that the emperor of Austria thereby recognized the French republic. "Erase it!" exclaimed Napoleon. "The existence of the republic is as plain as the sun. This article is only fit for the blind. We are our own masters and shall establish any government we prefer. If one day the French people," he continued, "should wish to create a monarchy, the emperor might object that he had recognized a republic." The preliminaries were soon settled, Napoleon signing for France, thus placing himself on an equal footing with the emperor of Austria. The formal treaty known as Campo Formio was signed in October, 1797. Austria fulfilling the pledges she had already given. The Austrian plenipotentiary protested against the distribution of the provinces beyond the Adige. Napoleon was angered at this, and, seizing a vase, dashed it to the ground, exclaiming, "If it is not so arranged I will break your monarchy as I have broken this vase!" This argument of force, as demonstrated to the diplomat was convincing, and the treaty was signed.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

Don't Develop the Mind at the Expense of the Body.

The man or woman who would train the mental faculties without any reference to the physical shows a faulty qualification for the work in which he or she may be engaged. The mind may be ever so well trained and stored with knowledge of the books, but unless there is behind it a reasonably strong body life runs the risk of being a failure; if not that, an existence of pain that serves as a limitation upon its possibilities. It is a species of cruelty to educate the mind at the expense of the body. Better let a child grow up into manhood or womanhood with an inferior education than with a better education of the mind and a body weakened in the effort.

The fact that so many men in this country who have succeeded in business and in professional and public life have been the sons of farmers, whose early life has been spent out of doors, has been a subject of remark. May it not be accounted for on the ground that in their boyhood their physique was developed so that in after life, besides their mental acquirements, they had strong bodies with which to do the work they have so successfully performed? This is not only possible, but very probable.

A Stolen Trade Secret.

The manufacture of tinware in England originated in a stolen secret. Few readers need to be informed that tinware is simply thin sheet iron plated with tin by being dipped into the molten metal. In theory it is an easy matter to clean the surface of iron. Dip the iron in a bath of boiling tin and remove it enveloped in the silvery metal to a place of cooling. In practice, however, the process is one of the most difficult of arts. It was discovered in Holland and guarded from publicity with the utmost vigilance for nearly half a century. England tried to discover the secret in vain until James Sherman, a Cornish miner, crossed the channel, insinuated himself surreptitiously into a tin plate manufactory, made himself master of the secret and brought it home.

Women and Jewelry.

"Women know a great deal more about buying jewelry now than they knew twenty-five years ago," said a jeweler. "When I first started in the business a clerk with a persuasive tongue could talk a woman into buying most anything. It wasn't safe for her to step inside a shop unless she had a man along. Now the average woman knows more about jewels than the average man. Of course they can be fooled—anybody can but an expert—but as a rule she buys with a surprising knowledge of value, and her taste in the cutting and setting is excellent."

Brains.

"A man stood on his head twenty minutes in order to win a wager. He died the next day."

"What killed him? Congestion of the brain?"

"No; if he had had any brains he wouldn't have done it."

Specified.

"When in trouble," said the eminent lecturer, "refrain from worrying."

"But, doctor," asked a woman in the audience, "how can we?"

"Anyway," replied the lecturer, "refrain from worrying other people."

Bags For Clothes.

When you are making dust bags to slip over your prettiest dresses, make blue ones for your white things. White will yellow. There's no denying that. Many a pretty party dress, hung away for a little while, has yellowed on the hooks until it is a far cry from the pretty, fresh bit of daintiness it was at first. But a blue bag—one of the deeper china blues is a good depth of color to get—makes a mighty good ounce of prevention.

Gentlemen.

In putting in gathered sleeves, seamstress counts or any work you wish gathers in be even use two threads, one where the seam will be and the other one-fourth of an inch inside first. Remove second thread after sewing, or you can use machine to gather by making tension very loose and drawing up threads. By using second thread it does away with the ugly little plaits so often seen in gathers.

The Dangers of the Mines.

Great and mystically dreadful is the earth from a mine's depth. Man is in the implacable grasp of nature. It has only to tighten slightly and he is crushed like a bug. His loudest shriek of agony would be as impotent as his final moan to bring help from that fair land that lies like heaven over his head. There is an insidious silent enemy in the gas. If the human wheel on the top of the earth should stop for a brief period there is certain death, and a panic more terrible than any occurring where the sun has shone ensues down under the tons of rock. If a man may escape the gas, the floods, the "squeezes" of falling rock, the cars shooting through little tunnels, the precarious elevators, the hundred perils, there usually comes to him an attack of "miner's asthma" that slowly racks and shakes him into the grave.—Stephen Crane.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company; and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore. OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 3000 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $208.00, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $35,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 2c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

Oscard laughed, too, in a strangely staccato manner.

"It is rather a sudden change," observed Meredith, "and all brought about by your coming into that room at that particular moment—by accident."

"Not by accident," corrected Oscard, speaking at last. "I was brought there and pushed into the room."

"By whom?"

"By your father."

Jack Meredith sat upright. He drew his curved hand slowly down over his face—keen and delicate as was his mind—his eyes deep with thought.

"The guv'nor," he said slowly. "The guv'nor!"

He reflected for some seconds.

"Tell me how he did it," he said curtly.

Oscard told him, rather incoherently, between the puffs. He did not attempt to make a story of it, but merely related the facts as they had happened to him. It is probable that to him the act was veiled which Jack saw quite distinctly.

"That is the sort of thing," was Meredith's comment when the story was finished, "that takes the conceit out of a fellow. I suppose I have more than my share. I suppose it is good for me to find that I am not so clever as I thought I was—that there are plenty of cleverer fellows about, and that one of them is an old man of seventy-nine. The worst of it is that he was right all along. He saw clearly where you and I were—damnably blind."

He rubbed his slim brown hands together and looked across at his companion with a smile wherein the youthful self confidence was less discernible than of yore. The smile faded as he looked at Oscard. He was thinking that he looked older and graver—more of a middle aged man who has left something behind him in life—and the sights reminded him of the few gray hairs that were above his own temples.

"Come," he said more cheerfully, "tell me your news. Let us change the subject. Let us throw aside light dalliance and return to questions of money. More important—much more satisfactory. I suppose you have left Durnovo in charge? Has Joseph come home with you?"

"Yes, Joseph has come home with me. Durnovo is dead."

"Dead!"

Guy Oscard took his pipe from his lips.

"He died at Maala of the sleeping sickness. He was a bigger blackguard than we thought. He was a slave dealer and a slave owner. Those forty men we picked up at Maala were slaves belonging to him."

"Ach!" It was a strange exclamation, as if he had burned his fingers. "Who knows of this?" he asked immediately. The expediency of the moment had presented itself to his mind again.

"Only ourselves," returned Oscard. "You, Joseph and I."

"That is all right, and the sooner we forget that the better. It would be a dangerous story to tell."

"So I concluded," said Oscard in his slow, thoughtful way. "Joseph swears he won't breathe a word of it."

"Joseph is all right," he said. "Go on."

"It was Joseph who found it out," continued Oscard, "up at the plateau. I paraded the whole crowd, told them what I had found out, and chucked up the whole concern in your name and mine. Next morning I abandoned the plateau with such men as cared to come. Nearly half of them stayed with Durnovo. I thought it was in order that they might share in the simiacine. I told them they could have the whole confounded lot of the stuff. But it was not that. They tricked Durnovo there. They wanted to get him to themselves. In going down the river we had an accident with two of the boats, which necessitated staying at Maala. While we were waiting there one night after 10 o'clock the poor devil came alone in a canoe. They had simply cut him in slices. A most beastly sight. I wake up sometimes even now dreaming of it, and I am not a fanciful sort of fellow. Joseph went into his room and was simply sick. I didn't know that you could be made sick by anything you saw. The sleeping sickness was on Durnovo then. He had brought it with him from the plateau. He died before morning."

Oscard ceased speaking and returned to his pipe. Jack Meredith, looking haggard and worn, was leaning back in his chair.

"Poor devil!" he exclaimed. "There was always something tragic about Durnovo. I did hate that man, Oscard! I hated him and all his works."

"Well, he's gone to his account now."

"Yes, but that does not make him any better a man while he was alive. Don't let us cant about him now. The man was an unmitigated scoundrel. Perhaps he deserved all he got."

"Perhaps he did. He was Marie's husband."

"The devil he was!"

Meredith fell into a long reverie. He was thinking of Jocelyn and her dislike for Durnovo, of the scene in the drawing room, of the bungalow at Loango; of a thousand incidents all connected with Jocelyn.

"How I hate that man!" he exclaimed at length. "Thank God, he is dead, because I should have killed him."

Guy Oscard looked at him with a slow, pensive wonder. Perhaps he knew more than Jack Meredith knew himself of the thoughts that crossed [illegible] quiet room from those brave and courtly lips.

All the emotions of his life seemed to be concentrated into this one day of Jack Meredith's existence. Oscard's presence was a comfort to him. The presence of a calm, strong man is better than many words.

"So this," he said, "is the end of the simiacine. It did not look like a tragedy when we went into it."

"So far as I am concerned," replied Oscard, with quiet determination, "it certainly is the end of the simiacine. I have had enough of it. I, for one, am not going to look for that plateau again."

"Nor I. I suppose it will be started as a limited liability company by a German in six months. Some of the natives will leave landmarks as they come down so as to find their way back."

"I don't think so!"

"Why?"

Oscard took his pipe from his lips.

"When Durnovo came down to Maala," he explained, "he had the sleeping sickness on him. Where did he get it from?"

"By Jove!" ejaculated Jack Meredith, "I never thought of that. He got it up at the plateau. He left it behind him. They have got it up there now."

"Not now"—

"What do you mean, Oscard?"

"Merely that all those fellows up there are dead. There is £90,000 worth of simiacine packed ready for carrying to the coast standing in a pile on the plateau, and there are thirty-four dead men keeping watch over it."

"Is it as infectious as that?"

"When it first shows itself infectious is not the word; it is nothing but a plague. Not one of those fellows can have escaped."

Jack Meredith sat forward and rubbed his two hands pensively over his knees.

"So," he said, "only you and I and Joseph know where the simiacine plateau is."

"That is so," answered Oscard.

"And Joseph won't go back?"

"Not if you were to give him that £90,000 worth of stuff."

MINES AND QUICK FORTUNES

There are three classes of mining investment—the prospect, the partly developed property and the fully developed mine.

Owing to the small price at which the prospect stocks are sold this class of investment appeals strongly on account of the possibilities of large profits. But this is speculation.

On the contrary the fully developed property has few opportunities for immense profits, its stock is valued on a basis of dividends, and is liable to fluctuations.

The Silver Queen Mine is in the middle class, has proved the body of ore, and in sufficient quantities to warrant a mill on the ground. The price of the stock is 25 cents per share (par value $1) and being situated near Wonder the largest and most phenomenal of all the new camps in Nevada, insures a large and rapid increase in the value of its shares.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

DOUGLAS MINING COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low, being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

CEMENT STOCK THAT WILL EARN NEARLY 100% PER ANNUM

When such a statement as this is made by reputable business men, whose reputation and known ability are beyond reproach, it should challenge the attention of the careful investor. We believe you'll agree with us on that point. Now, the officers and directors of this company are among the class of men who have helped make Kansas City what it is today, whose reputations for sound business acumen are known, and who have invested their own capital in this enterprise because it is one of the very best opportunities to make money that has ever been offered them. So, when they assert that stock in this company will pay nearly 100 per cent., they mean just what they say, and are ready to back up their belief with the cold, unimpeachable facts.

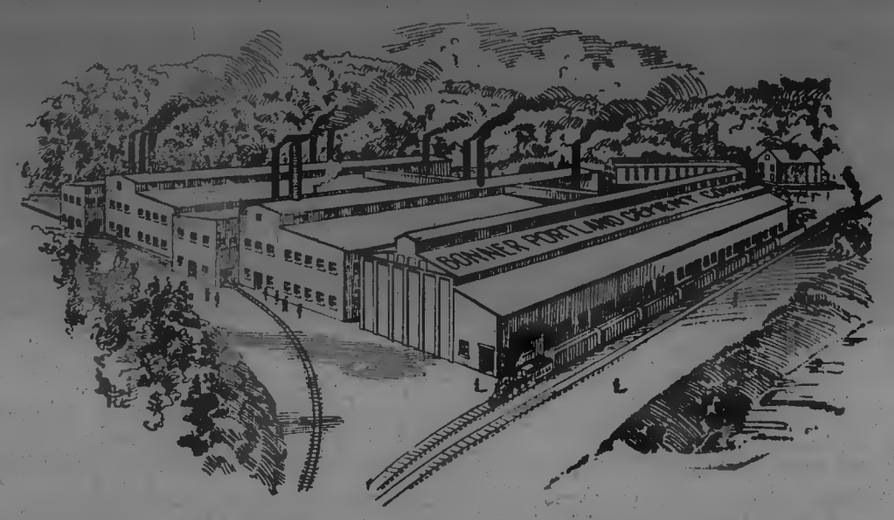
Therefore, can you afford to stand by and fail to join in with them, thereby missing a chance to make a fortune—a chance which may not present itself again for a lifetime? Thousands of people have invested in cement stocks in the past, in the securities of those companies which have been organized in the West, and not one of them has lost a dollar. On the other hand, they have all made money—often comfortable fortunes from comparatively small investments.

The capitalization of this company is very conservative, therefore the earnings will be sure and liberal. Eminent authorities, under their signatures, state that we have a veritable mountain of material, containing all the elements for making the very best Cement. And we have enough cement material to last 200 years or longer—a supply practically inexhaustible.

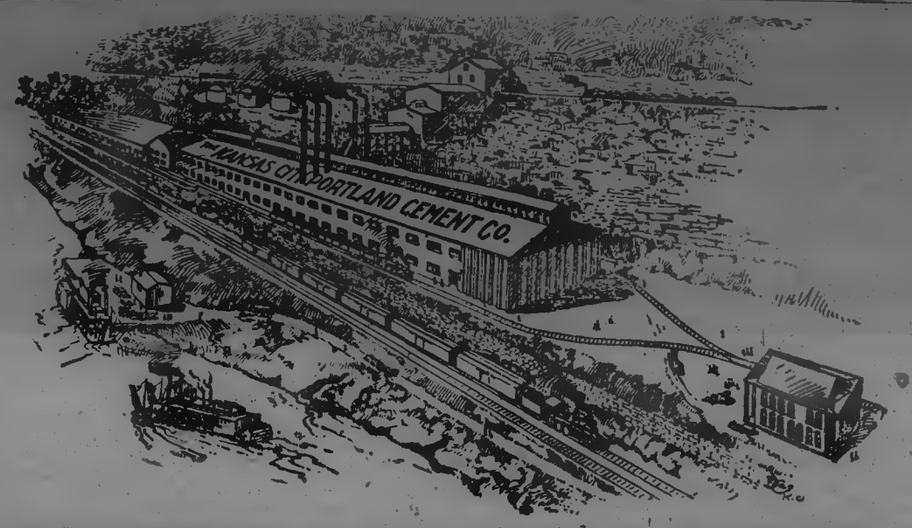
The officers and directors of the company, whose names and identity are given on this page, are all men of known reputation for integrity and business merit, their proven worth being shown by their success in the past. Their investment in this enterprise was made after a careful investigation as to its merits from every standpoint.

Our great advantage over other companies in our ability to pay big dividends lies in the fact that we own the natural gas field at Bonner Springs, and now supply that town with gas. We will have free fuel for the manufacture of our Cement, as well as a revenue of $15,000 a year from our gas franchise alone. As fuel enters largely into the cost of the production of cement, the full force of this statement may be realized by all.

In the distribution of our product we shall have the same advantage in freight rates as if we were located within the corporate limits of Kansas City, as both points carry the same schedule in freight tariffs. It will be the only Cement plant on the great U. P. system, which covers a territory that alone consumes millions of barrels of cement per annum.



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF BONNER PORTLAND CEMENT CO.'S PLANT AT BONNER SPRINGS, KAS., ON WHICH WORK HAS BEGUN, TAKEN FROM ARCHITECT AND ENGINEERS' DRAWINGS.



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE KANSAS CITY PORTLAND CEMENT CO.'S PLANT, 8 MILES NORTH OF INDEPENDENCE, MO.—PROMOTED AND ORGANIZED BY W. H. CAFFERY, ORIGINATOR OF THE CAFFERY SYSTEM OF CEMENT MAKING.

The Market for the Product

Year 1889, consumption..... 239,000 bbls.
Year 1899, consumption..... 2,275,000 bbls.
Year 1900, consumption.....10,868,703 bbls.
Year 1903, consumption.....35,451,000 bbls.
Year 1904, consumption.....42,893,306 bbls.
Year 1905, consumption.....44,000,000 bbls.
Year 1906, consumption.....50,027,121 bbls.

In 1906, therefore, the demand was four times as great as in 1900—a cement famine, however, prevailing uninterruptedly meanwhile.

Cost of Manufacture

The inception of this home corporation is propitious, chiefly because of the hitherto unsupplied demand for Portland Cement in contiguous territory.

Eleven million barrels of Portland Cement are yearly required by States west of the Mississippi, and of this amount, only 6,500,000 barrels are produced in the same territory.

This necessitates the forwarding of 5,500,000 barrels annually from the Eastern source of supply.

Eastern-made cement costs 90c. to produce and brings from $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel, laid down in average points west of the Mississippi River.

The Bonner Portland Cemnet Company, owning 261 acres of virgin ground in the new world-famous producing district of Bonner Springs, Kansas, and being unqualifiedly possessed of every other natural and elementary advantage for the economic production of high class Portland Cement, finds a ready market for its products even at standard competing prices.

But inasmuch as the successful location and operation of an enterprise of this character not only depends upon the extent and quality of the raw material deposits, but upon the cost of fuel, labor, transportation facilities, etc., it is therefore apparent that the Bonner Portland Cement Company is assured of a future second to that of no other Western plant, for with its unusual advantages the company can profitably produce superior Portland Cement at the lowest possible price.

No product in all the world has a wider application to useful purposes than Portland Cement.

Property of the Company

The property comprised in the 261 acres abound in immeasurabe quantities of first quality cement rock and shale.

These lie in close proximity, but are distinctly separate each from the other. They immediately adjoin the corporate limits of Bonner Springs, Kansas, at the intersection of the Union Pacific and Santa Fe Railroads at a point sixteen miles west of Kansas City.

The mill site is most favorably located on high ground and near the water's edge of the Kansas (or Kaw) River, which flows alongside the entire tract. Thus is the cement plant assured an unfailing water supply, as well as advantageous water transportation and shipping facilities.

The cement product in the United States in 1906 was valued at $54,-015,779, an increase of $18,007,531.

Our Free Fuel Supply

The company is even now operating its own natural gas plant. (Let it be understood that Bonner Springs is in the very heart of a great natural gas field in Kansas). The company's gas plant is at present supplying, under permanent arrangements, a large brick plant, a sanitarium, several churches, schools and 704 families.

The company owns a twenty-year franchise to supply natural gas to the municipality, and receives 3c cents net per thousand cubic feet for local consumption. There are now 301 meters in operation and an equal number will soon be added. The entire supply required by the town is furnished by one of the company's five wells; the other four are completely capped, waiting to supply cheap fuel for the company's Cement Plant upon the day of its completion. A tract of four thousand acres of natural gas land is held by lease and provides unlimited fuel resources.

The gas plant, independent of all other assets, will pay 5 per cent. on $500,000 of the capital stock of the company. In addition to this, it will furnish free fuel for the Cement plant, and cost of fuel is one of the biggest items in the manufacture of Portland Cement.

There were 45,810,822 barrels of Portland Cement manufactured in the United States last year—and not a barrel of surplus stock left over.

The Demand for Cement

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is situated in the very heart of the natural markets of the West. Kansas City alone requires 1,400 barrels of cement each calendar day in the year. The freight rate from Bonner Springs to Kansas City is 20 cents per barrel less than that of any other plant in Kansas. No less important is the fact that this is the only cement property on the entire Union Pacific railroad, with its 2,565 miles of track traversing the tributary territory, and embracing, Denver, Portland, and San Francisco. This field alone—Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon—would consume three or four times as much cement as the company's mill can furnish.

The foregoing also magnifies the immense benefits possessed by the company for the transportation of its products. The connection with the Santa Fe contributes unparalleled transportation advantages. Adjoining the Kansas River, as the property does, it will be seen that river transportation affords relief in times of an overburdened condition of railway traffic.

The Raw Materials

The economic side of the Bonner Portland Cement Company's proposition is enhanced because of its preponderance of supply, together with the extremely fine qualities of its raw materials and their accessibility. In no other cement property, regardless of location, may be found a better grade of both rock and shale. Furthermore, the necessity of stripping the shale and rock of this property is eliminated because of the fact that the materials extend to the surface. The rock, being soft in texture, when blasted, fractures along both horizontal and vertical lines, assuming the form of small cubes, in which shape it can be powdered most advantageously and least expensively.

Presently, millions upon millions of additional barrels of cement will enter into the manufacture of railroad supplies and equipments, while we may reasonably expect to see the major portion of our dwellings, ten or twenty years hence, made solely of concrete.

The Caffery System Will be Used

The company will operate under the Caffery system.

Right here it is not amiss to state that Mr. Caffery, the founder of this very practical method and one of the founders of the Bonner Company, has proven to the public his uncommon ability in the pursuit of the Cement industry by the fine success which he achieved in the organizing and promoting of the Kansas City Portland Cement Co.. In co-operation with his engineer, Mr. Caffery personally selected and purchased every machine, every tool and every piece of material that was used in the construction of this mammoth and successful plant—a monument in itself to his mastery of the business, even in its most trifling details.

It was here that Mr. Caffery demonstrated and proved to the stockholders that the Caffery system effects a saving of 25 per cent. in the cost of construction as against the system formerly used.

It was Mr. Caffery, who first introduced large kilns in the manufacture of the product west of the Mississippi River. In the construction and equipping of mills, Mr. Caffery anticipates all competition, not alone because of his genius for the work, but for the reason that he has surrounded himself with the most expert assistants and in co-operation with the most complete and skilled engineering force in the United States—the Freeborn Engineering and Construction Company.

The Bonner Company will receive the undivided benefit of his ablest management, while the mill will boast of the most modern exemplification of the Caffery system to date installed.

Cement is logically the steel and iron of the future. To it the builders of subsequent decades must turn. It seems to distinctly indicate a new cycle in the mysterious omnipotence of the forces surrounding us.

Cost and profits

As previously stated by virtue of its natural advantages, the Bonner property can produce its finished product at a cost of 40 cents per barrel.

The current price of Cement is $1.65 per barrel. This means a net profit to the company of $1.25 per barrel, or a net earning of $2,000.00 per day on a 1,600-barrel mill which it will erect. Thus it will be seen that the company will expect to earn the enormous profit of $730,000 per annum on a 1600-barrel mill, independent of a profit of $15,000 ret per annum which will accrue from the operation of the gas plant.

Here is represented an earning of almost 100 per cent. per year, not a visionary earning, but a profit based on cold, hard facts and indisputably correct calculation, due to the fact that this company will have free fuel, unsurpassed facilities in transportation, and accessibility of its raw material.

The science of Cement Construction has merely begun, and as its achievement progresses, it will be with extreme difficulty that supply keeps apace with demand.

Purpose of the Company

The company will erect a mill of 1,600 barrels' daily capacity. This mill will be built in two sections, each with a capacity of 800 barrels. The first section is to be built and put into operaton at once, thus enabling the company to pay early dividends on its stock. With the first section completed, the company will offer the balance of its stock, from the proceeds of the sale from which the other section of the mill will be builded.

If we are inclined to look upon our disappearing forests and visible supply of iron as a condition of predestination, it is well to note that this evolution of the world's mineral resources is also in perfect harmony with the demands of the hour. For, in cement, is found a building material superior to any which has heretofore been employed.

As a Safe Investment

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is capitalized for $800,000 preferred, and $1,200,000 in common—an amount sufficiently large to warrant the floating of this herculean undertaking, and small enough to enable the earning of a substantial dividend.

The stock is being floated under the well known Caffery system. Through this unique and clever plan of organization, each stockholder receives one full share of common stock with each share of preferred stock purchased.

The preferred stock is offered at par.

In the economic scheme of the world's industrial development, civilization has passed through the Stone and Bronze Ages; and the Iron Age, which is now in its zenith, will soon decline in favor of the Age of Concrete.

The safeguard of Your Investment

In considering this investment from the standpoint of safety, understand that there is no prospecting or experimenting to be done, no chances to be taken.

Money invested will go directly and immediately into the property itself, and were all the company's physical assets to be wiped out of existence tomorrow, by storm, cyclone or other calamity, $800,000 in cold cash would still be represented in the imperishable wealth of the rock and shale deposits of its 261 acres, together with its natural gas plant and franchise.

Perhaps the greatest safeguard of any investment of this character is the personal ability and integrity of the men at the head of the enterprise. This company is extremely fortunate in being possessed of that factor of success in a most unusual degree. The company will receive the competent and expert business management of men who are thoroughly familiar with every detail of the cement business, and whose experiences in the cement business have been exceptionally successful.

The visible supply of iron ore in the United States will be exhausted in fifty years, and this information comes from no less an authority than the Swiss Parliament. The world's workers will then look in vain to our timber resources, which, ever, are limited to a frightening degree.

Bonner Portland Cement Company, Kansas City, Mo.

Gentlemen:—After having examined your property at Bonner Springs, Kansas, we beg to submit the following report thereon:

We found the location of the raw material in a ledge 100 feet high, about three-fourths of a mile east of the town of Bonner Springs, immediately adjoining the right of way of the Union Pacific Railway and alongside the Kaw River. It is also easily reached by a switch from the A., T. & S. F. Ry., whose line between Kansas City and Leavenworth crosses the Kaw River about one-half mile west of the proposed plant. The plant site is immediately east of the east side of the rock ledge.

The raw material is unusually accessible, requiring no stripping. The Limestone is forty-three feet thick and immediately above a stratum of shale twenty feet thick.

The analysis of the shale and limestone follow:

	SHALE.	LIMESTONE.
Si O$_2$	64.06	1.24
Al$_2$O$_3$	20.61	.40
Fe$_2$O$_3$	4.64	.16
Ca O	1.80	54.06
Mg O	1.96	.38
S O$_3$	.00	.00
Alkali	1.54	.00
Loss on ignition	6.80	42.44

We have had cement made from the raw material taken from this property. It showed light in color and made into briquettes and tested after one day averaged over 360 lbs.; after seven days, the test averaged over 575 lbs. Pats of neat cement after six hors of steaming showed no sign of checking or cracking.

Your company has 261 acres of rock and shale property, which will last over two hundred years in the operation of proposed plant.

A particularly advantageous feature of this location is the supply of natural gas immediately upon the property. The five producing wells here supply gas to the town of Bonner Springs at a profit sufficient to cover all expense incident to the operation of the gas lines to and at the plant, making the cost of fuel to your company at this location nothing and will pay a nice revenue in addition.

We figure the price of coal at $2.50 per ton, and fuel oil at 65 cents per barrel. In burning coal producing cement 210 pounds are used per barrel, which makes the fuel per barrel of cement cost $0.26. Therefore, operating a 1,600 barrel plant, say 360 days per year, using coal for fuel, means a fuel bill of $151,200.00 per annum.

In using fuel oil costing 65 cents per barrel, and consuming twelve gallons of oil per barrel of cement produced, the cost of fuel per barrel of cement will be $0.18. By using fuel oil, therefore, the annual expense for fuel, of a 1,600 barrel plant, will be $107,136.00.

It is evident then, that by using gas on this site, a minimum saving of over $100,000.00 per annum can be made over a plant using other fuel.

The accessibility of the raw material and its immense quantity, the excellent facilities for shipment to all points, the ample water supply so near at hand, the free fuel and the propinquity of a rapidly growing market, mark this as one of the most desirable properties for the manufacture and distribution of Portland Cement which we have examined in ten years.

Yours very truly,
THE FREEBORN ENG. & CONST. CO.

Excerpts from S. J. Hatch's Letter

S. J. Hatch, Civil and Mining Engineer, of Kansas City, Mo., who has made a critical examination of the company's property, says: "The location for your plant is ideal." "The Kaw River between Kansas City and Bonner Springs has an average of about three feet of water the year round." "Your raw material is the best in Kansas for Portland Cement." "There is over five times as much natural gas in your field as you will use in the cement plant."

With such a proposition as this one before the investing public it need not be surprising if this advertisement will prove the first and last announcement which the company will make—for its stock will be snapped up by discriminating investors. Therefore, we would advise you to make your reservations for stock at once, either in person or by wire. Remember, with each share of preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock, sold at par, one share of common will be given.

Concrete is in the day of its ascendancy, being unqualifiedly adapted to all modern and accepted building uses.

WARSHIPS RUN BY GAS

ENGLISH NAVY MAY TAKE RADICAL NEW DEPARTURE.

In Order to Enable Effective Mounting of Big Guns They Must Be Placed So As to Fire On Either Broadside—This Means Doom of Steam Engines—Problem Already Solved.

The battleship of the future is to be a strangely weird looking craft if designs which have been worked out prove practicable. The Institution of Naval Architects has been holding a conference in London this week, and one of, if not the most important, paper read and discussed was one which dealt with "the influence of machinery on the gun power of the modern warship," and showed that if the large guns are to be effectively mounted they must all be placed so as to fire on either broadside.

In the Dreadnought of the ten twelve inch guns only eight can fire on either broadside. To enable all ten to fire with the utmost effect it was shown that the funnels must be abolished and also all deck erections. But if the funnels are to be eliminated steam can no longer be used, and the boiler must go.

The great firm of Vickers have faced this fact and after three years of almost continuous research and work have now perfected a system of gas machinery for propelling ships. The explosion engine, in a word, is to replace the steam engine.

Strange Looking Warship.

The design for such a vessel has been worked out. It has no funnels, and is thus an extraordinary looking craft. Its speed will be higher than that of any existing battleship. Its dimensions are moderate, but it carries batteries more powerful than even the Dreadnought, since all of its ten guns can fire on either beam, and six ahead or astern. This is to be the ship of the future.

Admiral Sir E. Fitzgerald, who opened the discussion, deprecated the adoption of too hasty a generalization from the result of one battle—meaning that of the sea of Japan. He remembered the battle of Lissa, and, because one vessel was rammed and sunk there, every warship for thirty years was fitted with a monstrosity on its bows called a ram, which had sunk many a friend but never a foe. With regard to the adoption of oil as fuel, he wondered what would happen if a shell came into the oil reservoir; whether the oil would all run out, if it did not explode, and the ship would be left without fuel; or, if one set of tanks escaped, there would be a heavy list to one side.

Admiral Sir C. Noel said if the marine gas engines foreshadowed could be produced there was no doubt they would be of great value, because they would give ships a higher speed and a much wider radius of action.

Counts Up Advantages.

Admiral Sir E. Fremantle observed there could be no question of the advantages which would ensue if battleship decks could be cleared of the incumbrance of funnels and similar appliances necessary with steam engines. One of the things which would result would be that ships would not be liable to a sudden reduction in speed from the destruction of funnels. Internal combustion engines would get rid of that, but it was usually found that with all improvements introduced there was generally an increased possibility of damage and destruction.

Sir William White pointed out that in attempting to reduce the diameter and the weight of turrets the exposed position of the guns was liable to destruction. At the battle of Tsushima this portion in some cases had been shot entirely away. With regard to oil or gas engines he believed their day was coming.

Lieut. A. T. Dawson believed the advent of gas engines for marine use was nearer than Sir William White and many more appeared to realize.

Lent-to-London.

There have been more marriages during Lent this year than for many years. This is shown in society getting less observant of the Lenten season than was the case when there was a sort of decorous attention to high church feelings even when they were not personally shared.

This year the ritualists are keeping Lent with more severity than are the Roman Catholics, for, owing to the prevalence of influenza, the latter are largely dispensated from fasting. On the other hand, a certain ritualist who is allied to the "half peerage" told a friend that in Lent she never dined out, ate meat, drank wine, or had sugar in tea. Also she attended church twice daily, went to confession weekly, had no pillow on her bolster, and rose the instant she was called in the morning.

Whether that be only a case of extreme self-mortification is not known, but it would seem that the fierce strictures of Father Vaughan on the wickedness of the "smart set" is having some effect in certain sections of society where reform of a most serious character is in progress. Bridge is giving way to a brief lecturette and cardrooms are becoming salons.

And He Fled.

The creator of Sherlock Holmes and Brigadier Gerard, is a man of many stories. Here is one: At a dinner party he asserted that every man of 40 or over had a skeleton in the cupboard, something in his past which were better unknown. This was challenged. Sir Conan held to his belief, and the diners arranged a test. To a gentleman whom they all knew, a man in a very high position, and of the greatest integrity, they sent a telegram as follows: "All is discovered; flee at once." The recipient fled, and has never been heard of since.

MALE VISITORS.

Girls Should Be Careful Before Inviting Men to Call.

It almost goes without saying that in the matter of receiving calls from young men very young girls must be guided entirely by the wishes of their parents. Girls going to school are not supposed to receive any special attention from either men or boys and are not usually permitted by their parents to receive calls from their boy friends in the evening unless perhaps upon the night preceding the school holiday, when they may see several of their young friends, girls and boys together, but rarely a boy alone.

For older girls there are really no set rules as to how and when they may invite men to call upon them. Much depends upon the manner and place of meeting. A girl does not usually ask a man whom she meets casually for the first time to call upon her. She finds it a better and safer plan to wait until she has met him several times, knows him a bit better and has decided whether or not she would care to include him among her friends. She thus avoids the possibility of placing herself in an awkward position later by being obliged to discontinue his acquaintance. Giving pain in any way is always to be avoided as bad form and showing lack of nice feeling.

On the other hand, if she meets a man at the home of some well known friends and he shows her special courtesy, such, for instance, as accompanying her to her home after the entertainment, and she realizes by his manner and apparent interest that he would like to continue her acquaintance, she may, if she finds him agreeable, invite him to call upon her or say when she is thanking him for his attention that she hopes to see him again. If he really wishes to call upon her he will undoubtedly then say so, and if he asks when she will be at home she may tell him when she is usually at home or designate, if he wishes it, a certain time. In the instance of a man and girl being introduced by mutual friends who have specially arranged the meeting through compliment alone to this man and girl, the girl should invite the man to call upon her.

Men usually call between 8 and 9 o'clock when they are making evening calls and should never remain later than 10 o'clock or, at very latest, half past 10.—Pittsburg Press.

Your Own Body.

Think deliberately of the house you live in—your body. Make up your mind not to abuse it. Eat nothing that will hurt it; wear nothing that distorts or pains it. Do not overload it with victuals or drink or work. Give yourself regular and abundant sleep. Keep your body warmly clad. At the first signal of danger from any of the thousand enemies that surround you defend yourself. Do not take cold; guard yourself against it. If you feel the first symptoms, give yourself heroic treatment. Get into a fine glow of heat by exercise. This is the only body you will ever have in this world. A large share of pleasure and pain of life will come through the use you make of it. Study deeply and diligently the structure of it, the laws that should govern it, the pains and penalties that will surely follow a violation of every law of life or health.

Torpedo Boats.

Torpedo boats and torpedo destroyers are thin skinned, unarmored craft. Often the steel hull is only about half an inch in thickness, but they travel as fast as many railway trains, some thirty or thirty-five miles an hour. They discharge their deadly bolt and run. A dark, stormy night is their chance. Then, without a light showing, they dash in and launch their torpedo, escaping, if they can, the hail of rapid fire that is sure to deluge them. —Frank E. Channon in St. Nicholas.

Force of Habit.

Realizing that he should pay her a compliment, the chronic debtor hesitates before the beautiful woman. At last he says to her:

"Just make a little tab for me, and next time I'm down your way I'll tell you how well you are looking."

But the look on her countenance was enough to make him realize that compliments must be paid on face value and that beauty keeps no books.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Isolation of Nicholas II.

The czar lives alone, with the czarina and their children, in a little maisonnette at Peterhof, apart from the immense palace. It is the house of a bourgeois on holiday, quite isolated under great trees by the seashore. No guard is visible. Thus the master of Russia lives retired from his empire and even from his court.—Revue de Paris.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $34,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Mr. Joseph L. Wyatt desires to acknowledge with gratitude through The Times, the receipt of a cheque for $500, from the Woodmen of the World, in settlement of insurance on the life of his beloved son, Frederick George, who passed away on March last.

Bank Offices Enlarged

The Times was yesterday informed that the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, which will soon be moved into the quarters recently occupied by the Bank of Ontario will tear down the partition between the old Bank of Ontario premises and the eastern part of Messrs. Hamilton & Co.'s former store, for the past few months occupied by the Dominion Bank.

57th Regiment to March

A short march out is expected to be held by the gallant local regiment tonight, with both brass and bugle bands accompanying. The regiment will leave the drill hall at eight o'clock and the route of parade is as follows; George street to Charlotte, Charlotte to Water, Water to Hunter, to George, and along George to Central Park. It is expected that there will be a big turnout especially as this is the first marchout.

Inspector Ball on Old Fields

Referring to the recent general cowardly poisoning of many valuable and valued dogs in this city, Sanitary Inspector Ball is authority for saying that scores of cats have met untimely death. There have been poor pussys gone to their happy hunting grounds. He wondered how it was that the old maids in the city had never been heard of. The only reason that has been heard so far, is that there are no old maids in Peterborough, they are all women suffragists.

Successful Tenderers for Bridges

Contracts for steel and concrete bridges have been awarded by the Provincial Government as follows;—Over the Gull River, at Minden, Haliburton County, Jenks & Dresser, of Sarnia; at Hissy's Rapids, Muskoka District, R. M. Roy, Hamilton; bridge at Gooderham, in East Victoria, contractors, Dickson Bros., Campbellford; bridges at Larchwood and Thessalon, Algoma District, contractors, Ontario Bridge Company, Toronto.

Local Soldiers Get Decorations

Section 75 of general orders for the Canadian militia, just issued contains information to the effect that the officers' long service decoration has been awarded to Col. Greenwood, officer formerly commanding the 3rd Dragoons, now in Africa, and also that the long service medal has been awarded to Orderly Room Sergeant R. A. W. Hay, of the 24th Field Battery.

Sergeant Hay has been connected with the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers; 14th Field Battery and the 24th Field Battery, of which corps he is prominently identified at present.

P.C. McGinty in the Hospital

We regret to say that P. C. McGinty, one of Peterborough's oldest and most popular policemen, who has been ill for some weeks, was yesterday so low in condition of health as to be impelled by advice of his physician to be conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital. It is currently reported that P. C. McGinty is in a very precarious condition and that his recovery is very doubtful. The Times hopes against the present condition and trusts that this useful member of the force may be restored to the place he has for many years occupied so satisfactory.

Joke on Former Local Man

Belleville Intelligencer, referring to a former, and still popular in memory, resident of this city, Dr. Coughlin, now superintendent of the Deaf and Dumb Institute of that city, says that the doctor recently had small placards printed, bearing the legend, "Dirty, clean up." These he has conspicuously pasted everywhere where cleaning was needed. The staff scrubbed and sweated, but the more they cleaned, the more that placard appeared to bob up in unexpected places. Finally, one afternoon, loud sounds of mirth were heard coming from the office of the "chief Wash." After a short absence from his den he had returned, and there on his desk, staring him in the face, was one of his own placards. Being a gentleman and an sensible man, he of course, took the joke in excellent part.

New churches are being erected in different parts of Algoma and Nipissing, and the membership of all the parishes is increasing.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, sour risings or "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

New Hook and Ladder Waggon to Cost $1625

Will be Purchased from Seagrave People Immediately if Council Endorses Board of Works Recommendation In Short Session of Committee Last Night.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council met last night, when there were present, Major McWilliams, Chairman Ald. Johnston, and Aldermen Duncan and Morgan.

Mr. Doane, manager of the Bell Telephone, was present, and advised the Board on the question of installing alarm bells and phones in the houses of Foreman Packenham of the fire hall, and Fire Chief Rutherford, so that the bell alarms would ring in both these men's houses.

Mr. Doane, advised that it would not be wise to load up the circuit by connecting both houses, although one connection would perhaps make no material difference.

The one gong, without an additional bell connection upstairs in the new hall, would it was considered be sufficient to awaken the men at night.

Mr. Murdock advised the board that the four-door electrical openers would cost $100 and installation extra.

Chief Rutherford informed the board that since Mr. Packenham has assumed Wainwright's place in charge of the fire hall the latter has refused to sleep in the building, and properly so, contended the chief, as it would not be fair to expect the engineer to assume the foreman's responsibility at night, under the present change.

The mayor contended that under the engagement it was part of Mr. Wainwright's duties to sleep in the hall.

It transpired that it had always been understood that two of the three fire hall men slept in the premises, they each taking a night off turn about.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That a tapper bell be installed in Mr. Packenham's house.—Carried.

The board will consider the advisability of installing phones in the chief's and Packenham's houses later on.

NEW EQUIPMENT.

Chairman Johnston reported that the Seagrave people, of Walkerville, would furnish a hook and ladder wagon, with boat of ladders, for $1625, on car at Walkerville. Wagon and equipment to be guaranteed for five years.

The committee are awaiting prices for construction of a combination hose and chemical wagon by a local man, one tender only being to hand.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by the mayor,—That the board accept the Seagrave people's tender of $1625 for a new hook and ladder wagon, and that the committee be authorized to make this purchase.

The press were requested to furnish the public information as to the method of using the new fire alarm system, the chairman to furnish the press with all particulars of the system in detail.

Handsome Cup for Baseball Players

Mr. (Arthur Johnston the local baseball enthusiast has arranged with Manager Ferris of the Arctic Baseball Club, Toronto, to have a cup, valued at $50, awarded to the winner of the series of games between these two teams on May 24th and 25th. The trophy will be ordered at once. Two games are being played on Victoria Day, and one on the Saturday following, May 25th, and the cup will go to that team that takes two games. The Arctics will bring down a strong team.

Hookey Played on Roller Skates

It now looks like roller skating hockey is going to capture local fancy. A meeting has been held at the Charlotte street roller rink, with S. J. Sheridan presiding, to consider this new departure in local sports.

It was decided to have a match between two picked teams on Friday evening between 10 and 11 o'clock. Mr. Harvey Staunton was assigned to pick one team and Mr. Frank Clancy the other. The rink management are furnishing the players with their skates free of charge for the first practice and the rink will also be given free. The game will be played seven men aside, and with ordinary hockey sticks. For a puck, a hard rubber ball, covered with leather, will be used.

Serious Fight on George Street

Talking about prize fighters, about four o'clock yesterday morning the midnight workers of The Times staff, whilst busily engaged in putting up the latest news for our subscribers were for some time prevented from working by a fight in front of the offices of the g.f.j. The scrappers were not of the two-legged but four-legged and long tail class, viz. two well developed and husky Thos. cats, who had presumably quarrelled over the favors denied or granted, as may be, by some Miss Tubitha cat. The Toms held a session, not of prayer, well illustrated at every page. They fought rough and tumble, catch-as-catch can, dig in where your claws will reach or any old way that would tell. After some 15 minutes heart to heart, or claw to claw discussion one of the Toms left, as one of our operators swears to, with a grin on its face and the other Tom's ear in its jaws. It reminds one of the pithy story of the Kilkenny cats, which says;

"Two Tom cats of Kilkenny,
Both thought the other too many;
They fought and they spit,
They clawed and they bit,
Until, instead of two cats
There weren't any.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—At a meeting of Russian and Japanese delegates at the Foreign Ministry yesterday, the text of a commercial treaty and a protocol and diplomatic notes concerning mutual concessions were agreed to. Formal signature of the papers is expected soon.

WOMEN PAY MORE

Medical examiners of insurance companies say that the reason a woman pays more for the privilege of insurance than a man, is from the fact that women more readily fall victims to indigestion and stomach troubles and the fatal ailments that spring from these causes.

All persons, they say, who have a weakened digestive system and suffer from sick headache, dizzy spells, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion, soon lower the tone of the whole system and are most susceptible to a fatal illness.

For curative power in all stomach troubles, nothing else is as safe yet effective, nothing else can be thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known, and is really one of the valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not the acute attacks that influence the insurance examiners alone, but the constant feelings of weakness, headaches, indigestion and stomach troubles—these things, physicians say, kill more people than many more serious diseases.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mions Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

A Bear Which Drank Several Bottles of Beer

Good Free Exhibition on the Market Square Yesterday.

Several score of local citizens gathered yesterday morning round the market square, watching a couple of Frenchmen put a trained bear through its tricks. The bear was really worth going a fine distance to see. One of the Frenchmen, with a long red beard that looked like France does not breed barbers (and anyone who has had a shave in Paris will endorse this statement). He of the beard wrestled with bruin in a way that fortitude all need for the cry of "Fake." A Times representative watching the performance, in French, asked the men as to whence they and the bear came from. The man replied that they came from Southern France, but that the year, a large one of the "brown" breed was captured in the Pyrheunce Mountains. One feature of the show was that when any onlooker would purchase a bottle of beer the bear would take the bottle between the two inch claws of its fore feet and insert the neck in its mouth and quickly drain the extract of malt and hops where it would do the most good. The show whilst free, except from an occasional hat passing for five cent pieces, was decidedly free and well worth several times the nickle the Frenchman would take and say "Merci Monsieur!"

Richards' Case Again Enlarged

Judgment in the case of Wm. Richards, who was charged last Tuesday with being disorderly in Mrs. Kerr's house, Hunter street, is again reserved for one week. Mr. and Mrs. Richards were to have moved out within a week. Mrs. Richards, who was present yesterday morning, stated that Mrs. Kerr would allow them to stay if they lived quietly. She informed the magistrate that she did not like having to appear so many times, adding she was having much trouble. She asked a policeman to telephone to Springville to tell her two sons to come to her city as they could help her out of some other trouble.

Belleville Lady Takes Prizes

Mrs. Charles Wilmot, of Belleville, has taken several prizes at the Toronto Horse Show. In class 57, single ponies in harness, mare or gelding, not over 14.1 and over 13.1, 1st $25; 2nd $15, 3rd $10. Mrs. Wilmot took first with her little beauty, Black Silk. In class 63, best saddle pony, mare or gelding, 14.1 and under, ridden by boy of 16 and under. Mrs. Wilmot was given fourth place in a field of field of eleven entries.

In class 26, mare or gelding, over 14.2, not over 15.2; first $30; 2nd $20, 3rd $15. Mrs. Wilmot's Love Letter was entered, but was not shown. Mrs. Wilmot's Black Silk also took first prize in class 62, pony with best boy or girl rider.

Troops are Ready for Instant Use

Allahabad, British India, May 8.—Five native lawyers who are alleged to have been the ringleaders of the agitation which led to the rioting at Rawalpindi, have been arrested and placed in jail, bail being refused. A mob subsequently attacked the residence of the district magistrate and assistant magistrate, did much damage and assaulted several Europeans before the rioters were dispersed. Troops are still patrolling the city.

Quiet has temporarily been restored at Rawalpini, but the artillery is held in readiness for emergency and a detachment of the Royal Irish Rifles is on its way there from Murree.

MOVEMENT IS SPREADING.

Simla, British India, May 8.—Racial animosity is undoubtedly becoming increasingly manifest in parts of Northern India. The Hindus, particularly the educated and student classes, are hostile to the Europeans, any unpopular act forming a pretext for attacks on inoffensive and unarmed Europeans. That the movement originating in Bengal has spread to the Punjab is evidenced by the outbreaks, trifling in themselves, at Rawalpindi. The situation is being carefully watched.

Turkish Troops Cut Down

London, May 7.—It was announced this afternoon in a special despatch from Constantinople that several battalions of Turkish troops have practically been annihilated during a battle with rebels in the Province of Yemen, Turkish Armenia. The commander-in-chief of the Turkish forces is urgently calling for reinforcements.

HAYWOOD TRIAL OPENS TOMORROW

Miners' Leaders Arraigned for the Murder of Steuenberg.

CASE GOES BACK FOR YEARS

Many Murders and Acts of Violence Alleged Against Them

Boise, Idaho, May 8.—William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, will be placed on trial tomorrow, charged with the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho. In all four men are in custody, charged with the same offence; they are William D. Haywood, Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners; George A. Pettibone, a former member of the executive board of the organization, and Harry Orchard, a member of the federation.

Orchard, it is alleged, made a confession in which he admitted that he killed the former governor, and, it is alleged, implicated the other men under arrest, and others, as accessories before the fact. Under the law of the State of Idaho, while it is admitted that Haywood, Pettibone and Moyer were not in the State of Idaho at the time of teh murder, they are charged with the actual murder, the contention under the statute being that they were on the spot in spirit; that they planned and, therefore, compassed the death of Steunenberg.

The history of the case goes back to the conflict between the union and non-union miners in the Coeur d'Alenes region, or what is known as the Panhandle country, in that strip of mountainous country, rich in lead and silver ore, under the shadow of the Great Divide, between Idaho and Montana. The background to the Steunenberg case is the momentous struggle in the Coeur d'Alenes, lasting seven years, and involving the dispatch of State militia and finally of United States troops by President McKinley to the scene of the trouble, centering around the mining towns of Wallace, Gem and Wardner. To the part Steunenberg played in those stirring days, an example followed later by the governors of Colorado, the prosecution goes for the motive of the acts charged against the accused.

It is alleged that for revenge and unrelenting determination to carry a campaign of terrorism, so as to impress with their power, daring and loyalty, and to retain the moral and financial support of some thirty thousand followers, the members of an "inner Circle" of the Western Federation of Miners planned and executed a long series of murders and acts of violence, mediaeval in conception and Nihilistic in execution.

It is charged that Harry Orchard and Steve Adams, now under arrest and charged with the commission of other murders, were the hired agents and actual executors of many of these malevolent plots.

These crimes, it is charged, can be traced through the last fifteen years.

SYMPATHY IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 7.—Two long lines of men and women—probably 20,000, of them—trailed in parade form through the streets of the Upper and Lower East Side yesterday to demonstrate their sympathy for Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, of the Western Federation of Miners, now on trial on the charge of killing ex-Governor Steunenberg. Resolutions protesting against every phase and incident of the Moyer-Haywood-Pettibone case were adopted. A copy of the resolutions will be sent to every member of Congress, the justices of the Supreme Court, and the president. A collection was then taken up for the defence fund of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone.

A REPLY FROM ROOSEVELT.

In a letter read before the Central Federated Union, President Roosevelt states that if evidence is submitted to him that there has been a miscarriage of justice for and against Moyer and Haywood, awaiting trial at Boise, Idaho, charged with the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, he will bring such evidence to the attention of the Attorney-General, for such action, if any, as it may be the power for the Federal authorities to take.

The communication was the formal reply to the committee of the union, which recently called upon Mr. Roosevelt in Washington, and requested him to set forth in general his attitude toward the accused men, and specifically why he referred to Moyer and Haywood as "undesirable citizens."

Mrs. Wm. Kerr Has Passed Away

Tomorrow afternoon the last mortal remains of the late Mrs. Wm. Kerr of the east ward, will be laid to rest in the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral leaving her son's residence 434 Lake street, at three o'clock.

The late Mrs. Kerr was born at Newcastle, England, 84 years ago. Her maiden name was Ann Hayden. She came to Canada in 1835 and settled in Cobourg. In 1847 she was married to her late husband, Wm Kerr, and resided in Colderprigs until about 18 years ago, when they removed to this city. Her husband predeceased her five years ago. The late Mrs. Kerr was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church, and attended St. Andrew's.

Four sons and two daughters are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Messrs. John Kerr, east ward; James and William, Cobourg, and Edward, of Toronto. The daughters are Mrs. R. Thrief, Otonabee, and Miss Annie, at home. One sister, Mrs. Wm. Bamlrop, Bethune street, this city, also survives her.

Improvements in Cavanagh's Hotel

Peterboro's Veteran Hotelman Makes Great Changes.

Mr. T. Cavanagh generally known as "Ted," is having great improvements made in his present location. Mr. Cavanagh is undoubtedly the oldest hotelkeeper in this city and is possibly the best known hostlee in Peterborough. It is in the memory of even the rising generation, that Mr. Cavanagh, a few years ago occupied and operated the present National Hotel, and those older will remember that this venerable host carried on a hotel business when the Bank of Commerce now stands.

Some time since Mr. Cavanagh acquired possession of the former Phelan House on Simcoe street. This property has recently passed into the possession of Mr. F. Montgomery, and Mr. Cavanagh has secured a five years' lease of it.

Yesterday a host of workmen were engaged in making improvements in this many years old hotel. To begin with, four large French plate glass windows have been inserted, one in the bar, one in the downstairs sitting rooms, and two in the dining room. This greatly improves and modernizes the appearance of the building. In addition to this, Mr. Cavanagh is having new hardwood floors placed in the sitting and other rooms; the bar room is being entirely changed. In this room a metallic ceiling is being inserted and an entirely new and up-to-date bar is to be placed to the westwall of the room. The interior improvements include paper hanging, painting, etc., throughout the whole hotel. In the yard, a staff of workmen were yesterday engaged in placing granolithic walks from Simcoe street all around the hotel as well as a granolithic floor on the cellar. Mr. Cavanagh now considers that his hotel is second to none in thecity.

London, May 8.—It is stated that the British Government has decided to make a grant of $750,000 gratis to Jamaica, and to guarantee the island a loan of $5,000,000 to assist in its rehabilitation.

European Mails via North Sydney

An important announcement is made in our advertising columns by the Intercolonial Railway. Commencing Friday, May 10, a special train, with sleeping and dining car attached, will leave Montreal at 7.45 p.m. and run right through to North Sydney, for the purpose of carrying the European mail and such passengers as prefer the shorter Ocean voyage. At North Sydney a comfortable steamer will be in waiting, and immediately after the arrival of the mail special will transfer the mail, passengers and their baggage to the mail steamer, which will have left Montreal two days earlier. This arrangement is expected to be continued weekly until the northern route, via the Straits of Belle Isle, is free from ice, when Rimouski will become the mail port. The inward European mail steamships will also deliver their mail at North Sydney during the same period.

To Dig up Buried City

Rome, May 7.—A bill has been presented in the Chamber of Deputies providing for a $200,000 lottery, with the proceeds of which it is proposed to carry out excavations at the site of the Roman amphitheater at Benevento, the town founded, tradition says, by Diomedes, and possessing Trajan's triumphal arch, which is the finest and best preserved of all the Roman structures.

The amphitheater at Benevento is lying almost intact under a number of old houses occupied by poor people.

The Immigration Movement

Ottawa, May 8.—Mr. W. J. White, inspector of immigration agencies in the United States, who has recently returned from a trip through the Western States, reports that the interest in Western Canada is as widespread as ever. The tieup on Western Canadian railways, however, will prevent as large an influx of Americans as usual at this time of year. The department considers it oly fair to the would-be settlers and to Canada as well to advise them to hold back until transportation conditions are improved. American railways decline to allow their freight cars to cross the boundary, which makes it all the more difficult for settlers to get into Canada with their effects.

M'GREGOR & REID'S TENDER.

Mr. W. H. Hill, acting chairman of the Collegiate Institute Building Committee, presented the following report which was adopted as follows;

Gentlemen,—Your Building Committee, beg leave to report that the tender of Messrs. McGregor & Reid for the heating of the Collegiate Institute at $4800 be accepted. They to use the Triumph boilers and Dominion Radiator Company's goods, they to furnish bonds for the satisfactory performance of the contract; and that the chairman and secretary be authorized to sign the contract on behalf of the board, and that as soon as the contract and bonds are signed their cheques be returned to them at their tender to cover temporary heating.

A deputation of ladies from the Y.W.C.A. was admitted and addressed the board relative to the teaching of domestic science to pupils up to and including the 4th classes. This matter was referred to the Supervision Committee.

Mr. Hill brought up the matter of infectious diseases in schools, backing up his remarks by a most undeniably authoritative and somewhat startling newspaper clipping.

Mr. Robinson brought up the subject of a janitor for the King Edward school. He thought the building was too valuable and too exposed to be, even for a month or two without some one in charge. The matter was referred to committee on appointments with power to act.

Mr. Hill moved that the chairman of the Committee on Appointments be instructed to advertise for two teachers for the King Edward.

Mr. Pringle brought up the subject of text books and supplies for next year. He moved that the chairman of the Supervision Committee be allowed to act in the matter. He noted that the present system of supplying children with books, etc., has a little more than paid for itself.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Pringle, for Mr. Dumble, that $100 be spent for trees about the King Edward school. This was seconded by Mr. Flair, and carried, the expenditure not to exceed $150.

Mr. Robinson brought up the matter of the poor style of steps by which the King Edward school is reached. Mr. Burnham moved that the committee in charge of this school should look into the matter and ascertain the cost of cement steps.

Pipe Presented to Popular Employee

Still another of the original staff of the Canadian General Electric Company, one of the seventy-eight, who came with the company from Sherbrooke, Que., on the inception of the local plant, in the person of Mr. R. H. Shepherd, who is leaving the city, has been remembered by his comrades of the works. It might be noted that Mr. Shepherd is one of the six original employees.

A pleasing function was held Monday night in the Young Conservative Club rooms, when Mr. Shepherd was presented with a beautiful pipe enclosed in a handsome case, along with the following address;

Mr. R. H. Shepherd,—As you are about to leave Peterborough, we the old boys from Sherbrooke, wish to add our respects to those already expressed to you. You have in your long service of eighteen years for the several companies, behaved yourself, so that you merited the commendation that time has given you upon this occasion of which you are told by all ranks of the service.

We say farewell with the deepest regret, and wish you good health and prosperity to this world's goods.

(Signed),
W. H. G. Armstrong.
Geo. Davey.
Frank Derrick.
Wm. Jones.
A. W. Paterson.
R. E. Layfield.

Mr. Shepherd made a suitable response.

Member Bradburn Arranges a Date

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., was in Toronto yesterday, arranging with Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, for an interview with the special power committee of the Peterborough City Council, consisting of Mayor McWilliams, Aldermen Stevenson and and Bradburn. The committee expects to go to Toronto in a few days. The question to be taken up is that of the purchase of the Peterborough Light & Power Co.'s plant. The committee decided to see what the Hydro-Electric Commission could do for the city along the line mentioned above.

Your Carpets Cleaned and Disinfected

Five Billion Feet of Timber

And Twenty Thousand Acres of Coal Land is owned by the

GRAHAM STEAMSHIP, COAL AND LUMBER CO.

The Company controls by contract 100,000 acres of timber land yielding forty thousand feet to the acre of spruce, red cedar, yellow cedar, hemlock and western pine, all on deep water and level ground; also twenty thousand acres of coal land with an equal yield of timber.

This property is located on Graham Island, which is about sixty miles west of Port Simpson, the terminus of the proposed transcontinental railroad known as the Grand Trunk Pacific, and is on a direct line by water to all Pacific coast points, Alaska, Australia, Mexico, Panama and the Orient.

For the purpose of raising sufficient money to complete the purchase price of the Company's property and to purchase equipment for operating purposes, a portion of the stock is offered for a limited time at figures and terms that will be given upon application. A competent and experienced manager will be needed when operations begin.

We invite a thorough investigation of our people and property before investing. The Company has arranged for a boat to make a trip to the property from Seattle this month, furnishing an opportunity for a full investigation. CALL ON OR COMMUNICATE WITH

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

I have the claims. I have the gold. I have assays of $8,000 per ton and up. I have samples of ore where the gold is so thick in the quartz that it would be almost like assaying gold dollars to get its value. I am incorporating a Company under Ontario laws with 1,000,000 shares of $1.00 each, to take over and operate these rich claims.

I will issue a limited number of shares to a few investors at a very low price for about ten days. Then I will put the shares of my Company on the market for subscription at an advanced price. I will put men at work after May 1st to push development as rapidly as possible. I believe the shares of my Company will soon go up to 50, 60, 70, 80 cents and $1.00 par.

With me you will be interested with THE MAN ON THE GROUND—in the Mine—with mining men of wide experience. Write immediately to my Agents, P. V. FRASER & Co., 23 TORONTO STREET, TORONTO, and you will receive full particulars of this proposition.

RECURRING HEADACHES

Do They Bother You ?

You fine life a miserable affair because you have headaches, but you have neither nausea nor are you weak—You know if you could only prevent headaches you would enjoy perfect health.

Such headaches indicate a general lowered condition, because they arise from a general decay of the nervous system.

This depressed condition of the nervous system has its origin in the reduction of the quality and quantity of the blood.

The digestive organs are not supplying it with sufficient nutritive matter.

If you had used Ferrozone you would know how powerfully all the digestive and assimilative functions of the body are stmulated.

Ferrozone does more—it supplies all the elements that are essential to the rebuilding of the body—supplies the reconstructive forces that contribute to the formation of rich, red blood.

You see, Ferrozone doesn't treat a symptom—it remedies a cause—and that's why a month's treatment will absolutely remove every vestige of recurring nervous headaches.

Nothing like Ferrozone to build you up, to give the reserve of force, that happy health that contributes so much to happiness and contentment.

Ferrozone will make you feel like new, try it—sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

THE FITTEST FAMILIES

"The greatest problem of civilization is to be found in the fact that the well-to-do families tend to die out; there results in consequent a tendency to the elimination, instead of the survival of the fittest." This is President Roosevelt's latest utterance on race suicide. But "the well-to-do families" are not necessarily the "fittest." More often than not they are the unfittest. The president himself is one of the rarest instances in the republic's history of the scion of a "well-do-do family" who has held his own in competition with the children of the poor. The men who have made Canada what it is were almost without exception born with the great advantage of poverty on their side. And there is quite as good an argument in favor of the progressive disappearance of the well-to-do as there is in favor of their increased families.

"Princes and Lords may flourish or may fade,
A breath can make them as a breath hath made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once they're lost can never be supplied."

THE SECURITY OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE.

The strange story comes from Lahore that rifles and cartridges have been served out to English volunteers as a safeguard against a possible uprising of the Hindu population. Something like this has been vaguely foreshadowed ever since the awakening of new hope and spirit among the subject races of Asia by the astonishing victories of Japan.

Even before that many predicted at least intellectual revolt against British rule in India as a result of the policy of education of the natives and their employment in subordinate branches of the public service. The present unrest seems to have taken its rise among the Hindu students. From there it spread to the native press, which has been full of articles demanding national control of India through a native parliament.

Agitators are said to have been inciting race hatred in various directions, which has been expressed in local riots, scattered attacks on the English and labor troubles on the government railways. The government is preparing to suppress these by force and the formation of English volunteers in various cities of India is a natural step for protection of civil servants and their families.

The idea of a native uprising in India is disquieting to those who remember the horrors of the mutiny of half a century ago, without reflecting on the causes of its prompt collapse and the great change in conditions. The chief security of the Indian empire is the same division of races, nations and religions that made its conquest so easy.

The danger of the mutiny of 1857 was the apparent union of Mohammedan and Hindu elements, though the latter left the former to do all the fighting. Since then the more vigorous races that profess the Mohammedan religion have been largely enlisted in the Indian army. They have their own religious teachers and have not cared to take part in the education that has turned the head of the feebler and more volatile Hindu.

It is said that the Mohammedan populations are now unanimous in support of the government and this may well be believed in the light of their former experience of Hindu treachery and weakness. Probably the new mutiny will evaporate in big words.

MAY HAVE SEVENTY MILLION

New York, May 6.—The attorneys representing the relatives of James Henry Smith have been informed that he made a will distributing several million dollars by different bequests, but holding the larger part of the estate for the benefit of the son of his sister, Mrs. Mason.

With the exception of a residuary legacy to Mrs. Mason, the largest bequest in the will is said to be one of three millions to Smith's sister, Lady Mary Cooper. The will is said to give ten millions to the widow.

With the reading of the will after the funeral, a man hitherto in modest circumstances, will be placed among the ranks of the wealthiest American multi-millionaires, with the possibility of seventy millions at his command, and with the opportunity to compromise with contestants, if he wishes, the estate kept out of courts.

TO KEEP THEM AT HOME

Rome, May 6.—The government today presented a bill to parliament providing for stricter emigration relugations, and adding Messina to Genoa, Naples and Palermo as ports from which emigrants may leave Italy. Returning emigrants will be allowed only on steamers authorized by the Italian government. Steamers violating this rule will be fined $20 for each returning emigrant over the first 30.

Emigrant passage rates are to be established by the foreign minister January 1 and July 1 of each year. The government reserves the right to prevent anyone from emigrating if it is considered detrimental to his interests to leave Italy. No company can carry emigrants unless it has at least two steamers. Returning Italians who became naturalized Americans can become Italian citizens again by establishing a domicile or living here three years.

ICELAND FOR OWN FLAG

Copenhagen, May 6.—An agitation for a special Icelandic flag is being strongly pressed in Iceland. The country holds a favored position in the Danish monarchy, and all its demands, particularly in the direction of home rule, have been granted in recent years. Denmark maintains, however, that so long as Iceland belongs to her the Danish flag must be the emblem of the islanders.

The municipality of Reykjavik has agreed to display an Icelandic flag during the contemplated visit of the king, and there are reports that nationalistic demonstrations of other sorts will be made. Foreign nations having trade and fishing interests in Iceland are encouraging the movement, and would be glad to see Iceland entirely separated from Denmark.

The American Department of Agriculture has ordered different kinds of Icelandic seeds and potatoes from the agricultural society in Reykjavik, proposing to experiment with them in Alaska.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though surely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

A PRIVILEGE RESERVED.

Ceremonies Witnessed at a Jeweler's Ring Counter.

"I want a plain gold ring for a lady. Best you've got in the store."

"For this lady?"

"Sure! Who else would it be for? Pull off your glove, Katie, and let the gentleman measure your finger."

The girl withdrew her woolen glove and bashfully extended her small hand, red and toil worn, toward the clerk.

"There, that's about the size," said the jeweler to the girl.

"Do you wish him to put it on?"

"No—not yet," said the blushing girl. "When he puts that ring on, it's on to stay."

Size, quality and price at last were settled satisfactorily, and the young man pulled from his pocket a shining coin.

"Here you are, gold for gold!" he exclaimed proudly. "Nothin' but gold I'll pay for that ring."

"Haven't you anything smaller?" asked the sordid clerk.

"Plenty, but nothin' good enough to pay for that ring."

"Bit of sentiment, eh?" queried an interested bystander.

"Oh, yes, sir," said the girl, with evident pride. "He's been saving that twenty dollar gold piece for nearly four months, waiting to buy this ring."

The Youth of Ellen Terry.

Ellen Terry, who has been repeating again her early successes with the public, is just 60 years of age. This vivacious heroine of a hundred parts began acting when she was only eight years and two months old—her wages, as Mamillius in Charles Kean's production of "The Winter's Tale," being fifteen shillings a week. "Do you know," she said, nearly fifty years later, "that my difficulty with Sir Henry Irving was that I could not convince him that I had grown too old for youthful parts? He couldn't see it, and so, after twenty-two years, we parted." And Sir Henry when he heard it, confirmed this explanation, saying: "I never thought Ellen Terry too old for any part she ever played."

The English of It.

An English actor of some prominence was dining with some friends in this country. One of them asked him if he had found any American plays that he thought he could use in England. "Oh, yes," he replied, "I have seen one or two that I fawncy will be on the other side. In fact, I have entered into negotiations for several. One that appeals to me strongly is a play called 'Ten Evenings in a Public House,' where I shall play John Morgan, and another is named 'Uncle Thomas' Residence,' which has a fine part for me in Marks, the barrister."

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

CEMENT STOCK THAT WILL EARN NEARLY 100% PER ANNUM

When such a statement as this is made by reputable business men, whose reputation and known ability are beyond reproach, it should challenge the attention of the careful investor. We believe you'll agree with us on that point. Now, the officers and directors of this company are among the class of men who have helped make Kansas City what it is today, whose reputations for sound business acumen are known, and who have invested their own capital in this enterprise because it is one of the very best opportunities to make money that has ever been offered them. So, when they assert that stock in this company will pay nearly 100 per cent., they mean just what they say, and are ready to back up their belief with the cold, unimpeachable facts.

Therefore, can you afford to stand by and fail to join in with them, thereby missing a chance to make a fortune—a chance which may not present itself again for a lifetime? Thousands of people have invested in cement stocks in the past, in the securities of those companies which have been organized in the West, and not one of them has lost a dollar. On the other hand, they have all made money—often comfortable fortunes from comparatively small investments.

The capitalization of this company is very conservative, therefore the earnings will be sure and liberal. Eminent authorities, under their signatures, state that we have a veritable mountain of material, containing all the elements for making the very best Cement. And we have enough cement material to last 200 years or longer—a supply practically inexhaustible.

The officers and directors of the company, whose names and identity are given on this page, are all men of known reputation for integrity and business merit, their proven worth being shown by their success in the past. Their investment in this enterprise was made after a careful investigation as to its merits from every standpoint.

Our great advantage over other companies in our ability to pay big dividends lies in the fact that we own the natural gas field at Bonner Springs, and now supply that town with gas. We will have free fuel for the manufacture of our Cement, as well as a revenue of $15,000 a year from our gas franchise alone. As fuel enters largely into the cost of the production of cement, the full force of this statement may be realized by all.

In the distribution of our product we shall have the same advantage in freight rates as if we were located within the corporate limits of Kansas City, as both points carry the same schedule in freight tariffs. It will be the only Cement plant on the great U. P. system, which covers a territory that alone consumes millions of barrels of cement per annum.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE KANSAS CITY PORTLAND CEMENT CO.'S PLANT, 3 MILES NORTH OF INDEPENDENCE, MO.—PROMOTED AND ORGANIZED BY W. H. CAFFERY, ORIGINATOR OF THE CAFFERY SYSTEM OF CEMENT MAKING.

The Market for the Product

Year 1880, consumption..... 339,000 bbls.
Year 1890, consumption..... 2,275,000 bbls.
Year 1900, consumption.....10,868,703 bbls.
Year 1905, consumption.....25,451,000 bbls.
Year 1901, consumption.....92,303,306 bbls.
Year 1905, consumption.....44,000,000 bbls.
Year 1906, consumption.....50,927,321 bbls.

In 1905, therefore, the demand was four times as great as in 1900—a cement famine, however, prevailing uninterruptedly meanwhile.

Cost of Manufacture

The inception of this home corporation is propitious, chiefly because of the hitherto unsupplied demand for Portland Cement in contiguous territory.

Eleven million barrels of Portland Cement are yearly required by States west of the Mississippi, and of this amount, only 5,500,000 barrels are produced in the same territory.

This necessitates the forwarding of 5,500,000 barrels annually from the Eastern source of supply.

Eastern-made cement costs 90c. to produce and brings from $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel, laid down in average points west of the Mississippi River.

The Bonner Portland Cemnet Company, owning 261 acres of virgin ground in the new world-famous producing district of Bonner Springs, Kansas, and being unqualifiedly possessed of every other natural and elementary advantage for the economic production of high class Portland Cement, finds a ready market for its products even at standard competing prices.

But inasmuch as the successful location and operation of an enterprise of this character not only depends upon the extent and quality of the raw material deposits, but upon the cost of fuel, labor, transportation facilities, etc., it is therefore apparent that the Bonner Portland Cement Company is assured of a future second to that of no other Western plant, for with its unusual advantages the company can profitably produce superior Portland Cement at the lowest possible price.

No product in all the world has a wider application to useful purposes than Portland Cement.

Property of the Company

The property comprised in the 261 acres abound in immeasurable quantities of first quality cement rock and shale.

These lie in close proximity, but are distinctly separate each from the other. They immediately adjoin the corporate limits of Bonner Springs, Kansas, at the intersection of the Union Pacific and Santa Fe Railroads at a point sixteen miles west of Kansas City.

The mill site is most favorably located on high ground and near the water's edge of the Kansas (or Kaw) River, which flows alongside the entire tract. Thus is the cement plant assured an unfailing water supply, as well as advantageous water transportation and shipping facilities.

The cement product in the United States in 1906 was valued at $64,015,779, an increase of $18,003,531.

Our Free Fuel Supply

The company is even now operating its own natural gas plant. (Let it be understood that Bonner Springs is in the very heart of a great natural gas field in Kansas). The company's gas plant is at present supplying, under permanent arrangements, a large brick plant, a sanitarium, several churches, schools and 201 families.

The company owns a twenty-year franchise to supply natural gas to the municipality, and receives 25 cents net per thousand cubic feet for local consumption. There are now 201 meters in operation and an equal number will soon be added. The entire supply required by the town is furnished by one of the company's five wells; the other four are completely capped, waiting to supply cheap fuel for the company's Cement Plant upon the day of its completion. A tract of four thousand acres of natural gas land is held by lease and provides unlimited fuel resources.

The gas plant, independent of all other assets, will pay 6 per cent. on $900,000 of the capital stock of the company. In addition to this, it will furnish free fuel for the Cement plant, and cost of fuel is one of the biggest items in the manufacture of Portland Cement.

There were 45,610,812 barrels of Portland Cement manufactured in the United States last year—and not a barrel of surplus stock left over.

The Demand for Cement

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is situated in the very heart of the natural markets of the West. Kansas City alone requires 1,400 barrels of cement each calendar day in the year. The freight rate from Bonner Springs to Kansas City is 20 cents per barrel less than that of any other plant in Kansas. No less important is the fact that this is the only cement property on the entire Union Pacific Railroad, with its 2,525 miles of track traversing the tributary territory, and embracing, Denver, Portland, and San Francisco. This field alone—Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon—would consume three or four times as much cement as the company's mill can furnish.

The foregoing also magnifies the immense benefits possessed by the company for the transportation of its products. The connection with the Santa Fe contributes unparalleled transportation advantages. Adjoining the Kansas River, as the property does, it will be seen that river transportation affords relief in times of an overburdened condition of railway traffic.

The Raw Materials

The economic side of the Bonner Portland Cement Company's proposition is enhanced because of its preponderance of supply, together with the extremely fine qualities of its raw materials and their accessibility. In no other cement property, regardless of location, may be found a better grade of both rock and shale. Furthermore, the necessity of stripping the shale and rock of this property is eliminated because of the fact that the materials extend to the surface. The rock, being soft in texture, when blasted, fractures along both horizontal and vertical lines, assuming the form of small cubes, in which shape it can be powdered most advantageously and least expensively.

Presently, millions upon millions of additional barrels of cement will enter into the manufacture of railroad supplies and equipments, while we may reasonably expect to see the major portion of our dwellings, ten or twenty years hence, made solely of concrete.

The Caffery System Will be Used

The company will operate under the Caffery system.

Right here it is not amiss to state that Mr. Caffery, the founder of this very practical method and one of the founders of the Bonner Company, has proven to the public his uncommon ability in the pursuit of the Cement industry by the fine success which he achieved in the organizing and promoting of the Kansas City Portland Cement Co.. In co-operation with his engineer, Mr. Caffery personally selected and purchased every machine, every tool and every piece of material that was used in the construction of this mammoth and successful plant—a monument in itself to his mastery of the business, even in its most trifling details.

It was here that Mr. Caffery demonstrated and proved to the stockholders that the Caffery system effects a saving of 25 per cent. in the cost of construction as against the system formerly used.

It was Mr. Caffery who first introduced large kilns in the manufacture of the product west of the Mississippi River. In the construction and equipping of mills, Mr. Caffery anticipates all competition, not alone because of his genius for the work, but for the reason that he has surrounded himself with the most expert assistants and is in co-operation with the most complete and skilled engineering force in the United States—the Freeborn Engineering and Construction Company.

The Bonner Company will receive the undivided benefit of his ablest management, while the mill will boast of the most modern exemplification of the Caffery system to date installed.

Cement is logically the steel and iron of the future. To it the builders of subsequent decades must turn. It seems to distinctly indicate a new cycle in the mysterious omnipotence of the forces surrounding us.

Cost and profits

As previously stated by virtue of its natural advantages, the Bonner property can produce its finished product at a cost of 40 cents per barrel.

The current price of Cement is $1.85 per barrel. This means a net profit to the company of $1.25 per barrel, or a net earning of $2,000.00 per day on a 1,600-barrel mill which it will erect. Thus it will be seen that the company will expect to earn the enormous profit of $750,000 per annum on a 1600-barrel mill, independent of a profit of $15,000 ret per annum which will accrue from the operation of the gas plant.

Here is represented an earning of almost 100 per cent. per year, not a visionary earning, but a profit based on cold, hard facts and indisputably correct calculation, due to the fact that this company will have free fuel, unsurpassed facilities in transportation, and accessibility of its raw material.

The science of Cement Construction has merely begun, and as its achievement progresses, it will be with extreme difficulty that supply keeps apace with demand.

Purpose of the Company

The company will erect a mill of 1,600 barrels' daily capacity. This mill will be built in two sections, each with a capacity of 800 barrels. The first section is to be built and put into operaton at once, thus enabling the company to pay early dividends on its stock. With the first section completed, the company will offer the balance of its stock, from the proceeds of the sale from which the other section of the mill will be builded.

If we are inclined to look upon our disappearing forests and visible supply of iron as a condition of predestination, it is well to note that this evolution of the world's mineral resources is also in perfect harmony with the demands of the hour. For, in cement, is found a building material superior to any which has heretofore been employed.

As a Safe Investment

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is capitalized for $800,000 preferred, and $1,200,000 in common—an amount sufficiently large to warrant the floating of this herculean undertaking, and small enough to enable the earning of a substantial dividend.

The stock is being floated under the well known Caffery system. Through this unique and clever plan of organization, each stockholder receives one full share of common stock with each share of preferred stock purchased.

The preferred stock is offered at par.

In the economic scheme of the world's industrial development, civilization has passed through the Stone and Bronze Ages; and the Iron Age, which is now in its zenith, will soon decline in favor of the Age of Concrete.

The safeguard of Your Investment

In considering this investment from the standpoint of safety, understand that there is no prospecting or experimenting to be done, no chances to be taken.

Money invested will go directly and immediately into the property itself, and were all the company's physical assets to be wiped out of existence tomorrow, by storm, cyclone or other calamity, $800,000 in cold cash would still be represented in the imperishable wealth of the rock and shale deposits of its 261 acres, together with its natural gas plant and franchise.

Perhaps the greatest safeguard of any investment of this character is the personal ability and integrity of the men at the head of the enterprise. This company is extremely fortunate in being possessed of that factor of success in a most unusual degree. The company will receive the competent and expert business management of men who are thoroughly familiar with every detail of the cement business, and whose experiences in the cement business have been exceptionally successful.

The visible supply of iron ore in the United States will be exhausted in fifty years, and this information comes from no less an authority than the Swiss Parliament. The world's workers will then look in vain to our timber resources, which, even, are limited to a frightening degree.

Mr. W. H. Caffery, Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sir:—In enclose with this letter a report to date of the cement material which we received from Mr. Freeborn. The cement which we made was of excellent quality and indicates that that the material is eminently suited for the manufacture of high grade Portland Cement.

In making the report, I should have mentioned that the sand briquettes were made with 3 parts standard Sandusky sand.

Very truly yours,
(Copy.) R. C. CARPENTER,

Bonner Portland Cement Company, Kansas City, Mo.

Gentlemen:—After having examined your property at Bonner Springs, Kansas, we beg to submit the following report thereon:

We found the location of the raw material in a ledge 100 feet high, about three-fourths of a mile east of the town of Bonner Springs, immediately adjoining the right of way of the Union Pacific Railway and alongside the Kaw River. It is also easily reached by a switch from the A., T. & S. F. Ry., whose line between Kansas City and Leavenworth crosses the Kaw River about one-half mile west of the proposed plant. The plant site is immediately east of the east side of the rock ledge.

The raw material is unusually accessible, requiring no stripping. The Limestone is forty-three feet thick and immediately above a stratum of shale twenty feet thick.

The analysis of the shale and limestone follow:

	SHALE.	LIMESTONE.
Si O2	64.08	1.24
Al 2 3 O	20.61	.40
Fe O	5.64	.16
Ca O	.80	54.06
Mg O	1.96	.33
S O3	.00	.00
Alkali	1.54	.00
Loss on ignition	6.80	43.44

We have had cement made from the raw material taken from this property. It showed light in color and made into briquettes and tested after one day averaged over 300 lbs.; after seven days, the test averaged over 575 lbs. Pats of neat cement after six hors of steaming showed no sign of checking or cracking.

Your company has 261 acres of rock and shale property, which will last over two hundred years in the operation of proposed plant.

A particularly advantageous feature of this location is the supply of natural gas immediately upon the property. The five producing wells here supply gas to the town of Bonner Springs at a profit sufficient to cover all expense incident to the operation of the gas lines to and at the plant, making the cost of fuel to your company at this location nothing and will pay a nice revenue in addition.

We figure the price of coal at $3.50 per ton, and fuel oil at 65 cents per barrel. In burning coal producing cement 210 pounds are used per barrel, which makes the fuel per barrel of cement cost $0.36. Therefore, operating a 1,600 barrel plant, say 300 days per year, using coal for fuel, means a fuel bill of $161,280.00 per annum.

In using fuel oil costing 65 cents per barrel, and consuming twelve gallons of oil per barrel of cement produced, the cost of fuel per barrel of cement will be $0.13. By using fuel oil, therefore, the annual expense for fuel, of a 1,600 barrel plant, will be $107,136.00.

It is evident then, that by using gas on this site, a minimum saving of over $100,000.00 per annum can be made over a plant using other fuel.

The accessibility of the raw material and its immense quantity, the excellent facilities for shipment to all points, the ample water supply so near at hand, the free fuel and the propinquity of a rapidly growing market, mark this as one of the most desirable properties for the manufacture and distribution of Portland Cement which we have examined in ten years.

Yours very truly,
THE FREEBORN ENG. & CONST. CO.

Excerpts from S. J. Hatch's Letter

S. J. Hatch, Civil and Mining Engineer, of Kansas City, Mo., who has made a critical examination of the company's property, says: "The location for your plant is ideal." "The Kaw River between Kansas City and Bonner Springs has an average of about three feet of water the year round." "Your raw material is the best in Kansas for Portland Cement." "There is over five times as much natural gas in your field as you will use in the cement plant."

With such a proposition as this one before the investing public it need not be surprising if this advertisement will prove the first and last announcement which the company will make—for its stock will be snapped up by discriminating investors. Therefore, we would advise you to make your reservations for stock at once, either in person or by wire. Remember, with each share of preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock, sold at par, one share of common will be given.

Concrete is in the day of its ascendancy, being unqualifiedly adapted to all modern and accepted building uses.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

"And you will not go back?"

"Not for £900,000. There is a curse on that place."

And such was the end of the great simiacine scheme—the wonder of a few seasons. Some day, when the great Sahara is turned into an inland sea, when steamers shall ply where sand now flies before the desert wind, the plateau may be found again. Some day, when Africa is cut from east to west by a railway line, some adventurous soul will scale the height of one of many mountains, one that seems no different from the rest and yet is held in awe by the phantom haunted denizens of the gloomy forest, and there he will find a pyramid of wooden cases surrounded by bleached and scattered bones where vultures have fed.

In the meantime the precious drug will grow scarcer day by day, and the human race will be poorer by the loss of one of those half matured discoveries which have more than once in the world's history been on the point of raising the animal called man to a higher, stronger, finer development of brain and muscle than we can conceive of under existing circumstances. Who can tell? Perhaps the strange, solitary bush may be found growing elsewhere—in some other continent across the ocean. The ways of nature are past comprehension, and no man can say who sows the seed that crops up in strange places. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and none can tell what germs it bears. It seems hardly credible that the plateau, no bigger than a cricket field, far away in the waste land of central Africa, can be the only spot on this planet where the magic leaf grows in sufficient profusion to supply suffering humanity with an alleviating drug, unrivaled—a strength giving herb unapproached in power. But as yet no other simiacine has been found, and the plateau is lost.

And the end of it was two men who had gone to look for it two years before—young and hearty—returning from the search successful beyond their highest hopes, with a shadow in their eyes and gray upon their heads.

They sat for nearly two hours in that room in the quiet house in Russell square, where the cabs do not pass, and their conversation was of money. They sat until they had closed the simiacine account, never to be reopened. They discussed the question of renouncement and after due consideration concluded that the gain was rightly theirs, seeing that the risk had all been theirs. Slaves and slave owner had both taken their cause to a higher court, where the defendant has no worry and the plaintiff is at rest. They were beyond the reach of money—beyond the glitter of gold—far from the cry of anguish. A fortune was set aside for Marie Durnovo, to be held in trust for the children of the man who had found the simiacine plateau; another was apportioned to Joseph.

"Seventy-seven thousand one hundred and four pounds for you," said Jack Meredith at length, laying aside his pen; "seventy-seven thousand one hundred and four pounds for me. And," he added, after a little pause, "it was not worth it."

Guy Oscard smoked his pipe and shook his head.

"Now," said Jack Meredith, "I must go. I must be out of London tomorrow morning. I shall go abroad—America or somewhere."

He rose as he spoke, and Oscard made no attempt to restrain him.

They went out into the passage together. Oscard opened the door and followed his companion to the step.

"I suppose," said Meredith, "we shall meet some time, somewhere?"

"Yes."

They shook hands.

Jack Meredith went down the steps almost reluctantly. At the foot of the short flight he turned and looked up at the strong, peaceful form of his friend.

"What will you do?" he said.

"I shall go back to my big game," replied Guy Oscard. "I am best at that. But I shall not go to Africa."

CHAPTER XXIV.

"I RATHER expect—Lady Cantourne," said Sir John to his servants when he returned home, "any time between now and 10 o'clock."

The butler, having a vivid recollection of an occasion when Lady Cantourne was shown into a drawing room where there were no flowers, made his preparations accordingly. The flowers were set out with that masculine ignorance of such matters which brings a smile—not wholly of mirth—to a woman's face. The little used drawing room was brought under the notice of the housekeeper for that woman's touch which makes a drawing room what it is. It was always ready, this room, though Sir John never sat in it. But for Lady Cantourne it was always more than ready.

Sir John went to the library and sat rather wearily down in the stiff backed chair before the fire. He began by taking up the evening newspaper, but failed to find his eyeglasses, which had twisted up in some aggravating manner with his necktie. So he laid aside the journal and gave way to the weakness of looking into the fire.

Once or twice his head dropped forward rather suddenly so that his clean shaven chin touched his tie pin, and this without a feeling of sleepiness warranting the relaxation of the spinal column. He sat up suddenly on each occasion and threw back his shoulders.

"Almost seems," he muttered once, "as if I were getting to be an old man."

After that he remembered nothing until the butler, coming in with the lamp, said that Lady Cantourne was in the drawing room. The man busied himself with the curtains, carefully avoiding a glance in his master's direction. No one had ever found Sir John asleep in a chair during the hours that other people watch, and this faithful old servant was not going to begin to do so now.

"Ah," said Sir John, surreptitiously composing his collar and voluminous necktie, "thank you."

He rose and glanced at the clock. It was nearly 7. He had slept through the most miserable hour of Millicent Chyne's life.

At the head of the spacious staircase he paused in front of the mirror, half hidden behind exotics, and pressed down his wig behind either ear. Then he went into the drawing room.

Lady Cantourne was standing impatiently on the hearth rug, and scarcely responded to his bow.

"Has Jack been here?" she asked.

"No."

She stamped a foot, still neat despite its long journey over a road that had never been very smooth. Her manner was that of a commander in chief, competent but unfortunate in the midst of a great revenge.

"He has not been here this afternoon?"

"No," answered Sir John, closing the door behind him.

"And you have not heard anything from him?"

"Not a word. As you know, I am not fortunate enough to be fully in his confidence."

Lady Cantourne glanced round the room as if looking for some object

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5300 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assayays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 20 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Cleveland's Great Co-Operative Department Store and Mail Order Institution

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money.

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:

W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.
D. A. McFARLANE, Treasurer and General Manager.
A. L. BREWSTER, Secretary.
C. A. JEWITT, Assistant Secretary.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 10c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

HARD ON THE OLD FOLKS.

How Congo Natives Get Rid of Their Aged Relatives.

Major Powell-Cotton has just returned from a remarkable journey in Central Africa, after a two years' sojourn among the savages of the Dark Continent. A romantic interest is to be found in the fact that Major Powell-Cotton, who had intended on the conclusion of his expedition to return to England to get married, decided not to interrupt his journey, and accordingly arranged for his fiancee to get out to Africa. The marriage took place on her arrival at Nairobi, British East Africa, in 1905, and afterwards Mrs. Powell-Cotton shared her husband's hardships and dangers, having, among other things lived for many months among the pygmies in the heart of the Ituri Forest. She was the first white woman ever seen by these people.

The authorities made concessions never before given to a foreigner in the way of hunting in the reserves, and giving permission to kill a limited number of rare animals. Speaking of his hunting experiences, Major Powell-Cotton said:—"Bands of elephant and buffalo roamed the twilight solitudes at will. In all my travels I never saw so many elephant and buffalo tracks together. Frequently, as we warily cut our way through the tropical growth in single file, the huge beasts crashed through the undergrowth on either side of us, and the experience, especially at night, was necessary particularly trying to an English woman on her first visit to Africa."

What [illegible] relates a curious story of how the natives in the neighborhood of Wadelai dispose of the old folk when they become a burden. As soon as the infirmities of age manifest themselves, the old people are given a soothing draught, and wrapped in a fresh antelope skin. Thus attired, they are carried by members of their family to a spot some distance from the village, and are abandoned in the grass close to a native track. The first native coming by sees what he thinks is an antelope, and spears it, whereupon the victim's family emerge from their hiding place, and express horror and surprise at the unfortunate incident.

Her Valentine.

A young woman wrote about the year 1750: "The night before St. Juliantine's day I got five bay leaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow and the fifth to the middle. And then if I dreamed of my sweetheart Betty said we would be married before the year was out. But to make more sure I boiled an egg hard and took out the yolk and filled it with salt and when I went to bed ate it, shell and all, without speaking or drinking after it. We also wrote our lovers' names upon bits of paper and rolled them up in clay and put them into water, and the first that rose up was to be OUR VALENTINE. Mr. Bloxam was my man. I lay abed and shut my eyes all the morning till he came to our house, for I would not have sure another man before him for all the world."

POLITICAL SPIES.

They Are Quite Common All Over the Continent of Europe.

On the continent of Europe it is quite a common thing for royal personages to be subjected to espionage, mainly, of course, for political reasons.

In France, Spain, Russia, Germany and Austria the practice obtains. At one time during the reign of Napoleon III. a small army of political spies was engaged in watching royal subjects. In fact, the vigilance of the different parties was so great that there were three or four distinct secret services. The emperor had his; the empress had hers; the government and the republicans respectively had theirs—all employed to watch the other parties and their spies.

Moreover, Bismarck had his spy over the emperor. So that France was overridden by spies, the most important, however, being Bismarck's, to whom the war was indeed to a great extent due.

This secret service agent was a German doctor, whose advice the unfortunate emperor even preferred to that of his own court physicians, and thus Bismarck knew even better than Napoleon the real state of the latter's health, which was, of course, a very important factor in the political situation at those times.

He Could Run.

He could run, all right, all right. He had to. Talk about your smoothers learned to run or starve, as a boy, an' had never forgot how. Why, say, when he tore himself loose from a victuity it seemed like the whole landscape was crippled. I used to try him out by givin' him a start an' shootin' at him. If he beat the bullet, we figgered he was up to form, but if the lead overtook him we'd call it an off day an' unload the cartridges. I've seen him scare a jack rabbit up till it was workin' under forced drafts, then limp up to it from behind an' kind of yawn an' stretch, an' then goad it to wake up or else get off the trail an' let somebody run that knowed how.

Oh, Yes, of Course.

Of the many children and women in Nazareth, Palestine, who have picked up a little English all have a way of saying "of course" instead of a simple "yes." The expression which French people catch up as characteristic of the American and Englishman is always "Oh, yes!" A correspondent, who has cycled down the Rhone valley, about Provence and along the Riviera, found himself greeted with "Oh, yes!" by the children in the streets of nearly every town. And he discovered when his attention had been called to the point in this way that "Oh, yes!" was really what he and his companions were always saying.

KING EDWARD AT BIARRITZ.

His Majesty Is Getting Rest and Quiet Enjoyment.

A correspondent writes: I am told by one who has just returned from Biarritz that King Edward is keeping much more to himself than on his former visit. The fact is that though he looks very well, he has been overstrained by his recent arduous labors and now is taking a "quiet recuperation."

Of course, it is no secret that the King does not possess what insurance offices term "good life." In view of the uncertainty of all human existence and the King's prolonged absence abroad the contingency of the sudden demise of the Crown, I am informed, has recently been under consideration in order that so lamentable and improbable an event should not find the authorities unprepared.

His Majesty is not far from the allotted age of man, and his sojourns abroad are indispensable to the efficient discharge of his onerous duties. Some feeling has been aroused on the subject of the King's absence while Parliament is sitting, but nobody who knows the facts can fail to admit that His Majesty owes it to himself and to the nation to omit no precaution which his medical advisers declare necessary for the preservation of his health.

But there is no denying that the King preserves wonderfully high spirits. The other evening at dinner with Princess Frederika of Hanover the King narrated a couple of stories about Mr Haldane, the Minister of War:

"I notice," said he, "that when any of my present Ministers have something particularly democratic to bring forward they always propose to ask my advice. When Mr. Haldane came with a pat phrase to usher in his army scheme, I replied:

"'Of course, I am sure you have anticipated my opinion on the very point; now let me hear all about it.'"

The other tale concerns the Kaiser. His Teutonic Majesty, with bland imperturbability, invited the English Secretary of War to inspect the manoeuvres or whatever he pleased, whereas if the average Britisher approaches a fort it becomes a job for the British Embassy.

The Kaiser had been talking with candid affability and openness, which would have rendered any one suspicious except a sound forensic brain. Finally the German War Lord remarked:

"You will be going in for army reform yourself soon, I suppose. The next time you are at Windsor ask my uncle to find you a scheme I prepared one wet morning for my grandmother. It was too good ever to be adopted. I am glad that your country has never heard of it, for once it were embraced England's supremacy would be unshakable. I made it."

How Clouds and Fogs Differ.

Clouds are bodies of moisture evaporated from the earth and again partially condensed in the upper regions of the air. Fogs differ from clouds only in one respect—they come in contact with the surface of the earth while clouds are elevated above our heads. When the surface of the earth is warmer than the lower air the vapor of the earth, being condensed by the chill air, becomes mist or fog. But when the lower air is warmer than the earth the vapor rises through the air and becomes cloud. Fog and mist differ in this respect—that mist is a fine rain, while fog is vapor not sufficiently condensed to allow of its precipitation in drops.

The Fata Morgana.

The most singular aerial phenomenon is the fata morgana, a sea mirage seen off the coast of Calabria and between Italy and Sicily. It presents the phantoms of cities, houses, temples, palaces and ships, sometimes in their proper position, sometimes inverted, occasionally at an angle. The phenomenon has been known for many ages and formerly occasioned great and widespread alarm, being regarded as an evil omen that betokened some general and severe calamity.

Curious Effects of Frost.

An egg expands when it is frozen so much that the increased bulk breaks the shell. Apples, on the contrary, contract to such an extent that a full barrel will shrink until the top layer will be a foot below the chime. When the frost has been slowly and carefully drawn out they again assume their normal size and appearance. Apples can be transported when the mercury is 20 degrees below zero. Po-[illegible] fatbes once touched by frost are ruined.

Beethoven's Oddities.

Beethoven used the snuffers for a toothpick. It was one of his peculiarities that he never allowed his servant to enter his study. He insisted that this room should remain exactly as he left it, no matter how deeply the dust lay on the precious musical manuscripts. He seldom looked in the glass when he tied his stock. Half the time he forgot to brush his hair. Every morning he carefully counted out seventeen beans from the coffee canister. These served for his breakfast. When he composed, he would pour cold water over his hands, and often people below him would complain of the water that soaked through his floor.

Suggestive.

"Miriam," said her mother, "have you ever given young Mr. Stapleford any reason to believe you cared for him enough to marry him?"

"He seems to think so," answered the daughter, "because I told him the other evening that he was sending me too many candy flowers and ought to begin to save his money."—Chicago Tribune.

They Began Early.

Gummey—Wemen's habit of going to their husbands for money is as old as the human race. Gargoyle—That can't be, for the human race had no such thing as money for many ages. Gummey—Nevertheless Eve got a "fiver" from Adam.

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Tired, Off Color, Lacking in Strength

You feel real seedy.
No snap, ambition or spirit.
You've noticed your color is miserable.
Noticed that your blood is thin, that you feel the cold, that trifles bother and worry you.
You ought to be vigorous and ruddy—you eat enough, sleep fairly well—but still that listless feeling hangs right on.
To overcome this condition all the vital functions must be stimulated.
You accomplish this by taking Ferrozone.
How it makes the appetite jump.
There follows as a natural consequence an abundant supply of rich, red blood.
Vitality and strength you'll soon find throbbing within you, because your food is digested so thoroughly that it's readily assimilated.
You soon notice that your color is coming back, and endurance too, and soon the joy of life, health, vigor, strength—and with these come the old-time zest for everything that makes life worth living.
Ferrozone is a marvelous body-builder, blood-former and strength-giver.
Ferrozone, by supplying the aid the body needs to build up, gives the recuperative power that will enable you to do your work easily, and to maintain strength.
Try it for a month.
See if you don't find it just the thing you need to make you strong. No a man, woman or child who needs more strength, better nerves and surer health who won't find it in Ferrozone. This nourishing tonic makes you feel like new—brings back the feeling of spirit and ambition you had years ago. Try Ferrozone, sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

Kingston Business Man Here

Mr. McCue, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel in Kingston, Ont., was in the city yesterday, and gave The Times a call. This was Mr. McCue's first visit to Peterborough, and to quote his words, "Say you people here have nothing to learn in Kingston. Your city is all right." Mr. McCue was a guest at the Queen's Hotel. He took a trip to the lift lock and also over the street car system. He was accompanied by Mr. F. Cain, also of the Limestone city.

Belleville Prices for Eggs

And now this good people of Belleville are kicking over the prices they pay for farm products, such as butter, eggs, chickens, etc. Well! Good Lord! they have reason! The citizens here are almost rushing to arms over the prices we are assessed. We think that our eggs, butter, etc., are charged for at express elevator prices, but, if we get it in the neck for such goods, Belleville is certainly, by comparison of prices given by the intelligencer of that city, in the thread where the screw binds.

Parade by 57th Regiment

Last night the 57th Regiment led by both brass and bugle bands had a good turn out and parade. The ranks were just about full strength. The route taken was George street to Charlotte, Charlotte to Water, Water to Hunter, Hunter to George, and George to Central Park.

Local Lacrosse Players Busy

Local lacrosse players are getting into shape at Riverside Park. The Peterborough juniors look good for annexing junior honors. With one or two exceptions this team will be the same as last year, and with the experience gained last season, the boys should pretty nearly beat the best of them. The seniors will likely practice tomorrow night.

Another Local Auto Car

Another auto has been added to the local "Bubble" fleet. Dr. Frederick yesterday received a new Model "N" Ford car, which was sold to him some time ago by Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson. The car is a four cylinder one, and equipped with a gasoline motor of 18 horse power. The new runabout will travel, if necessary, forty miles an hour.

Teamsters Still on Strike

The city teamsters who went on strike yesterday, have not yet gone back to work, and the Board of Works are not concerning themselves much about the incident, being confident that they can fill their places at $3.50 a day, when necessary.
Only the city's own teams were working for the corporation yesterday.

Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co. Settled

A meeting of the creditors of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, will be held in the offices of the Toronto Trusts & Loan Company, Toronto, on Friday, May 10th. An offer for the plant, business, and all the contracts, etc., belonging to the company, of $192,000, has been made by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., and it is for this purpose that the meeting is called.

Methodist Committee Meeting

The annual review meeting of the district committee of the Methodist Church will be held in Mark street church, on Wednesday, May 22nd. Rev. Dr. Crothers is chairman of the committee and at the meeting, the work done on the different circuits during the year is reviewed. Among the business to come up is the election of a new chairman, as Rev. Dr. Crothers, is transferred to another conference.

Cottage for C.G.E. Angling Club

The C.G.E. Angling Club has decided to build a cottage down the Otonabee near the mouth of the river, for a headquarters during their outings throughout the summer. The following were appointed a committee to take the matter in hand; Messrs. R. E. Luyfield, John Brown, Geo. Tovey, R. M. Roy, D. Carlisle, J. J. McCabe and A. W. Paterson. The committee will take a trip down the river in the near future to select a site.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Kawartha Park Association Formed

Still another cottagers' protective association has been formed. The property owners of Hawarthn Park, Sandy Bay, Clear Lake, have decided to form an association. Messrs. R. E. Harding, G. H. Williamson, W. F. Nelson, C. N. Brown, F. H. Dobbin, H. W. Stork, E. A. Peck, and William Pringle were present. At the preliminary meeting Mr. R. B. Rogers occupied the chair. It was decided to form an association to be known as the Kawartha Park Association. The following officers were elected.
President—Mr. R. B. Rogers.
Sec.-Treas.—Miss Wyandrid Dobbin.
Committee—Messrs. W. F. Nelson, G. H. Williamson, and H. W. Stock.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.
As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in restored comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.
For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

CITY TEAMSTERS ARE STILL ON STRIKE

Board of Works Offered to Compromise by Paying $3.60 a Day, but the Men Refused this Proposition--Board of Works in Session Last Night.

The Board of Works of the City Council, met last night, when all the members were present, with the mayor.

A letter was read from John Kearvey of Bethune street, complaining that Contractor Sheehy had cut off his private drain when the sewer was put in. The engineer was instructed to look into the matter.

A letter was received in connection with a man falling into a sewer connection being made at 312 Aylmer street. The engineer's letter stated that the sewer was left in good condition. Planks were laid across the trench and a red light placed there. No action was taken in the matter.

W. H. White, foreman at the Romaine street sewer, was present, and stated that owing to the fact that the water was flowing into the sewer so fast that it was impossible to do anything more in connection with the work of cleaning it out. "I am tired of the whole thing," said Mr. White. There was three feet and ten inches of water in the sewer. The city engineer said that it would be possible to complete the work of cleaning out the sewer in a couple of months when the water would be lower. If they waited until the dry weather the water would be at least a foot lower, and the pressure would not be so great.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by the mayor, that the work on the Romaine street sewer be suspended until the weather becomes more dry. —Carried.

Ald. Wilson thought that all precaution should be taken to prevent more quick sand from running into the sewer.

A complaint was received from Mr. Harper, complaining of the condition of the work in front of his property on Charlotte street. The engineer was instructed to write Mr. Harper to the effect that the city could not remedy the matter, and instructing him what should be done.

THE TEAMSTERS' STRIKE.

The board took up the matter of the teamsters' strike, some dozen of the teamsters were present.

The board, rather than continue the present trouble, offered the men $3.60 a day, although, as the mayor explained, they thought $3.50 a day was a very fair wage.

The teamsters then withdrew to confer.

The board decided not to grant this wage and consequently the teamsters will remain on strike and the board will immediately take steps to fill their places.

Later in the evening, Teamster Brabin reported that the men had concluded to stand out for $3.75 a day.

The street commissioner pointed out that other than city teamsters did not go on strike for $3.75 a day; they are only getting $3.50 a day at the present time for drawing 1 3-4 yards.

The board remained firm not to compromise any further than $3.60 a day, and nothing more being heard from the teamsters it is assumed that they are still hanging out for $3.75 a day.

STREET NAMES AND NUMBERS.

The matter of legibly naming the streets and numbering the houses, was taken up.

Ald. Wilson urged that this should be done in a manner that would live legibly for a number of years. He pointed out that the names of streets on sidewalks are not discernable in the winter months.

The board considered that their appropriation for this year would not warrant their going into this matter just now.

On motion of Ald. Wilson, this question will be thoroughly gone into, from a standpoint of ways and means, later on.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, —That the sidewalk be built on Mark street, south of Hunter street, on the west side inside the trees, and on the east side inside the trees, and north of Hunter street inside the trees.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Mayor McWilliams, — That Aylmer street from London, north to the railway, be properly water tabled and graded, and that from the track north to Smith street, be also graded and water tabled.—Carried.

The board then adjourned.

BRONCHIAL COUGHS

Breathe Hyomei's Healing Air and All Irritation Will be Quickly Cured.

The most irritating and annoying form of cough is that termed bronchial. People subject to bronchial troubles whenever there is a change in the weather or they are exposed to a draft will "catch" a bronchial cough, which is very disagreeable, irritating and annoying.

Bronchial troubles cannot be cured by stomach dosing. The medicated air of Hy-o-mei is the only treatment that reaches the affected parts and gives relief and cure. It destroys all the disease germs that are present in the nose, throat and lungs, soothes and relieves the irritated mucous membrane in all parts of the bronchial tubes and quickly overcomes the irritation.

Bronchitis is really an inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air passages and is purely a local disease, so that it needs a local treatment like that afforded by Hy-o-mei.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

A New Charlotte Street Church

It is currently rumored that the Charlotte street church congregation, having outgrown the capacities of the present edifice will shortly erect a new church. The present church is oftentimes congested and at the present rate it is only a matter of time before a new building will have to be put up. Plans will be prepared and estimates secured of the cost of a new church to meet the requirements of the congregation.

Local Convict's Pals Pinched

The Toronto Globe of yesterday says, referring to the man who some weeks ago stabbed three men in a local hotel, says:

William Tremble and Robert Graham, who were arrested in Fort William recently, charged with stealing $960 on May 3rd, are identified by Inspector Duncan's department as dangerous criminals well known here. They are, it is alleged, members of a gang of which Chambers, the man who was sentenced in Peterborough for injuring three men there recently, was a member.

Great Findings on Strathoona Property

Every Test Pit Sunk Shows Rich Silver Ore.

Now that excitement at the Cobalt silver camp is once more with the advent of spring creating so much excitement it is well worth while to consider carefully every mining proposition offered to the public before investing in the same. One important point to be considered is whether any such mining stock as may be offered for sale is bona-fide and issued by a genuine company whose property has been recorded under the laws of Ontario. The Ontario Government has very wisely decided to refuse the issuance of a clear title to any locator whose property is not proven by Government experts to contain undoubted veins of mineral.

The Strathoona Silver Mining Co. of Cobalt, has been incorporated under the laws of Ontario with the comparatively low capitalization of $800,000, in 800,0000 shares of a par value of $1 each. The property of this company, now secured by deed and free of all encumberances, consists of some of the finest silver and gold bearing claims in the world. In the Cobalt district their property is the south-east quarter of the north half of lot 10, con. 2, in the townahipof Bucke Nipissing, consisting of forty acres. Near Larder Lake the company has six claims of 40 acres each, five of which are immediately adjoining the well known gold producing locations formerly owned by Dr. Reddick.

The Cobalt property, which has been passed by the Government inspector, is within half a mile of the T. & N. R.R. The Strathoona property is not a mere prospect, but much work has already been done on it. Some eleven pits have been sunk clearly demonstrate the vast wealth that is buried and to be dug for these claims.

The Strathoona Silver Mining Company, have placed a low capitalization, as before noted on their stock, so that those who get in on the ground floor will participate in all the profits made. For a limited time only the company is offering stock of a par value of $1 per share at 50 cents per share. For stock or particulars address the secretary, Strathcona Silver Mining Co., of Cobalt, Ltd., 180 St. James street, Montreal.

Miss Catherine Egan Has Passed Away

Yesterday morning, a lady born some 67 years ago in the township of Otonabee, Miss Catharine Egan, passed away at 97 Gilmour street, after several months illness, from paralysis. The deceased was a daughter of the late Thomas Egan. She moved to this city two years ago, and had resided with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Redmond, ever since. She was highly respected by all who knew her. One brother, Mr. John Egan of New York, and one sister, Mrs. Wm. Redmond, are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, from 97 Gilmour street, to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

Cavanagh Wins Out in the Brewery Trial

Among the Osgoode Hall notes of yesterday, we note the following:

Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co. vs. Cavanagh.— A. B. Morine for the plaintiffs, appealed from order of Riddell, J., dated 28th April, 1907, dismissing plaintiffs' appeal from order of master in chambers, refusing to set aside notice of abandonment of appeals served by former solicitor for plaintiffs, the taxation of costs and all subsequent proceedings. R. E. Wood, Peterborough, for defendants, opposed appeal. Appeal dismissed. Costs in cause to defendants. The substantive motion for leave to appeal from judgment of MacMahon, J., notwithstanding service of notice of abandonment of same granted, and case directed to be restored to Divisional court list. Costs of this motion, costs in appeal to defendants.

Barnardo Home Girls Arrive

Ninety-three girls under the direction of Mr. Owen, superintendent of the Barnardo Homes in Canada, arrived in the city yesterday morning by C.P.R. The girls, who come from the Old Country, are in ages from six to sixteen, and are healthy looking They came over on the steamship Dominion of the Dominion Line, and landed at Quebec. Nearly all the girls have already found good homes in the province and a large number will leave for the west on Friday.

Local Citizens Help the Cadets

Peterborough citizens are not "grouchy" when it comes to helping the youth of this city. One of our local institutions that is training the youth of Peterborough to battle not only for dollars but for the Dominion is the Collegiate Institute with its cadet corps. The following citizens have assisted the encouragement of this corps as follows;

1 For the best company—$5, donated by Mr. V. Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank.

3. For the best section —$3, donated by Lieut. E. Best, hardward merchant.

4. For the second section—$2, donated by Lieut. W. R. G. Higgins, hardware merchant.

The prizes will be awarded after the inspection of the corps in June, and it is expected that the competition will be very keen.

There are three companies in the Cadets.

A Pleasing Funotion

The Girls' Guild of St. John's Church Entertained the Members of the Choir Last Night.

The Girls' Guild of St. John's church paid a graceful tribute to the choir of the church last night, in the way of providing a recherche supper in the school room, followed by a unique program of questions and answers on twentieth century matters.

An exceedingly pleasant evening was spent by all in attendance, and the splendid choir of St. John's left with considerable satisfaction that their efforts in the service of the church had attracted so marked attention as to warrant their entertainment in so substantial a manner by the young ladies of the church.

New Grand Trunk Railway Time Table

The ordinary railway time table is generally a source of considerable trouble to the travelling public when they are arranging for a trip to any given point, and though the officials of the passenger department have given this subject a considerable amount of thought and labor new ideas suggest themselves from time to time and improvements are made for the benefit of the traveller. The Grand Trunk Railway system is probably one of the most difficult lines on this continent to study, owing to the many ramifications of their branch lines radiating from the main trunk line and the innumerable number of junction points at which connections are made. The company, however, have just issued their complete time table, dated April 30th, in which are embodied many new ideas that will be appreciated by the public generally. The idea has been to show, the time table in such a way that any one may see at a glance the route of their train and equipment that will be at their disposal. In the past the through car service has been shown under the local time table, which necessitated a repetition throughout the folder that created a needless amount of study. This has been obviated by the elimination of all this superfluous data, and all the equipment and condensed time of their trains are shown on six pages, so that any person at a glance can find the time of any particular train and the exact through car service that is offered on each train.

Another acceptable feature, and one that will be of great help to the travelling public, is a series of tables showing the condensed time of trains, these tables being surmounted by a map showing the route of any particular train that is shown in this condensed time table.

Connections via foreign lines, east and west, are also given, together with tourist sleeping car service on the Grand Trunk, as well as service from Chicago to points on the Pacific Coast and the South Eastern parts of the United States. Other pages are devoted to rail connections from junction points along the main line, steamship connections and stage connections. One page of the folder is devoted to the cab tariff in the cities of Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Ottawa and Chicago, as well as information as to transfer of passengers and baggage at terminal points. There is also a portion of the folder devoted to information as to baggage which will be of interest to the travelling public.

The folder is an advance on previous railroad time tables in Canada, and will be gladly received by those who only occasionally travel or by those who are continually moving from place to place.

Cobourg Child Beater Arrested

Word was yesterday received here that a man had been arrested in Cobourg for cruelty of a most atrocious kind to his little six-year-old relative.

It seems that recently the case of a little girl, six years of age was brought to the attention of the local Children's Aid Society, and the society took charge of her. A daughter of a woman who had been left a widow with several small children, and at the request of the former the society had placed her with the widow's brother-in-law, who resides near Cobourg. The local society soon learned that the child was being ill-used, so she was brought to the shelter in this city. She had been shamefully abused, her body being marked in several places from blows she had received. Crown Attorney Kerr, of Cobourg, was apprised of the case and made an investigation. Word was received in Peterborough yesterday that this Cobourg blackguard had been committed for trial on the charge of cruelty towards the child.

The mother of the little girl formerly resided in Peterborough, and was left in somewhat destitute circumstances on the death of her husband, leaving several small children and very little means of support.

Executive Committee.—Miss Winifrid Dobbin, Miss Grace Coppidge, Mr. O. B. MacRae and Mr. Reg Read.

Sedimentation Tank to be Used at Once

Board of Health Holds an Emergency Meeting.

Yesterday morning the following members of the local Board of Health, viz.—Chairman Eyres, Messrs R. Neild, A. Parker, Dr. Burnham, City Engineer Hay, Dr. Bingham, Sanitary Inspector Hall, and Mayor McWilliams held an emergency meeting to consider the medical health officer's report on the sedimentation tank. It will be remembered it was stated that the tank was not being used. The medical health officer and sanitary inspector were then instructed to ascertain the reason why it was not in use.

The officials, accompanied by the city engineer, found that the tank was not in use. This was explained by the city engineer as being on account of the recent arbitration between the contractor and the city. This matter was only settled a week or so ago, but the said the tank could be put into use at a moment's notice.

The medical health officer, did not approve of the sedimentation tank, and he predicted that it would be very detrimental to the public health. As far as the purpose of the tank was concerned he was fully convinced that it would work perfectly.

The plans of Mr. Chipman were shown by the city engineer, the object of the tank was explained, and the board was assured tatt the sewer system and septic tank in Ashburnham had been approved by the Provincial Board of Health.

It was moved and seconded that the sedimentation tank be put in use at once and that in three months' time the sanitary inspector report on its condition.—Carried.

It was moved and seconded that the sanitary inspector look into the condition of the east ward raceway. —Carried.

It was moved and seconded that the sanitary inspector be furnished by the city with street transportation on the street railway.—Carried.

Good Prospects of Charlotte St. Church

At the quarterly meeting of the Charlotte street church, with Rev. Mr. Manning in the chair, it was noted that the church membership had been increased by 33, the total membership now being 441.

The following stewards were elected for the coming year; Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, R. Neild, J. C. Elliott, D. D. C. Dawe, Alex Wilson, Dr. M. A. Morrison, and Dr. Neal. Dr. Morrison was re-elected recording steward.

Mr. Jos. Batten was re-elected representative to the district meeting to be held in Mark street church on May 22nd.

Mr. A. B. Cunningham's donation to the church of an individual communion service, was accepted by the board, who are deeply grateful to him.

The following were appointed local preachers.—Messrs. H. D. Kennedy, Jos. Batten, Jas. Sutherland, and I. Richardson.

Class leaders were appointed as follows;—Messrs. Jos. Batten, Hywley, Geo. Tovey, and A. E. Prest.

Mr. Junkin Quits Insurance Business

The many friends in this city of Mr. J. F. Junkin, formerly local agent of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co., and for the past decade or more managing director of that company, with headquarters in Toronto will be surprised to learn that this energetic and well posted insurance man has resigned his present position and will open up a private office for handling bonds, stocks, etc. Mr. Junkin, although only a comparitively young man, has gained a name throughout the whole Dominion, as one of the best insurance men in Canada. His management of the Manufacturers Life Co., has fully endorsed this title, as during his tenure of office the Manufacturers' Life Company has increased its business enormously. Mr. Junkin's successor in the company has not yet been chosen.

SMUGGLING ARMS TO RUSSIAN POLAND

Edinburgh, May 8.—It is not often that Scotland is made a centre of plots against any of its continental neighbors. The law-abiding Scot has hitherto kept himself with their headquarters on the other side of the North Sea. A secret organization, however, has just been discovered in Edinburgh, the object of which has been the smuggling of weapons and ammunition into the disaffected districts of Russian Poland. The first part of the story belongs to the town of Newcastle-on-Tyne. There the attention of the police was called to the suspicious traffic going on from a house in one of the poorer districts of the city. It appeared that a Polish Jew named Keast had sublet a room from a poor family and had stored it with all manner of cases of a suspicious character. He would not allow his landlord to go into the room on any account, and he always locked the door and took the key with him when he went out.

AMMUNITION FOUND.

On the police searching the house it was found that the cases contained ammunition, including many hundreds of thousands of cartridges for Mauser rifles and pistols all fresh and in good condition. Keast, however, had got wind of the police visit and disappeared. The people in the house who had sublet him the room were able to plead that they knew nothing about the contents of the cases or about Keast.

The seizure was followed by similar "finds" at Sunderland in circumstances of a like character, and also at Glasgow. The police, however, were puzzled for a time to form a theory as to where the cartridges were coming from and as to what was being done with them. A discovery in Edinburgh has solved the mystery. It seems that all the winter a traffic of the kind has been going on between Hamburg and Leith. The ammunition was shipped in cases which were openly marked as containing explosives, and as the shipping bills were found in order, and the goods were consigned to a respectable firm of carting contractors, the customs authorities did not think it necessary to interfere in the matter. These carting contractors were advised from time to time by a man named Denver, to deliver the cases of ammunition to a cycle agent in Edinburgh and as their money was always forthcoming, they, too, considered the transaction one in the ordinary course of trade. But after the finds of ammunition in Newcastle and Glasgow they got uneasy and gave the Edinburgh police a hint of what was going on.

CYCLE AGENTS ARRESTED.

The police set a watch over the cycle agents's shop and soon they saw delivered there a number of cases which they immediately seized and called upon the cycle agent to give an explanation of his conduct. They also detained at the same time a person who was in the shop. The cycle agent made a clean breast of the affair. He had been induced to act as an intermediary in the shipment of the arms and ammunition on a commission and he also avowed that as a socialist he was in sympathy with the struggling people of Russia. He said that he did not consider that in so doing he was breaking any of the laws of his own country.

Liquor Statistics of this County

According to the Ontario Government Liquor License Acts, report for 1906, just issued, we find that in 1874 there were 98 tavern and 16 shop licenses in the county of Peterborough. In 1876 these had decreased to 40 and 11 respectively, but with two wholesale and one vessels licenses added. From 1886 to 1888 inclusive the C.T. Act was in force (not to say enforced).

In 1905 there were 33 tavern, 5 shop and 1 wholesale lipenses issued. In 1906 tavern licenses in West Peterborough were reduced from 27 to 23, shop licenses from 6 to 5, and 9 licenses were transferred. In 1905-1906 the Ontario Government got $2,908.95 as its proportion of duties for Provincial licenses, fines for transfers and removals, and fines. In 1876 there were 5 prisoners committed to jail for drunkenness, in 1880, under the Dunkin Act, 27, and 1887 under the Scott Act, 26, whilst 24 were committed in 1906.

Little Girl Dies from Her Burns

Little Luella Quinlan Passes Away in St. Joseph's Hospital.

We regret to say that the poor little child Luella Quinlan, daughter of Mr. Cornelius Quinlan, of Rogers sireets, east ward, has passed away. Our readers will remember that this little girl, whilst playing with other children about a bon fire on Monday last, had her handkerchief catch fire. To squench the flames the child quickly applied the kerchief to her hip thus setting her clothes on fire. She ran for assistance and in this act, caused her clothes then on fire to burn more rapidly, with the result of the child being severely burned. She was at once ordered by Dr. McNulty to St. Joseph's Hospital. Here everything that science or kindness could suggest was done for her, but about five o'clock last night the poor child passed away. The funeral arrangements were not available last night. Her parents will have the sympathy of the whole community in their sad bereavement.

Victoria, B.C., May 8.—Yesterday morning the entire colony of six Chinese lepers, which hitherto has been located on an island in the Gulf, was shipped to China by a special tramp steamer, chartered by the Dominion Government.

This step is the outcome of an arrangement arrived at between Canada and China, and in future all lepers in Chinese convict within the Dominion will be returned to China at the expense of the Government of the Celestial Kingdom.

Bilious Paleness, Now Easily Cured

If you are frequently bilious or have feelings of nausea, there is a reason.

When the liver action is normal the bile is secreted in the proportions necessary to ensure the digestion of fats.

When these derangements occur an undue amount of work is thrown upon the liver and kidneys, they rebel—the whole system suffers, and ill-health follows.

Another dangerous result of derangement of the biliary function is constipation. Deadly disease results from this condition.

This is a hateful condition because it ensures two results—heavy dark rings under the eyes and a sallowness that's absolutely abhorrent.

These derangements if allowed to continue excite the formation of gallstones, cause jaundice, catarrhal inflammation of the bowels, and indigestion.

If you wish to get better, the very root of the trouble must be reached.

This can be accomplished only by Ferrozone—a remedy that strengthens the system, the blood, the liver and kidneys.

Ferrozone is food for the nervous system.

It fortifies and strengthens it.

The nervous system controls all the functions of the body.

Improve its tone, you improve the tone of the whole body and this is what Ferrozone accomplishes.

Its first action is to fortify digestion—this means nourishment and more building material.

Ferrozone makes rich, red blood—lots of it, and this means the proper action of all the large and vital organs of the body.

Quickly there comes strength, vigor, endurance—that glow of feeling which we call health.

You are sure of robust health; sure of strong nerves, good appetite; sure to look and feel your best if you use Ferrozone; try this great tonic, sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

BRIDGE WHIST

Away back in the dim shadows of the centuries a mind that was a veritable mountain peak of intelligence invented the deck of playing cards. And with this achievement there was brought into the world a heritage of trouble and tragedy that will warrant a tremendous reckoning in the final readjustment of things. The invention of playing cards was a mathematical marvel upon which human ingenuity has not been able to improve throughout the ages, and succeeding generations of men have taken up playing cards and laid them down at the end of a lifetime without doing more than devising new games, discovering new combinations and discerning new problems. The cards themselves have remained practically the same except in variation as to the numbers in the suits. The Egyptians played euchre at the time of Joseph, and the Chinese game of fan-tan was a favorite method of gambling long before the Christian era.

Various peoples and nations have had their favorite card games. Until recently poker was considered the distinctive American card dissipation, although whist and euchre have been popular. Today bridge whist is a craze throughout the world. Once the world was almost as obsessed over primero. Falstaff says: "I never prospered since I foreswore primero." Spain was always a nation of card players, and many of our modern card games originated in Spanish armies.

Bridge whist is not a new game, but was played as early as the days of American colonization. That its rediscovery has inflamed the civilized world within a few years is one of those many mysteries that hang upon the history of card playing. Besides offering somewhat varied and spectacular opportunities of setting wagers, bridge whist is an unattractive and an unscientific hazard. But it is a craze that has swept over England and America, leaving ruin and moral degradation in its path.

The trail of bridge tragedies has been all too resourceful of terrible examples to the moralist and those who would stem the baneful influence which this game has exerted and is still exerting in society. Its devotees go to the last desperate extremes in the wild and irrational pace it sets, and today gambling among women is stimulated to an alarming extent because of it. Pulpit and press have been arrayed against it, but with little apparent effect. It finds its victims in high places and it too often leaves them leveled to the standard of common gamblers. It has entered homes which it has left only with the auctioneer and the casket. We in Canada are fortunate in that it has not taken the hold here that it has taken in England, but we know quite enough. When will it run its course? Upon the answer to this question depend the happiness, the fortunes and the reputations of thousands.

Youth of Sixteen Held Up Trolley

Philadelphia, May 8.—Foiled in his attempt to hold up, with the aid of a companion, two trolley conductors in West Philadelphia yesterday, and fearing that he had killed a policeman in his effort to escape, Harold S. Jones, aged 16 years, shot and killed himself on the street, as he was about to be captured by another policeman. His companion, G. H. Geddis, aged 18 years, was arrested at his home.

Jones belonged to a good family in the north-western part of the city, his father being a prosperous business man. The boy had some differences with his father yesterday, and he was told to "shift" for himself. As the boy was leaving the house, his weeping mother asked him what he was going to do, and he replied: "I don't know and I don't care." Jones sought out Geddis, and they were not heard of again until they turned up in West Philadelphia and tried to hold up the two conductors who were on their way home from their night's work. Jones drew a revolver, and ordered the conductors to hold up their hands, but, instead of complying, fired upon the men. A fight ensued, and Jones and his companion fled. Policemen saw the occurrence, and gave chase.

After running a block, Jones turned and shot at one of the pursuing policemen. The bullet went wide of the mark, but the policeman, in order to deceive the fleeing youth, dropped to the sidewalk, as if he had been shot. Jones saw him fall and stopped. He did not approach the policeman, but backed up against the side of a house, and sent a bullet into his own heart.

Gamble $80,000 on Life of This Man

Santa Monica, Calif., May 8.—A stake of $80,000 played against a fortune of nearly $1,500,000 with a human life as the final determining factor, are features of an unusual transaction entered into yesterday between Henry C. Keating and a syndicate composed of four local men.

In about three years, if he lives, Keating will fall heir to $1,500,000 of an estate to be settled at that time, when the younger heirs will become of age. The syndicate gave Keating $80,000 for his interest in the estate, taking the risk of losing the $80,000 if Keating died before the estate is settled, as the other heirs then come into the whole estate of $5,000,000.

Should Keating survive the settlement of the estate, the syndicate will make $1,420,000 less the interest on the $80,000 and various legal fees.

Millionaire Died Chatting with Bride

New York, May 8.—Charles E. Hallwell, vice-president of the American Tobacco Co., and one of the heaviest stockholders in the corporation, died suddenly of apoplexy in the Holland House last night. Mr. Hallwell was stricken when at dinner with his wife of a few months and a niece. He had been chatting pleasantly with the two women, but suddenly drew back from the table and became unconscious. He was carried to a room, where he died without regaining consciousness. Mr. Hallwell was 50 years of age, and was reputed to be worth $20,000,000.

In Italy time is reckoned on the twenty-four hour system. Thus 3 o'clock in the afternoon is there designated as 15 o'clock. Midnight is 24 o'clock.

Schubert.

Schubert was marvelously regular in his attention to composition. When he was composing his features worked, his eyes flashed and his limbs twitched. This unnatural excitement held complete control of him until the fever of composition passed away. He seldom made alterations in his score.

Absinth.

Absinth's secret once belonged to a French chemist. He sold it to a distiller for $75. The distiller sold it for $50,000. It is now not worth its original $75, having leaked out.

DOUGLAS MINING
COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

"John, you know something about this!"

upon which to fix her attention. It was a characteristic movement which he knew, although he had only seen it once or twice before. It indicated that if there was an end to Lady Cantourne's wit she had almost reached that undesirable bourn.

"He has broken off his engagement," she said, looking her companion very straight in the face, "now—at the eleventh hour. Do you know anything about it?"

She came closer to him, looking up from her compact little five-feet-two with discerning eyes.

"John!" she exclaimed.

She came still nearer and laid her gloved hands upon his sleeve.

"John, you know something about this!"

"I should like to know more," he said suavely. "I am afraid—Millicent will be inconvenienced."

Lady Cantourne looked keenly at him for a moment. Physically she almost stood on tiptoe, mentally she did it without disguise. Then she turned away and sat on a chair which had always been set apart for her.

"It is a question," she said gravely, "whether any one has a right to punish a woman so severely."

The corner of Sir John's mouth twitched.

"I would rather punish her than have Jack punished for the rest of his life."

"Et moi?" she snapped impatiently.

"Ah"—with a gesture learned in some foreign court—"I can only ask your forgiveness. I can only remind you that she is not your daughter—if she were she would be a different woman—while he is my son."

Lady Cantourne nodded as if to indicate that he need explain no more.

"How did you do it?" she asked quietly.

"I did not do it. I merely suggested to Guy Oscard that he should call on you. Millicent and her fiance—the other—were alone in the drawing room when we arrived. Thinking that I might be de trop, I withdrew and left the young people to settle it among themselves, which they have apparently done! I am, like yourself, a great advocate for allowing young people to settle things among themselves. They are also welcome to their enjoyment of the consequences so far as I am concerned."

"But Millicent was never engaged to Guy Oscard."

"Did she tell you so?" asked Sir John, with a queer smile.

"Yes."

"And you believed her?"

"Of course—and you?"

Sir John smiled his courtliest smile.

"I always believe a lady," he answered, "before her face. Guy Oscard gave it out in Africa that he was engaged to be married, and he even declared that he was returning home to be married. Jack did the same in every respect. Unfortunately there was only one fond heart waiting for the couple of them at home. That is why I thought it expedient to give the young people an opportunity of settling it between themselves."

The smile left his worn old face. He moved uneasily and walked to the fireplace, where he stood with his unsteady hands moving idly, almost nervously, among the ornaments on the mantelpiece. He committed the rare discourtesy of almost turning his back upon a lady.

"I must ask you to believe," he said, looking anywhere but at her, "that I did not forget you in the matter. I may seem to have acted with an utter disregard for your feelings"—

He broke off suddenly, and, turning, he stood on the hearth rug with his feet apart, his hands clasped behind his back, his head slightly bowed.

"I drew on the reserve of an old friendship," he said. "You were kind enough to say the other day that you were indebted to me to some extent. You are indebted to me to a larger extent than you perhaps realize. You owe me fifty years of happiness; fifty years of a life that might have been happy had you decided differently when—when we were younger. I do not blame you now. I never blamed you. But the debt is there. You know my life; you know almost every day of it. You cannot deny the debt. I drew upon that."

And the white haired woman raised her hand.

"Don't," she said gently, "please don't say any more. I know all that your life has been, and why. You did quite right. What is a little trouble to me, a little passing inconvenience, the tattle of a few idle tongues, compared with what Jack's life is to you? I see now that I ought to have opposed it strongly instead of letting it take its course. You are right; you always have been right, John. There is a sort of consolation in the thought. I like it. I like to think that you were always right and that it was I who was wrong. It confirms my respect for you. We shall get over this somehow."

"The young lady," suggested Sir John, "will get over it after the manner of her kind. She will marry some one else, let us hope, before her wedding dress goes out of fashion."

"Millicent will have to get over it as she may. Her feelings need scarcely be taken into consideration."

Lady Cantourne made a little movement toward the door. There was much to see to; much of that women's work which makes weddings the wild, confused ceremonies that they are.

"I am afraid," said Sir John, "that I never thought of taking them into consideration. As you know, I hardly considered yours. I hope I have not overdrawn that reserve."

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5300 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money.

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

CO-OPERATION means working together. This store is Co-operative and furnishes its shareholders with the best merchandise at the least possible advance over actual cost.

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

CEMENT STOCK THAT WILL EARN NEARLY 100% PER ANNUM

When such a statement as this is made by reputable business men, whose reputation and known ability are beyond reproach, it should challenge the attention of the careful investor. We believe you'll agree with us on that point. Now, the officers and directors of this company are among the class of men who have helped make Kansas City what it is today, whose reputations for sound business acumen are known, and who have invested their own capital in this enterprise because it is one of the very best opportunities to make money that has ever been offered them. So, when they assert that stock in this company will pay nearly 100 per cent., they mean just what they say, and are ready to back up their belief with the cold, unimpeachable facts.

Therefore, can you afford to stand by and fail to join in with them, thereby missing a chance to make a fortune—a chance which may not present itself again for a lifetime? Thousands of people have invested in cement stocks in the past, in the securities of those companies which have been organized in the West, and not one of them has lost a dollar. On the other hand, they have all made money—often comfortable fortunes from comparatively small investments.

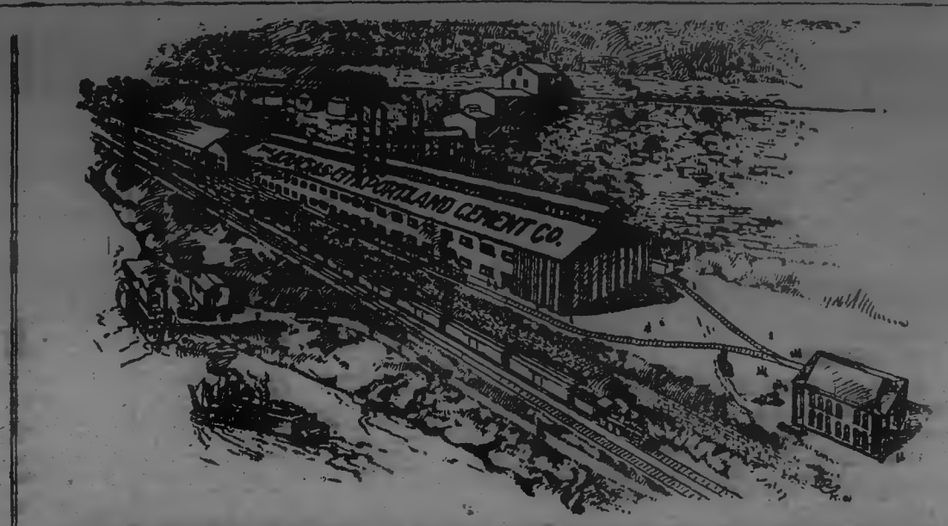
The capitalization of this company is very conservative, therefore the earnings will be sure and liberal. Eminent authorities, under their signatures, state that we have a veritable mountain of material, containing all the elements for making the very best Cement. And we have enough cement material to last 200 years or longer—a supply practically inexhaustible.

The officers and directors of the company, whose names and identity are given on this page, are all men of known reputation for integrity and business merit, their proven worth being shown by their success in the past. Their investment in this enterprise was made after a careful investigation as to its merits from every standpoint.

Our great advantage over other companies in our ability to pay big dividends lies in the fact that we own the natural gas field at Bonner Springs, and now supply that town with gas. We will have free fuel for the manufacture of our Cement, as well as a revenue of $15,000 a year from our gas franchise alone. As fuel enters largely into the cost of the production of cement, the full force of this statement may be realized by all.

In the distribution of our product we shall have the same advantage in freight rates as if we were located within the corporate limits of Kansas City, as both points carry the same schedule in freight tariffs. It will be the only Cement plant on the great U. P. system, which covers a territory that alone consumes millions of barrels of cement per annum.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF BONNER PORTLAND CEMENT CO.'S PLANT AT BONNER SPRINGS, KAS., ON WHICH WORK HAS BEGUN, TAKEN FROM ARCHITECT AND ENGINEERS' DRAWINGS.



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE KANSAS CITY PORTLAND CEMENT CO.'S PLANT, 3 MILES NORTH OF INDEPENDENCE, MO.—PROMOTED AND ORGANIZED BY W. H. CAFFERY, ORIGINATOR OF THE CAFFERY SYSTEM OF CEMENT MAKING.

The Market for the Product

Year 1880, consumption..... 339,000 bbls.
Year 1890, consumption..... 3,375,000 bbls.
Year 1900, consumption.....10,868,703 bbls.
Year 1903, consumption.....35,451,000 bbls.
Year 1904, consumption.....42,803,306 bbls.
Year 1905, consumption.....44,000,000 bbls.
Year 1906, consumption.....50,827,321 bbls.

In 1905, therefore, the demand was four times as great as in 1900—a cement famine, however, prevailing uninterruptedly meanwhile.

Cost of Manufacture

The inception of this home corporation is propitious, chiefly because of the hitherto unsupplied demand for Portland Cement in contiguous territory.

Eleven million barrels of Portland Cement are yearly required by States west of the Mississippi, and of this amount, only 5,500,000 barrels are produced in the same territory.

This necessitates the forwarding of 5,500,000 barrels annually from the Eastern source of supply.

Eastern-made cement costs 90c. to produce and brings from $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel, laid down in average points west of the Mississippi River.

The Bonner Portland Cemnet Company, owning 261 acres of virgin ground in the new world-famous producing district of Bonner Springs, Kansas, and being unqualifiedly possessed of every other natural and elementary advantage for the economic production of high class Portland Cement, finds a ready market for its products even at standard competing prices.

But inasmuch as the successful location and operation of an enterprise of this character not only depends upon the extent and quality of the raw material deposits, but upon the cost of fuel, labor, transportation facilities, etc., it is therefore apparent that the Bonner Portland Cement Company is assured of a future second to that of no other Western plant, for with its unusual advantages the company can profitably produce superior Portland Cement at the lowest possible price.

No product in all the world has a wider application to useful purposes than Portland Cement.

Property of the Company

The property comprised in the 261 acres abound in immeasurable quantities of first quality cement rock and shale.

These lie in close proximity, but are distinctly separate each from the other. They immediately adjoin the corporate limits of Bonner Springs, Kansas, at the intersection of the Union Pacific and Santa Fe Railroads at a point sixteen miles west of Kansas City.

The mill site is most favorably located on high ground and near the water's edge of the Kansas (or Kaw) River, which flows alongside the entire tract. Thus is the cement plant assured an unfailing water supply, as well as advantageous water transportation and shipping facilities.

The cement product in the United States in 1906 was valued at $54,-915,773, an increase of $15,067,531.

Our Free Fuel Supply

The company is even now operating its own natural gas plant. (Let it be understood that Bonner Springs is in the very heart of a great natural gas field in Kansas). The company's gas plant is at present supplying, under permanent arrangements, a large brick plant, a sanitarium, several churches, schools and 304 families.

The company owns a twenty-year franchise to supply natural gas to the municipality, and receives 50 cents net per thousand cubic feet for local consumption. There are now 304 meters in operation and an equal number will soon be added. The entire supply required by the town is furnished by one of the company's five wells; the other four are completely capped, waiting to supply cheap fuel for the company's Cement Plant upon the day of its completion. A tract of four thousand acres of natural gas land is held by lease and provides unlimited fuel resources.

The gas plant, independent of all other assets, will pay 5 per cent. on $500,000 of the capital stock of the company. In addition to this, it will furnish free fuel for the Cement plant, and cost of fuel is one of the biggest items in the manufacture of Portland Cement.

There were 45,810,822 barrels of Portland Cement manufactured in the United States last year—and not a barrel of surplus stock left over.

The Demand for Cement

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is situated in the very heart of the natural markets of the West. Kansas City alone requires 1,400 barrels of cement each calendar day in the year. The freight rate from Bonner Springs to Kansas City is 20 cents per barrel less than that of any other plant in Kansas. No less important is the fact that this is the only cement property on the entire Union Pacific Railroad, with its 2,955 miles of track traversing the tributary territory, and embracing, Denver, Portland, and San Francisco. This field alone—Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon—would consume three or four times as much cement as the company's mill can furnish.

The foregoing also magnifies the immense benefits possessed by the company for the transportation of its products. The connection with the Santa Fe contributes unparalleled transportation advantages. Adjoining the Kansas River, as the property does, it will be seen that river transportation affords relief in times of an overburdened condition of railway traffic.

The Raw Materials

The economic side of the Bonner Portland Cement Company's proposition is enhanced because of its preponderance of supply, together with the extremely fine qualities of its raw materials and their accessibility. In no other cement property, regardless of location, may be found a better grade of both rock and shale. Furthermore, the necessity of stripping the shale and rock of this property is eliminated because of the fact that the materials extend to the surface. The rock, being soft in texture, when blasted, fractures along both horizontal and vertical lines, assuming the form of small cubes, in which shape it can be powdered most advantageously and least expensively.

Presently, millions upon millions of additional barrels of cement will enter into the manufacture of railroad supplies and equipments, while we may reasonably expect to see the major portion of our dwellings, ten or twenty years hence, made solely of concrete.

The Caffery System Will be Used

The company will operate under the Caffery system.

Right here it is not amiss to state that Mr. Caffery, the founder of this very practical method and one of the founders of the Bonner Company, has proven to the public his uncommon ability in the pursuit of the Cement industry by the fine success which he achieved in the organizing and promoting of the Kansas City Portland Cement Co. In co-operation with his engineer, Mr. Caffery personally selected and purchased every machine, every tool and every piece of material that was used in the construction of this mammoth and successful plant—a monument in itself to his mastery of the business, even in its most trifling details.

It was here that Mr. Caffery demonstrated and proved to the stockholders that the Caffery system effects a saving of 25 per cent. in the cost of construction as against the system formerly used.

It was Mr. Caffery who first introduced large kilns in the manufacture of the product west of the Mississippi River. In the construction and equipping of mills, Mr. Caffery anticipates all competition, not alone because of his genius for the work, but for the reason that he has surrounded himself with the most expert assistants and is in co-operation with the most complete and skilled engineering force in the United States—the Freeborn Engineering and Construction Company.

The Bonner Company will receive the undivided benefit of his ablest management, while the mill will boast of the most modern exemplification of the Caffery system to date installed.

Cement is logically the steel and iron of the future. To it the builders of subsequent decades must turn. It seems to distinctly indicate a new cycle in the mysterious omnipotence of the forces surrounding us.

Cost and profits

As previously stated by virtue of its natural advantages, the Bonner property can produce its finished product at a cost of 40 cents per barrel.

The current price of Cement is $1.25 per barrel. This means a net profit to the company of $1.25 per barrel, or a net earning of $2,000.00 per day on a 1,600-barrel mill which it will erect. Thus it will be seen that the company will expect to earn the enormous profit of $730,000 per annum on a 1600-barrel mill, independent of a profit of $75,000 net per annum which will accrue from the operation of the gas plant.

Here is represented an earning of almost 100 per cent. per year, not a visionary earning, but a profit based on cold, hard facts and indisputably correct calculation, due to the fact that this company will have free fuel, unsurpassed facilities in transportation, and accessibility of its raw material.

The science of Cement Construction has merely begun, and as its achievement progresses, it will be with extreme difficulty that supply keeps apace with demand.

Purpose of the Company

The company will erect a mill of 1,600 barrels' daily capacity. This mill will be built in two sections, each with a capacity of 800 barrels. The first section is to be built and put into operaton at once, thus enabling the company to pay early dividends on its stock. With the first section completed, the company will offer the balance of its stock, from the proceeds of the sale from which the other section of the mill will be builded.

If we are inclined to look upon our disappearing forests and visible supply of iron as a condition of predestination, it is well to note that this evolution of the world's mineral resources is also in perfect harmony with the demands of the hour. For, in cement, is found a building material superior to any which has heretofore been employed.

As a Safe Investment

The Bonner Portland Cement Company is capitalized for $800,000 preferred, and $1,200,000 in common—an amount sufficiently large to warrant the floating of this herculean undertaking, and small enough to enable the earning of a substantial dividend.

The stock is being floated under the well known Caffery system. Through this unique and clever plan of organization, each stockholder receives one full share of common stock with each share of preferred stock purchased.

The preferred stock is offered at par.

In the economic scheme of the world's industrial development, civilization has passed through the Stone and Bronze Ages; and the Iron Age, which is now in its zenith, will soon decline in favor of the Age of Concrete.

The safeguard of Your Investment

In considering this investment from the standpoint of safety, understand that there is no prospecting or experimenting to be done, no chances to be taken.

Money invested will go directly and immediately into the property itself, and were all the company's physical assets to be wiped out of existence tomorrow, by storm, cyclone or other calamity, $800,000 in cold cash would still be represented in the imperishable wealth of the rock and shale deposits of its 261 acres, together with its natural gas plant and franchise.

Perhaps the greatest safeguard of any investment of this character is the personal ability and integrity of the men at the head of the enterprise. This company is extremely fortunate in being possessed of that factor of success in a most unusual degree. The company will receive the competent and expert business management of men who are thoroughly familiar with every detail of the cement business, and whose experiences in the cement business have been exceptionally successful.

The visible supply of iron ore in the United States will be exhausted in fifty years, and this information comes from no less an authority than the Swiss Parliament. The world's workers will then look in vain to our timber resources, which, even, are limited to a frightening degree.

Dear Sir:—In enclosed with this letter a report to date of the cement material which we received from Mr. Freeborn. The cement which we made was of excellent quality and indicates that that the material is eminently suited for the manufacture of high grade Portland Cement.

In making the report, I should have mentioned that the sand briquettes were made with 3 parts standard Sandusky sand.

Very truly yours,

THE FREEBORN ENGINEERING AND CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.
707-710 HEIST BUILDING,
PHONES—Home, 4161 Main; Bell, 4500 Main.
Kansas City, Mo., March 7, 1907.

Bonner Portland Cement Company, Kansas City, Mo.

Gentlemen:—After having examined your property at Bonner Springs, Kansas, we beg to submit the following report thereon:

We found the location of the raw material in a ledge 100 feet high, about three-fourths of a mile east of the town of Bonner Springs, immediately adjoining the right of way of the Union Pacific Railway and alongside the Kaw River. It is also easily reached by a switch from the A., T. & S. F. Ry., whose line between Kansas City and Leavenworth crosses the Kaw River about one-half mile west of the proposed plant. The plant site is immediately east of the east side of the rock ledge.

The raw material is unusually accessible, requiring no stripping. The Limestone is forty-three feet thick and immediately above a stratum of shale twenty feet thick.

The analysis of the shale and limestone follow:

	SHALE.	LIMESTONE.
Si O2	64.98	1.34
Al2 O3	20.61	.40
Fe2 O3	4.04	.15
Ca O	.20	54.90
Mg O	1.96	.20
S O3	.00	.00
Alkali	1.54	.00
Loss on ignition	6.20	43.44

We have had cement made from the raw material taken from this property. It showed light in color and made into briquettes and tested after one day averaged over 300 lbs.; after seven days, the test averaged over 575 lbs. Pats of neat cement after six hours of steaming showed no sign of checking or cracking.

Your company has 261 acres of rock and shale property, which will last over two hundred years in the operation of proposed plant.

A particularly advantageous feature of this location is the supply of natural gas immediately upon the property. The five producing wells here supply gas to the town of Bonner Springs at a profit sufficient to cover all expense incident to the operation of the gas lines to and at the plant, making the cost of fuel to your company at this location nothing and will pay a nice revenue in addition.

We figure the price of coal at $2.50 per ton, and fuel oil at 65 cents per barrel. In burning coal producing cement 310 pounds are used per barrel, which makes the fuel per barrel of cement cost $0.03. Therefore, operating a 1,000 barrel plant, say 300 days per year, using coal for fuel, means a fuel bill of $151,200.00 per annum.

In using fuel oil costing 65 cents per barrel, and consuming twelve gallons of oil per barrel of cement produced, the cost of fuel per barrel of cement will be $0.13. By using fuel oil, therefore, the annual expense for fuel, of a 1,600 barrel plant, will be $187,136.00.

It is evident then, that by using gas on this site, a minimum saving of over $100,000.00 per annum can be made over a plant using other fuel.

The accessibility of the raw material and its immense quantity, the excellent facilities for shipment to all points, the ample water supply so near at hand, the free fuel and the propinquity of a rapidly growing market, mark this as one of the most desirable properties for the manufacture and distribution of Portland Cement which we have examined in ten years.

Yours very truly,
THE FREEBORN ENG. & CONST. CO.

Excerpts from S. J. Hatch's Letter

S. J. Hatch, Civil and Mining Engineer, of Kansas City, Mo., who has made a critical examination of the company's property, says: "The location for your plant is ideal." "The Kaw River between Kansas City and Bonner Springs has an average of about three feet of water the year round." "Your raw material is the best in Kansas for Portland Cement." "There is over five times as much natural gas in your field as you will use in the cement plant."

With such a proposition as this one before the investing public it need not be surprising if this advertisement will prove the first and last announcement which the company will make—for its stock will be snapped up by discriminating investors. Therefore, we would advise you to make your reservations for stock at once, either in person or by wire. Remember, with each share of preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock, sold at par, one share of common will be given.

Concrete is in the day of its ascendancy, being unqualifiedly adapted to all modern and accepted building uses.

SEATTLE AND TACOMA.

A Tale of the Fierce Rivalry of Two Loving Cities.

In Tacoma it is difficult to get any one to admit that Seattle has a harbor at all. During the few hours that we spent there as banquetees I happened casually to mention the matter of harbors. The Tacoma man smiled sadly, tolerantly, as he might at a foolish child.

"My dear sir," he said gently, "I presume you are aware that a ship is about as safe in the harbor of Seattle as she would be in Hell Gate. Do you ever read the papers?" He still regarded me with that same sad smile. "Of course not everything gets into the papers. There is hardly a day—hardly a day, sir—that some ship doesn't sink in Seattle harbor while she's tied up to the dock. Harbor! Harbor!" He threw up his hands. "Heavens!" he exclaimed. Then in a few swift, passionate phrases he blocked out the superlativeness of the harbor of Tacoma, and as we parted he grabbed the lapels of my coat and whispered hoarsely, "And you can mail a letter in Tacoma to—any—place—in—the—world, and you will get an answer to it one—whole—day quicker than you would if you sent it from Seattle!"

About the time we visited these vivacious cities, Tacoma and Seattle, a whale which had been disporting itself in the waters of the sound in their neighborhood was found one day floating lifeless. A Seattle paper at once explained that he had probably "wandered about until he caught a glimpse of Tacoma and fell dead." "Death came," continued this obituary, "suddenly and unexpectedly just as he had settled himself to a long siege to watch Tacoma grow. In this form it was probably a mercy, for he would have died of starvation had he stayed until the object of his visit was accomplished."—From "In the Banquet Belt," by Arthur Ruhl, in Outing Magazine.

Iodine in the Human Body.

Iodine is found in many quarters where it would be least suspected. According to some interesting experiments of Amand Gautier, the thyroid gland contains about one-thousandth part by weight of this substance. Where does it come from? asks Gautier. Some authorities say it is derived from the atmosphere or from water, but others fail to discover traces of the substance therein. M. Gautier believes, however, that the failure was due to insufficient methods. He finds minute particles of iodine in the air of Paris and still more in that of the seashore and salt marshes. It is well known that seaweed is especially rich in iodine. It has also been discovered in ordinary foods, especially in certain fish. By bathing a rabbit in water containing iodine M. Gautier discovered a curious fact—namely, that the brain has a peculiar attraction for this substance, absorbing over seven times as much proportionately to weight as the glands of the neck and four times as much as the heart and lungs.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Hugeness of New York.

Just about one out of every three inhabitants of New York city was born in a foreign country. Manhattan alone has 789,342 residents of foreign birth and Brooklyn 355,697. The total number of foreigners domesticated in the metropolis is, in precise figures, 1,297,060. They would alone compose a city as big as Philadelphia, considerably larger than Constantinople or more than twice as big as Boston. Half of the population of the state of New York is located within the limits of the great American metropolis, which has more inhabitants than Switzerland by one-fifth and more than Denmark or Servia or Greece. The population of New York city is more than equal to that of nine sovereign states of the Union combined—Maine, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado, Montana and Nevada. To this total Arizona and Alaska would have to be added in order to furnish as many Americans as are to be found within the precincts of the five boroughs.—Pearson's Magazine.

Queer Royal Ornaments.

The king's taste in jewelry is extremely quiet. A horseshoe or single pearl pin or a plain gold tie ring and a signet ring on his little finger are all he ever wears, with the simplest possible studs and links. All those who have played bridge with his majesty, however, are familiar with the heavy gold bangle which adorns his right wrist. The German emperor also wears gold bracelets on either arm. But the most singular ornaments worn by a royal personage are the two rings which the Duke of Orleans wears on either little finger, which are attached by a slender gold chain to a bangle on the wrist. The late king of Spain used to wear a flexible gold necklet, and the late King Milan had a golden anklet riveted on him.—London Tit-Bits.

Devoured by Wolves.

Two persons have recently been devoured by wolves in the Kelimer district of Hungary. The first to perish was the village postman, a man named Peto. He had been for his mails to the town of Putnok and was attacked on the road by a pack of wolves, and nothing but the feet, which were protected by very thick boots of hard leather, was seen again. After he was long overdue home his wife left to search for him and shared his fate. Only tatters of her clothing were left.—London Globe.

A TANTALIZING METAL

Peculiar Properties and Wonderful Hardness of Tantalum.

A rare metal which has attracted universal attention during the last two years while before it was scarcely known outside of some scientific laboratories is tantalum, so named by its discoverer, Ekelberg, on account of the tantalizing difficulties experienced in extracting the metal from its ores.

Only two years ago was it found out by German scientists that what the discoverer thought to be tantalum was an alloy of it and a carbide, and more tantalizing efforts were necessary to produce this metal in its perfectly pure state. But, this success once being reached, the metal immediately became of such importance that it is now revolutionizing at least one large industry, that of the manufacture of incandescent lamps for electric lights. Although it has been tried to use tantalum as a steel hardening agent, the mechanical difficulties in alloying tantalum with steel have been so great that we shall probably see other applications come into prominence first.

Tantalum is one of the hardest substances known, and its use for scientific instruments, where price stands always second to accuracy and durability, will doubtless be developed much sooner, inasmuch as tantalum also resists the corrosive influence of acids and alkaline solutions in a very remarkable degree.

One of the most striking experiments to demonstrate the hardness of tantalum was that for the purpose of boring a hole through a sheet of pure tantalum metal a diamond drill bore was used, revolving incessantly for three days and making 5,000 revolutions per minute, and the result was a depression of less than one one-hundredth of an inch in the metal, but an entirely dull and smooth diamond.—E. Schaaf-Regelman in Engineering Magazine.

"Please Omit Flowers."

"Please omit flowers."

Those three words added to an obituary notice deprive the florists of Chicago of about $100,000 a year. Some of the larger establishments that cater to a fashionable trade are hit harder than the small concerns, but there is no florist in the city who does not feel the loss entailed by the three words quoted above.

"There were about 30,000 deaths in Chicago last year," said a Madison street florist, "and at least one-tenth of the death notices printed informed friends to 'please omit flowers.' When some person of note dies and flowers are to be omitted at the funeral, the big florists are out all the way from $25 to $100 each. Those who request that flowers be omitted are the very ones whose friends are well able to purchase floral tributes and would otherwise do so. Many persons come to me in the course of a year to order a wreath or some floral design for a funeral, not knowing that the 'please omit flowers' has been published with the death notice. All the florists in the city have the same experience, and I estimate that our losses in the year amount to $100,000."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Be Kind to the Waiter.

It is one of the noblest functions of a trades union to vindicate the personal dignity of its members, but the waiters of Bucharest carry professional pride almost too far. Two customers in a cafe there the other day, a French paper reports, insulted the waiter who served them. The waiter reported the affair to the Waiters' union, and the union blacklisted the two customers, and in every cafe and restaurant in Bucharest they are rigidly boycotted by the waiters. At one establishment the proprietor himself offered to serve them, but the waiters unanimously threatened to throw down their napkins there and then if he did. The wits of Bucharest assure the two boycotted men that there is nothing for it but to get married. And even then they will have to be very meek with their wives. —Manchester Guardian.

"The Worst Indian That Ever Lived."

Geronimo in his prime ran forty miles on foot in one day, rode 500 miles on one stretch as fast as he could change horses and wore out the column that finally captured him until three sets of officers were needed to finish the chase, and not more than one-third of the troopers who started were in at the finish. Wrinkled and crafty and cruel is his swarthy face today, but the fire of his infernal energy has died, and he is no more than a relic of the Geronimo of whom General Miles said after their first meeting:

"He rode into our camp and dismounted, a prisoner. He was one of the brightest, most resolute, determined men I ever met, with the sharpest, clearest dark eye. Every movement showed power and energy."—Outing Magazine.

Bread Line For Americans, Mostly.

A prominent clergyman at the head of an east side and Bowery mission in New York is authority for the statement that the men who line up for free bread at the distributing places around 1 o'clock every morning, men who have no place to lay their heads for a single night's lodging, are nearly all from the interior of the United States.—Van Norden's Magazine.

Niagara's Recession.

A recent examination of Niagara made by the Canadian geological survey reveals that the recession of the falls (on the Canadian side) is perceptibly slowing. The falls recede now about two feet two inches a year as compared with five feet three inches, which was calculated to be the annual recession between the years 1875 and 1890.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all, lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

WEAK WOMEN READ BELOW

One woman in three is struggling against weakness.

Are you one of the weak ones?

Not exactly sick, but oh, how miserable!

You discharge your daily duties, but who can measure the burden, the trial?

Talk of bravery, where find a finer spirit than among half-sick women, fighting, struggling to do their duty against terrible odds—and they never give up until they drop.

If you could put a drop of blood under the misroscope the cause would be revealed.

You would find the blood thin and watery, red cells far too few, the carrier of life very greatly roduced in vitality, and this means slow death.

Ferrozone cures weakness by fortifying both appetite and digestion, and making plenty of blood.

Ferrozone cures weakness by supplying nutriment and building material, by giving the body the constituents it requires for restoring tired organs.

It gives vim, vigor and endurance.

Ferrozone is a tissue builder.

It adds force to all the vital functions—the stomach, liver, kidneys.

Ferrozone gives sound sleep, sound digestion, promotes perfect removal of all the body wastes.

Ferrozone makes the body glow with health.

Any weak, pale or sickly woman that Ferrozone won't cure—why she must be hopeless. Wonderful power in Ferrozone, wonderful cures it makes, and this you can prove by trying it. Sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

Miss Coventry Visits Kingston

Miss Coventry, physical directress of the Y.W.C.A., left yesterday for Kingston to attend the closing exercises of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes in that city. Miss Hamilton, of the Kingston Y.W.C.A. will return with her to Peterborough and spend a few days here. She will probably be in charge of the second performance of the gymnasium classes next week. Miss Coventry has done good work with her classes and is highly spoken of by all who belonged to her.

Mr. T. Elliott of Norwood Dead

Mr. Thos. Elliott, who has lived in the village of Norwood for the past half century, was yesterday morning, found dead in his bed and the house of Mrs. W. Taylor, Norwood. The deceased has been in perfect health, as far as is known until the time of his sudden death, which is supposed to be due to heart disease. He leaves one son, Mr. Robt. Elliott, of Peterborough, and four daughters, Mrs. Wm. Taylor and Mrs. J. R. McKelvie of Norwood, Mrs. W. Hubble, of Michigan, Minn., and Mrs. E. Lewis, of Acton, Ont. The funeral arrangements are not yet known.

More Human Remains Dug Up

Still more ghastly reminders of the certainty of death for all are being daily unearthed during excavation for the armories and Collegiate Institute. Yesterday a large number of skulls and other human bones were dug up as the armorers digging operations were in process. These mementoes of man's mortality should make all seriously meditate on the solemn admonition may afford and inspire each man to forswear coming in at seven o'clock a.m., and, after climbing up stairs in stocking feet telling his wife he had fallen asleep whilst reading the parson's sermon of last Sunday.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of The Eclectic Medical Review says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa suppressed or absent monthly periods, chills from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no lovable woman can act better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

"As to the value of Cobalt why you can't put it too strong" said Mr. John Black, after spending sometime in examing the Strathcona property.

THE STRATHCONA

Buy Shares of "The Strathcona" Now at 50c each

BECAUSE—Two well known experts consider its location as one of the best in the whole mining camp. "As to the richness of Cobalt, why you can't put it too strong!"—Mr. John Black

BECAUSE—It is surrounded by big paying and very valuable mines—on the North native silver—on the West ore assaying 800 ozs silver to the ton—on the East ore assaying 3,000 ozs silver to ton—on the South the Rochester mine.

BECAUSE—14 veins of ore have already been disclosed, 2 to 6 inches wide on the surface and widening as they extend downwards.

BECAUSE—The strike of the veins is principally North-East and South-West and this is the direction of all the big silver veins of the Camp are running

BECAUSE—The Principal vein in the Thompson Mine (800 ozs. of silver in the ton) is running right into the Strathcona Property,

BECAUSE—The Company also owns 240-acres Valuable Gold Property on Larder Lake (5 ozs. of gold to the ton.)

BECAUSE—The extremely low capitalization (only $300,000.) makes the payment of big dividends a certainty.

BECAUSE—The price of the shares, which is now 50c will soon advance to $1.00.

Don't forget that there are already 14 veins of ore disclosed in "The Strathcona," and with indications of many more similiar veins that the ore will assay at least 800 ozs. to the ton;—that the deeper it is, the more valuable it becomes. Don't hesitate. Large blocks of shares are being sold daily.

Send your subscripton at once, before the price advances and before the entire stock is sold. Allotments of shares will be made only in order as received. Address the Secretary

NEW ELECTRICAL FIRE SYSTEM NOW IN USE

Tested and Found Satisfactory---Location of New Boxes and How to Use Them and Read the Alarms--Valuable Information to Preserve.

The new electric fire alarm system has been installed, tested by the Fire, Water and Light Committee in company with Messrs. Dean, Murdock and Linton, of the Bell Telephone Co., who installed the system, and found it to be in a highly satisfactory working condition. The city's alarm service is now of a modern nature, and the new fire hall and increased fire fighting equipment assures more efficient service than heretofore, and all we now need is a permanent paid brigade to place Peterborough on the ranks of up-to-date Canadian cities with respect to fire protection.

Twenty-five electric alarm boxes have been located throughout the city and an alarm can now be sent in and rung from the tower in unbelievably quick time after a fire is noticed.

THE ALARM BOXES.

The following is a complete list of the alarm boxes now in use, with the numbers of same, and our readers should cut this list out and carefully preserve it, for reference when a fire alarm is rung.

HOW TO OPERATE BOXES.

For the benefit of the public the explanation of the method of operating the alarm is given. It will be noticed that the keys to the boxes are enclosed in small metal boxes beside the large alarm box. Should a fire occur and an alarm is to be sent in, all one has to do is to break the glass, take out the key, and with it unlock the large door on the alarm box and pull down the lever inside. This action sends in the alarm to the fire hall, firemen's houses, and pump house, and will in addition strike on the fire bell the number of the ward, also the number of the box from which the alarm has been sent in. Thus, should the fire be reported from box 45 in the fourth ward, the bell will strike four, and after a pause, four, and then five, indicating that an alarm was sent in from box 45 in ward 4. This will be repeated four times, and there will be no more prolonged ringing of the bell in future.

TELEPHONE ALARMS.

It will still be possible to send an alarm in by telephone, and, should one be more convenient than an alarm box, it would be advisable to adopt this means of sending in the alarm. Simply telephone Bell 'phone number 24, and give the location of the fire to the person answering the call. The alarm will then be sent in from the hall, and the bell will ring in the usual way, at the same time the alarm will be given in the firemen's homes.

The operation of the system is extremely simple, and it will only be a matter of a short time until the public will be able to familiarize itself with the new method, and will be able to tell at once the location of the fire.

It will be noticed that to facilitate this the numbers of the boxes begin with the number of the ward in which they are placed; all boxes in ward one being numbers in the tens, in the second ward, the twenties, and so on.

The official test of this new system was commenced Wednesday and finished yesterday afternoon.

Everything has been declared to be in perfect working order, and the method is now in force.

On Tuesday night the fire alarm will be rung, and the fire brigade turn out for drill.

Handsome Signs on Dominion Bank

P.C. Newhall's Case is Referred to

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—In an evening paper of last night I noticed an article concerning P. C. Newhall, which said that the local police commissioners met Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of investigating the charge against this officer, laid by Brakeman Davidson. Now, sir, I cannot understand why the paper referred to should give such prominence to this member of the police force. It is generally known that Mr. Davidson's charge against P. C. Newhall, is that the latter called him a "liar" after the recent appeal case tried before Judge Weller, in the letter signed by Mr. Davidson, but presumably not composed by him, only part of the story is told. Possibly when this matter is sifted out, if it ever is considered by the commissioners seriously, the public will find that there are two sides to the story. It is even possible that some remarks made by Mr. McMurchy of Toronto, Mr. Davidson's counsel, after the trial was over as to his opinion concerning Mr. Newhall's credibility at that trial, may be made public and have a strong tendency to color opinions that the evening paper referred to seems to want to paint so black. When a constable is trying to do his duty without fear or favor he should be backed up by the press, but it is easy to be seen that there exists an ill feeling against the officer concerned on the part of the writer who has of late given such prominence to childish affair.

Yours truly,

JUSTICE.

Wertheimer Regains Stolen Tresures

London, May 10.—About two o'clock yesterday morning Charles Wertheimer was aroused from his sleep and was informed by the police that, with the exception of the two oil paintings and two of the miniatures, all the art treasures stolen from his house at Park Lane last February had been recovered.

It is stated that the paintings although not in the hands of the police, are in existence, and in the same condition as when they were cut from their frames, and it is expected that in the course of a few days Mr. Wertheimer will get back these famous works of Gainsborough and Reynolds.

It was not until five days ago that the police got track of the missing property, and reached the conclusion that it was in the possession of a Swiss waiter living near Clapham. They laid a trap for the waiter, arrested him, and found in his pockets four of Mr. Wertheimer's snuff boxes. The rest of the stolen articles except the paintings and two miniatures were found in his rooms.

The man appeared in a police court yesterday, but no evidence was submitted by the police beyond the statement of the arrest and search. The prisoner's lawyer indicated by his manner of conducting the case that the defence would be considerably more than a mere formal matter. His questions seemed to show an intention to set up that his client was a sort of catspaw, and it is considered possible that he will undertake to prove that the man was not concerned in the actual burglary.

Submarine Eruption off Frenoh Coast

L'Orient, France, May 10.—Several trawlers came in here yesterday, reporting the observance of an extraordinary phenomenon at sea, which would appear to have been a submarine volcanic eruption. The occurrence took place at a point 44 miles south-west of the Island of Croix, and 80 miles west of Belle Isle.

The men on board the trawlers noticed bright flames and intense smoke rising from the sea. Believing that some vessel was on fire, the trawler Kernevel worked her way in that direction fort he purpose of rendering assistance. She could, however, discover no ship on fire. The fire and smoke, from no apparent cause, continued throughout the night, and becoming more violent towards morning the Kernevel steamed away to ensure her safety.

Serious Tragedy In Missouri

Independence, Mo., May 10.—Clyde St. Clair, aged 22, son of George St. Clair, a prominent citizen, was shot and killed on the public square early yesterday by Van Tappan, aged 23 years, his intimate friend. The two young men had attended a party together at the home of a young woman with whom both were in love, and were returning home when they engaged in a quarrel over her, which resulted in the tragedy. Tappan went to the police station and voluntarily surrendered. He said he shot St. Clair in self-defence when the latter threatened him with a revolver. There were no witnesses.

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER

Get Rid of That Indigestion at Once by Using Mi-o-na.

Either through slackness or carelessness hundreds of people slowly poison themselves by chronic indigestion. By neglecting to cure at once any sluggishness of the important organs of digestion the system is filled with fermenting and decaying food that results in sick headaches, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

The want of a perfectly safe yet effective cure for indigestion and stomach troubles in their many forms was felt up to the time of the successful investigations that resulted in the production of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion, and the pain and distress which are often felt after meals disappear in a very few days—such is the wonderful curative power of Mi-o-na.

The old-fashioned medicines for stomach troubles merely digest the food, while Mi-o-na strengthens the digestive organs so that they soon become able to care for the food that is eaten.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mlona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

That Chemong Park is yearly growing in general popularity and increasing attendance is fully in evidence. Two new cottages are now in course of erection there. Mr. Popham, of White Plains, N.J., and Commodore McCombe, of New York city are having summer homes put up. Plans have been drawn for new cottages which will be constructed by Mrs. Andrews, A. A. Hollingshead, Dr. B. R. Poole and C. S. McClelland. Dr. Carmichael recently purchased the summer home of Rev. Dr. Speer, in the Park.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's session of the police court, two men named respectively Fred Turner and James Anderson were charged with having 'been drunk the preceding evening. Anderson an undeniable son of Bonnie Scotland, with a Scotch accent that at every note conveyed a breath of the "Heather Dew" (this is literally correct), tried to give an explanation of his lapse from the virtues of temperance. His worship after Anderson had made his "spiel" remarked, "Well, Anderson your excuse is fairly well put, but you talk like a child." Anderson replied, "Verra weel your honour, I might be mistaken but what I say is the verra truth." The magistrate allowed the twain to go saying "You have just got to Canada and I would like to see you get on. If you are ever before me again, I'll treat you differently."

A well known local (sic) eccentric whose name shall be nameless, but who is known as the "Gore's Landing Phrenologist," told the court that he had arrived in the city on the preceding day from Gore's Landing, en route for Lakefield, to visit his brother, who is ill at that village. It seems that the reader of "bumps" during the night wandered into a local hotel and lay down in front of a bedroom door, in the hall upstairs. This caused the lady occupant of the room, when for some reason she stepped from her room to the hall, during the night, to get quite a shock as she stepped over Rochard's slumbering humanity. The magistrate gave the phrenologist quite a lecture and quietly twitted him on his frightening the lady. Dick indignantly denied, and probably truthfully, all idea of interfering with or intending to hurt any one's feelings. Dick was allowed to go home.

W. Doyle, an old man whose hands and head shook like the proverbial "aspen leaf," from the continued and deep potations of cheap whiskey was given a 15-day meal ticket, with lodging thrown in at Castle Nesbitt to enable him to sober up.

Dr. Boucher Presented Bowling Prizes

Silver cup, donated by C. E. Frost, for the winners of the rink competition—Won by Skip J. McIntyre's rink.

Pair of bowls donated by Dr. R. P. Boucher, Scotch doubles, won by W. S. Robinson.

Pair of bowls, donated by Mr. John Kruse, for singles competition, won by Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

Dr. Boucher referred to the pleasure it gave him to hand over the handsome prizes. Short speeches were made by the recipients, expressing their thanks.

Sees Coal Famine

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 10.—"I look for a greater coal famine next year than ever before, and the Union Pacific Railroad, which has always taken care of the people along its lines, will no longer be allowed to do so on account of the Hepburn bill," is a statement attributed yesterday to W. L. Park, general superintendent of the Union Pacific Railroad.

"The small dealers," Mr. Park is reported to have said, "have, in a way depended on the railroad supply of coal to help them out, and, unless they store their own coal during the coming summer, they will face a famine in the winter. Coal consumers among other lines where a similar arrangement has been maintained by coal carrying roads will have to meet the same emergency. The Union Pacific will store coal as usual this summer, but will have none to sell."

Japan and France Will Sign Treaty

Paris, May 8.—Official confirmation has been obtained of the report that negotiations are in progress between France and Japan looking to an understanding mutually guaranteeing the political and commercial interests of the two powers in the Far East. The conferences on the subject have been going on in Tokio and are proceeding harmoniously, but some time will probably elapse before they are concluded. France has recognised her possions in Indo-China and Siam, as well as her commercial interests in the Far East would be vulnerable in the event of war and deemed it wise to conclude an arrangement with Japan, which is willing to guarantee French interests in return for the recognition of the Japanese claims in Corea and Formosa. At the same time it is explained the entente will be strictly limited to the maintenance of the status quo. It does not touch China and has not anything resembling an offensive or defensive feature. Nevertheless, taken in connection with the Russo-Japanese understanding which shortly will be concluded and the Anglo-Russian agreement, both of which are supplementary to Anglo-Japanese and Franco-Russian alliances and the Anglo-French, the entente creates a combination in the Far East and a new grouping of the powers in Europe of extreme significance. It constitutes, in effect, another signal evidence of the success of Great Britain's diplomatic map euvering for the isolation of Germany.

"There's a Reason"

India's State is Very Serious

Lahore, British India, May 10. — The political unrest here is assuming graver proportions.

The authorities are drafting troops of all arms, and have issued a proclamation prohibiting meetings of every kind.

A sensation was caused yesterday by the arrest of a prominent lawyer, organizer of most of the riots in the Punjab. He was immediately deported to another province.

A Soore Injured on Chicago Train

Chicago, May 10.—Suburban passenger train No. 114 on the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad, running between Aurora, Ill., and Chicago, was wrecked yesterday near Lawndale, about six miles from here. Several passengers were reported killed and twenty hurt.

The train was running at a high rate of speed when the engine struck a broken rail and leaped from the track. It dragged the baggage and one passenger coach with it, and all three rolled down a small embankment. The other five passenger cars remained on the track.

Many Settlers Going West

Montreal, May 10.—The Canadian Pacific Railway, Windsor station, was crowded yesterday with new settlers hurrying West to their new homes. Station officials say that they have seldom known a busier time and they have instructions to prepare for just such occasions throughout the entire summer.

Passes Police Physical Examination

Mr. John B. McDonald, a brother of the late Mr. Alfred McDonald, one of the applicants for a position on the local police force, yesterday passed successfully his physical examinations. Mr. McDonald is six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds, and was for sixteen years railway policeman in Chicago for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy R.R. He has been in this city since his brother's death last year.

Colonists for Anticosti

Quebec, May 10.—Mr. Menier, the proprietor of Anticosti, is expected from Paris this coming summer on a visit to his island kingdom in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and according to one of the leading officials of the island at present in Quebec, the chocolate king intends to bring out with him a number of new French colonists, including trained agriculturists. Though several acres of the land are already under culture and have produced good crops, less attention has so far been paid to farming operations than to lumbering, fishing, hunting for furs, etc.

On a Trip Around the World

Winnipeg, May 10.—Colonel and Mrs. Lawrence Drummond, of London, are here on their way back to England, after a trip around the world. Colonel Drummond was Military Secretary to Lord Minto during the time the latter was Governor-General of Canada. The colonel and his wife spent Christmas and New Year's with the Viceroy and Lady Minto in India.

Colonel Drummond observed the marvellous progress which the development of Canada had experienced during the last few years. They intend staying off a few days at Montreal and Toronto.

To See Canada

Ottawa, May 10.—Prince Fushimi, special envoy of the Mikado to the Court of St. James, has revised the itinerary of his return journey to Japan so as to be able to see something of Canada en route.

Instead, therefore, of taking the Over-seas Mail to catch the steamer Empress of Japan at Vancouver on June 10, his highness upon arriving at Quebec, will proceed leisurely westward, and will sail from Seattle on the Great Northern steamship Minnesota, on June 21. The prince will then have 15 days to spend in visiting points of interest in the Dominion. While in Canada Prince Fushimi will be the guest of the Dominion Government.

Mrs. Patrick Heard From

New York, N. Y., May 8.—Mrs. Albert T. Patrick, wife of the man serving a life sentence for the murder of William Marsh Rice in this city, September 22, 1900, has rushed to his defence. In a long letter she recites the testimony of the case from the prisoner's side. She charges that two jurymen offered to vote for acquittal, but the defence scorned offer. These jurymen, she says, afterward worked hard to send Patrick to the chair. Mrs. Patrick declares the court, jury and prosecutor were prejudiced against her husband, and two million was spent to railroad the defendant to the electric chair by the Rice heirs. She says Rice employed Patrick to draw up an alleged forged will because he had gained confidence in the lawyer through his success in securing settlement of the old man's suit against the heirs of his wife. Everything in favor of her husband, she charges, was purposely kept from

POPE NO LONGER A PRISONER AT VATICAN

Plan to Give Pontiff Papal Territory.

THE OPTIONS ARE SECURED

American Plans to Help the Pope.

New York, May 9.—There is a far bigger news story than appears on the surface back of the short cablegram received from Rome today that R. C. Kerens, of St. Louis, and Martin Maloney, the well known Easterner, are arranging for the purchase of a narrow strip of land extending from the Vatican to the seacoast, in order to give Pope Pius X. a villa on the seashore.

Back of the statement in the cablegram that options have been secured on this strip of land is the understanding that the Italian government has been won over to the plan to restore the pontiff's temporal power on this strip.

There is interwoven in this a plan for the enhancement of the Catholic church in the United States and the addition of at least three American prelates to the list of members of the sacred college of cardinals.

It is one of the biggest schemes under way in the world today. The original suggestion came from Archbishop John J. Glennon, of St. Louis, whom a well-known English ecclesiastic attached to the Vatican diplomatic service asserted in confidence, shortly after the pope made his declaration during the last allocution, was the one his holiness had in mind when he said:

"The United States will soon be given an additional cardinal; one whose name will be a complete surprise."

American money exclusively will be used. The $10,000,000 needed to close the deal has been assured. An appeal for subscriptions to American Catholics generally is likely. When the plan becomes a reality Mr. Kerens would naturally ask for Glennon and Maloney for Ryan. They would not be refused. Either Chicago or St. Paul and the Pacific coast would also be included in the list of new cardinals.

The train was running at a high rate of speed when the engine struck a broken rail and leaped from the track. It dragged the baggage and one passenger coach with it, and all three rolled down a small embankment. The other five passenger cars remained on the track.

Many Settlers Going West

Montreal, May 10.—The Canadian Pacific Railway, Windsor station, was crowded yesterday with new settlers hurrying West to their new homes. Station officials say that they have seldom known a busier time and they have instructions to prepare for just such occasions throughout the entire summer.

Passes Police Physical Examination

Mr. John B. McDonald, a brother of the late Mr. Alfred McDonald, one of the applicants for a position on the local police force, yesterday passed successfully his physical examinations. Mr. McDonald is six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds, and was for sixteen years railway policeman in Chicago for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy R.R. He has been in this city since his brother's death last year.

Colonists for Anticosti

Quebec, May 10.—Mr. Menier, the proprietor of Anticosti, is expected from Paris this coming summer on a visit to his island kingdom in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and according to one of the leading officials of the island at present in Quebec, the chocolate king intends to bring out with him a number of new French colonists, including trained agriculturists. Though several acres of the land are already under culture and have produced good crops, less attention has so far been paid to farming operations than to lumbering, fishing, hunting for furs, etc.

On a Trip Around the World

Winnipeg, May 10.—Colonel and Mrs. Lawrence Drummond, of London, are here on their way back to England, after a trip around the world. Colonel Drummond was Military Secretary to Lord Minto during the time the latter was Governor-General of Canada. The colonel and his wife spent Christmas and New Year's with the Viceroy and Lady Minto in India.

Colonel Drummond observed the marvellous progress which the development of Canada had experienced during the last few years. They intend staying off a few days at Montreal and Toronto.

To See Canada

Ottawa, May 10.—Prince Fushimi, special envoy of the Mikado to the Court of St. James, has revised the itinerary of his return journey to Japan so as to be able to see something of Canada en route.

Instead, therefore, of taking the Over-seas Mail to catch the steamer Empress of Japan at Vancouver on June 10, his highness upon arriving at Quebec, will proceed leisurely westward, and will sail from Seattle on the Great Northern steamship Minnesota, on June 21. The prince will then have 15 days to spend in visiting points of interest in the Dominion. While in Canada Prince Fushimi will be the guest of the Dominion Government.

Mrs. Patrick Heard From

New York, N. Y., May 8.—Mrs. Albert T. Patrick, wife of the man serving a life sentence for the murder of William Marsh Rice in this city, September 22, 1900, has rushed to his defence. In a long letter she recites the testimony of the case from the prisoner's side. She charges that two jurymen offered to vote for acquittal, but the defence scorned offer. These jurymen, she says, afterward worked hard to send Patrick to the chair. Mrs. Patrick declares the court, jury and prosecutor were prejudiced against her husband, and two million was spent to railroad the defendant to the electric chair by the Rice heirs. She says Rice employed Patrick to draw up an alleged forged will because he had gained confidence in the lawyer through his success in securing settlement of the old man's suit against the heirs of his wife. Everything in favor of her husband, she charges, was purposely kept from

Funeral of the Late Mrs. J. Lowry

Mrs. John Lowry, who was born 79 years ago in Springville, has passed away. Some 30 years ago the deceased moved to Warsaw where she resided until last fall, when she moved into the city and has lived with her daughter, Mrs. John A. Fairbairn, at 769 Water street. She was an active member of the English church, until old age forced her to retire. The funeral will leave her late residence on Water street at eleven o'clock this morning after a short service by Rev. Canon Davidson, and proceed to Warsaw cemetery for interment.

Deceased is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Geo. Clemens, Dummer; Mrs. Alex. Calder and Mrs. Fairbairn, of Peterborough, and four sons, Thos., of Deer Lake; Henry of Montreal, and Samuel and John, of Peterborough.

Nearly Smothered by Gasoline Fumes

Reports received yesterday afternoon from Lindsay noted that a young man who formerly lived in this city had a narrow escape from death in that town. It seems, according to reports received that a young man named Scott, son of W. Scott, a G.T.R. fireman, who has been working in Lindsay, was told to enter a gasoline tank to dip out some of the remaining fluid. He became overpowered by fumes of the gasoline. A fellow workman, seeing the danger that Scott was in, jumped into the tank and succeeded in getting him out, just as he, himself, was overcome by the fumes. Scott was pretty far gone when rescued, and a doctor who was called, had considerable difficulty in reviving him.

Lawn Bowlers Elect Officers

The Lawn Bowlers, one of Peterborough's most enthusiastic and persistent advocates of good clean sport have held their annual meeting. Owing to extraordinary expenses last season, the budget showed a deficit of some $150, this will however more than be made up during the coming season.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Proper Medicine For The Blood

Drives Away That Tired Feeling; Makes You Feel Brisk.

To every one is sure to come that tired, exhausted feeling.

When the blood is weak, thin and debilitated, circulation is slow, and in consequence the system is congested with poisons and wastes that should be driven off.

The sensible person acts on the teachings of experience and cleanses his system with a course of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

No medicine can be more certain to quickly cure. Convenient to take, just one pill at bedtime; safe, because entirely vegetable; unfailing, because proved by thousands that Dr. Hamilton's Pills set you up in a few days.

From Cheboque Pt., N. S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds; "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the "Blues." I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

Morning Times

This paper is the only Morning Daily published between Toronto and Ottawa, and is largely read throughout Eastern Ontario.

Strangers visiting Peterborough are cordially invited to make their headquarters at the office of the Morning and Weekly Times, where they will be furnished with writing material, if needed.

The Times is a member of the Associated Press, and receives telegraphic news each morning up to four o'clock.

The Times will be sent to subscribers in the district at 25 cents per month, and to outside points at $2 per year, strictly in advance.

AN EXTENSION OF THOUGHT

A Chicago professor has taken it upon himself to tell the gentler sex that it does not do enough of the world's thinking. Just what he hoped to accomplish by this assertion the professor does not state. If he expected woman to knit her brows and indugle in mental exertions of a cosmopolitan character, he must have been disappointed. No doubt the average woman feels that her sphere of thought is quite large enough for all practical purposes. Between the culinary demands, and the exigencies of dress, and the care of the children, and the calls of the church, and the thousand and one petty details that demand more or less mental consideration, the average woman cannot be blamed for not feeling any special interest in the balky Balkans, or the Moroccan complication, or the Japanese attitude, or the Congo scandal.

Perhaps the professor would not admit it, but it will be a sorry day for mankind when womankind seriously set out to do a large part of the world's thinking. The phrase is but a glittering generality at the best, but it means—if it means anything—a form of mental distraction that cannot help retarding earnest practical effort. Let the professor and his followers do a little more than their own share of the world's thinking, and thus save womankind from assuming any part of the bothersome burden.

AN IRADE ISSUED

When the head man in Turkey gets driven into a corner by some long-suffering and importunate creditor, or somebody who is able to push him hard for a settlement of some "long pending" question, he issues an irade. Irade sound good, and is good until the next move. We therefore feel pleased by the solemn announcement that the Porte has issued an irade providing for the settlement of the long-pending questions between the United States and Turkey. In accordance with this irade a communication has been sent from the Porte to Ambassador Leishman in which the Porte declares that the American schools and other institutions for which official recognition was demanded will hereafter be treated on the same footing as those of other nations. All other American demands are conceded, and all the obstacles to a complete solution of the difficulties which have existed between the American representatives and the Porte for three years seem to have been removed.

"Seem to have been removed." Something like that has been said before when Turkey seemed to be finally ready to do right. It is a little cautious, but there is no doubt about the irade. That has really been issued.

Train Robbers' Daring Hold-up

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—General Manager Horn of the Northern Pacific Railroad gave out the following statement about the attempt to rob the North Coast Limited near Butte, Mont., yesterday:

"No. 22, eastbound North Coast Limited, Engineer Frank Clow and Conductor Culver, was held up on the east side of Butte Mountain, about 16 miles east of Butte, Montana, by two or more men, who shot and killed the engineer and shot the fireman through the arm. They did some more shooting, that evidently became unarmed and left. Sheriff Webb of Billings was on the train and started on the trail of the hold up men. Bloodhounds from the Deer Lodge Penitentiary have been put on their trail also, and we expect to get the men. Engineer Clow had been running that train for eight years. The robbers did not get any money. While this road has had several holdups in that vicinity in the past ten years, we have captured the robbers in every instance and they are all doing time in the penitentiary, and in all that time our money loss has not been to exceed $3,000."

The Story of a Word

A comparison of old editions of Scott's "Monastery" with one of later date will reveal a slight alteration in the text of a sentence in the tenth chapter. For the word "morse" another is substituted. A tale of comedy attaches to the word which has gone. "Hardened wretch," says Father Eustace, "art thou but this instant delivered from death, and dost thou so soon morse thoughts of slaughter?" The origin of the word morse seems sorely to have troubled the etymologists. Two learned correspondents of Notes and Queries, Mr. Wheatley tells us, accounted for the word. One explained it as "to prime," as when one primes a musket, from O. Fr. "amorce," powder for the touchhole (Cotgrave), and the other by "to bite" (Lat. "mordere"); hence "to indulge in biting, stinging or gnawing thoughts of slaughter." On the other side were those who said that the word was a misprint for something else. "That the word as a misprint should have been printed and read by millions for fifty years without being challenged and altered exceeds the bounds of probability," exclaimed the apologists for morse. But when the manuscript was examined there "nurse" was the word, plainly written.—St. James' Gazette.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Shot and Stabbed Bride of a Night

South Framklin, Mass., May 8.—The police have been unable to locate John Daneiko, who is alleged to have shot his bride of a night, Frances Daneiko, at their newly prepared home Sunday night. The young bride was still alive at midnight, but little hope is entertained for her recovery. The couple were married Sunday, and received friends in their new home until nearly midnight, when they retired. Mr. Daneiko, the groom's father, who occupied a room upstairs being the only other occupant of the house with them. Early Monday morning the wife was aroused by hearing revolver shots down stairs, and hurrying down to the couple's rooms found the young woman lying on the bed with three bullet wounds and three stab wounds in her body. The husband had disappeared. It was some time before the police were notified, and although the police of surrounding cities and town were notified do be on the watch for the missing husband they were unable to locate him. No cause is known for the deed.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature periodically has a vegetable remedy to relieve Constipation known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All checks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

He had crossed the room as he spoke to open the door for her. His fingers were on the handle, but he did not turn it, awaiting her answer. She did not look at him, but passed him toward the shaded lamp, with that desire to fix her attention upon some inanimate object which he knew of old.

"The reserve," she answered, "will stand more than that. It has accumulated, with compound interest. But I deny the debt of which you spoke just now. There is no debt. I have paid it, year by year, day by day. For each one of those fifty years of unhappiness I have paid a year of regret."

He opened the door and passed out into the brilliantly lighted passage and down the stairs, where the servants were waiting to open the door and help her to her carriage.

Sir John did not go downstairs with her.

Later on he dined in his usual solitary grandeur. He was as carefully dressed as ever. The discipline of his household, like the discipline under which he held himself, was unrelaxed.

"What wine is this," he asked, when he had tasted the port.

"Yellow seal, sir," replied the butler confidently.

Sir John sipped again.

"It is a new bin," he said.

"Yes, sir. First bottle of the lower bin, sir."

Sir John nodded with an air of self satisfaction. He was pleased to have proved to himself and to the "damned butler," who had caught him napping in the library, that he was still a young man in himself, with senses and taste unimpaired. But his hand was at the small of his back as he returned to the library.

He was not at all sure about Jack; did not know whether to expect him or not. Jack did not always do what one might have expected him to do under given circumstances. And Sir John rather liked him for it. Perhaps it was that small taint of heredity which was in blood, and makes it thicker than water.

"Nothing like blood, sir," he was in the habit of saying, "in horses, dogs and men." And thereafter he usually threw back his shoulders.

The good blood that ran in his veins was astir tonight. The incidents of the day had aroused him from the peacefulness that lies under a weight of years (we have to lift the years one by one and lay them aside before we find it), and Sir John Meredith would have sat very upright in his chair were it not for that carping pain in his back.

He waited for an hour with his eyes almost continually on the clock, but Jack never came. Then he rang the bell.

"Coffee," he said. "I like punctuality, if you please."

"Thought Mr. Meredith might be expected, sir," murmured the butler humbly.

Sir John was reading the evening paper, or appearing to read it, although he had not his glasses.

"Oblige me by refraining from thought," he said urbanely.

So the coffee was brought, and Sir John consumed it in silent majesty. While he was pouring out his second cup—of a diminutive size—the bell rang. He set down the silver coffee pot with a plebeian clatter, as if his nerves were not quite so good as they used to be.

It was not Jack, but a note from him.

My Dear Father—Circumstances have necessitated the breaking off of my engagement at the last moment. Tomorrow's ceremony will not take place. As the above named circumstances were partly under your control, I need hardly offer an explanation. I leave town and probably England tonight. I am, your affectionate son, JOHN MEREDITH.

There were no signs of haste or discomposure. The letter was neatly written in the somewhat large calligraphy, firm, bold, ornate, which Sir John had insisted on Jack's learning. The stationery bore a club crest. It was an eminently gentlemanly communication. Sir John read it and gravely tore it up, throwing it into the fire, where he watched it burn.

Nothing was further from his mind than sentiment. He was not much given to sentiment, this hard hearted old sire of an ancient stock. He never thought of the apocryphal day when he, being laid in his grave, should at last win the gratitude of his son.

"When I am dead and gone you may be sorry for it," were not the words that any man should hear from his lips.

More than once during their lives Lady Cantourne had said:

"You never change you mind, John," referring to one thing or another. And he had invariably answered:

"No, I am not the sort of man to change."

He had always known his own mind. When he had been in a position to rule he had done so with a rod of iron. His purpose had ever been inflexible. Jack had been the only person who had ever openly opposed his desire. In this, as in other matters, his indomitable will had carried the day, and in the moment of triumph it is only the weak who repine. Success should have no disappointments for the man who has striven for it if his will be strong.

Sir John rather liked the letter. It could only have been written by a son of his—admitting nothing, not even defeat. But he was disappointed. He had hoped that Jack would come—that some sort of a reconciliation would be patched up. And somehow the disappointment affected him physically. It attacked him in the back and intensified the pain there. It made him feel weak and unlike himself. He rang the bell.

"Go round," he said to the butler, "to Dr. Damer and ask him to call in during the evening if he has time."

The butler busied himself with the coffee tray, hesitating, desirous of gaining time.

"Anything wrong, sir? I hope you are not feeling ill," he said nervously.

"Ill, sir!" cried Sir John. "Hang it, no; do I look ill? Just obey my orders, if you please."

* * * * * * *

My Dear Jack—At the risk of being considered an interfering old woman, I write to ask you whether you are not soon coming to England again. As you are aware, your father and I knew each other as children. We have known each other ever since—we are now almost the only survivors of our generation. My reason for troubling you with this communication is that during the last six months I have noticed a very painful change in your father. He is getting very old. He has no one but servants about him. You know his manner; it is difficult for any one to approach him, even for me. If you could come home—by accident—I think that you will never regret it in after life. I need not suggest discretion as to this letter. Your affectionate friend,

CAROLINE CANTOURNE.

Jack Meredith read this letter in the coffee room of the hotel of the Four Seasons in Wiesbaden. It was a lovely morning; the sun shone down through the trees of the Friedrichstrasse upon that spotless pavement, of which the stricken wot. The fresh breeze came bowling down from the Taunus mountains all balsamic and invigorating. It picked up the odors of the syringa and flowering currant in the Kurgarten and threw itself in at the open window of the coffee room of the hotel of the Four Seasons.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW. Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 6200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assayes. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Cleveland's Great Co-Operative Department Store and Mail Order Institution

BY THE PEOPLE FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money.

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself.

CO-OPERATION means working together. This store is Co-operative and furnishes its shareholders with the best merchandise at the least possible advance over actual cost.

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:

W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $44.60 per ton, the second grade $263.80, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 10c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

Policemen for Each Park

At a meeting held in Messrs. Hall & Hayes offices of the Nicholls Park Trust fund, it was decided to appoint a constable for each park in the city. There were present Messrs. Richard Hall, E. H. D. Hall and Mr. John Crane. Mr. R. Hall was elected chairman and Mr. Crane, secretary.

Outside Contractors in the City

Mr. F. D. Brown of the firm of Aylmer & Brown, contractors, for the Gamebridge section of the Trent Canal, were in the city yesterday. Mr. Alex. Sangster of St. Catharines and Mr. H. C. Larkin, son of the late Mr. Larkin, contractor, of St. Catharines, were also here. It was said that the visiting contractors were here to examine the plans for the completion of the Rice Lake-Trenton section of the waterway.

Great Dane Dog Got Poison

Yesterday the backyard, out-of-sight-dog-poisoner got in his work once more. His latest cause for rejoicing and indulging in unholy glee behind some screening gate, was when his secretely poisoned bait was swallowed by Messrs. McCollum Bros.' Water street, handsome great Dane dog, whose home we believe is "Cesar," showed every symptom of strychnine poisoning. Fortunately Dr. Poole, the Water street veterinary surgeon, happened to be at home when the trouble was discovered, and with difficulty managed to save the animal's life.

Harriers to Run Next Wednesday

The Y.M.C.A. Harriers were much pleased over Wednesday night's run. Their next outing will be held next Wednesday evening, when three or four miles will be covered. A paper chase will likely be held early in June. Great interest is being taken in the runs and it is expected that there will be a large number out on Wednesday evening. Those who took part in the last run were Messrs. R. Best, Elliott, E. Best, Wallace, MacRae, Yelland, Fitzgerald, Sherwood, Jarman, Richardson and Brown.

Geo. Moore Has Foot Crushed

Yesterday afternoon one of those regrettable accidents that unfortunately seem inseparable from all large factory work, occurred when George Moore, an employe of the Dominion Construction Co., was seriously hurt whilst working on the transformer building of the Canadian General Electric Co. Moore was taken to the Nicholls Hospital in the Dunspence ambulance. He had one of his feet badly crushed by a stick of timber falling from the top of the structure. Dr. Young was summoned and Moore was taken to the hospital where his injuries were looked after.

Bad Runaway Yesterday

An exciting runaway took place on Hunter street yesterday, when a farm team belonging to Mr. W. Orough of Ennismore, started from the American Hotel eastwards at a mad gallop. As the flying steeds reached the Dominion Express Company's office, the farm wagon collided with one of the express company's delivery rigs. Mr. E. Stone who was in Mr. Orough's wagon was thrown in the air but hung onto the ribbons. The wooden crossing in front of the post office was made into kindling wood. The frightened team ran clear across Hunter street bridge until they arrived at Tovey's drug store, when they stopped. Little damage was done, although parcels from the upset Dominion Express wagon were scattered to the four winds of heaven.

Prizes for Races on View

Several names have already been handed in to the secretary of the Peterborough Turf Club, as entered for the Marathon race to be held on May 24th. Contestants will start at the corner of Hunter and George streets, and thence to the Driving Park. They will then finish the full five miles on the track there. The prizes for this race include a gold watch, a gold ring and a gold locket for the first, second and third prizes respectively. The prizes are now on exhibition in Messrs. Warne Bros. jewellery store window, George street. Those thinking of participating in this great race, the result of which will be heralded throughout the whole continent, are assured of all chance of being placed in the professional class, as the very character of prizes offered, forbid that.

Mr. Misner's Position Assured

The Times begs to contradict an unfounded rumor concerning Mr. N. B. Misner, who has very ably filled the position of traveller for Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co., the wholesale grocers of Peterborough and Toronto. It has been currently rumored that Mr. Misner is about to sever his connection with this popular local wholesale house; this report The Times was assured yesterday by Mr. Davey, local manager for Kinnear & Co., is absolutely incorrect. Mr. Davey informed us that the only possible foundation for such a rumor is, that Mr. N. F. Corrin, formerly with Mr. R. A. Dutton, the George street fish, fruit and grocery dealer, has accepted a position with Messrs. Kinnear & Co. This engagement of Mr. Corrin however, will in no way to add to Messrs. Kinnear & Company's trade, will have no bearing whatever on the services of Mr. Misner, who will still continue calling on his old and many customers throughout the Province.

They went on board the Allen Liner Virginian, and started on their trip across the Atlantic at daybreak this morning.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels, (as mucous colitis), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in affecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of every class of diseases—functional weaknesses, and irregularities and prostrations incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars is in each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glycerin extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

HEIR IS BORN TO THE THRONE OF SPAIN

Madrid, May 11.— Queen Victoria gave birth yesterday to a son, who becomes heir to the throne of Spain.

The birth of the royal babe has been awaited with eager interest throughout Spain. This was intensified early in the morning when the first word came from the palace that the accouchement of the Queen was imminent. The news spread like wildfire and crowds flocked to the great plaza fronting the royal palace. The happy event had taken the capital somewhat by surprise, for on Thursday evening the queen had taken her customary drive and the court physicians had intimated that another two weeks would pass before confinement.

It was learned from the palace authorities that the queen had been taken ill during the night. Messengers were hastily despatched to the prime minister and other chief court dignitaries as the advent of an heir to the throne of Spain is an event of the deepest political significance. Through the early morning ministers and high functionaries arrived at the court of the palace. King Alphonso remained at the Queen's side.

At eight o'clock this morning the king cancelled the meeting of the council of ministers which was to have considered current state affairs. By ten o'clock the high functionaries of the state and capital, with many ambassadors and ministers in their court costumes, had reached the palace. At noon this assemblage of the nobility and power of Spain was grouped in the royal apartments set aside for official ceremonies, awaiting with feelings of profound emotion the announcement of the birth of the heir.

The birth of the babe occurred at 12.45 p.m. The announcement was immediately conveyed to the waiting officials and crowds outside the palace, who received the glad tidings with mingled feelings of enthusiasm and emotion. That the queen had been blessed with a son—a male heir to the throne—was no less welcome than the happy event itself.

PRINCE OF THE ASTURIAS.

The son born yesterday to King Alfonso and Queen Victoria will, according to a decree of the Spanish Government, bear the title of Prince of the Asturias, in professed imitation of the title of Prince of Wales, given to the eldest sons of English kings.

The principality of the Asturias was formerly the mountain refuge of the aboriginal inhabitants of Spain, who remained there until conquered alike by Roman and Moore. In many respects the Asturias is regarded as the cradle of the Spanish monarchy, hence the pride taken in the title of Prince of the Asturias.

Queen Victoria, the mother of the royal infant, was married to King Alfonso at Madrid on May 31, 1906, amid scenes of the greatest splendor, followed by the horror of a bomb explosion, which killed scores of people and narrowly missed the royal coach in which their majesties were returning from church.

In no monarchial country in the world is the ceremonial observed at the birth of the first offspring of the king and queen so rigidly stately and formal as in Spain, and on this occasion, so significant for the Bourbon dynasty, when an heir to the throne was so anxiously awaited, nothing was omitted from the court's etiquette.

That Drowned Man Story a Dream

A Dramatic Story That Was Without Foundation.

"Has Mr. D. Daley been indulging again," was the question asked often yesterday by citizens when a story, alleged to have promulgated by this gentleman, became common property. It seems that Daley spread a story, that quickly travelled, to the effect that he and his employer, an Enniamore farmer had driven into the city Thursday night, had lost their way in the vicinity of the electric works, and had driven into the Otonabee river, near the end of the street car line. According to the story Mr. Twomey was drowned, but Dennis saved his life by getting a blow from his employer that knocked him where Dennis received serious bruises. Dennis noted that his employer drove his horse and rig deliberately into the river where both steed and driver were drowned. To complete the story Dennis noted that the dead man whilst sinking in the damp embrace of the Otonabee river, held up his hands and called "Help me Daley." The whole story, as far as ascertainable is made of "Whole-cloth" and a fake. Denny had better switch off to a different blues of foolish water.

The New Steamer

The splendid new steamer Otonabee is now rapidly approaching completion and it is expected that the launching will be held in the course of a week or ten days. There has been some delay in getting the new machinery fully equipped, otherwise the Otonabee would have been ready for commission by Victoria Day. The boiler which weighs 12 tons, is expected to arrive today, and on arrival will at once be placed aboard. The new boat is supplied with triple expansion engines of 125 horse power each. One of these is already in position and the other will be placed at once. These engines weigh three tons each.

Norwood Will Celebrate the 24th

It seems that Norwood is going to celebrate May 24th in good old style. Arrangements have been made whereby the committee in charge. The committee are well pleased with the treatment accorded by the citizens, and are looking forward to having a very enjoyable day.

The program will consist of bicycle ball and football matches. In the morning the High School Football team, and Hastings will play. At 1.30 p.m. there will be a baseball match between Hawkbook and Norwood teams. Following this, Keene and Norwood football teams will play their first match in the Midland Football Association series for this season.

Another Correspondent on P. C. Newhall's Case

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—With great pleasure I read the letter in the Review, referring to the childish complaint against P. C. Newhall, and I can only endorse the writer's remarks when I say that good service was done when both railroads were woke up, as I, as well as many other citizens have been put to no end of inconvenience by same. It seems to me that some person in an official position must be responsible for the publication of matters which should have been kept private, and I hope that our old and trustworthy police commissioners will look into this unpleasant state of affairs, and see who is feeding the press in such an unwarranted and underhand manner.

Yours truly,
A STRONG SUPPORTER OF USEFUL OFFICIALS.

At the Charlotte roller rink last night the much talked of gentlemen's skating contest took place, the prize being won by Mr. B. Fowler. The contest was very close, the judges having a hard time in picking the winner.

Lakefield Board of Trade Meets

The Lakefield Board of Trade last Monday held a meeting with President E. A. Tanner in the chair. The following committees were appointed:—

Transportation Committee—Messrs. W. M. Graham, E. A. Tanner, R. C. Strickland, R. P. Davidson, E. R. Tate. W. M. Graham to be chairman.

Manufacturers' Committee—Messrs. W. H. Casement, T. Z. Webster, S. Leggott, J. W. Carnish, John Hull. W. H. Casement to be chairman.

General Committee—Messrs. A. S. Butchart, J. E. Richardson, R. P. Davidson, W. M. Graham, R. C. Strickland, F. E. Kline, T. Z. Webster, S. Leggott, A. S. Butchart to be chairmen.

Mr. Munro Visits a Mine

Mr. R. J. Munro of this city, has returned from the Star of the East mine in Frontenac, where he spent a couple of days. Mr. Munro is a director of the company, and consequently was much interested in the operations. Some 15 men are now engaged in milling the ore that was taken out during the winter. About ten tons per day are being run through, and the percentage of gold is very satisfactory. Mr. Munro is greatly pleased with the way everything is being conducted.

Mr. Gillespie Will be Present

Mr. G. A. Gillespie of this city, is a member of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, who will meet in Toronto to consider holding a national dairy show in Toronto. The reports showed that the prospects for raising money are encouraging, and that it is possible that as much as $3,000 may be raised. Although the Ontario Government declined to make a grant to the show this year, it is believed that if it is decided to hold the show without Government grant, Hon. Mr. Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, will be willing to co-operate.

Where Local Dogs Get Poisoned

It now looks like some cowardly poisoner of dogs of all degrees, whether his victims have profaned his immediate walks or not, is bound to take revenge out of the canine world at large. It is well known that there has been a wholesale murder of dogs many of which are family pets fed at home and without cause or reason for troubling outsiders. If one could earnestly take to heart the threats offered by these vicious dogs have, within the past few days been killed, or poisoned, we would not like to be in the place of the poisoner, if caught. In any case it is well known that poison is laid not very far from the corner of Hunter and Water streets, as all the poisoned dogs stagger down near the post office corner.

THE CITY IS QUIET

The Police Think they Will be Able to Control the Situation.

Boise, Idaho, May 11.—The city is quiet, and no one coming into the city would know from appearances that it is on the eve of what experts say is the most important criminal trial heard in the United States in forty years.

As a precautionary measure, street preaching or speaking will be stopped in Boise during the trials. It is feared that freedom of speech in the street may lead to local agitation for or against the prisoners and possible disorders, and mayor Haines has decided that it will be better to issue and enforce a strict order covering the matter.

Police and detectives watch the railroad and highways entering the city, and it is the general belief that they will be able at all times fully to control the situation. Behind them as an experienced militia and two troops of the United States cavalry quartered at a permanent post within the city limits, but there is not the slightest apprehension that their services will be required. In fact, the governor, the mayor and the people of Boise decline to believe that under any circumstances will peace be broken.

PUBLIC ARE REASONABLE.

A large number of visitors are coming in, most of these being Western Federation men or reporters of labor papers from the east. Forty-eight hours in the town is sufficient to convince the most radical partisan of the accused men that they will be given a fair trial, that the people here are not thirsting for blood, and that all that is desired is the guilty shall be punished for the terrible crime committed.

Sensational stories of bitter feeling and smouldering fires awaiting but a spark to start a conflagration, that men are armed and anxiety holds all in its grip, are all entirely without foundation. The prisoners at the jail are each allowed four hours a day out door exercise in the yard or rather the lawn.

Mrs. Haywood in her invalid chair, with her children, puts in the larger part of each day with her husband. Mrs. Pettibone visits during the forenoon, and Moyer is taken to the hospital every afternoon for a visit to his wife. Mrs. Moyer is in a serious condition from nervous prostration and has been so for three weeks.

Springville Scientist Making Arrangements

The local Astronomical Society is doing a good work and one of its its leading members is Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, who has completed arrangements for establishing an astronomical transit at his home.

The reverend scientist has completed arrangements whereby a cement pier upon which Dr. Marsh's instrument will be mounted has been placed in position. This required considerable work, as the pier goes down six feet into the earth. The astronomical transit is used for securing the time from the skies, and the accuracy of the instrument owned by Dr. Marsh is shown by the fact that during the five years he had it set up at Hamilton it only varied 1-4 of a second from the time recorded by the government instrument at Washington.

Hookey Game on Roller Skates

Last night in the Charlotte street rink a hockey match was played which resulted in a score of 0—0, neither side being able to score. The game, for the first time played, was fast and interesting, and when it becomes better known, will undoubtedly become very popular here. The teams were as follows:

Staunton's Goal.		Clancy's Goal.
Wilson	Point.	Thorp
Moore	Cover.	Duncan
Seymour	Rover.	Gibbs
Millburn	Center.	Clancy.
Deforge	Right Wing.	McDonald
Miller	Left Wing.	A. Allan
Staunton		B. Allan

A meeting in connection with roller hockey will be held in the rink on Monday night after the skating. All interested are invited to attend.

Tied Men to Stake for the Ants to Eat

New Orleans, La., May 11.—Despatches from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, yesterday, say; Americans arriving here report that the Guatemala Government is committing unspeakable outrages. Even women and children are not being spared. A family of ten was massacred by soldiers near Guatemala City, by order of the Government, when Jos Olivera, a wealthy planter, mourned the enmity of the government on account of his political activity. When the soldiers went to arrest him he showed fight, and they shot him to death. Every member of his family was then slain. Abitz Crecure, one of Cabrera's political opponents, near Livingstone, was tied to a stake in the middle of a hill of poisonous ants. His clothing was stripped from his body, and the soldiers danced around his writhing form as the insects stung him to death.

The refugees report that two Americans, C. L. Lurlen of Little Rock, Ark., and Marshall Stamms of Cincinnati, O., are in jail in Guatemala city charged with alleged conspiracy to assassinate President Juberera.

Sir Wilfrid Soorohing

London, May 11.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's chauffeur was charged yesterday with driving the car containing the premier at an excessive rate of speed in Regent's Park, and fined twenty shillings. The magistrate, however, existed the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was leaving England soon, and said that, as it was improbable that the same thing would happen again, it was clearly a case for preference. The chauffeur, therefore, need not pay the fine. The speed was stated to be nineteen miles an hour.

World Federation of Methodists

London, May 11.—R. W. Perks, M. P., has gone to Canada to consult leading Methodists regarding a scheme for banding together the different branches of the Methodist denomination throughout the world in one vast confederacy, for mutual aid. Mr. Perks proposed to create an organization which would be world-wide in usefulness, and which would include an immigration agency, employment bureau, loan society, savings bank, and an old age pension fund.

The Aberdeen Free Press says the attitude of Canada throughout the discussion of the question of preferences at the conference has been perfectly fair and reasonable.

The Dundee Advertiser says in dealing with the United States and France, Newfoundland speaks as if it were the bellicose British Empire, and not at all with the soft reasoning voice of a state in population equal to a second-rate British town.

Deaf Mute Killed

Montreal, May 11.—Albert Blanche, a deaf and dumb postoffice employe, met a shocking death at the corner of St. Denis and Beaubien streets yesterday by being run over by a Back River car. Blanche was walking and talking with his fingers with a deaf companion and apparently did not see the car. Blanche was struck by the fender and thrown in front of the trucks. The top of his head was ground off by the front trucks and his body was badly mangled. An inquest will be held.

Local Ministers Have Lunch

The members of the Peterborough Ministerial Association had luncheon together yesterday afternoon at Hooper's Palm Gardens. Rev. Canon Davidson presided and a pleasant social time was spent. The clergy have held their last gathering for the season and yesterday's lunch was an agreeable wind up of the sessions of the Ministerial Association.

SITUATION CRITICAL IN BRITISH INDIA

Grave Cause for Anxiety in Situation at Lahore and in Bengal---Drastic Action Taken by Government.

Lahore, British India, May 11.—Political unrest here is hourly assuming a graver appearance.

Bands of countrymen, armed with bludgeons, enlisted by leaders of the sedition, are crowding into the city.

Troops of all arms of the service are being drafted into Lahore from all parts of the province.

Sir Dugald Dibbetson, lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, is taking active measures to circumvent any possible outbreak, and has issued a proclamation forbidding meetings of any kind.

He also struck at the root of the movement by causing the arrest of one Lala Rajpat Rai, a prominent lawyer, who was the financier and organizer of most of the riots.

Should an organized rising take place its first objective would be the capture of the great Lahore Prison and the freeing of its two thousand prisoners. The city is one of the most historic spots in all Hindustan. It has a population of close upon 150,000, the Mohammedans being a very considerable element. It was a walled city before the annexation of the Punjab in 1849, but shortly afterwards the ditch was filled in and the walls cut down very materially, for sanitary reasons. The fort, formerly the stronghold of Ranjit Singh is still held by a small garrison, but the bulk of the troops are stationed at the Mian Mir cantonment, some five miles southeast of Lahore.

London, May 11.—A rather alarming coincidence is also the fact that yesterday was the 50th anniversary of the outbreak of the Indian Mutiny, which began at Meerut, May 10, 1857. The Indian Office has issued nothing on the situation at Lahore, but is understood to be in hourly communication with Sir Dinzel Ibbetson. Although for the moment the Punjab seems to be the chief center of trouble, it is noteworthy that there is increasing unrest among the inhabitants of Eastern Bengal, where the efforts of the government to check the sedition promptly has resulted in a state of revolt; thirty-seven agitators have been arrested by the military police.

BIG TRADE ASSURED

Large Number of Excursions Already Booked for Lower Waters.

The opening season's tourist trade for the boats which ply between Peterborough and Rice Lake points has every reason for being assuredly large. Already about fifteen large excursions have been booked by the Otonabee Navigation Company, for their line of steamers. Most of these excursions have play Wyld as their objective point. Most of the excursions already secured are from points many miles from Peterborough, including Toronto, Belleville, Campbellford, Lindsay, Stouffville, and other points. With the cooperation of the fine new steamer Otonabee, which will be launched on or about June 1st, the lower river traffic is already assured as brisk. The new steamer is guaranteed to travel at from 15 to 17 miles an hour, with a larger carrying capacity than that of any other steamer plying this city.

Geo. Marter is Dead

Toronto, May 11.—Mr. G. F. Marter, ex-M.P.P., and one time leader of the Conservative Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, has passed away. The end came, after a long illness, a few minutes after two o'clock yesterday morning. For several days death had been almost hourly expected. All the members of the family were present.

A Year in Prison for Abe Hummel

New York, May 11.—One year in State Prison, and a fine of $500 was the sentence imposed yesterday upon Abraham H. Hummel, the lawyer, who was convicted of conspiracy in the famous Dodge-Morse divorce case. Hummel was convicted in the Supreme court several months ago, but appealed to the Appellate division, which yesterday affirmed the conviction.

Conspiracy to annul the marriage of Charles W. Morse, the financier, to Mrs Charles F. Dodge, was the crime of which Hummel was convicted. Mrs. Dodge had secured a divorce from her former husband in 1898. Three years later she was married to Mr. Morse.

Was Determined to Commit Suicide

Ottawa, May 11.—The circumstances attending the death by suicide yesterday of Miss Elaine Clemow, granddaughter of the late Senator Frank Clemow, and a social favorite in the capital, are exceptionally sad. After satisfying himself that there was nothing sinister in the holding of an inquest, Coroner Bayne decided to spare the family the pain of a public enquiry.

It is not definitely known just when the shot that caused Miss Clemow's death was fired, but she was quite dead when her mother entered the room at noon. Lying at one side was the revolver with which the deed had been committed. And that is all. It was known to Miss Clemow's friends that she had been in poor health of late, and yesterday she was to have left for the St. Catharines sanitarium. The deceased had been born and brought up in Ottawa, and was very widely known here. The funeral takes place from the family residence today.

Leaped to Death

Asheroft, B.C., May 11.—Paul Mangarino, a prisoner from Nelson, on his way to the penitentiary, in charge of Constable Webster, jumped through the car window on train No. 97. The train was running forty miles an hour when Mangarino made his fatal leap, and landed head first on the rocks thirty or forty feet below, where he was picked up insensible as soon as the train was brought to a standstill, and died a few minutes later. The body was left at Asheroft, where an inquest will be held. Constable Webster continued this journey to New Westminster in charge of the other prisoners.

Would be Bride Had Cloven Foot

Paris, May 10.—At Lamaziere, a small town in the south of France, a young nobleman, a scion of a strict Catholic family of ancient descent, but small means, was engaged to be married to the daughter of a well-to-do local lawyer, a Jew. The marriage was to take place yesterday, but a few days ago a runner reached the ears of the young nobleman's mother to the effect that her future daughter-in-law was afflicted with an infirmity, to wit, a cloven foot.

The pious woman, who had only consented to her son's engagement on account of his marrying into a moneyed family, suggested to him that his fiancee might be the devil in disguise if it were true that she had a cloven foot. The young man had a visit to his fiancee's parents, and said he was bound, as a dutiful son, to honor his mother's wishes. He therefore asked to be allowed to see his fiancee's bare feet. The girl's parents refused the young man's request, and summarily dismissed him, with the result that the engagement was broken off.

Died In Her Sleep

Brampton, May 11.—Mrs. Mary Murdock was found dead in bed at her residence on Main street south yesterday morning. At half past seven yesterday morning, Mr. Charles Calvert, the caretaker of St. Paul's church, who lives across the way, went for the morning's supply of milk, but being unable to make anybody hear, went for assistance, and the door of the house was broken in by the neighbors, who investigated and found that Mrs. Murdock had died in her sleep.

Mrs Murdock was about sixty years of age, was a widow with one son, who is absent with the C.P.R. surveying party, near North Bay.

House Clean Your System!

Keep it Pure and Clean if You Desire Good Health.

The inside of your body requires attention just the same as the outside.

A great accumulation of effete matter is clinging to the various organs, and must be moved off.

Some gentle laxative and tonic should be used.

The system must be relieved of its burden, if you are to enjoy a happy, healthy summer.

Physicians who have examined the formula of Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills say no medicine could be better.

Whether ill or not, thousands rely on Dr Hamilton's Pills which are truly marvelous in preventing debility and sickness.

Begin Dr. Hamilton's Pills without delay. You'll feel stronger, eat better, digest better, sleep sounder, and gain more in weight.

Mr. Ed. Maynard, an old resident of New Westminster, B.C., writes; "I don't say Dr. Hamilton's Pills will cure everything, but they made a quick job of building up my run-down system. I had kidney disease and constipation and was wholly unfitted for work. Pains shot through my limbs and lodged in my back. Headaches often made me desperate. I had no appetite, an awful color, and felt despondent. Sometimes I was a little rheumatic. After a few days I began to mend, and kept up Dr. Hamilton's Pills till I was restored to my present tip-top condition."

Can you afford to miss the benefit of this marvel-working medicine. Think of it. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Poisor and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

A GOOD CITIZEN

In these days when so much is said and heard as to the necessity for good citizens, and the benefits they confer upon the community and upon the country, and when various qualifications are regarded as essential to one who would measure up to the proper standard of citizenship it might be an excellent exercise for all, including those who presume to judge of the citizenship of others, to read carefully and apply to themselves the following from the pen of President Roosevelt, as addressed to Mr. Andrew Carnegie:

The success of our republic is predicated upon the high individual efficiency of the average citizen, and the Carnegie Institute is one of those institutions which tends to bring about this high individual efficiency. Many things go to make up such efficiency. There must be a sound body. There must be physical hardihood and address in the use of trained nerve and muscle. There must also be a high degree of trained intellectual development, a high degree of that intelligence which can only be obtained when there is both power to act on individual initiative and power to act in disciplined coordination with others. And, finally, there must be that training on the moral side that means the production in the average citizen of a high type of character—the character which sturdily insists upon rights and no less whole-heartedly and in the fullest fashion recognizes the fact that the performance of duty to others stands even ahead of the insistence upon one's own rights."

This is undoubtedly a high standard, and one the attainment of which would make for the lasting benefit of any country. How many can measure up to it?

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and, when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Germany and Britain Settle Differences

Berlin, May 10 — Germany and Great Britain have reached an agreement concerning their various South African controversies, which gives reason for the hope that any differences of opinion arising in the future will be settled in a friendly manner.

The negotiations which resulted in this understanding took place in London between Herr Von Lindequist, Governor of German Southwest Africa, and Dr James, the Premier of Cape Colony.

Riot on Shipboard

San Diego, Cal., May 10.—It was reported last night that two sailors who have escaped from the British steamer Maori King, which arrived here yesterday from Shanghai, make sensational charges of brutality against the captain and officers of the ship. Rumors are in circulation to the effect that fifteen Chinese were killed during the riot on board, and their bodies cast into the sea. International complications are likely to result, and it is believed that the most serious part of the charges remain to be told.

The prince will then have 15 days to spend in visiting points of interest in the Dominion. While in Canada Prince Fushimi will be the guest of the Dominion Government.

A PRETTY MATRON OWES HEALTH TO PE-RU-NA.

MRS. ANNA N. KAISER,
Had Suffered Severely From Pelvic Catarrh—Cannot Praise Peruna Too Highly—Read Her Letter.

MRS. ANNA N. KAISER, Two Rivers, Wis., was a sufferer from pelvic catarrh to such an extent that she could scarcely do her own work. In describing her symptoms, she wrote:

"I have such terrible backaches and pains below my shoulder blades, way down my back and across my hips, and at times pains in the pelvic organs, so that I am not able to lie down or sleep. I also have pains through my left side and am afraid I may be getting heart trouble."

After taking Peruna and following Dr. Hartman's instructions for several weeks, Mrs. Kaiser reported as follows:

"I feel much stronger and do not get nervous as I used to. The pain is entirely gone, except when I work a little too hard. The medicine has done me wonderful good. I am taking Peruna and Manalin. My bowels are also in good condition."

Reports Her Cure.

After continuing the treatment a short time longer, Mrs. Kaiser reports her cure, as follows:

"I must drop you a line to let you know that I am well now and cured with your medicine. I must thank you for the advice you gave me.

"The medicine is something wonderful. I cannot praise it enough for the good it has done for me and I hope many others will be freed from their suffering.

"I have advised others who are suffering as I did to consult you and many are taking my advice. If ever I need medicine again, I know that Peruna will help me."

Dr. Hartman's Advice.

To every woman suffering from the symptoms above indicated, Dr. Hartman extends an earnest invitation to write to him for medical advice.

HOMEMADE FOUNTAIN.

An Amusing Experiment With a Jar and Bottle of Water.

Of course you all like fountains. Aren't they attractive and cool on a hot summer's day, though? Next summer, of course, you will see them in the parks. But in the meanwhile you can easily make one of your own, if you wish. Follow these directions:

Take a perfumery bottle or something similar. Get a good cork half an inch thick or less and make a hole through it. Put a straw through the hole, so that one end nearly touches the bottom of the bottle and the other is just above the top of the cork.

Place a piece of blotting paper on a plate. Fill the bottle with water and stand it upon the blotting paper. Now get a big glass jar, warm it and quickly turn it upside down over your small bottle, pressing it down upon the blotting paper with your hand.

In a few moments you will see a tiny stream of water shoot up from the bottle, right up to the top of the jar, and this will continue until the bottle is almost empty.

Try it.

THE NAVEL ORANGE.

Probable Origin of This Delicious Seedless Fruit.

Boys and girls are all fond of oranges, of course, and especially of those that have no seeds, for this particular kind is usually larger, juicier and of a finer flavor than others, says the Chicago News. They may not know how this orange happens to be seedless.

The seedless orange is also called the "navel" orange—not "naval," as some persons believe—for the reason that it usually has a little protuberance on the blossom end, the end opposite to the stem. In other words, it has a navel. How the species originated is not definitely known, but it was probably an accident. Nature tried to produce twin oranges perhaps, but one of the twins survived merely as a sort of kernel imbedded in the skin.

It is strange that a distinct species should spring from such an accident, but nature does stranger things than that. This orange with the little protuberance was noticed, of course, and examination showed that the seeds had not been developed. It was quite evident that the formation of the protuberance, or "navel," as it soon came to be called, had prevented the formation of the seeds by using up the nutriment that the seeds would have required. Cultivators at once caught the idea and gave their special attention to the production of the seedless fruit.

It is believed that the navel orange originated in Brazil, and it was from that country that our agricultural department imported some of the trees several years ago and budded them on trees at Riverside, Cal. The experiment was in every way successful.

Trick With a Cent.

Open the hand naturally and place the cent on the palm and then ask some one to brush it out with a whisk broom. After repeated efforts it probably will be suspected that the cent is fastened in your hand in some way. In order to prove that it is not let the sweeper place it on his own palm, and he will find it remains as immovable there as before. A few persons have flat palms. The cent may easily be swept off such palms, but they are not common.

Conundrums.

When are soldiers stronger than elephants? When they carry a fortress.

Why is a trolley car safe in a thunderstorm? Because it has a conductor.

Why have you a right to pick an artist's pockets? Because he has pictures (picked yours).

Why should 288 never be mentioned by polite boys and girls? Because it is too (two) gross.

Talks With Nature.

"I think you're quite funny," I said
To the river, "for, while you're in bed,
You're awake night and day
And run on, yet you stay,
And your mouth is so far from your head."

I said to the hill, "I'll allow
You have a most wonderful brow,
But you've such a big foot
That you never can put
On a shoe of the style they use now."

I said to the tree: "You are queer.
Your trunk is all packed, but I fear
You can't leave until spring.
When—a curious thing—
You must still remain standing right here."

To a green red blackberry I said,
"I know you are green when you're red,
And you're red when you're green.
But to say what I mean
Is enough to befuddle one's head."

Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach Weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. ANOTHER FAST TRAIN

From Montreal to Vancouver in Eighty-Five Hours.

Montreal, May 10.—The C.P.R. have decided to add a new fast train to their transcontinental service, making three instead of two runs on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The new train will be faster by twelve hours than either of the Imperial trains that now leave Windsor station morning and evening for the west. It will cover the distance from Montreal to Vancouver in eighty-five hours.

The matter has for some time engaged the consideration of the management and traffic department, and the schedules are now being worked out under the direction of Mr. J. W. Leonard, assistant general manager.

It is understood that the new service will come into operation on June 15, and at first—probably for the whole of the season—it will be run three times a week, but that it will ultimately become daily the officials entertain no doubt.

Automobile Overturned Racing With a Train

Asbury Park, N.J., May 10.—While racing with a Jersey Central Railroad train between Point Pleasant and Asbury Park yesterday a racing automobile in which Mrs. D. W. Boyce and Miss A. Webb Mass of Point Pleasant were riding was overturned and Miss Mass was instantly killed. Mrs. Boyce who is the wife of an automobile dealer in New York city, was rendered unconscious and was taken to her home at Point Pleasant.

Mrs. Boyce was operating the machine. The train had just left Point Pleasant bound for Asbury Park, when the automobile, going at a terrific pace, came along the roadway which parallels the railroad track and attempted to pass the train. Passengers on the train witnessed the attempt and crowded to the platforms and windows, cheering, the two women in their machine steadily forged by the train. Just as the automobile was abreast of the locomotive and when both were going at the rate of 55 miles an hour Mrs. Boyce lost control of the automobile. The machine swerved from the roadway, went over an embankment into a swamp and overturned, crushing Miss Mass.

On a Trip Around the World

Winnipeg, May 10.—Colonel and Mrs. Lawrence Drummond, of London, are here on their way back to England, after a trip around the world. Colonel Drummond was Military Secretary to Lord Minto during the time the latter was Governor-General of Canada. The colonel and his wife spent Christmas and New Year's with the Viceroy and Lady Minto in India.

Colonel Drummond observed the marvellous progress which the development of Canada had experienced during the last few years. They intend staying off a few days at Montreal and Toronto.

Remarkable Invention
FOR THE
CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. Love, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopaecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots) without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. Moore, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the EVANS VACUUM CAP is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent post free, on application.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

Jack Meredith was restless. Such odors as are borne on the morning breeze are apt to make those men restless who have not all that they want. And is not their name legion? The morning breeze is to the strong the moonlight of the sentimental. That which makes one vaguely yearn incites the other to get up and take.

By the train leaving Wiesbaden for Cologne, "over Mainz," as the guide book hath it, Jack Meredith left for England, in which country he had not set foot for fifteen months. Guy Oscard was in Cashmere. The similacine was almost forgotten as a nine days' wonder except by those who live by the ills of mankind. Millicent Chyne had degenerated into a restless society hack. With great skill she had posed as a martyr. She had allowed it to be understood that she, having remained faithful to Jack Meredith through his time of adversity, had been heartlessly thrown over when fortune smiled upon him and there was a chance of his making a more brilliant match. With a chivalry which was not without a keen shaft of irony father and son allowed this story to pass uncontradicted. Perhaps a few believed it. Perhaps they had foreseen the future. It may have been that they knew that Millicent Chyne, surrounded by the halo of whatever story she might invent, would be treated with a certain careless nonchalance by the older men, with a respectful avoidance by the younger. Truly women have the deepest punishment for their sins here on earth, for sooner or later the time will come, after the brilliancy of the first triumph, after the less pure satisfaction of the skilled siren, the time will come when all that they want is an enduring, honest love. And it is written that an enduring love cannot, with the best will in the world, be bestowed on an unworthy object. If a woman wishes to be loved purely she must have a pure heart and no past ready for the reception of that love.

This is a sine qua non. The woman with a past has no future.

The short March day was closing in over London with that murky suggestion of hopelessness affected by metropolitan eventide when Jack Meredith presented himself at the door of his father's house.

In his reception by the servants there was a subtle suggestion of expectation which was not lost on his keen mind. There is no patience like that of expectation in an old heart. Jack Meredith felt vaguely that he had been expected thus, daily, for many months past.

He was shown into the library, and the tall form standing there on the hearth rug had not the outline for which he had looked. The battle between old age and stubborn will is long. But old age wins. It never raises the siege. It starves the garrison out. Sir John Meredith's head seemed to have shrunk. The wig did not fit at the back. His clothes, always bearing the suggestion of emptiness, seemed to hang on ancient given lines as if the creases were well established. The clothes were old. The fateful doctrine of not worth while had set in.

Father and son shook hands, and Sir John walked feebly to the stiff backed chair, where he sat down in shamefaced silence. He was ashamed of his infirmities. His was the instinct of the dog that goes away into some hidden corner to die.

"I am glad to see you," he said, using his two hands to push himself farther back in his chair.

There was a little pause. The fire was getting low. It fell together with a feeble, crumbling sound.

"Shall I put some coals on?" asked Jack.

A simple question, if you will, but it was asked by the son in such a tone of quiet, filial submission that a whole volume could not contain all that it said to the old man's proud, unbending heart.

"Yes, my boy, do."

And the last six years were wiped away like evil writing from a slate.

There was no explanation. These two men were not of those who explain themselves and in the warmth of explanation say things which they do not fully mean. The opinions that each had held during the years they had left behind had perhaps been modified on both sides, but neither sought details of the modification. They knew each other now, and each respected the indomitable will of the other.

They inquired after each other's health. They spoke of events of a common interest. Trifles of everyday occurrence seemed to contain absorbing details. But it is the everyday occurrence that makes the life. It was the putting on of the coals that reconciled these two men.

"Let me see," said Sir John, "you gave up your rooms before you left England, did you not?"

"Yes."

Jack drew forward his chair and put his feet out toward the fire. It was marvelous how thoroughly at home he seemed to be.

"Then," continued Sir John, "where is your luggage?"

"I left it at the club."

"Send along for it. Your room is—er—quite ready for you. I shall be glad if you will make use of it as long as you like. You will be free to come and go as if you were in your own house."

Jack nodded with a strange twisted little smile, as if he were suffering from cramp in the legs. It was cramp—at the heart.

"Thanks," he said. "I should like nothing better. Shall I ring?"

"If you please."

Jack rang and they waited in the fading daylight without speaking. At times Sir John moved his limbs, his hand on the arm of the chair and his feet on the hearth rug, with the jerky, half restless energy of the aged which is not pleasant to see.

When the servant came it was Jack who gave the orders, and the butler listened to them with a sort of enthusiasm. When he had closed the door behind him he pulled down his waistcoat with a jerk, and as he walked downstairs he muttered "Thank 'eaven!" twice, and wiped away a tear from his bibulous eye.

"What have you been doing with yourself since I saw you?" inquired Sir John conversationally when the door was closed.

"I have been out to India, merely for the voyage. I went with Oscard, who is out there still after big game."

Sir John Meredith nodded.

"I like that man," he said. "He is tough. I like tough men. He wrote me a letter before he went away. It was the letter of one gentleman to another. Is he going to spend the rest of his life 'after big game?'"

Jack laughed.

"It seems rather like it. He is cut out for that sort of life. He is too big for narrow streets and cramped houses."

"And matrimony?"

"Yes, and matrimony."

Sir John was leaning forward in his chair, his two withered hands clasped on his knees.

"You know," he said slowly, blinking at the fire, "he cared for that girl more than you did, my boy."

"Yes," answered Jack softly.

Sir John looked toward him, but he said nothing. His attitude was interrogatory. There were a thousand questions in the turn of his head: questions which one gentleman could not ask another.

Jack met his gaze. They were still wonderfully alike, these two men, though one was in his prime while the other was infirm. On each face there was the stamp of a long drawn silent pride. Each was a type of those haughty conquerors who stepped, mail clad, on England's shores 800 years ago. Form and feature, mind and heart, had been handed down from father to son, as great types are.

"One may have the right feeling and bestow it by mistake on the wrong person," said Jack.

Sir John's fingers were at his lips.

"Yes," he said rather indistinctly, "while the right person is waiting for it."

Jack looked up sharply, as if he either had not heard or did not understand.

"While the right person is waiting for it," repeated Sir John deliberately.

"The right person"—

"Jocelyn Gordon," explained Sir John, "is the right person."

Jack shrugged his shoulders and leaned back so that the firelight did not shine upon his face. "So I found out eighteen months ago," he said, "when it was too late."

"There is no such thing as too late for that," said Sir John in his great wisdom. "Even if you were both quite old it would not be too late. I have known it longer than you. I found it out two years ago."

"Cherry-Blossom."

THE JAPANESE GIVE GOOD EXAMPLE.

It is a proverb of Cherry Blossom Land that a healthy stomach is the basis of all strength. Good nature is also recognised as of great importance. The Japanese as a people are remarkable for their health, endurance, patience and skill.

The cherry tree is the most highly prized of all in Japan. It not only gives forth a beautiful blossom but the wild cherry tree furnishes a bark which is most highly prized in medicine.

Wild Cherry (Prunus Virginiana).

The UNITED STATES DISPENSATORY, which is an authority on medicines, says of the properties of this Black Cherrybark: "Uniting with a tonic power the property of calming irritation and diminishing nervous excitability. Adapted to the treatment of diseases in which there is debility of the stomach or of the system." Another authority, KING'S AMERICAN DISPENSATORY says, "it gives tone and strength to the system, useful in fever, cough, and found excellent in consumption." This ingredient is only one of several very important native, medicinal roots in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This is a remedy which has enjoyed the public approval for nearly forty years, nothing new or untried about it, has cured thousands of people of those chronic, weakening diseases which are accompanied by a cough, such as bronchitis and incipient consumption. More than that, by reason of the other ingredients, Bloodroot, Mandrake, Golden Seal, and Queen's root, all of the medicinal virtues of which are scientifically extracted and combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, remarkable cures of dyspepsia and stomach disorders have been accomplished.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that chemically pure glycerine of proper strength is a better solvent and preservative of the active medicinal principles residing in most of our indigenous or native medicinal plants than is alcohol. As its use is entirely unobjectionable, while alcohol is well known when used even in small portions, for a protracted period, to do lasting injury to the human system, especially in the case of delicate women and children, he decided to use chemically pure glycerine instead of the usually employed alcohol in the preparation of his medicines. He found that the glycerine, besides being entirely harmless, possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of great value. Its nutritive properties, Dr. Pierce believes, far surpass those of cod liver oil, entitling it to favorable consideration in all cases of incipient consumption and other wasting diseases. It is an invigorating, tonic alterative and owes its virtues to Nature's vegetable garden. Dr. Pierce is only the scientific gardener who knows how to combine the plants given us by Nature to cure our diseases. This preparation is of pleasant taste, agrees perfectly with rebellious and sensitive stomachs, and is extremely effective in restoring tone and vigor to the entire system. It cures inflammatory troubles of the stomach as well as indigestion and dyspepsia arising from weak stomach. One reason why it restores the health of run-down, pale and emaciated people is because it first throws out the poisons from the blood through the liver and kidneys. It then begins its reconstructive work in building up flesh by first making good, rich, red blood.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is made in a large laboratory, thoroughly equipped with every scientific appliance, at Buffalo, N. Y. Qualified chemists are in charge of the laboratory, with nearly a score of skilled physicians and surgeons employed to scrutinize, determine and prescribe these remedies and other means of cure as seem best suited to many thousands of cases of chronic diseases which come before them for treatment each year. It costs you nothing to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce—the head of this Institution, at Buffalo, N. Y. and get an accurate medical opinion in your special case and wholly without charge.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money,

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself

CO-OPERATION means working together. This store is Co-operative and furnishes its shareholders with the best merchandise at the least possible advance over actual cost.

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assayays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

An Ungallant Actor.

A well known American actor, who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat surprised and pleased in a St. Louis hotel a short time ago when a pretty girl stopped him in the corridor and presented him with a rose, without saying a word. He was more surprised and less pleased to receive a note the following day reminding him of the incident and asking him to send the giver of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

"My dear young lady," the actor replied, waxing sarcastic as he realized what had been the object of the attention he had been paid, "I would be glad to send you the seats you ask for, but, on consultation with the manager of the theater, I have been informed that the seats are all fastened down and that he is opposed to having them sent away as souvenirs in any event, so that you will have to be contented with an autograph for a souvenir of your benevolence of yesterday instead."—Harper's Weekly.

The Joys of Relic Hunting.

Quite apart from the beauty and intrinsic worth of such things, it is astonishing on looking back on one's experiences of collecting to realise how much pleasure one has got out of even a dilettante quest of antiques. The exhilarating joy of this treasure hunt, the finding of the treasure, the bargaining for it and the final bearing of it home in triumph, unwrapping it and discussing its beauties and merits, are things which add zest to life. And, as the taste for beautiful old things is more or less an acquired one and can be cultivated, this is a joy in which most people who are fortunate enough to have a little spare cash and a little spare time can share.—London Tatler.

The Joy of Owning Land.

There is a distinct joy in owning land, unlike that which you have in money, in horses, in books, pictures or anything else which man have devised. Personal property brings you into society with men. But land is a perfect Ged's estate in the globe, and when a parcel of ground is deeded to you and you walk over it and call it your own it makes you as if you had come into partnership with the original Proprietor of the earth.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Cause of His Joy.

"What are you looking so happy about, old man?"

"I am rejoicing over the birth of twins."

"Great Scott! I congratulate you!"

"Don't congratulate me. Go and congratulate Emma. She's the lucky man. I never did like him."

His Attentions.

Ben—How attentive young Mr. Allgood is to his pretty wife! Fan—I don't wonder you notice it, but you must have been unfashioned. They are not married yet.

SELECTIONS

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

The nobility of the United Kingdom numbers 750.

If horse racing were abolished it is estimated that over 20,000 people would be thrown out of employment in England.

Thomas King was fined in a London police court the other day for taking his baby to a pawnshop and trying to pawn it for 50 cents.

The corporation of Burgess Hill, Sussex, England, grows peppermint municipally and so profitably as to have made a marked reduction in the town taxes.

The two main reasons why steamship lines are deserting Liverpool are that London is so much nearer to Southampton and that this port is much deeper.

At the beginning of the new year there were in London thirty-two west end and thirty-five suburban theaters and sixty-four west end and suburban music halls—all within sight of St. Paul's.

Finding that stone breaking and oakum picking were not profitable enough, the authorities of Horsham, England, decided to put ablebodied paupers to work at grinding corn in the mill. Next day not a pauper was left in the almshouse.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

The new yellow is a cross between canary and mustard and much prettier and softer in tone than either one.

Many house dresses of soft material have plain flowing skirts and corselet bodices drawn up quite high under the arms and held by shoulder straps over lace guimpes.

Panama cloth in both plain and fancy weaves is being developed into the most fetching spring suits, trimmed with cloth and braid, taffeta silk or passementeries.

One of the smartest and most picturesque features of the styles now being developed are the little coats, or, rather, coat bodices, fashioned of silk, usually to be worn with cloth skirts. Invariably they match the cloth and skirt to perfection.

Without exception the skirts which are worn with bodice coats are strictly tailor made. They may be fashioned with tucks innumerable or they may be strapped, banded or otherwise trimmed, but over all there will be the tailor finish.—New York Post.

Wolves Are Expensive.

Vernon Bailey of the forest reserve bureau at Washington, who has been making an investigation of the ravages of wolves on the ranches of the southwest, reports that in a certain part of New Mexico he learned that a moderate estimate of the stock killed by four wolves of which he got trace was a yearling cow or a calf every three days or approximately 100 head of cattle to each wolf. "Counting all as calves," says Mr. Bailey, "at the low rate of $10 a head, each wolf would at this rate cost the ranchmen $1,000 a year. This estimate of $4,000 for the four wolves leaves out of consideration the five to ten hungry offspring of each pair, which begin to kill stock for themselves in the fall and continue to do so as long as they live."

Alcohol From Garbage.

That the method of garbage disposal is about to be revolutionized by the manufacture of denatured alcohol is the statement made to the common council of Milwaukee by Dr. W. A. Boyd of Rockford, Ill. Milwaukee now pays $1.89 a ton for burning its garbage at a municipal plant, and Dr. Boyd has offered to do the work at 70 cents a ton and at the end of ten years give the city his plant. Milwaukee gets no return in the way of byproducts from burning its garbage. Dr. Boyd says he will get grease, fertilizer and alcohol from the waste. Alcohol would be the most important of the byproducts.

A Dickens Landmark.

The widening of Manchester streets has brought about the destruction of the old house in which lived the brothers Grant, the originals of the Brothers Cheeryble in "Nicholas Nickleby." With slight alteration, the house is said to stand today as it did when Dickens described it. One of its later occupants has said that lovers of Dickens' books came from all parts of the world to inspect the old place, especially Americans, and for relics of it, but that he had refused to part with them. One relic which many people would be glad to acquire is the fine old carved oak staircase.

The Hares of Maine.

The Kennebec Journal says that Game Warden George W. Ross in one month recently counted 900 barrels of dead hares going to Boston and New York markets over the Washington County railway. Furthermore, it is estimated by the game wardens that more than 1,000,000 hares are shipped from Maine every year and as many more used as food within the state. Notwithstanding this and the fact that thousands of hares are devoured every year by beasts and birds of prey these small animals continue to increase.

Next World's Fair—Seattle, 1909.

Invitations to attend the next western world's fair are now being issued. This time Seattle will be the host, and the event will come off in 1909. The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition is the name of the function in which the nations are requested to take part.

Hadn't Been Drunk.

He suddenly wasn't used to the ways of big hotels. He looked as though he might have been from some Kansas farm and was in a large city for the first time. Somehow he had heard that the hotel watching man who had been absorbing intoxicants drink lots of ice water.

"Say," he said to C. T. Newton behind the desk at the Shirley hotel about 8 o'clock in the morning, "the other clerk last night told me to spit the things over the little telephone in my room when I wanted 'em."

"Yes," said Newton.

"Well, this morning, about a half an hour ago, I asked fer a glass of ice water. Some girl answered the telephone."

"Yes."

"Well, I don't like to be took fer a heavy drinker. I wasn't drunk last night."

"What do you mean?"

"Jes' this: I didn't get no glass of ice water. That girl sent me up a whole pitcher. It looked mighty much to me like she thought I was full of liquor last night and would need a whole pitcher. A glass would 'a' been enough." And as he turned and strode away he wore one of those "Guess I didn't call him down, eh?" looks.

An Old Time Alderman.

Several patrons of the restaurant at Broadway and Tenth street were lunching there a few days ago, seated at a table between the corner windows on the second floor which commanded a fine view down Broadway, which makes a sharp turn at Tenth street. Said one of them: "Do you know that this bend in Broadway was made in order to save a tree? Well, it was. As originally planned, Broadway would have cut a slice off the lawn of Hendrik Brevoort, who ran a tavern in the Dutch farmhouse which stood where Grace church now is. He was an alderman, like many of his profession today, and not only succeeded in saving the magnificent tree in the shade of which his customers lingered over their pipes to watch the traffic on Bloomingdale road, but about 1849 also prevented the opening of Eleventh street from Fourth avenue to Broadway, which would have necessitated the tearing down of his tavern."

The Madrigal.

The word madrigal sounds very formidable to a beginner in music. More than once have I heard the question, "What is a madrigal?" Strictly speaking, a madrigal is an elaborate vocal composition in from three to six parts, generally sung in chorus. The melody should not be carried through a single part, but should be dispersed in phrases through the different voices in the conversational manner peculiar to the music of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The true madrigal has no accompaniment. This form of song is considered English, but is thought to have had its origin in the Netherlands. The exact derivation of the word is not known. The first madrigals are believed to have been morning songs, shepherds' lays or songs in praise of the Virgin.

A Very Practical Christian.

A benevolent old man who lived on his farm in Iowa never refused shelter to any who might ask it of him. His many friends remonstrated with him about this characteristic, knowing that many unscrupulous hoboes would avail themselves of the opportunity and that there was great danger of the old man being robbed. To these remonstrances the old man replied that he believed in "practical Christianity."

"But," said one of his friends, "this seems very impractical. Suppose one of these men took it into his head to rob you one night?"

"My dear young friend," was the reply, "I bid all enter in the name of God, but I prove my belief in practical Christianity by locking up their pants during the night."

Poll Parrot as a Game Bird.

While the parrot is a bird of beautiful plumage, as a table delicacy it is not to be recommended, as I know from sad experience. My first essay at eating a parrot was attended with modified success. The bird must have been comparatively young, and after several hours' boiling became soft enough to masticate and finally swallow, leaving behind it an impression that we had lunched on the sole of a rubber boot.—Arthur D. Temple in Field and Stream.

The Tip Randolph Wanted.

Can you put me in no way to become a successful rogue to an amount that may throw an air of dignity over the transaction and divert the attention of the gaping public from the enormity of the offense to that of the sum?—From a Letter of John Randolph of Roanoke to Dr. John Brockenbrough.

A Fighting State.

Whenever you scratch Kansas history you find a fight. No territory of equal size has had so much war over so many different causes. Her story in Indian fighting, gambler fighting, outlaw fighting, town site fighting and political fighting is not approached by any other portion of the west.

Wonders of Chess.

Edwin Anthony in an article published in the Chess Players' Chronicle computed approximately that the number of ways of playing only the first ten moves on each side is 169,518,829,100,546,000,000,000,000,000.

The lists of English authors and their works give the titles of over 800 poems and essays on "Solitude."

Beats Radium For Cost.

If you object to paper money, but wish to carry big values in small compass, you might do worse than lay in a stock of best lenses for microscopes. Weight for weight, gold is not nearly so valuable as glass in the form of powerful lenses, and an ordinary purse filled with such lenses might easily represent a fortune. The record increase in the value of the manufactured article over the raw material is probably made by this variety of glass, which multiplies itself 50,000,000 times. The front lens of a micro objective instrument costing about £1 weighs no more than about .0017 of a gram; hence the value of such lenses to the weight of about two and a quarter pounds would be about £600,000. The cost of making this weight of glass is 2½ pence to 3 pence, and these when worked up into the shape of a lens the glass has increased in value about 50,000,000 times.—London Express.

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKE SYNDICATE

A syndicate is now being formed to take up 2,800 acres which is composed of five claims situated to the South of the West arm of Larder Lake and adjoining the Fitzpatrick claims, and nine claims are next to the now famous Dr. Reddick claims at the North East arm of the Lake.

Fifty-six claims are in the Province of Quebec, just East of Larder Lake and take in a portion of Opasitika Lake and close to the "King of the North" and other good properties, where copper and gold has been found in large quantities.

There are only 550 Syndicate shares to be sold, at One Hundred Dollars per Share, which will entitle the holder to one thousand shares in a million dollar company.

Samples of ore can be seen and further particulars can be had at our office.

This property is equal to seventy 40-acre claims and it is anticipated that these syndicate shares will be taken up quickly. Applications will be allotted in the order received, and over subscriptions will be returned.

All cheeks must be made payable to James K. Paisley, Esq. and D. O'Connor, Jr., jointly, who will act as trustees until the formation of the Company, or to the Standard Bank of Canada, Ottawa, or any of its branches.

Mining operations will be commenced just as soon as weather conditions permit.

"Tipping" in Europe

According to immemorial usage, European servants are entitled to tips as an assured part of their income. At the hotels the theory is that the landlord furnishes a guest a private room and the use of the public rooms, heat and light, food and dishes, but not menial service. For convenience he keeps at hand a corps of servants who will respond to the guest's summons, but at his expense. In old times travelers were attended by their own servants to wait on them. The modern custom echoes the ancient. The traveler no longer carries with him a retinue of servants, because he can hire temporarily those of the landlord. The customary fees are the payment. To avoid fleecing is really to cheat the servants, who need all they can get, heaven knows. A chambermaid at the best hotels receives as wages only about $2 a month. Tipping servants in America is a regrettable imitation of the European custom without its resting on the reasonable basis of the foreign institutions.

Told Who He Was.

The game warden of Colorado was walking out in the mountains on one occasion when he met a hunter with his gun. The official suggested that that ought to be a good country for hunting. "It certainly is," said the hunter proudly. "I killed one of the finest bucks yesterday I ever saw, and he weighed over two hundred." It was the season when deer may not be shot without subjecting the hunter to a heavy fine. "Well, that is a fine one," said the warden, "and do you know who you are talking to?" Being assured that he did not, the official said, "Why, I am the chief game warden of Colorado." The hunter was only taken aback for a moment, when he asked, "And do you know who you are talking to?" The warden didn't know.

"Well, sir," said the hunter, apparently much relieved, "you are talking to the biggest liar in the whole state of Colorado."

The Primitive Violin.

In its primitive form the violin was a direct development of the lyre and monochord—the strings from the former and the elongated box, with its sound holes, finger board and movable bridge, from the latter. The history of the violin began with the invention of the bow some time before the thirteenth century, when the voile, or vielle, used by the troubadours, made its appearance. This instrument underwent many changes until the middle of the sixteenth century, when the true violin model appeared. The primitive violin had little or no contour. It was not until the thirteenth century that the vielle was scooped out at the waist. The corner blocks were added in the fifteenth century and are attributed to Germany. For nearly a century the sound holes were shifted all over the instrument before they were cut in their proper place and the bridge fixed between them.—Circle Magazine.

Two of a Kind.

A revival meeting was in progress, and Sister Jones was called upon for testimony. Being meek and humble, she said: "I do not feel as though I should stand here and give testimony. I have been a transgressor for a good many years and have only recently seen the light. I believe that my place is in a dark corner, behind the door." Brother Smith was next called upon for his testimony and, following the example set by Sister Jones, said: "I, too, have been a sinner for more than forty years, and I do not think it would be fitting for me to stand before this assembly as a model. I think my place is behind the door, in a dark corner, with Sister Jones." And he wondered why the meeting was convulsed with the laughter of those who came to pray.

Don't Whisk Your Hat.

Never use a whisk broom to clean a hat, either stiff or soft, particularly a soft hat, as it gradually removes the fine surface originally on the hat. The worst effect, however, is the wearing away of the band and binding by such rough usage. The effect is more quickly shown on the best grades of bands and binding. A fine hair brush, one of curved shape, made especially to use under the curl of the hat, is good. Best of all, however, is a thick piece of woolen cloth. Such pieces are now made in the form of pads, with a strap across the back, so that they can be held securely in the hand.

Striking Originality.

"Your husband is not looking well tonight, Mrs. Rhymer."

"He isn't, and I'm not surprised at it."

"No? Has he been overworking himself?"

"It isn't that so much. It's his originality. Why, that man is struck by so many original ideas that his mind must be one mass of bruises."

Spoiled.

"Publishers insist on spoiling a great many manuscripts, don't they?" said the literary young woman.

"Undoubtedly," answered the bookseller. "A lot of 'em look a heap better typewritten and tied up with a ribbon than they do in print."

All That Saved Him.

"Yes, sir, he was obliged to go in the snake country, so he took a gallon of Georgia corn along with him."

"And how did he make out?"

"Splendid! Got so full and wabbled so the snakes missed him every time they struck at him!"

Laughing cheerfulness throws sunlight on all the paths of life.—Richter.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Heirlooms.

By Donald Kennicott.

Copyright, 1907, by Donald Kennicott.

"It was my father's sword."

As he spoke Knowlton replaced the dented brass scabbard on the elk horns over his fireplace and turned to the grave eyed young girl who stood beside him.

"You see, Miss Marble," he went on, trying to smile away the tinge of bitterness in his voice, "I have no other heritage to cherish."

Where I stood the girl's low voiced reply was inaudible, but a dull flush crept over the young Englishman's clear cut features, and it seemed that he echoed her words, saying a little sullenly, "No; I do not wear it."

The sound of footsteps on the veranda called him to welcome other guests, and I joined Nannie Marble in straying about the rooms, furnished oddly enough for a New Mexican ranch house, yet eloquently descriptive of their owner's life. The battered phonograph with its heap of dusty records, the well worn cloth of the solitaire table and the many shelves laden with innumerable paper novels spoke plainly of the deadly ennui of his present existence. The hunting trophies on the walls, the old cut crystal service on the sideboard, above all the many pictures and photographs, among them his father as general of division and himself as lieutenant of the guards, told that once at least he had lived otherwise, had been something other than a far straying "remittance man."

As we paused before the two portraits I knew that this thought was uppermost in Nannie Marble's mind, for ever since Knowlton's advent in the Blue Water country his love for her had been common knowledge. Yet she surprised me after a moment by saying very quietly, "Do you know why he is here?" and before I could reply answering herself: "He was cashiered for cowardice in the Boer war. Mrs. Loring told me. She showed me a paper that told about it."

There was a deep quiver of grief in her voice, and as she turned away her head for the first time I was certain of what I had for some time suspected—that if she had repulsed him it had been against the dictates of her own heart. It was hard for me to see her in distress, for I had been her father's comrade and had known and loved her since the days when old John Marble's quartz ledge had started the short lived boom at Eldorado City and Nannie, in her little pink pinafore, had ridden about on our shoulders, the undisputed belle of the camp.

"Nannie," I said, "if something else were the reason; if—if cowardice were merely the appearance, could you forgive it?"

Her lip trembled, but she looked up at me bravely enough. "Yes," she said—"yes, if there were anything else in the world; if he had— Oh, it is so hard to believe when one looks at him, and yet the paper told all about it and gave the official order that disgraced him."

I hesitated a moment, still uncertain as to whether it were best to let this girl know the truth about Francis Knowlton. And in that moment my opportunity was gone, for McNanon called from the other room, "Come on here; we're off," and we had to join the company assembled for an excursion to the ruins of Eldorado City. It was one of the many jaunts that had been arranged to entertain some visiting school friends of Nannie's and, like most of our entertainments, included the whole neighborhood, for we are too few and too isolated for social subdivisions. All were there—Breach of Promise McNanon, the Remittance Man, the Lady of the Absent Husband, the Lunger, the Man Who Invariably Went Armed, I, who— But this is not autobiography.

What with the gayety of our young guests, the cool moonlight and the very good supper that Knowlton's Chinese boy had provided the time passed pleasantly enough, although to me, of course, the ruins of Eldorado City were a familiar and not altogether amusing story. Yet when a coyote appeared in the open doorway of the old Golden Light dance hall and a string of bats came flitting from the entrance of Danny Monahan's tunnel I will confess that the moonlit wreckage took on an uncanny appearance not altogether devoid of interest.

As a climax it had been planned to explore this tunnel, known as Danny Monahan's Lead, from the old Irishman, who had dug steadily into the mountain for three years, bringing out some gold, breaking in upon a seemingly limitless limestone cavern and eventually disappearing forever in this pit which he had dug. McNanon led the way in, mounting as he went the small ladder that was to guide our return, and with lighted candles the rest of us followed in line. Above us the bats passed out in a continuous stream, and amid tiny shrieks of delight and trepidation from the ladies we proceeded to the limits of the tunnel and out into the natural cavern that had swallowed up the body and, so the delightful tradition ran, the treasure of Denny Monahan. The play of candlelight upon the glittering drops of moisture, the curious formations of onyx and limestone, the infinitely repeated echoes, all called forth their share of admiration, and, although the footing was becoming more difficult, we continued onward, the Lunger taking the lead in order to leave McNanon free to manage his cord.

Fatigue began to manifest itself in the cessation of talk and laughter, and when one of the ladies in the rear of the procession called out some belated jest of the Lunger the boy glanced back in surprise. The next instant he disappeared as if blotted out. I saw McNanon leap back, heard a dull splash, and then Knowlton brushed past me, tearing off his coat as he ran. He, too, plunged out of sight, and we heard sounds of a struggle in water and of some one gasping for breath. Holding my candle over the brink of the pit into which the Lunger had fallen, I could faintly discern the glimmer of water below me, but nothing more. The sound of splashing had ceased also, and for a long time we waited in breathless silence for some reassuring noise from below. Then from out the darkness to the left the even voice of the young Englishman startled us.

"Come a bit this way with that candle, will you?"

A moment later he appeared, scrambling up the sloping rocks at the side, carrying the Lunger like a child in his arms. "I fancy he's knocked his head a bit on the stones down there," he remarked in a level conversational tone as he laid the dripping burden down. Then as Mrs. Loring bent over the unconscious boy he picked up his coat and stepped to one side.

Ten minutes later the Lunger was able to stand and, leaning on Loring's arm, to set out on the return journey. We found that the prolongation of our stay had nearly consumed our candles, and after a consultation the remaining bits were delivered over to the leader, and the rest walked in darkness. I was being detailed to close up the rear.

The windings of the passage left me for the most part in total obscurity, and I stumbled along, cursing myself that I had not told Nannie that truth concerning Knowlton which we men had long ago known—that it was his inheritance from a long line of port loving ancestors that had brought him down; that after long monotonous months of garrison duty at an outlying post an urgent appeal for aid from an entrapped scouting party had come at the moment when the demon in his blood had at last got the better of him. A subordinate had led out a relief expedition, and Knowlton had come to live in the valley of the Blue Water. It was not a pretty story, yet a thousand times better than the one which had been told her. And, too, I could add to it that for the past year he had fought against his temptation with an unflinching courage that in my eyes at least had made him almost worthy of her. Yet I had feared that no woman could comprehend what that dull bloom of dust on the cut crystal decanter, an heirloom in the family, he had once remarked to me, with a queer smile, had cost him. I wondered if even now she would understand.

As we turned at last into the straight tunnel I caught sight of two silhouetted figures that walked side by side just in front of me, talking in low tones. And as we approached the entrance they delayed their steps, and there came to me the voice of Nannie Marble, speaking very gently:

"No, no, I do not wish to be told what the real reason was. I have seen. I am sure it was not what that paper said. There is nothing else in the world that I would not trust the man I love to conquer."

Very gravely the man answered her. "Anything in the world now."

And together they passed out into the starlight.

Largest Building Stone.

The walls of the Acropolis at Baalbek are truly called cyclopean. The famous Trilithon, the largest stones ever used in building, measure respectively sixty-five, sixty-four and sixty-three feet in length, each block weighing about 750 tons. How these huge masses were accurately placed in position twenty feet above the ground is a problem which modern science, with all its appliances, leaves yet unsolved. Above them are Arab fortifications. The quarries whence these gigantic materials were obtained are among the most interesting features of Baalbek. Here may still be seen the method of work of the ancient quarrymen, stones vertically hewn lying almost ready to the hand of the builder. One of these stones, to which the Arabs give the name Hajar-el-Houbla, measures sixty-nine feet in length and weighs 915 tons. M. de Saulcy calculates it would take the united efforts of 40,000 men to put this huge block in motion. This quarry is now used as a necropolis by the inhabitants of Baalbek.—Sunday at Home.

"As to the value of Cobalt why you can't put it too strong" said Mr. John Black, after spending sometime in examing the Strathcona property.

THE STRATHCONA

Buy Shares of "The Strathcona" Now at 50c each

BECAUSE—Two well known experts consider its location as one of the best in the whole mining camp. "As to the richness of Cobalt, why you can't put it too strong!"—Mr. John Black

BECAUSE—It is surrounded by big paying and very valuable mines—on the North native silver—on the West ore assaying 800 ozs silver to the ton—on the East ore assaying 3,000 ozs silver to ton—on the South the Rochester mine.

BECAUSE—14 veins of ore have already been disclosed, 2 to 6 inches wide on the surface and widening as they extend downwards.

BECAUSE—The strike of the veins is principally North-East and South-West and this is the direction of all the big silver veins of the Camp are running

BECAUSE—The Principal vein in the Thompson Mine (800 ozs. of silver in the ton) is running right into the Strathcona Property,

BECAUSE—The Company also owns 240 -acres Valuable Gold Property on Larder Lake (5 ozs. of gold to the ton.)

BECAUSE—The extremely low capitalization (only $300,000.) makes the payment of big dividends a certainty.

BECAUSE—The price of the shares, which is now 50c will soon advance to $1.00.

Don't forget that there are already 14 veins of ore disclosed in "The Strathcona," and with indications of many more similiar veins that the ore will assay at least 800 ozs. to the ton;—that the deeper it is, the more valuable it becomes. Don't hesitate. Large blocks of shares are being sold daily.

Watery Blood

Nerves are Weak
Face is Pallid
You Lack Strength
You Look Sickly.

Until You Ironize and Fortify the Blood There's No Hope of Cure

Thousands of tired workers need the invigoration, the strength, the nerve-force which Ferrozone can supply.

Ferrozone imparts strength because it nourishes.

Ferrozone is able to nourish because it supplies to the blood the elements it lacks.

Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the blood, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrozone builds up when else fails. Mr. Alonzo W. Douglas, of Woodbridge, Ont., says: "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrozone. Two years ago I was stricken with pneumonia. So severe was the attack and so reduced was my strength that my life was despaired of. I had the very best medical attention, but made no progress towards recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrozone. An improvement began almost at once. I gained steadily in weight and strength until Ferrozone made me a new man. I will gladly answer inquiries from other sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrozone deserves its great measure of success."

When a man in Mr. Douglas' low condition can be quickly cured, aren't the chances good for you? Don't fail to try Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

Fishing is the subject uppermost in the minds of all sportsmen at the opening of the beautiful month of May, and as the never failing interpreter of the sportsmen's wishes and feelings, the May number of Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, at Woodstock, Ont., contains many fishing stories. No fisherman should set out on his trip without this companion, and whatever may be his experiences in fishing he will gain much from a perusal of the pages of this bright magazine. He may read of fishing experiences in five of the Provinces of Canada; he may also note the defence of the dog advocates against the onslaught of those who ascribe the vanishing of our deer entirely to the dogs; and can further find interest and recreation in perusing hunting stories. An illustrated forecast of some of the trips the members of the Alpine Club of Canada will take on the occasion of their second annual camp in July, is given, while the descriptive account of the Automobile, Motor Boat, and Sportsmen's Show at Montreal—the only one this year in the Dominion—with boating, trap shooting, etc., will provide a variety such as the sportsman can find no where else. The long and varied nature of the contents appeal to all sportsmen and many general readers as well.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—There was nothing doing in police court yesterday.

—Mr. W. Brooks of South Beach, near Young's Point, is erecting a new cottage and dancing pavilion.

—The Lakefield House, Young's Point has been re-papered and renovated this spring.

—A nice line of comic souvenir cards at three for five cents at Times Bookstore.

—There will be a big gathering of the Knights of Columbus in Peterborough on May 24th.

—For bargains in books suitable for Sunday reading see north window display in Times Bookstore.

—Mr. J. J. Gilman, who will operate the Jubilee Point Hotel this summer, leaves today to take charge.

—Navigation in the Otonabee river has now reached the usual summers "in statu quo," to use a Chinese expression.

—Last night Rev. J. W. Pedley, of Toronto, gave his lecture on "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," in St Paul's S.S. room.

—The Bank of Toronto, has opened a sub-branch at Campbellcroft, which will be open for business on two days in each week.

—Supt. Henderson, of the water-works, reports that more applications have been received for water connections this year than ever.

—The many friends of Sergt. Fee, of 24th F.B.C.A., will be pleased to hear that he is able to be outafter his recent illness.

—His lordship, the Bishop of Toronto, will hold confirmation in St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, on Sunday evening, May 19th.

—The Port Hope Gas Company has declared a dividend of 4 1-2 per cent. Last year the dividend was 2 per cent.

—Ottawa already has about a hundred roller hockey players. The game is becoming popular.—Ottawa Citizen.

—The postponed monthly meeting of the Strangers' Fellowship Club, will be held in the Y.M.C.A. this evening at six o'clock.

—The Stony Lake cheese factory has opened, but the milk is scarce owing to the long spell of cold weather and the scarcity of feed.

—The Queen of Spain has got a little son. Great Cesar is that all! Why we've got a mortgage on our place, said a citizen who read yesterday's papers.

—A public meeting of the ratepayers of Millbrook, is called for Monday night next in the council chamber, to discuss the electric lighting of the village.

—All members of the 24th F.B.C.A. are requested to turn out on Monday night next for the east ward drill sheds for recruiting and inspection of clothing.

—Mr. Rose informs us that the sale of his hotel business is off, the Peterborough purchaser, not being able to finance the deal. Needless to say, everyone here will be pleased.—Millbrook Reporter.

—Some four hundred immigrants were aboard the C.P.R. train of six cars, which passed through the city yesterday morning. Most of the immigrants were ticketed to points in Ontario.

—A Norwood cow owned by W. E. McMillen, is a corker when her gift of the lacteal fluid is considered. This Jersey which is only four years old has within the past 11 months given up milk that made over $100 worth of butter.

—Quite a number of colored gentlemen passed through the city yesterday. They are members of the Sunny South Co., who played in Lakefield, Thursday night, and in Sterling last night. There were 20 in the company including a band.

—The many friends of Mr. Danny Simcoe, the successful American comedian, a son of Mr. Pete Simcoe the veteran local tailor, will arrive in the city next week to spend a few days in his native town. Danny's old friends will certainly give him the glad hand.

Fishery Inspector Gets Net

A few evenings ago Fishery Inspector Watt, whilst out looking after his duty down the river, ran across some law breakers. Just above the locks he saw a couple of men acting suspiciously. He at once paddled over to their punt, but the occupants of the latter got ashore in time and fled for parts unknown. The inspector, suspecting that the men who escaped, had been fishing, hunting for their nets, and found it. It was nearly new, six feet deep, and from 75 to 100 feet long. He took possession of it and the punt.

A New Copyrighted Story

The Times has obtained the sole right of publishing Joseph C. Lincoln's strong novel, "Partners of the Tide." This novel is copyrighted by Messrs. A. S. Barnes Co., and The Times has the sole prerogative of presenting this story to the public of Peterborough. So strict are the copyright regulations under which we present "Partners of the Tide" that we cannot sell or loan the rights to present any or all of the story, nor can the plates pass from our possession to any other newspaper in Canada. The novel in question will be printed as a serial, the first chapters to appear next week, possibly in Wednesday's issue. The exact date of publishing the first chapter will be conveyed in Monday's issue. As "Partners of the Tide" is one of the most thrilling stories of recent date, we would advise our readers to carefully save every issue from commencement to completion of the novel.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, caused by weakness, laceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 180,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Public Throughout Spain Rejoices Over Birth of Young Prince---Many Messages of Congratulations.

Madrid, May 12.—There was little sleep in Spain Friday night. The public rejoicing over the birth of an heir to the throne continued everywhere until almost morning.

In the provinces the church bells were rung, there was music in the streets of the various towns and alms were distributed to the poor. The capital was brilliantly illuminated, there was a great display of fireworks, regimental bands marched through the streets, which were thronged, and the cafes were crowded until almost daylight.

By the king's order, a sumptuous supper was served at midnight to the troops composing the garrisons throughout Spain. Dawn was breaking when the weary crowds sought their home.

Queen Victoria and her baby passed a satisfactory night, and this morning the condition of both the mother and child was pronounced to be excellent.

During the day the ceremony of inscription of the prince's birth on the registries of the state and of the royal family took place.

Ex-Premier Maura, the Liberal leader, thus, out of consideration for the royal family, advised the Liberals to attend the opening of the new parliament, May 13, but to abstain from attending thereafter as a protest against the reactionary policy of the Maura cabinet.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM ITALY.

Rome, May 12.—King Victor Emmanuel sent a telegram to King Alfonso warmly congratulating him on the birth of an heir to the throne and expressing his most cordial wishes for the prosperity of the Spanish royal family.

REJOICE IN CUBA.

Havana, May 12.—The birth of a son to the King and Queen of Spain has been the occasion of great rejoicings among the Spanish residents of Cuba. Governor Magoon was officially notified of the event by the Spanish minister, and the congratulations of Cuba were cabled to King Alfonso by the Cuban secretary of state.

POPE WELL PLEASED.

Rome, May 12.—The pope and his papal secretary of state, Cardinal Merry Del Val, both expressed themselves as very pleased that the infant born to the Queen of Spain was a Qboy. The pontiff telegraphed his congratulations to King Alfonso and his wife, adding his best wishes for the prosperity of the royal house and the Spanish nation, and conveying the apostolic benediction to the sovereigns, the heir and the people of Spain.

Long Service Medal Given

Sergt. Hay of 24th Battery gets Recognition of his 20 Years Service

Mr. Robert A. W. Hay, one of Peterborough's veteran soldiers on Saturday received his long service medal from the department of militia, Ottawa.

The medal is a very handsome silver decoration, given for a continuous period of twenty years in the colonial troops. Mr. Hay's medal, is accompanied by a deep green colored ribbon. On the face of the medal, surrounding his Majesty's well known features, are the words Edwardus VII., Rex Imperator, whilst on the reverse side are entwined wreaths of laurel and oak leaves, and the words "For long service in Colonia: Auxilliary forces," above which is a crown. Engraved in square deeply sunk, letters round the rim of the medal, are the words, Sergt. R. A. W. Hay, 24th Field Battery, Canadian Artillery.

Sergt. Hay first bore arms for Canada in 1886 in the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers. He remained with the 57th for about a year and a half, when he joined the 14th Durham Field Battery, with which he remained until the formation of the local battery, the 24th. Shortly after entering the artillery he was made bombadier, from which he rose respectively to rank of corporal and staff sergeant. Col. Greenwood of this city, now serving under the flag in South Africa also gets the long service medal.

Morris Tubes are Giving Good Results

The Morris tubes, now being used by members of the 57th Regiment, thereby enabling them to use ammunition of small caliber for target practice are resulting in a marked improvement in the shooting of our local marksmen. At the last practice, out of the two sections who shot there were only one or two who did not make the required fifty per cent. at 25 and 50 yards. Those who do not make the required percentage at first trial will be given another chance after the first round of the regiment has been made.

On Trial for Cruelty to Little Girl

Harry Walden of Gore's Landing, is now out on bail on a serious charge laid by Chief of Police Russ of Cobourg. Walden is charged with cruelty to a little girl, a daughter of Mrs. McWilliams, of this city and a niece of Walden's wife. Walden appeared before the police magistrate in Cobourg. The child's body showed severe bruises. Walden's defence was that he struck at her with his smock, and that she was knocked against the tube, bruising her head.

In laying the charge Chief Russ was acting under instructions of Mr. Goodwill of the local Children's Aid Society.

Good Horse Sale Held on Saturday

A successful sale of horses, harness, etc., was held by the Peterborough Horse Exchange, at their barns, the Palace Livery, to the rear of the Sherwood House, Saturday afternoon. Quite a number of good horses were disposed of at good prices. Mr. J. H. Gardiner, Peterborough's successful auctioneer, was master of ceremonies. One span of bay coach horses, the property of Mr. David Heaslip of Bailliehoro, were included in the horses sold. Mr. John Knox of Otonabee bought this team, the price paid being $390. The other horses sold brought prices in proportion. These sales, conducted by Mr. Gardiner for the exchange, will be held weekly.

Saturday's sale also included a large quantity of harness and a milch cow, the latter being purchased by Mr. W. Snowden, for $60.

Dr. Thos. N. Greer Assistant Coroner

The Ontario Gazette, of Saturday's issue contains an appointment of much local interest as follows: "Thos. N. Greer, M.D., Peterborough, to be associate coroner for the County of Peterborough."

This will relieve Dr. J. W. Gray, the present coroner of some of his duties, as the latter is now coroner in three different counties.

The same issue of the Gazette notes the appointment of James Haryal, Maynooth, Hastings county, as a notary public.

Board of Trade Tomorrow Night

The next meeting of the Board of Trade, and the first under the direction of the new president, Dr. Morrison, will be held in the city council chamber tomorrow night.

Ex-president D. Hughes Charles will read a paper on "Canadian Banking." The report of the Committee to strike the Standing Committees will be presented, and Mr. A. P. Poussette's motion, re the foreign investments of Canadian Banks will be discussed.

English Immigrant Fractures His Leg

An unfortunate accident occurred early Saturday morning at Burketon, whereby an English immigrant, named Henry Cook, broke one of his legs. It seems that Cook and his family were on a west-bound C.P.R. train, on their way to Peterborough, to visit Mr. Jas. Pope, a brother-in-law of the injured man. Unfortunately, they went through Peterborough and got as far as Burketon before they were aware of their mistake. Whilst getting off the car, Mr. Cork was carrying a small trunk. He turned to see if his wife and child were following. In the darkness he stumbled and fell, breaking his leg. Cork, his wife and family were placed on the C.P.R. east-bound express and came to Peterborough. Dr. Gray, the C.P.R. physician, was notified and rendered the necessary attention to Cook, who is doing as well as can be expected.

Etna and Stromboli Are Again Active

Messina, Sicily, May 12. — New craters have opened in Mounts Etna and Stromboli, whose eruptions are increasing.

The observatories of Messina and Catania continue to register earth shocks, but they are light.

The alarm of the population of this island is growing, especially among the people inhabiting the village in the luxuriant zone around Mount Etna, although the director of the Catania observatory has assured the people that they are in no danger.

The smoke and flames issuing from the main crater of Mount Etna are visible a long distance off.

A portion of the main crater of Stromboli has fallen in, causing a more active eruption. It seems to have affected the sea, which is most agitated near the island. Scientists have expressed the opinion that possibly a submarine crater may have opened and that it is causing the aquatic disturbance.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"As Told in the Hills"

This melodrama is a remarkable story of life and adventure in the South-western States in which an Indian maiden and an Indian youth take the leading roles. It was presented at the Grand Opera House Saturday night to a fair audience. Katharine M. Chalkoner and Gus. Neaville as Pammena, a Kiawa maiden, and Kiawa youth, respectively presented admirable conceptions of the Indian characteristics when permeated with the influences of a pale-face civilization. They both sustained their roles in a highly commendable manner both in make up and impersonation.

Their support is well adapted to the varied characters in the wild old-time western life presented, and the piece carries one back to the rough days of wagon emigrant trains, and covers a period of eighteen years when might and its inseparable six-shooter prevailed.

ENTERS SERVICE OF CONQUEROR

German Paper Taunts Botha With Base Ingratitude

PAID BY NEW MASTER

Drinks Champagne at Banquet Table and Walks Behind the Victor's Chariot

Berlin, May 12.—Under the sarcastic title of "Mr. Botha, the Englishman," the Berlin Boersen Zeitung published an attack on General Botha, charging him with base ingratitude to his German sympathizers of six years ago in becoming the premiere of a British colony and thus "entering the service of the conqueror." His action is compared to that of General Cronje in allowing himself to be made the attraction for an American circus, and to that of Mr. Kruger in retiring to Europe with money enough to live the cushioned life of a pensioned field-marshal.

The Zeitung says: "It certainly violates German conceptions of good taste that the leader of the old fight, whose name was synonymous with a free Transvaal, should permit himself to be well paid by his new master. Mr. Botha might have at least refused to attend the Imperial Conference personally, as other colonial premiers have done—since inasmuch as the conference is more decorative than real, and is held mainly for the purpose of exhibiting symbolically the power and glory of Imperialism. The conquered of yesterday cuts a sorry figure at such a pageant, for he resembles the Oriental kings who were compelled to trudge behind the triumphal chariots of the Roman Emperors, treated with respect, but bearing their lost crowns in their hands as the token of their humiliation.

"Mr. Botha does more than walk meekly behind the conqueror's chariot; he has become the obsequious lion of the London season. He drinks champagne at the banquet table, is interviewed, photographed, and orates incessantly about the glory of the beloved English Fatherland. Well may we ask why he ever endured the hardships of the Boer war and led so many brave young lives to death, if at the end of it all he consents to do what he is now doing."

Mob Tried to Kill Detective

Butte, Mont., May 12.—Sub-Patrol Driver Charles Jackson shot and killed Harry Cole last night, while he was attempting to escape, and a mob of 5000 persons, led by brothers of Cole, made an ineffectual attempt to lynch Detective Charles McGarvey. The crowd labored under the impression that McGarvey had shot Cole, who they took to be an innocent drunkard. Cole had been arrested on a forgery charge, and was suspected of being one of the bandits who recently held up a Northern Pacific train and murdered the engineer.

Timothy Cole led a mob which searched the jail for the officer and later surrounded the police station.

Three Years in the Penitentiary

Guelph, May 12.—Three years in the penitentiary was the sentence meted Joseph Thompson, conductor in charge of a G.T.R. freight train, who was held to have been responsible for a wreck at Gourock last September, when three men were killed. The defence was that Thompson had been forced to work such a long period (nearly 20 hours) that he had fallen asleep from exhaustion.

U. S. Has Ruined the Alaska Nations

So Asserts Gen. Greely at Chicago—Wonder Officials Aren't Hanged.

Chicago, May 12.—Rule of the United States Government in Alaska, was criticised severely last night by Major-General Adolphus W. Greely, commander of the northern division of the United States army in an address before the Geographical Society of Chicago.

General Greely has made several polar expeditions, on one of which his party established a record for "Farthest North," and all but seven of the party perished. Within the last two years he has explored parts of Alaska.

"The same trouble predominates in Alaska today that has characterized the attitude of the United States Government towards all the Aborigines with whom it has come in contact," said Gen. Greely. "It never treats them fairly. It has put the Esquimos and the Alaskan Indians on the road to ruin.

"Two years ago the United States courts were a fiasco. It was a wonder to me that the entire lot of government officials were not hanged by mob law.

"I have been in mining camps where as the old saying goes, they hung five men before breakfast for less provocation than was imposed on the people of Alaska. The courts were only instruments of private interests."

General Greely said the "Blood thrilling" episodes of Alaska described by certain writers are exaggerations.

Mr. G. Atthill Hurt Badly at Cobalt

Bobcaygeon Independent says: Mr. Geo. Atthill left with Messrs. Brock and Robt. Reid, last Wednesday for Cobalt to seek their fortunes in the silver belt. Next day they set out to pitch their tent and as night was coming on, they of course, were hustling, and in doing so, George, while cutting a pole, allowed the axe to glance, and cut his foot. The axe split the foot from toe to instep, both upper and lower sides having to be stitched. A doctor was called, and the wound dressed and he was put on the train and shipped home. It is very unfortunate for great expectations were entertained by his party. George is home and the foot is doing well.

Rev. J. G. Lewis B. A. Accepts Ploton Call

It will be with mingled feelings of regret at this leaving and congratulation over this call to a very prosperous church, that the friends of Rev. J. G. Lewis, B.A., pastor of Mark street Methodist church, will learn that he has received an invitation from the Quarterly Official Board of Main street Methodist church, Picton, to become pastor of that church at the close of the conference year in June. Mr. Lewis has accepted the call, subject to the approval of the Stationing Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Mr. Lewis will succeed Rev. F. C. Moore, in Picton, who has been called to Trenton, Main street church, Picton.

Orangeville's Sensation

Orangeville, May 13.—The spring assizes here will open today before Chief Justice Falconbridge. A serious indictment will be preferred against Walter Jackson, who stands committed on the charge of being implicated in the death of Lizzie Wells, who met a tragic death on June 22 last, as the result of an alleged criminal operation.

The body was buried the day after death, and was exhumed, a post-mortem made, and an inquest held. Jackson, it will be remembered, fled to Winnipeg where he was arrested and brought back here by Provincial Detective Joe Rogers and committed to jail. He has been out on bail for months.

J. Walter Curry, K.C., of Toronto, will have charge of the defence, and, it is stated, Jackson will enter the box on his own behalf, in which case sensational developments are expected. Some dozen witnesses, including several medical experts, and Arthur C. Douglass, the local druggist, who is also out on bail, will be crown witnesses. Detective Rogers has also been subpoenaed.

Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., Toronto, is crown prosecutor. The case is exciting unusual interest owing to the prominence of the parties.

Seeks a Divorce

London, May 12.—An application for a divorce from his wife, Flossie, will be made at the next session of parliament by Frank Atwood of Lobo township, Atwood is the young Vanpeck farmer, who three weeks ago was bound hand and foot and secretly fastened to his bed by three unknown men, and whose wife subsequently eloped with Arthur Scott, a farm hand, who was at one time employed by Atwood. The statutory reason is alleged.

King Charles in Danger

Bucharest, Roumania, May 12.—An anarchist named Gaidoff, charged with complicity in a plot against the life of King Charles, was arrested here yesterday.

The police seized also a quantity of anarchistic pamphlets, a machine of the manufacture of bombs, some dynamite and correspondence with certain Bulgarian anarchists, including one of the men implicated in the assassination of Dr. Petkoff, the Bulgarian premier, last week.

Gaidoff was examined by a magistrate, but refused obstinately to reveal the names of his associates or to impart any details of the conspiracy.

The Greatest Imperial Scheme of Many Years

Approaching Completion, to be Assisted by the Canadian and Imperial Governments--- A Fast Atlantic Service.

London, May 12.—However fruitless the colonial conference may seem in some respects, there is now every reason to believe that it will result in the long-hoped-for establishment of a genuine fast Atlantic steamship service. Speaking in the conference on April 26th, Sir Joseph Ward advocated a speedier steamship service between these islands and the colonies. It was noticed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier applauded. A conference was held between Sir Wilfrid and the promoters of the Blackwood Bay-Halifax scheme, in which the Canadian premier betrayed deep interest in the project. On May 2nd Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that the Motherland might give a quid pro quo for the preference by subsidising fast steamship lines between Great Britain and the colonies. Mr. Lloyd-George opposed this, but it made a direct appeal to the conference. Different despatches from here have outlined the suggested scheme of a fast Atlantic service, and an improved Pacific service.

It may now be stated authoritatively that a definite plan has been made, details worked out, and it only waits ratification by the two parliaments to consummate the greatest Imperial project of many years. The plan involves the formation of a new Atlantic steamship company; the commissioning of vessels which represent the latest developments in naval architecture, with a speed of twenty-five knots, and able to maintain an average of twenty-four; this service to be subsidized by the British and Canadian governments, each to pay probably $1,000,000 per year for ten years. It also involves the Australian Commonwealth and New Zealand joining in the project by subsidizing the Pacific service, which would then be increased from thirteen to eighteen knots, and extended to take in New Zealand and Australia.

Started as Office Boy Now General Manager

New York, May 12.—Barrett B. Mitchell has been appointed general traffic manager of the Vanderbilt Railroad lines. His salary is said to be $25,000 a year.

Mr. Mitchell entered the employ of the Vanderbilt lines in 1867 as an office boy in the freight department of the old Blue Line at Detroit. He has been with the lines continuously since.

Francis Li Bau was appointed as freight traffic manager of the lines east of Buffalo.

Attempted to Kill Wife

Wichita, Kan., May 12.—W. R. Fulton, who last night made an attempt on the life of his former wife, committed suicide today by shooting. His body was found in the railroad yards, four blocks from where he attacked Mrs. Fulton, and shot her three times. The woman is not dangerously injured. Following the shooting last night a crowd of men chased Fulton, intent on lynching him, but he escaped.

Chas. E. Hughes for Presidency

New York, May 12.—A resolution endorsing Gov. Charles E. Hughes for the presidency of the United States created a sensation at a meeting of the state Republican committee in this city yesterday.

The resolution was offered by former Governor and former State chairman B. B. Odell, jr., it reading was received in silence by the committee, most of the members appearing astonished at its introduction.

On motion of State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff the proposed endorsement of Mr. Hughes was laid on the table by a vote of 32 to 4.

Chairman Woodruff, in asking that the resolution be placed on the table, said this opposition to it was because of the source from which it emanated; that the gentleman who offered it was well known to be hostile to the president of the United States.

He added that the adoption of such an expression of opinion by the committee would place Gov. Hughes in an awkward position, especially as this was no time to adopt such a resolution.

In moving that Gov. Odell's motion urging the nomination of Mr. Hughes for the presidency be tabled, Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff said;

"I moved that this resolution be tabled on account of the gentleman who introduced it; by reason of his well-known unfitness to the president of the United States."

Mr. Odell took exception to Mr. Woodruff's statements and declared that he believed this to be a most opportune time for an expression of opinion by the Republican organization of the State of New York into its choice for the next presidential nomination.

His introduction of the resolution, he declared, was without guile.

THE AMERICAN HABIT

One in Every Three Affected.

Of the 75,000,000 people in the United States, it is estimated that 25,000,000 or one in every three, is partially disabled from a broken down nervous system. America is the greatest consumer of coffee in the world. Can you draw the correct inference from these two facts?

Many a person will exclaim, "Nonsense!" It is easy for any thoughtless person to jump at a conclusion that a philosopher would study carefully over before reaching. Think of the members of your own family. How many of them are perfectly and completely well in every respect? How many of your friends are perfectly healthy? Inquire of them and you will be surprised to learn that the average of one in every three, who are sick, in the main, stands true. Health depends, primarily, upon a perfectly poised nervous organization, and the greatest known enemy to the nervous system is coffee. Its active principle is caffeine, which is a pronounced nerve destroyer. The action is, first, to attack the stomach, then the pneumogastric nerve which lies behind the stomach and which is directly connected with the brain.

The disordered condition passes thence from the brain to all parts of the body, and in some it will show in trepidation (well-known nervous condition); in others this is hidden, but the work goes on from day to day, until the accumulation of forces climaxes in some organic disease. It may be the kidneys become affected and Bright's disease sets up, it may be weak eyes, may be catarrh, stomach trouble, palpitation and heart failure (which is becoming more and more noticeable among Americans).

Somewhere, you may depend upon it, this work will show forth in the form of disease. It may become so fixed and chronic that it can not be thrown off. It is hard to induce a man or a woman to give up coffee when they have become addicted to its use, but if such people can be given Postum Food Coffee they will quickly change for the better, for the food drink, when properly made, has the color and the delicious, toothsome flavour of old government Java of the milder and higher priced grades.

The work of reorganization begins at once, for the tearing down element of coffee has been eliminated, and in its place the strong rebuilding effects of the elements contained in Postum, go directly to work to rebuild the broken-down and delicate gray matter in the nerve centres and brain. This is just plain, old-fashioned common-sense that any thoughtful person can make use of; in fact, hundreds of thousands of brain workers in America have already discovered the fact and are using Postum Food Coffee, to their very great benefit and relief. Beware of Mercury

You May be Using this Harmful Drug and Not Know it.

A favorite method of administering this deleterious drug is in cathartic pills. Beware of "quick-result" articles, they may do more harm than good.

Drastic cathartics will weaken the strongest. With old people they are a positive menace to life.

Merely to restore normal bowel action and gently stimulate the liver is all that the wise physician recommends.

To keep the system pure and clean, nothing is so efficacious, as the vegetable pills of Dr. Hamilton, which are composed of such herbs as mandrake, butternut and dandelion; they contain not an atom of any substance that could injure even an infant.

By their certain action on the Liver Dr. Hamilton's Pills cause bile to be secreted which forms the stimulus that moves the bowels; this is nature's own method and the best one.

Mr. R. Hambly, of French River, Ont., writes as follows: "I was inclined to bilious attacks and frequently was too ill to work. Most remedies purged and weakened my bowels, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills gently stimulated my liver, and by strengthening the stomach made a perfect cure. My health has been just splendid since I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills from your druggist or storekeeper, 25c per box or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

ONTARIO WHEAT SHOULD BE USED

The fact of the steady decline in the demand for Ontario wheat must be a matter of concern not only to the individual wheat grower, but to the public generally. Ontario people have adopted the use of Western flour to a considerable extent, and the building up of Western industry to the detriment of the Ontario farmer and miller has been a serious economic loss to the Province.

The Ontario farmer has not only lost a ready market for his wheat, but has suffered from the high prices of feed. When the business of wheat growing in Ontario was still flourishing the price of bran and shorts had not soared to the present figure of twenty to twenty-two dollars a ton. In view of the increased cost of living, and the difficulty of obtaining cheap labor, such prices for feed are discouraging to farmers all over Ontario. Giving up wheat and going into stock raising and dairying does not help the farmer, if the cost of an essential part of the feed becomes almost prohibitive.

There seems, however, to be no reason for regarding this state of affairs as inevitable. The Ontario wheat is conceded to have a flavor that is utterly lacking in the Western flour, and were it not for the larger percentage of gluten in its Western rival, it would have held its own in the open market for bread making as it still does for pastry, biscuits, etc. Those millers and bakers who have adopted the use of a blended flour, made from a proper mixture of Ontario wheat and the stronger Western wheat to bring up the percentage of gluten, report a great demand for their product all over the Maritime Provinces. Down East the people do not care where the flour comes from or where the grain is grown, provided good flour is supplied them. The fact that they prefer the blended flours ought to be an argument for their use by the people of Ontario, to whom the increase in wheat growing is a matter of vital interest.

Anything that will help to divert some of the money now turned into Western channels ought to be welcomed by the farming community. The use of the Ontario blended flours will increase the market for the farmer and prove extremely beneficial to the dairyman and stockman by bringing down prices of bran and shorts to a more reasonable basis.

HARNESSING PRIMORDIAL POWER

There is something captivating in the thought of using the rays of the sun or the motion of the tides as sources of power. In England tidal plants at three points are projected, the power to be secured through pairs of reservoirs connected with the sea. The water from one reservoir filled at high tide will fall into the other one, which has been emptied at low tide, and in falling will drive turbines connected with electrical generators.

INHUMAN TORTURES.

The Old English Custom of Burning Women Alive.

The horrible punishment of burning women alive seems to have existed in Saxon England, but perhaps only in the case of slaves. Under the Norman rulers any woman, bond or free, who killed her husband was burned alive, and the same punishment for this crime and also for high treason and even for coining and other minor offenses continued or arose from time to time through the second and third periods until it was abolished by act of parliament in 1790, the last actual execution of this kind having, however, taken place six years earlier. The whipping of women for various offenses continued even later. Public whipping was not abandoned until 1817, and cases of private whipping occurred as late as 1820.

There can be no doubt, we think, that the savage human instinct of cruelty had something to do with the barbarous punishments above mentioned. As the old Roman public longed for the carnage of the circus, as the Spanish populace crowded to the auto-da-fe in the flourishing days of the inquisition, so the lower (perhaps not only the lower) strata of English nationality took delight in witnessing tortures which in all probability were devised and kept up partly for their entertainment. Judge Jeffreys in sentencing a woman to be whipped is reported to have said:

"Hangman, I charge you to pay particular attention to this lady. Scourge her till her blood runs down. It is Christmas time, a cold time for madam to strip. See that you burn her shoulders thoroughly."—Cornhill Magazine.

SAVING MONEY.

Getting the First Thousand Dollars and What it Teaches.

"Get the first $1,000. After that money making is easy." This is the old time sage advice of the hard headed, self made man. That axiom has set many men to saving. They fix upon that sum as the glittering, faroff herald of a fortune some time to be made. To a man on a small salary—a salary, say, out of which something can be saved weekly without too much deprivation—the advice is good. There is something in it that acts as a stimulus to economy. And who will deny that economy is a good thing or that any truth that lights the way to it should not be known?

Many men, therefore, have been buoyed up in their economies by the belief that the first $1,000 is the hardest to get and that afterward all the rest would be easy and the good things of the world that follow a bounteous supply of money would be within easy reach. It is a pity that the man who invented that saying could not also have told us with equal advantage how to turn the $1,000 over and make two of it. It takes a long time to make a wage earner see that "money works." His idea of making money is to work for it himself. It never occurs to him that money works much easier than he can and without any of the hardships he himself experiences—that is to say, until he has got the first $1,000. That usually makes a young man feel like a financier, and he talks wisely of investments.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

Veteran Trainer Dead

Wheeling, W. Va., May 11.—George H. Smith, the veteran race track trainer and driver for the past 30 years, died at Steubenville, Ohio, last night. In his day he drove Sleepy George, Colonel Forrest, Kingsman and many other famous trotters and pacers. He was the only known driver who carried a Bible with him on the circuit. A coincidence was the fact that a long standing suspension against him was lifted yesterday at New York by the National Trotting Association. Smith had not received the news.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Provincial Secretary, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, marked "Tenders for Coal," will be received up to noon on Monday, May 20th, for the delivery of such quantities and qualities of coal in the sheds of the following provincial institutions, on or before the 15th day of July next, viz.: Toronto, London, Kingston, Hamilton, Mimico, Brockville, Cobourg, Orillia, Penetang, Woodstock Asylums; also the Central Prison and Mercer Reformatory.

Specifications of the qualities and quantities of coal required and forms of application may be obtained on application to the Department or from the Bureaus of the respective institutions.

Tenderers are to specify the mine of origin and the quality of respective kinds of coal, and to furnish evidence on delivery that the coal is of origin specified, fresh mined and up to the standard of trade grades.

Delivery subject to satisfaction of officers of Department of the Provincial Secretary, who may require additional deliveries, not exceeding 20 per cent., up to the 15th July, 1908.

Tenders will be received for the whole quantity specified, or for the quantities required in each institution. An accepted cheque for $500, payable to the order of the Honorable the Provincial Secretary, must be furnished by each tenderer, and two sufficient sureties will be required for the due fulfilment of each contract. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without written authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

W. J. HANNA,
Provincial Secretary.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the crossledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,
"WM. R. PAYNE, President,
"J. ROGER BROWN, Secretary."

Can't Hold Down the Price

—MUCH LONGER—

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

A limited number of shares at the very low price of

FIVE CENTS PER SHARE

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing ficticious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 100,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

Jack looked across the room into the keen, worldly wise old face.

"How?" he inquired.

"From her. I found it out the moment she mentioned your name. I conducted the conversation in such a manner that she had frequently to say it, and whenever your name crossed her lips she gave herself away."

Jack shook his head with an incredulous smile.

"Moreover," continued Sir John, "I maintain it is not too late."

There followed a silence. Both men seemed to be wrapped in thought, the same thoughts with a difference of forty years of life in the method of thinking them.

"I could not go to her with a lame story like that," said Jack. "I told her all about Millicent."

"It is just a lame story like that that women understand," answered Sir John. "When I was younger I thought as you do. I thought that a man must needs bring a clean slate to the woman he asks to be his wife. It is only his hands that must be clean. Women see deeper into these mistakes of ours than we do. They see the good of them where we only see the wound to our vanity. Sometimes one would almost be inclined to think that they prefer a few mistakes in the past because it makes the present surer. Their romance is a different thing from ours. It is a better thing, deeper and less selfish. They can wipe the slate clean and never look at it again. And the best of them rather like the task."

Jack made no reply. Sir John Meredith's chin was resting on his vast necktie. He was looking with failing eyes into the fire. He spoke like one who was sure of himself—confident in his slowly accumulated store of that knowledge which is not written in books.

"Will you oblige me?" he asked.

Jack moved in his chair, but he made no answer. Sir John did not indeed expect it. He knew his son too well.

"Will you," he continued, "go out to Africa and take your lame story to Jocelyn—just as it is?"

There was a long silence. The old wornout clock on the mantelpiece wheezed and struck 6.

"Yes," answered Jack at length, "I will go."

Sir John nodded his head with a sigh of relief. All, indeed, comes to him who waits.

"I have seen a good deal of life," he said suddenly, arousing himself and sitting upright in the stiff backed chair, "here and there in the world, and I have found that the happiest people are those who began by thinking that it was too late. The romance of youth is only fit to write about in books. It is too delicate a fabric for everyday use. It soon wears out or gets torn."

Jack did not seem to be listening.

"But," continued Sir John, "you must not waste time. If I may suggest it, you will do well to go at once."

"Yes," answered Jack, "I will go in a month or so. I should like to see you in a better state of health before I leave you."

Sir John pulled himself together. He threw back his shoulders and stiffened his neck.

"My health is excellent," he replied sturdily. "Of course I am beginning to feel my years a little, but one must expect to do that after—eh—ex—sixty. C'est la vie."

He made a little movement of the hands.

"No," he went on, "the sooner you go the better."

"I do not like leaving you," persisted Jack.

Sir John laughed rather testily.

"That is rather absurd," he said. "I am accustomed to being left. I have always lived alone. You will do me a favor if you will go now and take your passage out to Africa."

"Now—this evening?"

"Yes. At once. The offices close about half past 6, I believe. You will just have time to do it before dinner."

Jack rose and went toward the door. He went slowly, almost reluctantly.

"Do not trouble about me," said Sir John. "I am accustomed to being left."

He repeated it when the door had closed behind his son.

The fire was low again. It was almost dying. The daylight was fading every moment. The cinders fell together with a crumbling sound, and a grayness crept into their glowing depths. The old man sitting there made no attempt to add fresh fuel.

"I am accustomed," he said, with a half cynical smile, "to being left."

CHAPTER XXV.

"THEY tell me, sir, that Missis Marie—that is, Missis Dunovo—has gone back to her people at Sierra Leone."

Thus spoke Joseph to his master one afternoon in March, not so many years ago. They were on board the steamer Bogamayo, which good vessel was pounding down the west coast of Africa at her best speed. The captain reckoned that he would be anchored at Loango by half past 7 or 8 o'clock that evening. There were only seven passengers on board, and dinner had been ordered an hour earlier for the convenience of all concerned. Joseph was packing his master's clothes in the spacious cabin allotted to him. The owners of the steamer had thought it worth their while to make the finder of the simiacine as comfortable as circumstances allowed. The noise of that great drug had directed toward the west coast of Africa that floating scum of ne'er-do-weldom which is ever on the alert for some new land of promise.

"Who told you that?" asked Jack drying his hands on a towel.

"One of the stewards, sir; a man that was laid up at Sierra Leone in the hospital."

Jack Meredith paused for a moment before going on deck. He looked out through the open porthole toward the blue shadow on the horizon which was Africa, a country that he had never seen three years before and which had all along been destined to influence his whole life.

"It was the best thing she could do," he said. "It is to be hoped that she will be happy."

"Yes, sir, it is. She deserves it, if that goes for anything in the heavenly reckoning. She's a fine woman; a good woman that, sir."

"Yes."

Joseph was folding a shirt very carefully.

"A bit dusky," he said, smoothing out the linen folds reflectively, "but I shouldn't have minded that if I had been a marryin' man, but I'm not."

He laid the shirt in the portmanteau and looked up. Jack Meredith had gone on deck.

While Maurice and Jocelyn Gordon were still at dinner that same evening a messenger came, announcing the arrival of the Bogamayo in the roads. This news had the effect of curtailing the meal. Maurice Gordon was liable to be called away at any moment thus by the arrival of a steamer. It was not long before he rose from the table and lighted a cigar preparatory to going down to his office, where the captain of the steamer was by this time probably awaiting him. It was a full moon, and the glorious golden light of the equatorial night shone through the high trees like a new dawn. Hardly a star was visible; even those of the southern hemisphere pale beside the southern moon.

Maurice Gordon crossed the open space of cultivated garden and plunged into the black shadow of the forest. His footsteps were inaudible. Suddenly he ran almost into the arms of a man.

"Who the devil is that?" he cried.

"Meredith," answered a voice.

"Meredith—Jack Meredith, is that you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'm blowed," exclaimed Maurice Gordon, shaking hands; "likewise glad. What brought you out here again?"

"Oh, pleasure!" replied Jack, with his face in the shade.

"Pleasure? You've come to the wrong place for that. However, I'll let you find that out for yourself. Go on to the bungalow. I'll be back in less than an hour. You'll find Jocelyn on the veranda."

When Maurice left her Jocelyn went out into the veranda. It was the beginning of the hot season. At midday the sun on his journey northward no longer cast a shadow. Jocelyn could not go out in the daytime at this period of the year. For fresh air she had to rely upon a long, dreamy evening in the veranda.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money.

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself.

CO-OPERATION means working together. This store is Co-operative and furnishes its shareholders with the best merchandise at the least possible advance over actual cost.

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:

W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.00 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

You'll Grow Steadily Worse Unless the System is Better Nourished.

Nothing will build you up with the certainty of Ferrozone. Thousands it has cured who never hoped to be well—and here is ample proof—substantiated by one of Nova Scotia's prominent clerics.

"Before taking the first box of Ferrozone," writes Mrs. Annie Jeffry, of Sandy Cove, N. S., "my condition was deplorable. Though I employed the most skilful medical aid, I grew steadily weaker. In fact, I was in such a low condition that it was impossible for me to walk across the room. My heart was very weak, and I suffered from terrible palpitations, which the doctors said were from troubles peculiar to women. Friends urged me to try Ferrozone, and I bought six boxes. When I had used the third box my old-time vigor and strength returned. The palpitation ceased, my appetite increased, and I got a good rosy color in my cheeks. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Ferrozone. All weak women should use it. I hope many suffering sisters will use Ferrozone for it will surely cure them."

Rev. J. C. Morse, D.D., pastor of the Baptist Church, Sandy Cove, bears witness to the recovery of Mrs. Jeffry, and writes: "This is to certify that Mrs. Annie Jeffry is a lady upon whose word you can depend. I have known her since childhood, and believe her to be a truthful, honest woman." This adds additional force to the testimony of Mrs. Jeffry, and gives assurance to other sufferers that Ferrozone does what is claimed for it. Three weeks' treatment costs 50c., or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists.

City Council Meets Tonight

There will be a special meeting of the city council tonight at eight o'clock for the purpose of cleaning up all the business on the slate. There are eight or nine bylaws to put through; every committee has a report to read, and there are several other matters to clear up. After the council meeting, if there is time, the committee of the whole will have a session.

Crops Hurt by Cold Weather

On Saturday several farmers noted that the recent untimely cold weather will not only greatly retard the crops but do considerable harm in places to the fall wheat, which in some localities has been killed. Much damage has been done in South Monaghan, where much of the fall wheat will have to be plowed up, and fields re-seeded. In Cavan township most of the fall wheat will have to be plowed up.

Sunday Drunk Chased in Vain

Yesterday afternoon shortly after four o'clock children returning from Sunday school were somewhat surprised and more disgusted to see a man hopelessly drunk staggering along Hunter street. Shortly after 6.15 the police were notified by phone that a man in a bad state of intoxication was at a local lumber yard. P. C. Adams at once went to that locality but the bird had flown. He was probably the Hunter street offender.

Hand Crushed by Street Car

As Clarence Miller, 15 years old, a son of Mr. Clarence Miller of Harvey street, was attempting to board an Auburn car, at the corner of George and London streets, on Saturday, by not waiting for the car to stop, and trying to board it whilst in motion, he had the misfortune to have his right hand badly crushed by one of the wheels running over it. The motorman claims not to have seen the boy signal him to stop. The boy grabbed for the front door but missed it and fell with a hand under the wheel. He was otherwise badly bruised about the face and back. After temporary attention by Dr. Morgan he was taken to Nicholl's hospital, when three fingers had to be amputated.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

Mr. McCallum on "Quick Lunch"

Mr. W. J. McCallum, the George street restaurateur did yeoman service Saturday morning. He received a wire at 5.30 a.m. to prepare 700 sandwiches and 250 cups of coffee for passengers on the west-bound express, due here at 5.10 but delayed, three hours at Smith's Falls, awaiting passengers from Boston. This was a "quick lunch" order but Mr. McCallum was at the station with the food and dishes in plenty of time, and the train was not delayed a minute.

Knox Church Notes

Yesterday the centenniary of the first Presbyterian missionary work in China, by Robert Morrison, which was celebrated throughout both the Dominion and the celestial kingdom was commemorating in Knox church. A special collection was taken up on behalf of the Macao mission of the Canadian Presbyterian Church. Macao was the scene of Mr. Robert Morrison's first labors. In the afternoon a meeting was held for young men when Sheriff Hart gave a short address. Under the auspices of the ladies' Aid, Rev. Mr. Keith, will give an illustrated lecture on India, on the evening of June 4th.

Clerk.

EXCURSION TO COBALT

The Strathcona Silver Mining Co. of Cobalt, Limited

The generous manner in which the public have subscribed to their first issue of stock at 50 cents a share has been most gratifying. This issue will shortly be exhausted and it is the intention of the Company to advance the price of the Stock to ONE DOLLAR.

The low capitalization of the Company ($800,000), the business like manner in which its affairs have been managed and its unexcelled properties, have led many to invest in THE STRATHCONA at 50 cents a share, while other Cobalt Companies were offering at 10, 15 and 25 cents.

The prospectus of THE STRATHCONA contains the following statement:

"This Company invites inspection of its property even in its present undeveloped state by any person having an interest in so doing, and will accept with pleasure and abide by the Report of any competent Mining Engineer familiar with the Cobalt Camp on its location and prospective value."

Many of our present shareholders, with commendable discretion, made inquiries at Cobalt through bankers, merchants, mining engineers and other private sources before investing, and were invariably advised that THE STRATHCONA was one of the soundest Cobalt propositions now before the public.

This Company now proposes to go a step further: AN EXCURSION is being organized by THE STRATHCONA SILVER MINING CO., to leave Montreal on the night of May 23rd to reach Cobalt May 24th, and returning to reach Montreal Monday morning, May 27th, in time for business. The lowest excursion rates will be obtained, excursionists to remain in the sleepers instead of hotel accommodation at Cobalt.

The object of this excursion is to allow shareholders of THE STRATHCONA, and those who propose being shareholders, an opportunity of examining and seeing with their own eyes the property in which they have invested, to verify the development work done, the veins exposed, the location of the property, and the value of the surrounding properties, and to verify every other representation made to the public. It is a splendid chance also to visit the producing mines, and to see our great North country. This offer is absolutely without parallel—as in no instance yet has a Cobalt Company, not the owner of a producing mine, invited the public to examine its property and judge for themselves.

Nearly one car load of fares have been booked privately already, and our friends are strongly advised to book at once as we anticipate lack of accommodation. Passages will be held for the first applicants.

Write, Wire, Call or Telephone (Main 3541) for Fares and all other Information, THE SECRETARY,

Bylaw to This Effect Fathered by Ald. Leary and Passed by the City Council Last Night---This Measure will be Strictly Enforced.

The city fathers met in special session last night, when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams and Aldermen Johnston, Tovey, Elliott, Leary, Stevenson, Bradburn, Morgan, Duncan, McIntyre, Morrow, Wilson and Phelan.

Wm. McKenzie, the market clerk, wrote asking permission to lease a portion of the market square for merry-go-round purposes without the lessee being taxed a license fee of $20 the first week and $10 each subsequent week as provided by bylaw. The market clerk is desirous of making a revenue in this direction, but the heavy license is practically prohibitory. The proprietor of the merry-go-round, to wit, the "Ocean Wave," thought the city might reduce the license to say $10 the season, as conceded the Street Railway Company for the operation of their toboggan slide at Jackson Park.—This matter was referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.

INCREASE OF SALARIES.

Ald. Johnston submitted the following:—

Gentlemen,—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows;

1. That the salaries of W. Parnall and R. Parnall be increased to $525 each to date from May 1st, 1907.

2. That S. F. Wainwright's salary be increased $35 a year as engineer of the fire department.

3. That the offer of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., to permit the lights now in use in the oldfire hall to be transferred to the new fire hall at the present rate and to charge $4 a year for each additional lamp, with 25 per cent. discount for prompt payment, be accepted, and that the lighting be paid for on the certificate of the chairman of this committee.

4. That 100 copies of the bylaw to provide for the government of the fire department be printed, in pamphlet form.

5. That a mechanical tap bell in connection with the fire alarm be placed in Foreman Packenham's house.

6. That this committee be authorized to purchase a Seagrave hook and ladder wagon for the fire department from H. Cameron & Co.

The report was adopted, clause 2 to take effect providing Wainright can produce his second-class certificate as an engineer.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Chairman Ald. Duncan submitted the report of the Board of Works, which embodied the work taken up by the board in committee, as previously reported.

Ald. Morgan moved that the report be amended to provide for the pavement on Mark street, west side and south of Hunter, be built on outside of the tree line.

It appears that residents on Mark street, south of Hunter, want the walk inside the tree line.

Ald. Morrow suggested that the residents as a whole, both north and south of Hunter street, on Mark, be requested to petition for the walk as they want it, so that the pavement the whole length of Mark street will be uniform.

This matter was referred back to the Board of Works with power to act.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the chief of the fire brigade and the city engineer report on the condition of the hose used to flush the Romaine street sewer.

PROPERTY COM. REPORT.

Ald. McIntyre reported as follows;—

Gentlemen,—Your Property Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows;

1. That the chairman be authorized to make the best arrangements he can for the removal of the stable and hose tower at the old fire hall.

2. That the lease of part of lot No. 1 south of Charlotte street and east of Water street, to be used for a carter's shelter, be approved and a bylaw passed authorizing its execution on behalf of the corporation.

3. That the city engineer be instructed to have the roof of the weigh scales improved in accordance with his report of April 27th, 1907.

This report was adopted as read.

FINANCE REPORT.

Ald. Tovey submitted the following;—

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the debentures to pay for sewers constructed in 1905 and 1906 be transferred to the city trust commissioners for disposal.

2. That a bylaw be passed to issue debentures for $12000 to pay for ward five outfall sewer and the expenses connected therewith, the debentures to be for thirty years and to bear 4 1-2 per cent. interest, and that the committee be authorized to sell them.

CHANGE ON COMMITTEES.

On motion of Ald. Morrow, the name of Ald. Bradburn was transferred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and the name of Ald. Leary transferred to the Manufacturers' Committee.

BYLAWS.

A bylaw increasing the salaries of the drivers in the fire hall to $525 a year, and the salary of Engineer Wainright to $600 a year, passed its several readings. Wainright must produce his second-class engineer's certificate forthwith.

A bylaw to enforce the maintenance of adequate fire escapes in buildings of a manufacturing, tenement or public nature passed its first, second and third readings.

A bylaw to prohibit spitting in public places passed it two readings. Under this measure no person is permitted to spit on the sidewalks, on steps to public places, in public conveyances, or in rooms or halls used by the public generally, under a penalty of not exceeding $50.

Ald. Morrow and Stevenson thought the bylaw covered too much ground to be enforced, and the latter moved that it be referred back to the committee of the whole council for further consideration.

Ald. Leary, the father of the bylaw, moved that the bylaw have its third reading and be put in force.

The vote on these resolutions was a tie and the mayor cast his votein favor of the bylaw, which consequently is now in force.

The sign and boxbylaws as amended in committee last week, passed their three readings.

A bylaw to authorize the borrowing of $12,000 to defray the cost of the outfall sewer and septic tank in ward five, passed its several readings.

A bylaw to authorize the execution of a lease for the carters' shelter, passed its three readings.

A WARNING!

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the attention of the sanitary inspector be called to the fact that the public are using waste grounds on Water street, between Antrim and Edinburgh; on Gilchrist street, south of the pond; and on Dalhousie street, east of Georgw, as garbage dumping grounds.

Ald. Tovey drew attention to the fact that already one of the fire alarm glass fronts, near Jackson Park, has been broken. Offenders in this direction will be severely punished.

PUBLIC LAVATORY.

Ald. Wilson suggested that a public lavatory be provided in the old fire hall. This will be taken into serious consideration by the Property Committee, on motion of Aldermen Wilson and Johnston.

DOGS BEWARE!

Ald. Leary gave notice that at the next meeting of the council, two weeks hence he will introduce a measure to prohibit the running at large of dogs.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

At the next council meeting the plans for an isolation hospital will be discussed.

TEAMSTERS' WAGES.

Ald. Leary asked if it were not possible for the city to effect a settlement with the teamsters. The present situation is giving the city a bad name and he urged that $3.75 is none too much salary for such work, together with the capital invested, 25c. a day, he concluded; was only a small matter to fight over.

The mayor offered that the 25c meant in the aggregate $700 a year to the city, therefore it is not so small an item as Ald. Leary considers.

Ald. Morgan contended that the teamsters were not getting sufficient wage to assume a good living and provide a sinking fund with which to replace horses and other equipment.

Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the men be paid $3.75 a day for drawing sand and gravel and $3.50 for work on the streets.

Ald. Morrow, moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn in amendment,—That the council adjourn. The vote was a tie and the mayor cast his vote in favor of adjournment.

C. P. R. Brakeman's Hand Badly Crushed

Yesterday afternoon, shortly before 5 p.m., a thorough freight train per C.P.R. had occasion, on its way to Toronto to stop here to leave two cars at the local station. Whilst uncoupling the cars, just at the crossing on George street a young brakeman of the train, who hails from Toronto Junction met with an accident. In his zeal to accomplish his work quickly, he unfortunately had his right hand caught between two meeting cars, withthe result that in all probability he will have to have at least one finger amputated. The middle finger was crushed completely from nail to the second joint. He, accompanied by a brother brakeman at once went to the office ofthe company's local physician, Dr. J. W. Gray, Sherbrooke street, where Dr. Gray attended to and bound up the wounded digit. It was easy work to follow the wounded man from the C. P.R. crossing along the George street and even along the rough path along the south side of Sherbrooke to where the granolithic begins near Dr. Gray's residence at No. 207 of that street, by a continuous dripping of blood. The young man showed good pluck and afterwards expressed in highest terms his opinion of his treatment by the local physician.

Shipwrecked on the Otonabee

On Sunday a shipwreck occurred a few miles below the locks on the Otonabee, whereby the owner of the ship or rather power launch got as wet as the traditional McGinty on his journey to the bottom of the sea. It seems that a manager of one of Peterborough's leading south end manufacturing concerns, took some friends for a little quite meditation on his yacht on Sunday. When a few miles down the river, by some mischance the yacht, which is not called "B.C.W." rust out of a bhpal and her propeller happening to strike a rock, the shaft was bent badly. The yacht was at once beached, the owner then took an axe and leaning over the stern tried to straighten it. After a few blows the propellor and part of the shaft dropped off into the briny (sic) deep. As the owner was watching at the stern power business a friend aboard remarked, "Say that's not the way to do," to which the owner replied, in justiable wrath, "What the bloomming —— do you know about a steamboat, suhyway!"

Unfortunately when the piece of shaft broke off, water began to pour into the craft. Then the owner yelled, "Get ashore all you fellows get ashore!" They did, but the owner got there by jumping into the river, which was cold and wet and in depth, up to his neck. The yacht was towed to the owner's factory where repairs were made.

Industry for Ottawa

Ottawa, May 13.—Mr. J. R. Booth has taken out a construction permit and started work on a new sulphite and paper board mill on the east side of Union Square at the Chaudiere. The construction is to be in concrete and the total cost will be $75,000. The mill will be one of the largest of Mr. Booth's many establishments and will considerably increase his staff of employees.

C. C. E. Angling Club Looking After a Site

Two Spots near Rice Lake will be Chosen Between for Club Quarters

As foretold in The Times the committee, numbering about 12, appointed by the C.G.E. Angling Club to take the necessary steps for the building of a cottage down the river, have surveyed the down stream available spots on the Otonabee, to select a site for the new club house. The trip was made to Rear Admiral Roy's "Rob Roy."

Among other sites receiving serious consideration, was one that the owner wanted $40 a year rent for. This simply included enough country land for the cottage, without space to store the fish. Another spot investigated, is on the west shore of The river near Thompson's and another one further down, on the east side, just opposite the delta. The site at Thompson's is about three-quarters of a mile from Rice Lake, and the oneopposite the mouth about a quarter of a mile from the lake. A majority of the committee prefer the location on the east bank of the river.

To Consolidate Methodism

London, May 13.—Mr. R. W. Perks, M.P., has gone to Canada to consult with the leading Methodists regarding a scheme for banding together the different branches of the Methodist denomination throughout the world in one vast confederacy for mutual aid. Mr. Perks proposes to create an organization which will be world-wide in usefulness and which would include an immigration agency, employment bureau, loan society, savings bank and old age pension.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"The Rose of Killarney"

The Tom Marks Dramatic Company presented this charming comedy drama to a mammoth and appreciative audience at the Grand Opera house last night. Tom Marks received continued and demonstrative applause in response to his irresistable humor, and proved himself a comedian of considerable weight and merit. He is full of fun, and gains in popularity every visit to Peterborough. He is supported by an admirably balanced company, many of whom are gifted in the way of high class specialties. This company are playing a repertoire of pleasing comedies and dramas which assure a crowded house each performance. Their entertainment is of close on three hours duration, during which there are no intermissions whatever.

Town Bankrupt by Experiment

Bluffton Ind. "Gone Broke" Through Trying Municipal Ownership

Bluffton, Ind., May 13.—The municipal asphalt and lighting plants of this city have proved so expensive an experiment that there is no money in the general fund of the treasury and the council has ordered retrenchment in every branch of the city government with the hope of warding off municipal ruin.

Three years ago the city built an asphalt repair plant of its own, issuing bonds for $22,000 for the purpose. This proved too costly and the bonds have not been paid, nor has the plant earned even the interest on the money invested. The electric lighting plant has been no better investment.

It is believed that the only way in which the city can recover its lost ground is to dispose of its municipal plants and use the money for paying off its bonded indebtedness.

Peterboro Beats Pickering Calf

A Pickering despatch says:—Mr. R. Parker, the caretaker at Pickering College, has a great curiosity that is attracting scores of people from the village to his place. It is a well developed white calf, two days old, with two perfectly formed heads on one neck. The back part of the heads are joined together. It has only two ears, but has two pairs of eyes, which look in opposite directions. It has two sets of jaws with nose and mouth complete.

This may be a curiosity but this city can show every day of the week a large number of cigarette or coffin-nail suckers that not only have two head at all but poison the atmo that the head of anyone near them loses their own head.

BREAD DYSPEPSIA

Bread dyspepsia is common. It affects the bowels because white bread is nearly all starch, and starch is digested in the intestines, not in the stomach proper. Up under the shell of the wheat berry Nature has provided a curious deposit which is turned into diastase when it is subjected to the saliva and to the pancreatic juices in the human intestines.

This diastase is absolutely necessary to digest starch and turn it into grape sugar, which is the next form; but that part of the wheat berry makes dark flour, and the modern miller cannot readily sell dark flour, so Nature's valuable digester is thrown out and the human system must handle the starch as best it can, without the help that Nature intended.

Small wonder that appendicitis, peritonitis, constipation, and all sorts of troubles exist, when we go contrary to Nature's law. The food experts that perfected Grape-Nuts food, knowing these facts, made use, in their experiments, of the entire wheat and barley, including all the parts, and subjected them to moisture, and long continued warmth, which allows time and the proper conditions for developing the diastase, outside of the human body.

In this way the starchy part is transformed into grape sugar in a perfectly natural manner, without the use of chemicals or any outside ingredients. The little sparkling crystals of grape sugar can be seen on the pieces of Grape-Nuts. This food therefore is naturally predigested and its use in place of bread will quickly correct the troubles that have been brought about by the too free use of starch in the food, and that is very common in the human race today.

The effect of eating Grape-Nuts ten days or two weeks, and the discontinuance of ordinary white bread, is very marked. The user will gain rapidly in strength and physical and mental health. "There's a Reason."

Market Clerk Puts In a Grievance

The market clerk, who paid $1060 for this year's market tolls, put in a letter last night to the City Council complaining that he does not get proper protection after his heavy expense. He claimed that a few days ago a local citizen asked what he, the clerk, would charge him for operating a merry-go-round on the market square. After the two had come to an agreement it is alleged that the mayor told the would-be-caterer to the youth of Peterborough's amusement that he, the local citizen must take out a license at $20 for the first and $10 for each subsequent week. As the business would not stand for this sum the merry-go-round will not be operated. The market clerk thinks this an infringement on his perquisites and so notified the council.

Mann's Team Made Record Time

Yesterday morning a runaway that evoked considerable excitement occurred about eight o'clock when a team belonging to the Mann Cheese Box & Lumber Co., taking fright and incidentally the bits in their teeth as they cut a record pace from the factory down Dublin street towards Aylmer. Here they made an attempt to turn the corner too quickly and struck an electric light pole on the corner. The pole was splintered for about twelve feet up, and was shoved over about a foot. The driver sailed several feet through the air and struck the ground near the house. He received a slight cut on the head and a good shaking up generally. The wheels broke on the back of the wagon flew into the air, alighting like hail on the lawn. One of the horses was knocked down, but was not seriously injured, and the wagon escaped with little damage.

COTTAGES IN DANGER AT CLEAR LAKE

Fire Raging in Dickson Company's Woods at Sandy Point---Fence Between Fire and Mr. Roger's Cottage Destroyed.

Yesterday news reached the city that a disastrous fire was raging in the vicinity of Sandy Point, Clear Lake.

After telephoning and calling on several local gentleman owning summer cottages in that neighborhood and phoning late last night to Young's Point for corroboration and particulars, The Times was unable to get full or satisfactory particulars.

All we could ascertain that some man boating on Clear Lake Sunday afternoon noticed smoke arising from the woods behind Sandy Point, owned by the Dickson Company. They did not pay much attention to this, thinking it to come from a camper's or picnicker's fire. On arrival at Young's Point they noted what they had seen and another party rowing to the scene described, discovered that no camp fire but worse was in progress. However as the fire was some hundred yards from the several cottages at that spot, fronting on Clear Lake, they paid no more attention. However yesterday morning it was discovered that a considerable portion of the Dickson Company's woods were afire. Neighbors tried to fight back the flames but in vain as the conflagration had got beyond control.

At latest advices received, we were given to understand that the fence between the forest fire and Mr. R. B. Roger's summer residence on Clear Lake was afire and that his cottage as well as those of Mr. C. N. Brown, Mr. Williamson, secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., and Mr. E. A. Peak were in tangible danger of being destroyed. As is easily understood no fire fighting appliances or men to work such did they exist, are to be found within miles of this well and long time known camping ground. For many years, in fact decades of years, not only present living Peterborough citizens, but their fathers and grand fathers have annually made Sandy Point a place of touch on their way, especially before the date of steamboats on those waters, to Stony and the other northern lakes. Many hundreds of the preceding generations of by-gone Peterborough campers have stopped at Sandy Point to first visit the well known springs a few yards inland from Clear Lake and enjoy the crystall ine cold, waters there, and afterwards take a luxurious swim on the shelving sandy beach. Mr. Wm. Davidson of the Dickson Lumber Company left yesterday afternoon to visit the spot. We trust he will find things not as bad as told over the phone. It is not yet known how the fire started.

The New Boiler has Arrived

Yesterday the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Co., had quite a good sized contract on hand. This was moving the huge 12-ton boiler for the Otonabee Navigation Company's new steamer, Otonabee from the C.P.R. to Peterborough wharf. The steamer which is being built in the east ward on the company's property, will be launched in a few days, and brought to the Peterborough wharf, where the boiler will be placed. The boiler was purchased from the Polson Iron Works, Limited, Toronto.

The boiler was place on the heaviest cart available of long six-inch square timber placed across and at right angles to the length of the cart. It was loaded direct from the flat cars on the second track south of the Central Milling Company's building. Heavy two inch planks had to be placed between and to the south of the rails. The boiler is about 13 feet long and the moving was a "ticklish" job. Just as the cart started the immense weight caused the rig to cant over quite a number of inches and it looked as though the huge steel structure was going to fall over toward the mill. This necessitated piling up ties on the north side on which heavy jack screws were placed to hold up the lower or north side of the sustaining beams. The whole load canted over so far that the supporting beam on the north side rested tightly on the front wheel; this probably prevented an upset.

It was at this point thought the immense weight would have to be jacked up and await the arrival of a heavier, springless truck. However, during the afternoon by good hard work the same cart and its load, by means of rollers and block, assisted by horses, the former put round handy telephone and electric light poles on George street, was hauled a good part of its way towards the wharf.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

Readily Yield to Soothing, Healing Treatment of Hyomei.

Bronchial troubles are purely local. They cannot be helped by stomach dosing. They are caused by irritation in the air passages and can be relieved and cured by medicated air alone. In this lies the secret of the great success of Hy-o-mei in the treatmnet of bronchial troubles.

The Hy-o-mei medication, laden with nature's remedies, is breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaching every part of the bronchial tubes and killing at once the disease germs. It allays all irritation and heals the inflammation of the mucous membrance with astonishing rapidity.

Treatment with sprays, douches and atomizers in bronchial troubles is condemned by the best physicians, as they cause further irritation.

The first breath of Hy-o-mei's medicated air seems to soothe the inflammation, stop the cough, and thus relief soon becomes permanent and a cure results.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Brodeur Goes to Russia

Ottawa, May 13.—Hon. L. P. Brodeur, in a letter from London, states that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues have had a very strenuous time. They plan a period of rest on the continent of Europe and will leave for Paris early next week. Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier, Mr. and Madame Brodeur will remain together in Paris and elsewhere on the continent for a few weeks. As soon as the Minister of Marine is informed that the Canadian Government steamer Stanley has been repaired on the Clyde, he will join her and proceed in her to the Baltic, where an investigation will take place as to the Russian methods of fighting ice in order that a comparison may be made between the Stanley and the Russian ice-breakers.

Party From Keene on Auto Tour

Yesterday afternoon at 5.30, a jolly crowd of Keene sports arrived in the city, via Hastings, per the Peterborough Automobile Agency's new time annihilating auto. These gentlemen telephoned to Mr. Fred Darcy, manager of the agency on Saturday for the auto. Mr. Darcy at once filled up this trusty and speedy steed with a long journey feed of gasoline, oil and "such" and sped to Hastings where the party met him. They left Hastings Sunday morning for Keene, again leaving that village yesterday afternoon at about three and as noted, after a pleasant, easy going trip, arrived in this city at 5.30. The party left last night for home, after a good outing.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

Back comes the answer quick and sharp "Constipated Bowels."

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accummulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Isn't it apparent that a bowel regulator and liver stimulant like Dr. Hamilton's Pills is sure to do good?

Gay spirits, good looks and happy health have returned to many a sick woman through Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland; "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor in St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

THE JAPANNSE NAVY

The Japanese Government evidently does not intend to be unprepared in the event of complications with any other power, or even of hostilities breaking out between other countries, the results of which might indirectly affect the interests of Japan. As was stated in a despatch published in these columns a few days ago, Japan is intending to increase her naval strength by the construction of a battleship larger and more powerful than any warship now afloat in the navies of the world. That the vessel should be built in one or other of the great yards in the United Kingdom, while a proof of the reputation and ability of British shipbuilders, is also a proof of the urgency that the Japanese Government believes exists for the immediate strengthening of its navy. No people are more patriotic than the Japanese or more careful to expend at home funds appropriated for any purpose. Already the Japanese shipyards have turned out some very fine vessels for the Japanese navy and improvements are now being made that will place these establishments on an equality with those in European countries. But time will be required to make these improvements and until they are accomplished the construction of such an enormous vessel as is contemplated would necessarily be postponed. Hence the reason for Japan entrusting the contract to one or other of the leading builders in the country of her ally.

While it is to be hoped that a long time will elapse before the Far East is again the scene of war, it is not unsatisfactory to see that Great Britain's ally in that quarter of the globe is preparing for an eventuality. The naval strength of Japan on the Pacific makes it unnecessary for Great Britain to maintain a large force in those waters and thus in time of peace renders a service that indicates the value of such an alliance even to the greatest maritime and naval power in the world.

Lese Majeste

London, May 12.—The Vienna correspondent of the Express says that Marie Wowsaka, the wife of a Chicago engineer, has been arrested at her parents' home at Radwanitz, Silesia, on the curious charge of lese majeste, the offence having been committed in love letters she wrote two years ago. She was originally betrothed to a Pole of the name of Strutzewski. They discussed politics as well as love in their billet doux. The girl cancelled the engagement, and went to America, where she married Mr. Wowsaka. She returned two months ago to her parents. Strutzewski thereupon, in order to obtain revenge for being jilted, submitted to the public prosecutor Marie's love letters to him, in which she attacked the emperor's Polish policy. She was arrested as she was on the eve starting on her return to Chicago.

Almost a Race Riot in Buffalo

Buffalo, N.Y., May 12.—The nearest thing to a race riot Buffalo has seen in years was precipitated when an Italian parade attempted to spread its ranks across Main street and stop street traffic. A motorman insisted on running his car through the procession, and a riot immediately began, which developed into a running fight that spread along three city blocks.

Reserves of police were rushed to the scene, and wielded clubs with vigor. Policemen, who were surrounded, seized switch irons from trolley cars to use in their defence. After 20 minutes of vicious fighting, during which less than a score of policemen fought hand to hand with more than a hundred armed Italians, the Italians fled, leaving the worst wounded of their number with the police.

One sergeant of police was stabbed, but not seriously. The others retired with cut and bruised heads. Some citizens who rushed to aid the police nearly turned the fray into a race riot. The citizens were more badly hurt than the police.

Just Keep On.

When today's difficulties overshadow yesterday's triumphs and obscure the bright visions of tomorrow, when plans upset and whole years of effort seem to crystallise into a single hour of concentrated bitterness, when little annoyances eat into the mind very quickly and corrode the power to view things calmly, when the jolts of misfortune threaten to jar loose the judgment from its moorings, remember that in every business, in every career, there are valleys to cross, as well as hills to scale; that every mountain range of hope is broken by chasms of discouragement through which run torrent streams of despair! To quit in the chasm is to fail. See always in your mind's eye those sunny summits of success! Don't quit in the chasm! Keep on!—System.

A Bonanza.

A certain western congressman has had disastrous experience in gold mine speculations. One day a number of colleagues were discussing the subject of speculation when one of them said to the western member:

"Tom, as an expert, give us a definition of the term 'bonanza.'"

"A 'bonanza,'" replied the western man, with emphasis, "is a hole in the ground owned by a champion liar."—Success.

Alexander the Great.

Alexander succeeded to the throne of Macedonia in his twenty-first year. He died at the age of thirty-two. Thus in the space of about twelve years the young soldier had brought the Greek states into submission, crushed Darius and his million of Persians and crossed the Indus and defeated the Indian king Porus. Alexander was not merely a brutal conqueror, but tried to weld the various countries into a solid empire.

Famous Austrian Surgeon's Suicide

Vienna, May 12.—Scientific circles in Austria are plunged in deep sorrow on account of the tragic death of Hofrath, and University Professor Albert von Mosetig, one of the most prominent of Vienna surgeons. Professor von Mosetig had not appeared for two days either at his house or at the hospital clinic under his direction. Yesterday, in a remote part of the Danube meadows, game clothing was found which was recognized as his, and witnesses say that yesterday he jumped into the water near the spot where the clothing was discovered. The cause of this sensational suicide is enveloped in mystery.

Professor von Mosetig made many valuable discoveries in surgery and his works are circulated among surgeons all over the world.

It is reported that the tragedy is connected with a mysterious affair which will probably now never be cleared up. In scientific circles deceased was known not only as a distinguished surgeon and the discoverer of new healing methods, but also a "spiritist." When he first employed iodoform for bone-filling he himself declared that he had received the primary idea while in a "trance."

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

"WM. R. PAYNE, President.
"J. ROGER BROWN, Secretary."

Can't Hold Down the Price

MUCH LONGER

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

A limited number of shares at the very low price of

FIVE CENTS PER SHARE

Use the Wire. Buy before the advance. Be one of the lucky ones.

You Should Buy Gold Bond Stock Because

You are getting in on the ground floor.

This stock will never sell for less, and may sell to a hundred times more.

This Company owns some of the best ground in Colorado.

WE ADVISED THE PURCHASE OF Golden Message stock at 12 cents—now selling at 25 cents and not a great amount can be bought at that price. Don't wait; start your order today.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 14,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing ficticious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

She sat down in her usual chair while the moonlight, red and glowing, made a pattern on the floor and on her white dress with the shadows of the creepers. The sea was very loud that night, rising and falling like the breath of some huge sleeping creature.

Jocelyn Gordon fell into a reverie. Life was very dull at Loango. There was too much time for thought and too little to think about. This girl had only the past, and her past was all comprised in a few months—the few months still known at Loango as the simiacine year. She had lapsed into a bad habit of thinking that her life was over, that the daylight of it had waned and that there was nothing left now but the gray remainder of the evening. She was wondering now why it had all come, why there had been any daylight at all. Above these thoughts she wondered why the feeling was still in her heart that Jack Meredith had not gone out of her life forever. There was no reason why she should ever meet him again. He was, so far as she knew, married to Millicent Chyne more than a year ago, although she had never seen the announcement of the wedding. He had drifted into Loango and into her life by the merest accident, and now that the simiacine plateau had been finally abandoned there was no reason why any of the original finders should come to Loango again.

"You!" she exclaimed.

And the creepers were pushed aside by one who knew the method of their growth. A silver glory of moonlight fell on the veranda floor, and the man of whom she was thinking stood before her.

"You!" she exclaimed.

"Yes."

She rose, and they shook hands. They stood looking at each other for a few moments, and a thousand things that had never been said seemed to be understood between them.

"Why have you come?" she asked abruptly.

"To tell you a story."

She looked up with a sort of half smile, as if she suspected some pleasantry of which she had not yet detected the drift.

"A long story," he explained, "which has not even the merit of being amusing. Please sit down again."

She obeyed him.

The curtain of hanging leaves and flowers had fallen into place again. The shadowed tracery was on her dress and on the floor once more.

He stood in front of her and told her his story, as Sir John had suggested. He threw no romance into it, attempted no extenuation, but related the plain, simple facts of the last few years with the semi-cynical suggestion of humor that was sometimes his. And the cloak of pride that had fallen upon his shoulders made him hide much that was good, while he dragged forward his own shortcomings. She listened in silence. At times there hovered round her lips a smile. It usually came when he represented himself in a bad light, and there was a suggestion of superior wisdom in it as if she knew something of which he was ignorant.

He was never humble. It was not a confession. It was not even an explanation, but only a story; a very lame story indeed, which gained nothing by the telling. And he was not the hero of it.

And all came about as wise old Sir John Meredith had predicted. It is not our business to record what Jocelyn said. Women—the best of them—have some things in their hearts which can only be said once to one person. Men cannot write them down; pictures cannot print them.

The lame story was told to the end, and at the end it was accepted. When Sir John's name was mentioned—when the interview in the library of the great London house was briefly touched upon—Jack saw the flutter of a small lace pocket handkerchief, and at no other time. The slate was wiped clean, and it almost seemed that Jocelyn preferred it thus with the scratches upon it where the writing had been.

Maurice Gordon did not come back in an hour. It was nearly 10 o'clock before they heard his footstep on the gravel. By that time Jocelyn had heard the whole story. She had asked one or two questions which somehow cast a different light upon the narrative, and she had listened to the answers with a grave, judicial little smile—the smile of a judge whose verdict was preordained, whose knowledge had nothing to gain from evidence.

Because she loved him she took his story and twisted it and turned it to a shape of her own liking. Those items which he had considered important she passed over as trifles; the trifles she magnified into the cornerstones upon which the edifice was built. She set the lame story upon its legs, and it stood upright. She believed what he had never told, and much that he related she chose to discredit—because she loved him. She perceived motives where he assured her there were none; she recognized the force of circumstance where he took the blame to himself—because she loved him. She maintained that the past was good; that he could not have acted differently; that she would not have had it otherwise—because she loved him.

And who shall say that she was wrong?

Jack went out to meet Maurice Gordon when they heard his footsteps, and as they walked back to the house he told him. Gordon was quite honest about it.

"I hoped," he said, "when I ran against you in the woods that that was why you had come back. Nothing could have given me greater happiness. Hang it, I am glad, old chap!"

They sat far into the night arranging their lives. Jack was nervously anxious to get back to England. He could not rid his mind of the picture he had seen as he left his father's presence to go and take his passage to Africa—the picture of an old man sitting in a stiff backed chair before a dying fire. Moreover, he was afraid of Africa. The irritability of Africa had laid its hand upon him almost as soon as he had set his foot upon its torrid strand. He was afraid of the climate for Jocelyn; he was afraid of it for himself. The happiness that comes late must be firmly held to. Nothing must be forgotten to secure it or else it may slip between the fingers at the last moment.

Those who have snatched happiness late in life can tell of a thousand details carefully attended to, a whole existence laid out in preparation for it, of health fostered, small pleasures relinquished, days carefully spent.

Jack Meredith was nervously apprehensive that his happiness might even now slip through his fingers. Truly, climatic influence is a strange and wonderful thing. It was Africa that had done this, and he was conscious of it. He remembered Victor Durnovo's strange outburst on their first meeting a few miles below Manis on the Ogowe river, and the remembrance only made him the more anxious that Jocelyn and he should turn their backs upon the accursed west coast forever.

Before they went to bed that night it was all arranged. Jack Meredith had carried his point. Maurice and Jocelyn were to sail with him for England by the first boat. Jocelyn and he compiled a telegram to be sent on first thing by a native boat to St. Paul de Loanda. It was addressed to Sir John Meredith, London, and signed "Meredith, Loango." The text of it was:

I bring Jocelyn home by first boat.

* * * * * * *

And the last words, like the first, must be of an old man in London. We found him in the midst of a brilliant assembly. We leave him alone. We leave him lying stiffly on his solemn four post bed, with his keen, proud face turned fearlessly toward his Maker. His lips are still. They wear a smile which even in death is slightly cynical. On the table at his bedside lies a submarine telegram from Africa. It is unopened.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money.

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself.

CO-OPERATION means working together. This store is Co-operative and furnishes its shareholders with the best merchandise at the least possible advance over actual cost.

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.00 per ton, the second grade $362.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Are You a Woman Needing Strength?

Not long ago you were able to enjoy life.

You had vigor, strength, ambition—did everything with zest and pleasure.

Upon you cheeks was the hue of health, in your eyes the sparkle of vim and animation.

Today—all is a drudge.

Not actually sick, but if your work were less imperative, how gladly you would rest.

You are breaking down.

Nervous system is out of gear.

Digestive powers are weak.

Blood lacks nourishment.

Just one thing to do—Build up—Win back your health with Ferrozone.

No remedy restores so fast, builds up so permanently, instills such vigor or surplus strength like Ferrozone.

A case showing how Ferrozone acts is illustrated by the following from Mrs. H. Wright, of Enfield, N. S.

"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone and my cure was complete."

If Ferrozone doesn't help and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c. boxes—Better try Ferrozone.

Kicked in Stomach by a Horse

Yesterday morning as R. E. Harper, who was teaming gravel for the city from the Hilliard farm met with a most disagreeable accident. It seems one of his horses got frucious and began to kick. Unfortunately the horse's aim was accurate as though it had been through a Morris practice tube, and one of its hind hoofs landed on Mr. Harper's stomach. A cab was called from McCollum Bros. barns and the injured man removed to Dr. A. Brown's office, and afterwards to his home on Sherbrooke street, where he will remain for several days.

Mr. Hardill on the North Country

Mr. John Hardill, who travels for Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co., the Toronto and Peterborough wholesale grocery firm, has returned from a trip to the north country including Haliburton, Bancroft, etc. Mr. Hardill told a Times representative, when asked about the crops in that section, that on Saturday last the ground was entirely covered with snow and that farmers were at a standstill as far as spring work is concerned. Notwithstanding the tying up of business on account of existing conditions Mr. Hardill reports having had a successful trip.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

Don't Rubber! Just Send Rubbers

Don't take any stock in that worn out slang expression, "Don't rubber!" Our advice is "Do rubber!" Send in all the old rubbers you have, can beg, borrow, or —— to Hamilton's grocery, and help along the Muskoka consumptives. The rubbers will be sold and the proceeds given to one of the noblest works of charity and philanthropy ever inaugurated in this or any other country. Don't rubber at your old rubbers because they have one or more signs of wear. They will bring in just as much also much per pair.

"Partners of the Tide" on Thursday

In our issue of Thursday the first chapter of the copyrighted and thrilling novel, by Joseph C. Lincoln, will appear. The novel is called, "Partners of the Tide." The Times has obtained exclusive rights for producing this magnificient production of the novelists' art. Every day, so many chapters will appear exclusively in in these columns. We would advise our readers and subscribers to carefully keep each instalment of this novel as they appear in The Times until the complete story is finished. This only can one have a complete and unabridged copy of this famous novel.

Paris Publishers Write to Petersboro

Yesterday Mr. C. H. Clementi was in receipt of a communication from one of the largest publishing firms in Europe, situated in Paris, France, relative to copyrights on the sonatas, and other musical compositions of his great grandfather, the late Muzio Clementi, who is interred in Westminster Abbey, London. The inscription over this musician's tomb describes him as "Father of the Pianoforte." Mr. C. H. Clementi has taken the letter under advisement and will possibly, before replying to it, consult his solicitors. It seems that the copy is right which has either expired or is about to expire, is held by this Paris firm, for several European countries.

EXCURSION TO COBALT

The Strathcona Silver Mining Co. of Cobalt, Limited

The generous manner in which the public have subscribed to their first issue of stock at 50 cents a share has been most gratifying. This issue will shortly be exhausted and it is the intention of the Company to advance the price of the Stock to ONE DOLLAR.

The low capitalization of the Company ($800,000), the business like manner in which its affairs have been managed and its unexcelled properties, have led many to invest in THE STRATHCONA at 50 cents a share, while other Cobalt Companies were offering at 10, 15 and 25 cents.

The prospectus of THE STRATHCONA contains the following statement:

"This Company invites inspection of its property even in its present undeveloped state by any person having an interest in so doing, and will accept with pleasure and abide by the Report of any competent Mining Engineer familiar with the Cobalt Camp on its location and prospective value."

Many of our present shareholders, with commendable discretion, made inquiries at Cobalt through bankers, merchants, mining engineers and other private sources before investing, and were invariably advised that THE STRATHCONA was one of the soundest Cobalt propositions now before the public.

This Company now proposes to go a step further: AN EXCURSION is being organized by THE STRATHCONA SILVER MINING CO., to leave Montreal on the night of May 23rd to reach Cobalt May 24th, and returning to reach Montreal Monday morning, May 27th, in time for business. The lowest excursion rates will be obtained, excursionists to remain in the sleepers instead of hotel accommodation at Cobalt.

The object of this excursion is to allow shareholders of THE STRATHCONA, and those who propose being shareholders, an opportunity of examining and seeing with their own eyes the property in which they have invested, to verify the development work done, the veins exposed, the location of the property, and the value of the surrounding properties, and to verify every other representation made to the public. It is a splendid chance also to visit the producing mines, and to see our great North country. This offer is absolutely without parallel—as in no instance yet has a Cobalt Company, not the owner of a producing mine, invited the public to examine its property and judge for themselves.

Nearly one car load of fares have been booked privately already, and our friends are strongly advised to book at once as we anticipate lack of accommodation. Passages will be held for the first applicants.

TEST OF FIRE ENGINE WAS HELD LAST NIGHT

General Notes Regarding Present Status of Local Fire Brigade and Appliances Given in Detail.

Last night at seven o-clock the recently installed electric fire alarm system, was given a practical test, which resulted most satisfactory.

As noted in yesterday's issue, all the rigs, hose and other appliances, except the new fire engine, have been removed from the brigade's old quarters on Simcoe street, to the recently completed (?) fire hall on Aylmer street. At seven o'clock last night, fire alarm No. 23, i.e., the alarm at the corner of Hunter and George street, called members of the brigade out to fight fire and face danger (as far as they knew).

In some seven seconds after the alarm rang at the Aylmer street new fire hall the way from was fully harnessed, and rushed northwards towards the supposed fire with the hose wagon.

It might be explained right here that the new fire engine is still stored in the old fire hall. However, as the floor of the old fire hall is somewhat questionable as to its ability to carry the ponderous machine, when run out out quickly on an emergency call, Chief Rutherford had had the engine quietly run out to the street previous to the 23 call last night. This however did not interfere with quick work as far as men and horses were concerned. The moment the 23 alarm sounded at Simcoe street station, the horses rushed to their respective places in front of the engine and almost as quickly were harnessed up.

At once, and almost simultaneously, the hose wagon from the Aylmer street (new) fire hall and the new engine from the old Simcoe street station, with the full complement of Peterborough's volunteer and (not to give the boys undeserved praise) noble fire brigade were making for the spot designated as fast as fast teams at full gallop could draw them.

Both engine and hose wagon were at once, by direction of Chief Tom Rutherford, taken to the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets. Here various feats, from one suction pipe with a two-inch, to the various sized nozzles, were made. The tests included every trial that the new engine could be subjected to. She, the engine responded nobly to her work. It might here be noted that part of last night's trial test was to ascertain whether after being laid up all winter the engine, in all her parts was in good working order. The exhaustive tests made last night lasted for about an hour and a half, and reflected great credit upon the members of our local fire brigade and its officers, who for a comparitive trifle per annum, not only risk their time and money, but risk life, limb and chances for promotion in the interests of their fellow citizens. The officers of the brigade out last night were, Messrs. Chief Tom Rutherford, Assistant Chief J. W. Metheral and Foreman W. Packenham. It might be noted without meaning or possible conveyance of discredit to the department, that the new engine whilst being taken to the scene as before noted, seemed altogether too heavy for the grey team drawing it; the team could, apparently go no faster than a walk, and had to strain muscles at that. After this, when the engine is required for active service, it will take two teams to "get there" in time.

It was erroneously thought that the formal opening of the new fire hall, and consequent festivities was to have been held last night. The Times ascertained from Chief Rutherford that it has been decided not to hold this festival for a week or so, i.e., not until the brigade and appliances are regularly and firmly located in their Aylmer street home. Proper notice of this event will be published in the local press.

Canadian Will Study Peat Bogs

Ottawa, May 14.—With a view to gathering information as to the commercial value and the best methods of utilizing the peat bogs on Ontario and Quebec, Hon. Mr. Templeman, Minister of Mines, has appointed Mr. Erik Nystrom, an engineer on the staff of the mines branch, to investigate the peat industry of Europe.

Mr. Nystrom has been instructed to proceed to Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Germany to study the different peat plants in operation and to collect all available information in regard to the methods of working peat bogs, the machinery used, the cost of production and the subsequent conversion of the peat into briquettes for fuel. He will thus be qualified to act on his return as Government expert on the subject of peat and lignite; to give advice to prospective manufacturers of peat fuel, and to assist in the making of plans for their plants and for the drainage of their bogs.

The estimated peat-producing area so far reported, distributed over the different Provinces of the Dominion, is 67,000 miles, with an average depth of from eight to ten feet.

First Teaming After the Strike

Mr. Albert Cox's Team Worked Yesterday for the City.

Yesterday the first gleam of light or break in the local teamsters' strike was visible, when for the first time since a week ago last Monday, a teamster did teaming work for the city of Peterborough. Yesterday Mr. Albert Cox and his team were employed at work in the new fire hallyard on Aylmer street. This team and wagon was engaged, in drawing loads of gravel and broken bricks out of the yard to the front of the newfire hall pavement which extends for some distance out Aylmer street. After enough of this gravel is placed, the city crusher will get busy and make a gradual slant and easy grde from Aylmer street to the fire hall floors. On completion of this work, the team will fill up, for some eight or ten inches, the lane leading from the yard to the street at the north.

Awful Fight With a Fierce Bulldog

Montreal, May 15.—A desperate fight between a man and a bulldog occurred at the Upper Lachine road yesterday, and as a result Dr. D. A. Shirres, a prominent Montreal physician, is now confined to his home in this city with two badly lacerated feet, while his horse is in the stable with both hind legs bitten in many places. The horse was cantering along the road a little west of toll gate, when the dog ran from a residence and immediately sprang and fastened on the horse's hind quarters. The horse did his best to kick the beast off, and the doctor was on the point of dismounting in order to save the horse. The next instant the horse had kicked himself free and the dog then jumped for the doctor's left foot. The leather was bitten through, and in less than half a minute the animal's terribly lacerated the foot, the little toe was half bitten off, and the next one will have to be amputated.

Infuriated by the fight the doctor put up the animal left him and made a fresh attack upon the horse, and the same bitter fight followed. When the dog found himself kicked away he again sprang upon the doctor, this time reaching the right foot and biting through to the bone.

Suddenly the horse bolted and went west at a terrific speed, the rider hanging on despite the terrible pain he was in. Half a mile on the road a farmer was passing and he called to Dr. Shirres, in reply to a query, that a dog came following him. On went horse and rider for another mile, and by this time they had left the beast well behind.

The doctors in attendance on Dr. Shirres hope to prevent any serious complications.

Local Officer Wore Wrong Uniform

In a leading business place of the city yesterday afternoon a bet of $10 was made regarding the perquisities and privileges of members of the Canadian militia forces. The start of this bet was the placing on his shoulder straps of a brass star, with the words "Ina juncta in uno," by an officer of the local regiment. A friend of the local officer, seeing the star, said, "You have no right to wear any such button, you being an officer of the 57th Regiment." "Say what in ——— does ina juncta in uno, or three joined in one have to do with the Peterborough Rangers."

It is now up to this officer to explain whence and what significance has this star with the words round a centerpiece that seemingly contains a trio of "snowshoes" to do with our local regiment. The Times will be glad to receive any explanation that will throw light on this matter, and, leaving the bet out of the issue, decide whether an officer of the 57th Regiment has a right to wear such inscribed star. Any elucidation of this problem sent to The Times will be received and given due attention. An application for explanation made later, to a prominent officer of the local regiment disclosed the fact that the only buttons allowed to be used as above noted, bear the words, "Quis separabit," (who could divide us) to use a literal translation.

The wearer of the above mentioned buttons, paid the bet and said, "Boys who has got a sharp pen knife, so that I may get these infernal fakes off?"

Dad. Taylor Getting Ready for Summer

Efficient Caretaker of Customs House Raising Plants and Flowers

Yesterday a Times representative happening to meet "Daddy," or to be more respectful, Mr. Wm. Taylor, caretaker of the Custom House, and the George street entrance to the yard of that building, was invited in to see the work done there.

Mr. Taylor, who is one of Peterborough's most prominent members of the Sons of England society, showed The Times man the success he has made in horticulture. To the south side of the Customs House, Mr. Taylor has a large number of hot beds in which he has most successfully raised not only vegetables for personal use, but flowers of all kinds, that will at partial maternity be used to decorate the Customs House beds. These hot beds contain young plants of all kinds of flowers now popular, including asters imported from Germany and England.

In the meantime Mr. Taylor has the two round beds in the customs house grounds well set out with tulips from Holland, that will soon present a most attractive appearance. "Daddy" is a gardiner of no mean ability and has brought the local Custom House grounds into a high state of perfection. Not only does he have smart and attractive looking flower beds throughout the summer that are pleasing to the eye of all who pass, but owing to his efforts some sixty loads of road scrapings and other soil were pleaced in the yard, before levelling up and sod being laid, as well as a cinder track being made for use of trucks and carts bringing goods in bond to the examining warehouse to the rear of the main building. "Daddy" is a "corker" when he gets busy making the customs house grounds attractive to the eye.

Excursion Via Canadian Paolfic Ry.

On Saturday, May 18th, Special Train will leave Peterborough at 10 a.m. Returning, tickets good on Special Train leaving Toronto at 11.30 p.m., May 18th, or any Regular Train May 18th, 19th or 20th. Return fare $2.05. Go by C. P. R. Splendid chance to see the King's Plate and Championship Baseball Game. See WM. McILROY, or call at Examiner for tickets.

SUICIDE FOLLOWS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Actress Ended Her Life on Day Decree Was Secured.

LEFT A PATHETIC LETTER

Her Act Attributed to Failure of Her Husband to Oppose Suit for Divorce

New York, May 13.—Muriel Nelson, a beautiful young woman, daughter of an English army major, formerly an actress of note on the British stage, and latterly a composer of drama and songs, shot herself through the temple in her apartments at the Hotel Bennington, in East twenty-seventh street.

The police believe she killed herself from grief because the actor-husband whom she recently divorced made no effort to prevent her from obtaining the decree.

All the night before, with women friends, she had sat singing songs of her own composition.

Cluttered about the floor near the easy chair from which the suicide had fallen were copies of the love songs she had written and scrap books of English and American news clippings which told of her career from the day she was born until the present. Upon her fingers were diamond rings, stained with the blood from the self-inflicted wound.

The husband from whom she was divorced recently is Wallace Widdicombe, an actor living at the Hotel Longacre. She married him only a little while ago when both were playing with William Faversham in "The Squaw Man."

One of the notes she left behind was to him. It read:

"Dear Wally—Since this divorce trouble I haven't felt right in my head or in my heart. I have decided to rest. Bury me near this dear old city and publish the manuscript of my music that remains—especially the 'Little Chrysanthemum.' Everything I have goes to Elsie. God bless you, my husband. MURIEL."

That the woman loved her husband all the time, sued for divorce only in a burst of temper, and when she found him indifferent to its result determined to kill herself, is the belief of the police.

MYSTERY IN THE SUICIDE.

The coroner and the police worked the rest of the day and night upon the case, but much of mystery still envelops it. The husband could not be found to shed any light upon the case. Clippings from the London press spoke enthusiastically of the art of the "brilliant young actress" in "The Two Orphans" and "The Liars." Others told of her marvellous talent as a violinist.

Four years ago, it appeared Miss Nelson came to America. At first she played in Frohman productions here—she was Mrs. Chichester in "The Squaw Man," then, after her marriage to Widdicombe, she quit acting and resumed the writing of songs. Her two step, "Target Practice," made a hit in the Faversham play, and she wrote, also, the "Trysting Time," "Soft Falls the Dusk," and "Wild Flowers." On the piano of her room was found the manuscript of "The Little Chrysanthemum," which she had evidently corrected for final proof just before she died.

Prefer the Community Life

Ottawa, May 15.—Rev. John McDougall, commissioner to the Doukhobors, is in Ottawa, to report to the government. He says that owing to the decree that the Doukhobors must become citizens of Canada or live in reserves, large tracts of land now held by them under favored conditions will be thrown open to settlement. After their eight years in Canada, only about one-ninth of the Doukhobors decided to become Canadian citizens.

The alternative offered by the Minister of the Interior in claiming citizenship is the creation of reserves around the villages to the extent of 15 acres per soul. After the commission had explained in English and Russian the facts of the option in 61 settlements, they found on their final trip that 6,175 had decided to remain in community, and declined naturalization. Thus 61 reserves have been created, 46 in Yorkton district and 15 in Prince Albert. This utilized 768 quarter sections of land. To those who became citizens 233 homesteads were issued, and the settlement leaves 1,618 homesteads, hitherto belonging to the Doukhobors, at the disposal of the government.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"A Wife's Devotion"

The Tom Marks Company presented the attractive French comedy drama, "A Wife's Devotion," at the Grand Opera House last night. The piece is a thrilling story of a loyalty to her husband under exceptional, trying circumstances, and was creditably handled by the company, which is above the average repertoire organization in strength and balance. The offering last night met with very hearty approval, as evidenced by frequent and demonstrative applause.

The specialties are a very acceptable portion of each night's entertainment. The illustrated songs are well sung and beautifully portrayed on the canvas. Miss Millie Desmonda and Tom Marks are very clever in instrumental specialties, and the latter's performance on bell bowls is exceedingly skilfull and productive of marvellous musical concord. Miss Desmonda and Tom Marks also give a charming duet on the bells, from which they ring out wonderfully sweet music.

Unwashed 15 Years; Beautiful at 50

Webster City, Ia., May 14.—Miss Amanda Johnson of this city, one of the most beautiful women in North-west Iowa, has not washed her face for fifteen years. Though she is 50 years of age and still unwed, she is far from being an old maid. She is bright and cheerful and fun loving. Her face is as free from wrinkles and her complexion as faultless as the skin of a baby.

Fifteen years ago her complexion was far from beautiful. she came to the conclusion that soap and water were not good for her face, and immediately set about to find some method whereby she might keep a clean countenance and yet a pretty one.

Miss Johnson does not intend to wash her face again for fifteen years, according to her own declaration.

Fire Horses Hitched in Eight Seconds

Quick Work Done Yesterday Afternoon in New Fire Hall.

Yesterday afternoon, about 4.30 o'clock, Chief Tom Rutherford and other officers and members of the fire brigade were busily employed in preparing for the fire engine test of last night, described elsewhere in this issue of The Times. One feature of these preparations, made necessary owing to the recent occupation of the new fire hall on Aylmer street by the brigade, was getting the ropes and pulleys ready, and tested, that hold up and automatically drop when required on the respective horses, the harness used in drawing the various fire fighting wagons. Without previous warning or hint to his men, as soon as this had beenaccomplished, Chief Rutherford suddenly sounded the inside alarm gong. The horses, then in their stalls rushed to their respective places at each side of the hose wagon's tongue and in a few seconds were ready to start. A second trial was made when a Times man, pulling out his watch, awaiting the signal, carefully timed how long it might take from when the bell sounded until the horses, actually harnessed, were able to start to the scene of a conflagration. This second trial, took exactly eight seconds. Those present however claim that when certain necessary changes are made in the doors leading to the stalls, and the horses feel more at home, this "Hey Presto" act will be done in three to three and a half seconds.

Arrested the Terror of Orangeville

Winnipeg, May 15.—Word has been received here from Estevan of the arrest of Bob Cook, an outlaw from Dufferin County, Ontario, who is wanted in the east for breaking jail at Grand Valley and for threatening to shoot High Constable Marshall of Orangeville last March. A reward of a hundred dollars was offered for him, dead or alive, and when he settled on a farm near here the Mounted Police promptly took a hand in the game. Sergeant Lett rounded him up and arrested him single-handed, although Cook is credited with having beaten three constables in a fight on the streets of Orangeville when they attempted to lock him up. He had a brace of revolvers, a rifle, and shotgun, all loaded in his possession when Sergt. Lett called. Cook is now in jail in Regina, and will be sent east.

Stoessel's Name Will Be Effaced

St. Petersburg, May 14.—The sword of honor which was to have been given to Lieutenant-General Stoessel, who commanded the Russian forces at Port Arthur, and for the purchase of which a large sum was collected in France before Stoessel fell from favor, was formally presented yesterday to the museum of war relics by the St. Petersburg officers' club.

The presentation was made as inconspicuous as possible, owing to the embarrassing position of the former hero. General Stoessel was not invited to attend the function. The dedicatory inscription to Stoessel has been effaced from the sword, and in its place is a complimentary reference to the Russian army.

Sought Germany For Advice

Cologne, May 15.—The German Fleet Society, which is holding its national convention here, sent a despatch to Emperor William, saying that the aims of the Fleet Society were to create a strong navy for the Fatherland, "which in the hands of your majesty, will be the surest guarantee of peace."

Major-General Keim, president of the society, created great amusement by stating that the British Naval League had applied to the German Fleet Society for information regarding the methods by which the latter had attained such phenomenal growth. General Keim added: "With our usual aminity we sent them our bylaws and gave them advice and instructions."

"There's a Reason"

CANAL SURVEY IS ALMOST COMPLETED

Proposed Georgian Bay Canal Would Cost One Hundred Millions---Nearly $600,000 Has Been Spent on Survey Work.

Ottawa, May 14.—The work of the Georgian Bay Canal Commission is nearing completion, and a detailed report as to the estimated cost of the proposed 21-foot waterway from Georgian Bay to Montreal will be presented to Parliament early next session.

Practically all of the survey work is now completed. Nearly $600,000 has been expended by the Government in securing full and accurate data in respect to the project, which has been before the people of Canada for fifty years.

COST WILL BE ENORMOUS.

While the final estimates as to cost have not yet been compiled, it is safe to say, from the information now available, that the total expenditure required to complete a continuous waterway from Georgian Bay to Montreal, via the French River, Lake Nipissing, and the Ottawa River, giving a navigable depth throughout of 21 feet, will be close to $105,000,000.

In respect to the engineering problems, the report will show that the canal project is entirely feasible, with no very difficult engineering difficulties to surmount. When the report is once before Parliament the only question will be as to whether the benefits which will accrue to the people of Canada through the building of the canal will justify so large an expenditure of money—an expenditure which would be about fifteen millions more than has been spent altogether on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence waterways system.

GREAT WATERPOWER AVAILABLE.

The control of the waters of the Ottawa would result in increasing wonderfully the value of the waterpowers now available. It is estimated that with the completion of the canal there would be 500,000 horse-power available along its course—almost as much as is available at Niagara.

An important result of controlling the high and low levels of the Ottawa would be the raising of the low water level in Montreal harbor. It is stated that a foot increase in the depth of the Ottawa would make a difference of three inches in the depth of water in Montreal harbor.

It is claimed that the canal practically would make Fort William an ocean port, and would shorten the distance by water from Fort William to Montreal by about 400 miles. It is estimated that the cost of carrying grain from the west to tidewater would be lessened by at least three and one-half cents per bushel.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's session of the police court a local citizen was fined $1 because his boy broke a neighbor's window by his ball bouncing through the glass.

Peter Esthouse, a Russian Greek or German (ad lib.) was charged with having been drunk the evening before. Peter in very mangled and much distorted imitation of the English language, explained the cause of his lapse from sobriety. As far as could be learned from his broken breakneck tongue-twisting sample of inebriated Anglo-Saxon, Peter has been laboring for a farmer in Otonabee, and when exchanging the housemaid work of cleaning out a stable containing many horses and cows, not to mention pig pens, the advent of the delights of city life and temptation became too much for here. Instead of getting up some hours before Old Sol climbed over the Eastern horizon, a thirst for him to get busy and take a little light exercise feeding 18 cows and horses, carrying "swill" for 23 pigs and milking—we mean attending to the eggs—of some 2768 hens, ducks, turkeys, geese, pigeons, &c., this polyglot prancer steered the bark of his fortune to the city and the ship was wrecked upon the shoals of inebriety. He was given a warning that, as he grasped a grip sack of basket work, and brought a nine-inch smile from ear to ear, threatening to engulf the latter, he had better go out to the farm and continue his daily task of chasing a plow over rock and stump filled fields, more particularly, cut out the brake. Peter after shaking hands with all who would shake, set out for the delights of farm work.

The next case was that of a Mrs. Richards, whose ruddy complexion and features are not absolutely unknown to the local police. She and her husband were once more before "the beak" on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, the case being one in which judgment had previously been withheld on more than one occasion.

His worship discharged the couple and warned them not to appear again. It is alleged that they had another big row at their house Monday night. Mrs. Richards was somewhat worse of liquor and was very talkative. She also was charged with not having taken out a tag for her dog, which latter is of the feminine persuasion and consequently, under the ungallant edict of the bylaw, assessible at $2 per annum.

She tried as well as her then condition of nervousness permitted to explain she had paid a tax on this dog in some other town, but this did not go. His worship gave her five days in which to pay up. After their trial was over Mrs. Richards started, on her way out of court, for the private staircase, when her hubby catching her arm steered her towards the general entrance leading towards Water street. After leaving the court room, the "happy" couple at once separated, the husband driving away and leaving the partner of his joys and woes to take "shanks mare," for home or elsewhere.

Those present in court, excepting such as came through a morbid desire to hear news that might be unpublishable, were made and involuntarily at the exhibition given given.

A One-Day Strike in St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, May 15.—Yesterday the workmen of St. Petersburg generally celebrated the Russian May day with a one day's strike, most of the factories closing entirely, and others suspending business at noon.

Only the governmental works, such as the shipyards and ammunition factories, were open. The authorities had announced that a cessation of work there would be punished by a general lockout, but the workmen voted to give their day's earnings to the fund for idle workmen.

King Alfonso Talks onSpain's Navy

Madrid, May 15.—His majesty, in his speech at the opening of the Cortes yesterday, referred to the excellent feeling between Spain and England, which had been strengthened by the interview with King Edward at Cartagena. He was also pleased that the pope had consented to stand as sponsor for Infante Alfonso. His majesty added: "The very urgent reconstitution of our naval power will be begun forthwith. That power will still be modest, but will correspond with the dignity of our sovereignty. There is a bound not to be passed in this reform, as in all others. That limit is set by the consideration that at all costs our finances must be kept in the normal state in which they have now been firmly established."

Peterboro's Fair

The executive of Peterborough's great annual fall event, the Industrial Exhibition, will hold a meeting on Friday night next at eight o'clock in President Leary's office. Everything is now ready in advance, but getting out the prize list ready for publication. There is every reason for believing that this fall's exhibition will exceed all efforts hitherto.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

Back comes the answer quick and sharp "Constipated Bowels."

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accummulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Isn't it apparent that a bowel regulator and liver stimulant like Dr. Hamilton's Pills is sure to do good?

Gay spirits, good looks and happy health have returned to many a sick woman through Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland: "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor in St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

UNIFORM FISHING REGULATION FOR THE GREAT LAKES

The agreement to submit to a joint American-Canadian commission the question of uniform fishing regulations for the Great Lakes and contiguous waters, says the New York Evening Post, is of vital importance to an industry that on the United States side alone employs some seven millions of capital, and markets a product of three millions. As in other international disputes, one of the initial difficulties is that a question on which the Canadian authorities have adopted a uniform policy is handled by the eight States bordering on the lakes in eight different ways. Some of the States have closed seasons; others, using the same waters, have none. Some are active in restocking the fisheries; others do little but catch the fish their neighbors have planted. One of the remarkable assertions made in all seriousness by a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune is that the fish themselves have developed an instinct to "seek refuge in Canadian waters." That is certainly evidence of the wasteful policy of the United States, from those who know most about it.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

After a study at first hand, of conditions in this country, Mr. R. J. Barrett is writing a series of articles, in one of which he deals with the Canadian Free Press. His conclusions with regard to that institution are as follows:

That the Canadian press is worthy of the enterprise and strenuousness which characterises the material life of the colony.

That Canada possesses newspapers of historic reputation, including some of the oldest of all existing newspaper properties.

That in newspaper practice and production Canada has little to learn from the Old Country.

That Canada is rapidly becoming practically independent of extraneous resources in the matter of press production.

That the newspapers of Canada provide as a whole a magnificent vehicle for promoting the future prosperity of the Dominion, and, wisely controlled, they will exert a beneficent influence on the future well-being of the colony.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S SUCCESSOR

Although there is no reason to think that Mr. Roosevelt has any intention of changing his decision not to be a candidate for the third presidential term under any circumstances, it would seem as if he is likely to have the opportunity of saying who shall be his successor in the White house. His personality still dominates not only his own party but the country to a very great degree, probably more so than any president since Lincoln. While the Republican party has several men whose ability and character mark them out as fit to hold the chief magistracy, Mr. Roosevelt's personal influence, thrown either for or against their candidature, must be a very potent factor in their success or failure. There is more than one man who has been in Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet whose aspirations to succeed him are not unworthy of consideration, while some people think that Mr. Fairbanks may be the man to break the force of the tradition that the occupancy of the vice-presidency is a bar to its incumbent becoming a successful candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people.

S. S. Conventions to be Held Shortly

A series of conventions, under the auspices of the above association, will be held in the different districts of the county as follows:

Ottonabee, Presbyterian church, Keene, Tuesday, May 28th.

Dummer, Baptist church, Warsaw, Wednesday, May 29th.

Asphodel, South Dummer church, Thursday, May 30th.

Belmont, Methodist church, Havelock, Friday, May 31st.

North Smith and Harvey, Buckborn, Monday, June 3rd.

Smith, Baptist church, Selwyn, Tuesday, June 4th.

Two sessions will be held in the afternoon at 2,30, and in the evening at 7.30 o'clock.

At Keene, Warsaw, S. Dummer and Havelock, Rev. W. D. Harrison, of Keene, will deliver an address in the afternoon on "The Teacher's Qualification and Preparation," and in the evening on "Why We have the Sunday School." Mr. Richard Lees, M.A., will speak at all the meetings.

At Selwyn and Buckhorn Mr. Harrison's place will be taken by Rev. S. S. Burns, B.A., of Lakefield.

Local committees are requested to make arrangements for the musical and devotional parts of the programs, for other addresses, discussions or conferences, if desired, and for necessary business.

The pastors of all the churches are respectfully requested by the association to devote at least one service, on the Sunday preceding these meetings, to the consideration of the the work of the Sunday school, or at least some phase of the religious training of the young.

The annual meeting of the Sunday School Association of this city, will be held for election of officers and general business, in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday, May 27th at eight o'clock.

On the afternoon of Sunday, the 26th, a mass meeting of all the Sunday schools in the city will be held in St. Paul's church at 4.15. At both meetings addresses will be delivered by Rev. G. W. Merrill, M. A., General Sunday School Superintendent of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.

Construction Begun

St. John, N. B., May 13.—Construction work on the Grand Trunk Pacific in New Brunswick has begun. The first sod was turned without any ceremony today a few miles above Edmunston on division 6. This contract is held by Lyons & White, who have sub-let it in small sections. Work has also begun at two other points nearer Grand Falls. The engineer in charge is Mr. Longley. Deep snow in the woods still prevents construction of the Moncton-Chipman section, but it is expected that operations will be commenced in a few days.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients throughout Canada, small free Trial Sizes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like consistency, known by Dr. Shoop pure Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, dizziness, belching, biliousness, bad taste, etc., surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For unadulterated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

THE SHORT NOSES.

Something to Be Said in Favor of Those Who Wear Them.

"Physiognomists tell us that the big nosed people do the world's work," said a short nosed man the other day, "and they generally add a lot of rubbish about Napoleon's big nose and how he always selected big nosed men to carry out daring undertakings.

"That Napoleon story was invented by some one with a nose like Cyrano de Bergerac, who wanted an excuse for his proboscis and therefore pretended that his nose was but the introduction to a massive, imposing character. It is true that a big nose is sometimes indicative of firmness and determination, but only when it is associated with a strong jaw and long chin. A big nose with a retiring chin is almost idiotic in the expression it gives to the countenance. Every cartoonist knows this. Whenever you see a cartoon of a society dude it shows a long nose and a small chin.

"But there is something to be said in favor of the short noses. The short nose shows wit, imagination, tact, judgment, discretion. Socrates had a snub nose, and of the lively imaginative writers in almost any language a considerable proportion was short nosed people. Long nosed men may do their share of the world's work, but the short noses write the clever books and the entertaining plays. If Shakespeare had had a nose like the Duke of Wellington, do you ever suppose that he would have written the "Merry Wives of Windsor?" He might have been a successful theater manager, but would never have become a literary critic.

COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the crossledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assamays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing ficticious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 130,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profit in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statement and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

DOWN PANAMA WAY.

By Louise J. Strong.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Retta in the rose arbor was reaching for a bud above her head when her cousins, Charlie and Alf, came out the side door and stood drawing on their gloves.

"Don't get reckless, old man," Charlie counseled as if continuing a conversation. "Retta means all right. She's a little flighty; that's all."

"That's what I used to think," Alf returned gloomily, "but I'm convinced now that she really shrinks from a marriage with me. I suppose she doesn't love me as she thought she did when we became engaged."

Charlie shook his head. "Oh, no, Alf, you're mistaken. She's wrapped up in you."

"Looks like it." Alf laughed sarcastically. "This is the third time she's backed out, declaring she was not ready when the day loomed close. I haven't wanted to hurry her. I know a girl gives up a good deal when she marries. But a fellow with nobody and never a home to remember naturally thinks considerably of having a home of his own, especially with a little wife that's just"— He broke off for an instant, then went on: "I'm able to provide for her in the style she is accustomed to or I would not have asked her to marry me. And if we are ever to be married there's no use in waiting longer. If she's found that she cares for some"—

"I AM GLAD TO MEET YOU."

"None of that, Alf!" Charlie interrupted. "Retta flirts a little, but that's all. Have you told her how seriously you regard the postponement?"

"No, and I'm not going to either," Alf declared sulkily.

"Some one should. She"—

"Some one shouldn't and shan't!" Alf said fiercely. "No girl is going to be coerced into marrying me. I suppose if I howled around and raised a great racket she would give in, but we'll never be married until she's perfectly willing without outside pressure. I'll get out of the way for awhile and let her have a chance to find herself; won't even write to her. I've influenced her too much, maybe."

Charlie still shook his head, but offered no further remonstrance, merely asking, "In what direction are you going to perambulate and when?"

"Oh, down Panama way and as soon as I can fix my business to leave it, and that won't take many days."

Charlie whistled. "Not going in for an engineering job in that sickly hole, I hope."

"I may find a job when I get there, but I'm going foot loose. I've always been interested in the big ditch scheme. It'll be a diversion to examine it at close range."

"And Retta"— Charlie began.

"I'll tell Retta and leave her free to find herself, as I said. And I don't want any one to interfere—to say one word to influence"—

They passed around the corner of the house on the way to the gate, and Retta sank limply upon a bench. She had been too startled to move at first and then perceived the impossibility of revealing her presence. It was eavesdropping, but she was not thinking of that or of the errand to Aunt Anna that had brought her across lots through the rose arbor. The "finding" of herself had come with a suddenness that shook her breathless as she listened. She had not realized before how much her happiness depended upon Alf and Alf's faithful love or how very dearly she loved him.

"Poor fellow!" she sighed tenderly, wiping her eyes. "Poor fell—how selfish I've been when I knew he never had a home and how he is looking forward to one of his own! He's such a home body, and I've been cheating him—keeping him in lodgings when he hates it so—and—and when I want—yes, I do—only I'm such a flyaway! I do want to make the dear boy a home. And he's going off to—to— Where is Panama way? A sickly hole, Charlie called it. Oh, he mustn't! He mustn't!"

She fled home, into the library, and began a search for information concerning Panama way, a search that was somewhat hindered by her linking the two words. But by the aid of the encyclopedia, the physical geography, and magazine articles she soon acquired more knowledge of the country than her erstwhile boarding school teacher would have deemed possible, for Retta's strong point was not learning. She was just a sweet little girl, womanly and tender, with a careless shrinking from responsibility, engendered by her entire freedom from such. But now her heart was aroused, and she was aghast with horror at the idea of Alf, her own Alf, going down Panama way to endure all sorts of torments and dangers and finally die of the dreadful fevers! He should not! He should not! She would prevent it somehow, and it must be done at once, for he would be making arrangements to leave his business, even this minute, perhaps!

She rushed away to consult her mother, but that good lady, being deeply engrossed in some charitable function, was out indefinitely, and Retta, feeling no time could be wasted, determined to act for herself. Perhaps if she had had the advice of an older head she would have been less precipitate and irrevocable in her actions.

"I'm mowing a clean swath, burning my ships behind me," she commented confusedly, in the middle of a tempestuously busy afternoon in which she did some very unconventional things.

"I suppose it does look curious to them; I suppose the bride to be's mother is usually to the fore and the b. to b. hangs back in blushing confusion, but I can't wait on mamma when Alf's getting ready this very minute for Panama way. I've got to fix it so there's no getting out of it and leave me a rag of—and I don't care much if they do stare—and I guess I'm sure of dear old Alf!"

Yet she was a bit anxious as she waited in a convenient spot for waylaying him as he left his office. If—if Alf were bent and determined on Panama way, she would be in a pretty predicament! She whipped around the corner, apparently oblivious of him until she almost collided with him. Then her heart sank at his grave and formal apology. He had been more deeply hurt and offended than he had shown the evening before when she had insisted on a further postponement, but she must—she caught her breath as he said coldly:

"I am glad to meet you. It will save my coming up this evening to tell you"—

"And I'm glad to meet you," she broke in, laughing nervously. "I want to tell you that I've—I've changed my mind, Alf."

"Changed your mind?" he repeated blankly.

"Yes, about—about"—it was harder than she had imagined with his cold, unresponsive eyes upon her; what if he should—she quaked, but plunged on—"about our wedding—and we won't postpone it, after all."

He flushed angrily as he replied, "You were not asked to change your mind—nor the arrangements you made last evening."

"You mean that you don't want to—that you won't now," she cried, with wide eyes.

"I mean that you are not to be compelled, influenced. When did you see Charlie?" And between his teeth he muttered savagely, "Just wait till I see him!"

"I haven't seen Charlie to speak to since yesterday morning!" she declared and burst into a bewildering torrent of explanation and tears. "Oh, if you won't, Alf; if you've changed your mind and don't want me now," when I've found out how much I want you—if you won't—I'll have to run away! For, oh, Alf, I went alone and bought the dress—and took it to madame's and was measured—and I've ordered all the invitations—and engaged the caterer—and the flowers, all—just as we planned—because I wanted to show you how much I care." Sobs that she struggled to repress choked her.

"And you haven't seen Charlie—no one has influenced you?" he demanded incredulously.

"No one has said a word to me about it! I—I found out how much I really cared, and I couldn't get ready fast enough, though mamma was away, and I had to do it alone," she panted impetuously.

He melted entirely. "You dear little whirlwind! You have smashed the proprieties!" he breathed softly and proudly. "I wish"—he glanced about furtively; no, it was too public! "Anyway we can have an hour at the store selecting our furniture."

And, tucking her hand under his arm, they wandered away down the "primrose path," the journey down Panama way entirely and forever forgotten.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Cleveland's Great Co-Operative Department Store and Mail Order Institution

BY THE PEOPLE — FOR THE PEOPLE

The Union Department Stores Company

1696-1712 West 25th Street,

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

A Store owned by its patrons and operated in their interests and for their profit.

Judgment to Decide and Courage to Act

Everybody works for themselves and earns their own money.

Self-reliance is the foundation of every rich man's fortune.

Advice of a friend may be good in many instances, but, if you invest money on a friend's advice and lose, will he pay back your loss? No.

And if you don't invest your money in the enterprise that appeals to your own judgment on the advice of a friend

And if that investment makes money, will that friend pay you from his own pocket what you have lost by not investing? Absolutely no.

Here are some facts about our business that you should know.

The 7% Guaranteed, Cumulative Dividend is the interest that our Preferred Stock will pay to shareholders.

A 5% discount from regular prices will be allowed to all shareholders in this institution, which is in itself a very attractive dividend on the investment in this Company.

That thousands will own this business instead of a few individuals.

That we will have a big mail order department to accommodate Out-of-Town Customers and Patrons.

And that your stock in this Company is free of tax in this State.

AS AN INVESTMENT

Department Store merchandising offers unexcelled opportunities to the person with limited means.

It gives them a safe and liberal guarantee on the amount invested, and also provides for their participating in the additional earnings of the business, which the history of Marshall Field, of Chicago, and many others, show to be limited only by the enterprise and integrity of the concern itself.

CO-OPERATION means working together. This store is Co-operative and furnishes its shareholders with the best merchandise at the least possible advance over actual cost.

If you do not understand Co-operation and what it can do for you, you should send for our beautifully illustrated book. It will cost you nothing.

REMEMBER $10.00 MAKES YOU A PARTNER.

The following Officers and Directors of this Company, constituted wholly of Cleveland and Ohio men of undoubted integrity and business qualifications, will best bespeak our policy and our substantiability:

OFFICERS:

W. F. PARSONS, President.
W. H. KIRKBRIDE, Vice-President.
D. A. McFARLANE, Treasurer and General Manager.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.90, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $35,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

Weak, Unstrung, Tired,

Ferrozone Will Cure.

For sick women no remedy exists that uplifts like Ferrozone.

No remedy exerts so profound an influence upon the functions that supply clearness of the skin, brightness of eye, elasticity of spirit, abundance of strength.

Ferrozone is a marvelous former of blood—rich, red nutritious blood, the kind that circulates life and activity to every organ in the body.

Buoyancy, vigor and vim are restored—to the nerves is given vitality, to weak places is strength sent.

Wonderful power in Ferrozone, and any weak, pallid woman can be quickly nourished back to joyous health if Ferrozone is used.

Won't you try Ferrozone?

It will cure you just as it did Mrs. Abram Carley, of Strange P. O., Ont.—who says: "I consider that I should recommend this preparation because I have proved it is simply wonderful in building up. I was all run down, suffered from an extremely nervous and unstrung condition. My sleep was broken and didn't rest me as it should. My appetite was fickle and only certain food appealed to me. My color was dull and I looked sick. Ferrozone gave me a splendid appetite—I grew stronger day by day. My nervousness and apprehension disappeared. Ferrozone has given me absolute, strong health and I recommend it highly."

No tonic is more effective. Absolutely safe for women girls and even children, good wherever there is weakness, debility, nervousness or ill-health. Try Ferrozone, 50c. per box at all druggists.

June 15—Shamrocks at Oshawa.
June 22—Oshawa at Peterborough.
July 6—Oshawa at Peterborough.
July 13—Peterborough at Oshawa.

Twenty-five Years' Work Recognized

Mr. F. R. Yokome the able and efficient editor of our esteemed evening contemporary the Examiner, has put in a quarter of a century scratching and mauling the opinions of that paper.

This prominent local journalist was on Monday evening the honored guest at a banquet given by the editorial and business staffs of his paper.

Mr. R. M. Glover, a member of the staff for sixteen years, acted as chairman, and referred to Mr. Yokome's long services, and the unvarying kindness and courtesy to those under him.

Mr. M. J. Hutchinson also spoke in complimentary terms of Mr. Yokome. He asked Mr. Yokome to accept from the editorial and business staffs, a handsome silver tobacco jar.

Mr. F. D. Craig then presented Mr. Yokome with a pretty bouquet of roses for his wife.

Mr. Yokome in replying thanked the members of the staffs for their gifts and kind words.

Brief speeches were delivered by Messrs. B. T. Booton, J. D. Clarke and B. Theobald.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1893 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 38,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1906, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,150,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

STRIKE OF THE CITY TEAMSTERS SETTLED

Men Will go Back to Work for $3.65 a day, to Draw 11-2 Yards Eaoh Load---Board of Works in Session Last Night.

The Board of Works of the City Council met last night, when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams, Chairman Ald. Geo. Duncan and Aldermen Wilson, McIntyre and Johnston.

Mark street sidewalk, north of Hunter street, will be constructed inside the tree line to meet the wishes of the residents; south of Hunter, on east side, the pavement will go outside the tree line; on the west side, however, the committee decided to stand by their original report, and construct this section of the work inside the tree line; this action is supported by the city engineer, who advised that owing to the high curbing at the school, and other natural drawbacks this pavement should go inside the tree line to avoid future trouble.

SEWER CONNECTIONS.

Mr. Head applied for connection with the new outfall sewer now being constructed from Smith to Aylmer street: The rule governing such connections is that a fee of $25 be charged as for similar connections with the other trunk sewers. This will it is understood apply to all such connections, the fee to be paid in a lump sum at time of connection Mr. Head's application was referred to the engineer.

ROAD MAKING.

Reeve Moher and Coun. M. Welsh, of Douro, waited upon the board with a view to getting the city's aid in fixing up the roadway between the city and Douro, a thoroughfare very heavily travelled. The roadway in question is just the other side of the oval from the fingerpost to the canal, which it is claimed is in a wretched condition. Mr. Fitzgerald will be instructed to investigate this locality, and report on the necessary repairs and cost of same, and also as to what work has been done there the past seven years.

QUESTION OF DRAINAGE.

Mr. Irwin waited upon the council with the information that the Park street drain, from King to Belvar street is blocked; he asked that it be opened so as to benefit property in which he is interested. Mr. Irwin claimed that the drain has been blocked as the effect of excavating for cellars.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston,— That the engineer examine and report on the condition of this drain at once.—Carried.

Messrs. R. Graver, Chris. Graham, Dr. Morgan and E. Best represented the lacrosse, baseball and football teams in petitioning for a board sidewalk to the Riverside Park grounds, 400 feet from Hunter St., just across the bridge. This right of way is private property, and Ald. Wilson thought a petition should be sent in by the owners in question.

His worship remarked that the walk is badly needed, and it is highly in the public interest to have these grounds developed.

Ald. Johnston suggested that the city give to the sporting clubs sufficient material for the sidewalk asked for, in sections, and let the clubs lay the walk themselves. This would avoid the city being held responsible for constructing a walk on private property.

This was perfectly satisfactory to the representatives present, and the engineer was instructed to leave a number of sections of sidewalk on Hunter street, near the Rapid Tool Co., for the use of the clubs.

Petitions for granolithic walks on west side Bethune, from London to Dublin street; on west of Aylmer, from Wolfe to Townsend, were received.

The Board decided to adhere to the rule adopted and advertised at the beginning of the year—That all sidewalks and sewers petitioned for after May first cannot be undertaken this year.

PETITIONS FOR SEWERS.

A petition for a pipe sewer on Townsend, from Stewart to Rubidge, received April 9th, granted.

A. E. Elliott asked for a sewer into 421 Bethune street, north from Barker. This was not properly signed, and consequently no action was taken.

THE WATER TROUGHS.

Superintendent Henderson, of the water works, reported that the outlet from the water trough at corner of George and McDonnel streets was blocked, and should be attended to. The trough in east ward, Hunter street, in vicinity of Lipsetts' hotel, needs the flooring upon which it stands repaired. The Board of Works will attend to these matters.

THE TEAMSTERS' STRIKE.

About fifteen of the city teamsters waited upon the board. The city had previously offered them $3.00 a day, an even 40c an hour, an advance of 10c. over the $3.50, tendered them at the incipiency of the dispute. The teamsters had last evening taken a vote as to whether they should come back to the board for $3.65 a day or $3.75, which resulted in a tie—6 for and 6 against. They then decided to wait upon the board and his worship with a view to reaching a settlement.

Ald. Duncan assured the men that there existed no hard feelings whatever on the part of any city official, towards the men, and no man will be refused employment on account of the trouble that had arisen. He also offered that had the men formed a union, and made their demands to apply all over the city generally, the matter would have assumed a different complexion altogether. The city would not then have been put into the position of setting the pace for private citizens' work.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by the mayor,—That the board settle the controversy and give the men $3.65 a day, they to draw 11-2 yards gravel per load.

Ald McIntyre moved in amendment that the men get $3.75, but he got no seconder.

Ald. Johnston's resolution was then carried, and the teamsters will return to work today. The men guaranteed that although but 12 or 15 of their body were present, they represented those who were absent, and who would act in conjunction with them.

Ald. McIntyre objected that the salaries of city officials could be raised, but when the poor teamsters asked for a living increase they were refused.

His worship replied that the city had now raised the teamsters' pay 12 or 13 per cent., and he knew of no official who had received as big an increase.

WILL LOAN ROLLER.

The city will loan the Riverside Park syndicate the horse roller, provided they convey it to the ground, or pay the expense of transporting the roller to east ward.

Ald. Wilson stated that contractors and others have not complyied with the city's instructions to leave the streets in good condition after excavating thereon. The authorities are determined to push this matter.

The engineer, on motion of the mayor and Ald. McIntyre, was instructed to grade Hunter street east from the hall to the lift lock to the level of the property at June The thoroughfare was purchased.

TO LAY SEWER.

The board will go ahead with constructing the sewer on King street, from Bethune to Stewart, when authorized by the council, to whom this work will be recommended on Monday week.

The chief and deputy chief of fire brigade will be invited to meet the mayor and Ald. Johnston with regard to arrange for some sort of entertainment after the new fire hall is formally opened.

Old Rubber Raises Revenue for Muskoka

As noted in previous issues of The Times, some of the charitably disposed ladies of this city, (and long may they live) made an appeal to the citizens for old rubbers, etc., to be sold, in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital. The store on Simcoe street, next door to W. H. Hamilton's grocery was kept open Tuesday afternoon, and about 800 pounds of old rubber goods were left. The sale of these will net a neat sum towards assisting the free consumptive hospital.

The store (was kept open again yesterday afternoon when some 200 pounds more were left. As this rubber will bring in about 10 cents per pound, those inaugurating this unique scheme (for helping along the consumptive cure have every reason to be congratulated on their good work.

Mrs Chas. Stewart's Funeral Today

At 8,30 this morning the last mortal remains of the late Mrs. Charles Stewart, will be conveyed from the family residence, 689 Concession St. to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro, for interment.

The late Mrs. Stewart was born in Douro, twenty-eight years ago. Her maiden name was Annie McGarrity. She was a daughter of the late John McGarrity of Douro, and was married a little over a year ago. She leaves a three months old infant.

Five brothers and four sisters are left to mourn her loss. The late Mrs. Stewart was highly respected, and the news of her death will come as a great shock to a large number of people.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

Readily Yield to Soothing, Healing Treatment of Hyomei.

Bronchial troubles are purely local, They cannot be helped by stomach dosing. They are caused by irritation in the air passages and can be relieved and cured by medicated air alone. In this lies the secret of the great success of Hy-o-mie in the treatmnet of bronchial troubles.

The Hy-o-mei medication, laden with nature's remedies, is breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaching every part of the bronchial tubes and killing at once the disease germs. It allays all irritation and heals the inflammation of the mucous membrane with astonishing rapidity.

Treatment with sprays, douches and atomizers in bronchial troubles is condemned by the best physicians, as they cause further irritation.

The first breath of Hy-o-mei's medicated air seems to soothe the inflammation, stop the cough, and thus relief soon becomes permanent and a cure results.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Values Her Voice At $15,000

Boston, May 15.—That Miss Melusina Marx, values her voice at $15,000 is proved by a suit which she has just filed against Robert M. Wallace, of Springfield. Wallace is the son and heir of a millionaire merchant of Springfield. Miss Marx blames Wallace for the loss of her voice because he took her on an automobile ride, and while they were flying along an accident happened and she has never been able to sing since.

It was at Spencer, during an all-night outing in a big touring car, that the accident occurred. When the car arrived, according to Miss Marx, it was going so fast that it was "hitting the high places only."

Suddenly the car swerved and the machine ran up to the side of the road and Wallace was wedged between two bars in a fence so tightly that he was hauled out with great trouble.

Local Cheese Board Holds First Sale

Officers Elected and Very Encouraging Address by the President.

Yesterday morning cheese makers and buyers from all parts of this portion of the province attended the annual meeting and first sale of cheese of the Peterborough Cheese Board for the season of 1907. The Board will again meet this season, as yesterday, in the Bank of Montreal chambers. About eight hundred boxes of cheese sold at 11 1-2 cents per pound. The total registration of cheese was 800 boxes, and all sold except Fraserville factory. Mr. Wrightou, Mr. Cook, Mr. Gallespie and Mr. Whitten were the buyers who made purchases.

Mr. R. Tidhope, vice president, in the absence of Mr. Young the president, through illness, occupied the chair. Mr. John Riddell last year's secretary, was unanimously elected as president. It was decided to combine the offices of secretary and treasurer, and Mr. Edward Hawthorne was elected to the joint positions. Mr. Hawthorne was treasurer last year.

President—John Riddell.
Vice-President—R. Tidhope.
Sec.-Treas.—Edward Hawthorne.
Arbitrators—Robert Ward and Jas. Ryan with power to select a third man if necessary.
Auditors—Robert Bullock and W. Anderson.

Quite an animated discussion arose over the appointment of an arbitrator. This day between Messrs. R. Ward, government inspector and Mr. Ryan last year's arbitrator. Matters were compromised by appointing both gentlemen giving them power to select a third party if necessary.

It was decided to send resolutions of condolence to the families of Mr. Nicholls, formerly salesman for the Selwyn factory, and Mr. Garret Galvin, of Lakefield, Both of whom have passed away since the board met last.

The president's address was characterized by complimentary remarks as to the local board and was of a most encouraging nature.

It was decided that for the first meeting the rule which requires a buyer to take 500 boxes when he calls the board be suspended and that the limit be 200 boxes.

At 11 1-2c Mr. Wrighton secured the following, Krene, Warminster, Shearer, Warnsw, Treewern, Indian River, Lang, Pine Grove and Benafort.

Central Smith, Westwood, Bensport and Selwyn were called, but did not sell.

Mr. Cook got the next call at 11 1-2c, and secured the following — Ormonde, Brickley, Myrtle, Oakdale, Cavanville, Young's Point and Maple Leaf.

Central Smith, Villiers and Selwyn were called, but refused to sell.

Mr Gillespie bid 11 1-2c for the remainder of board and cleared it as follows: Central Smith, Selwyn, Villiers, Westwood and Buckhorn.

Killarney sold to Mr. Whitten at 11 1-2c.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"That Irish Boarder"

The Tom Marks Dramatic Company played at the Grand Opera House last night to good business. Tom Marks, the talented versatile comedian, was funnier than ever in his Irish comedy, for which he is naturally so well adapted. He kept his audience convulsed with merriment the whole evening in response to his irresistible wit and humor. He has associated with him a highly commendable support, who are earning considerable and well-merited credit for the capable manner in which they are handling a repertoire of many dramas and comedies. The company have been favored with a very profitable season, and will shortly retire for the summer months for a well-earned vacation.

The piece presented last night was the amusing comedy drama, "That Irish Boarder," and met with continuous and demonstrative endorsation from the hands of those present. The piece was acceptably staged and acted throughout.

The program of specialties was entirely changed, and as before proved to be of a high order of merit.

Civil Engineer Died Yesterday

New York, May 15.—Charles Haynes Haswell, one of the best known civil and marine engineers in the country died yesterday at his residence in West Seventy-eighth street, as the result of a fall.

Mr. Haswell was probably the most distinguished civil and marine engineer in the United States, and his entire career was one of eminent service. Born in this city on May 22, 1809, in 1828 he entered the employ of James P. Allaire, one of the pioneer manufacturers of steam boilers and engines. Four years later he launched ed the Sweetheart, a steam yacht of his own construction, which gained for him the title of "Father of the Steam Yacht."

57th Will Take Their Trip to St. Catherines

By an unfortunate oversight yesterday's issue failed to note that the annual trip of the 57th Regiment will be held to St. Catharines this year. It was a choice between St. Catharines and Brockville, and the majority of the officers preferred the former place. By going to St. Catharines the regiment will save some $85 in transportation.

The regiment will leave here on Saturday night, June 29, and will arrive home early Tuesday morning. The trip will likely be made by G. T.R. and St. Catharines will be reached early Sunday morning.

Dr. Chas. Neill has Passed Away

Former Well Known Local Citizen Died in Chicago.

Much sympathetic reference was made throughout the city yesterday in reference to Mr. Robt. Neill, when the death of his brother, Dr. Chas. Neill, in Chicago, Ill., became known. The late Dr. Neill, who formerly practised dentistry in this city, where he has many warm friends, was on his way from El Paso, Texas, to Chicago, when he died. He was a graduate of Ontario Dental College, Toronto and took a post graduate course in the Chicago College of Dentistry. His brother, Mr. N. D. Neill, of Brantford, was with him at the time of his death. His mother, resides in Brantford, who with five brothers and three sisters are left to mourn his loss.

The remains arrived in the city last evening, and the funeral will leave the residence of his brother, Mr. R. Neil, 359 Hunnor street west, this afternoon (Thursday), and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

Pettibone has Been Convicted Before

Detroit, May 15.—George A. Pettibone, under arrest at Boise, Idaho, charged, with Moyer and Haywood of the Western Federation of Miners, with being implicated in the assassination of former Governor Steunenberg, served a term in the Detroit House of Correction for complicity in the burglary of a powder magazine and the dynamiting of a mine shaft during the Coeur d'Alene riots in Idaho during 1892. Pettibone was arrested and tried with CJ Sinclair, Michael L. Davine and John Murphy in the United States District Court of Idaho. The quartet was convicted and sentenced to serve eighteen months in the Detroit House of Correction. The prisoners began serving their sentences October 21, 1892, but were released March 13 of the following year on the order of the Supreme Court of the United States. During the riot, it was brought out in the trial, more than 1,000 shots were exchanged by the nonunionists and strikers under the alleged leadership of Pettibone. When ammunition was exhausted the union men stole 200 pounds of dynamite from the mine magazine and dropped it into the main shaft, almost demolishing the property.

People Live On the Mars?

New York, May 15.—"Is Mars inhabited and are those strange markings which radiate in seeming design from the polar caps, where the supposed Martian seas exist, artificial or natural? These two questions are the astronomical problems which the little expedition, led by Professor David Todd, which sailed today for South America on the steamer Panama, hope to answer, at least in part. Professor Todd is accompanied by his wife, who is also an astronomer, and with them is a photographer, a mechanician and an Amherst student.

"We are going to South America in the hope of getting at the facts," said Todd before his departure, "and to obtain information on the Martian canals. We are taking with us the eighteen-inch telescope of Amherst Observatory and a camera especially designed for the photographing of the planet. After we have selected some point in the Andes, about 15,000 feet high, where the atmosphere is clear and steady, we will mount our telescope and begin operations. If necessary, we will take these observations in the high deserts of northern Chile. Later on we will observe the annular eclipse of the sun, which takes place July 10.

"Mars will be close to the earth in June, after which the planet will not approach again until 1909, when she will draw still nearer to the earth, being 35,000,000 miles away. Then for fifteen years the planet will swing too distant for definite observation."

'Moyer Did Time', Says Pinkerton

Chicago, Ill., May 15.—Further proof tending to show that Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, and Charles S. Moyer, the "cowboy burglar" who served a year in Joliet Penitentiary in 1896, are the same person was furnished today by William A. Pinkerton, head of the local branch of the detective agency.

Mr. Pinkerton says the main point of identification between the two men consists in a small scar on the inner side of the left hand. The scar was caused by a bullet wound. The mark is on the hand of Moyer, the man on trial at Boise, Idaho, and it also is listed in the description of "Moyer, the cowboy," at the Harrison street identification bureau.

EMPIRE-LINKING SCHEME.

The scheme for the establishment of an empire-linking mail and passenger service has caused great interest on the part of commercial men in the principal ports. The president of the Southampton Chamber of Commerce, though disappointed Liverpool was named as the home port, welcomed the proposal, and said the day might come when it would be feasible to run a second line subsidized between Southampton and Canada.

BRISTOL'S CLAIMS.

Bristol, which Sir Wilfrid Laurier visits today, advocates its claims as a terminal port, while Liverpool hopes that if subsidies are to be given for a line between Liverpool and Canada, one of the existing mail lines will be favored, and that no new line will be brought into existence, as the competition is already keen enough.

NOTHING BUT CANADA.

Thomas Bent, premier of Victoria, says wherever he went in England he heard nothing but the cry, "Canada!" The newspapers scarcely spoke of Australia, which is a glorious country, and more loyal to the King even than the people at home.

George St. Epworth League's Success

Reports presented by the Sunday school and Epworth League at the meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of George street church, with Rev. Dr. Crothers in the chair, were most satisfactory. The Epworth League raised $135 for mission work, and the Chintu College in China. The sum of $21, was also contributed for the Chinese famine fund.

There are now 669 members on the roll, an increase of 23 during the year.

Messrs. A. W. Cressman and Wm. Yelland were appointed delegates to the district meeting to be held in Mark street church on May 22nd.

The local preachers appointed were Messrs Wm. Might, Wm. Eyres, G. H. Williamson, H. P. Lindsay, J. L. Richmond and George Deepose.

The following stewards were elected;—A. W. Cressman, T. W. Robinson, S. R. Armstrong, B. F. Ackerman, D. W. Dumble, B. Shortly, H. C. Stabler. Mr. A. W. Cressman is recording steward. It was decided that the pulpit of the church should be occupied by local preachers during the absence of Rev. Dr. Crothers at conference.

No. 1—Detail of duty for week ending May 21st, 1907; Captain for the week, Captain MacLean; next for duty, Captain Watt; subaltern for the week Lieut. Gemmell; next for duty, Lieut. Comstock.

No. 2—The following have been taken on the strength of the regiment;—

D. Co., April 16th, 1907—Ptes. R. G. Northcott, A. R. Robertson, N. H. Tamblin and A. J. Throop; May 7th, 1907, Pte. J. Goody.

No. 3—According to general order No. 49, issued April, 1907, all claimants for efficiency pay, in addition to the general conditions with regard to drill efficiency, must make an average of outers at the two shorter ranges prescribed for the musketry practice of the corps.

No. 4—In the case of infantry units without range accommodation, the qualification for efficiency pay shall in all cases, except for those hereafter mentioned as exempted, be ability to make a 50 p.c. score with gallery ammunition at 25 and 50 yds.

No. 5—The following non-commissioned officers and men are exempted from the prescribed target practice.—Sergeant-major, bandmaster, quartermaster, sergeant, sergeant drummer, orderly room sergeant, Paymaster sergeant, pioneer sergeant, bandsmen, grooms and cooks.

No. 6—In order to give all an opportunity to qualify for inefficiency pay, as required by the foregoing orders, the companies will parade for target practice at eight p.m. at the drill hall as follows;

Monday—Cos. F and H
Wednesday—D and E.
Fridays—B and G.
Saturdays—A and C.

No. 7—The commanding officer has been pleased to make the following promotion;—F Co., to be corporal, provisionally, Pte. B. C. Kingscote.

By order,
D. WALKER (Capt.),
Adjutant.

Prominent Mining Man in the City

Mr. Joseph P. Moore, of Montreal, one of the best posted mining experts in the Dominion, is a guest at the Oriental for a few days. Mr. Moore represents the interests of the Strathcona Mining Co., of Cobalt. He has with him some sample of silver ore, from the Strathcona mine that are marvellously rich in silver. One sample, weighing several pounds, is almost absolutely pure silver. In carrying the samples from Cobalt in his handbag, this chunk and others of nearly pure virgin silver, have by contact with the sides of his grip become polished to a certain extent and show that what looks at first sight, like a mass of lead or iron ore is almost all silver. If the Strathcona mine is composed of much ore like the samples Mr. Moore has brought to Peterborough, the owners might just as well use shovels on a pile of currency.

Yesterday Mr. Moore called on Mr. Dawson Kennedy, 600 Water street, who has met with great success in selling bona-fide mining stocks. Further particulars regarding the Strathcona Mining Co., may be had in their adv. contained in today's issue.

Local Teacher May get a Summons

Indignant Father Objects to His Boy Being Struck on the Head.

It is quite possible that a local school teacher may have to answer a charge in the police court. The "raison d' etre" of this matter as given to The Times is thusly. It seems that the day before yesterday some boys engaged, as boys will, in a bit of mischief, innocent at that, incurred the wrath of the pedagogue. Yesterday morning, so we are told, one of these boys, the son of a gentleman connected with civic affairs, just before this particular school opened for the day's business, was standing at the front entrance. The teacher in question, it is alleged, seeing the boy, came from behind him and slapped him heavily on the head, afterwards ordering him into his class room.

At noon the boy, who is nervous and high strung complained to his parents about his treatment. His father at once went to the teacher and demanded an apology. This the teacher refused to give although adding, "Well I'll see that it does not occur again." As this was all the satisfaction the naturally enraged father got, it is quite possible, the teacher may have to explain matters in the police court. The boy referred to claims to have several witnesses to prove that he was struck without provocation. The boy's father threatens to have the teacher "pulled."

Forty Men Drowned in Fishing Vessels

Halifax, N.S., May 16.—On April 2d last, four schooners manned with French fishermen, natives of St. Pierre, left this port for the fishing grounds on the Grand Banks. Severe storms swept the Atlantic about that time, and two of the vessels returned shortly after leaving in badly battered condition. The other two, commanded by Captains Girandier and Lafleur, have not been heard of, and it is believed they foundered in the storm. The two crews consisted of 40 men, every one of whom left a wife and family in St. Pierre. Over one hundred children are left fatherless.

It is one of the worst tragedies that has occurred in St. Pierre for some years.

HE IS CORRECT

Dr Hamilton Proves That Piles Are Caused by Constipation and Strong Catharties.

Knowing the frequency with which people suffer from this ailment, Dr. Hamilton made an exhaustive study into the cause of piles.

He found that the lower part of the bowels is like a network of blood-vessels, and if subjected to persistent pressure, a section will bulge out and form what is commonly known as piles.

The only effective mode of curing this trouble is the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which can be taken before retiring. Next day will bring wonderful relief.

"I suffered up to about the limit of human endurance with piles," writes Miss Lueders, from Cornwall, Ont., "I was employed in a factory here, but for a while had to give up work till I got better of this trouble. I read in the Montreal Herald about Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and after using them for two weeks was cured. I can recommend these pills very highly; there are none better. They at once relieve and pervent a constipated condition of the bowels, and from my experience can be depended upon as a perfect safeguard against piles. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, I am sure, would be a benefit to every girl or woman."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and your system will be regenerated, revitalized, and made proof against disease.

Good for men, excellent for women, and most effective for children. All ages and both sexes find Dr. Hamilton's Pills a marvelous medicine. Although active, they do not gripe or cause inconvenience, system, thereby maintaining a high still they cleanse and purify the standard of health. Sold by all dealers, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail, from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

WOMEN WILL CELEBRATE

On the 22nd day of the present month the women of Finland will celebrate in a fitting manner their triumph in the domain of politics. On that day the Finish legislature meets and in that body there will be nineteen women who will assume the duties of legislators without limitation or qualification of any kind. When the legislature convenes a new era in statecraft will be inaugurated. It is expected that Miss Kaikilkoski will be chosen "second president" of the legislature, in recognition of her services in the long fight that was waged in Finland for equal suffrage. She is the leader of the women in that country and is described as beautiful and talented. She won her battle on this universal platform: "Every woman and man shall be educated in our free country." This platform became popular with all classes in Finland and was really the means of winning the battle for the women. The experiment of equal suffrage in the most northern capital of Europe will be watched with interest by every nation of the world.

CANADA THE BETTER COUNTRY

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, addressing the Canadian Club in London a few days ago, said that there was no fear of Canada being Americanized by an influx of people from the United States. The people of that country were eminently practical and they emigrated to Canada because they realised that it was a better country than that of their birth, and that life and property were more secure because the law was better administered. It is well that the people of England should hear these things from eminent Canadian public men because it is evident from things that appear in the British newspapers that there are many misconceptions of the actual state of things in Canada, even among those who are better informed than the average Englishman.

Bomb for Italy's King

Paris, May 15.—A Rome despatch to the Journal says that a bomb exploded yesterday at Ponte Lagoscuro near Ferrara, near a wooden horse roundabout. Three children were wounded. A man named Antoni, the supposed bearer of the bomb was arrested. The Royal train from Venice was due to pass Ponte Lagoscuro four minutes after the explosion. Antoni's appearance and his refusal to explain his presence occasioned the belief that he intended to make an attempt on the king's life. The train stopped in the middle of a bridge over the River Po, just outside of the Ponte Lagoscuro Station.

It is believed that the police warned at the last moment, caused the train to stop.

Many Sick Wives In Boise, Idaho

Boise, Idaho, May 15.—As soon as Judge Frampton Wood took the bench yesterday, a deputy brought Haywood from his cell. The accused labor leader dragged a spittoon out from under his chair, shoved a roll of long cut into his mouth, and settled down for the afternoon.

Judge Wood opened proceedings by asking if any of the new talesmen had legal excuses or not serving. About thirty of them thought they had and proceeded to give them. A sick wife was the most popular excuse, and it generally went through successfully. It was notable that but Anglo-Saxon names were on the list. Of the thirty men who pleaded excuses 24 got off, leaving 76 of the panel for examination by counsel.

Peter Kuster stepped up when his name was called, and stood twirling his dusty hat nervously while the judge asked him what was his claim for exemption.

"My wife is very low, judge," he told the court, "and she won't allow no one in the room but me."

That got him off promptly. C. R. Shaw had two excuses, but they did not dovetail well. The first was that he had sickness, the second that he was about to go away on a business trip.

Judge Wood pointed out the inconsistency and would not let him go.

Court adjourned without the jury being chosen.

Brutal Affront to The Colonies

London, May 15.—In the House of Commons yesterday on the second reading of the Finance Bill, Mr. Austen Chamberlain moved the official Tariff Reform amendment. He dealt with the general question of taxation, and satirized the attitude of the government towards the colonial demand for a preference. The demands of the colonies, he thought, had been refused almost brutally. The Opposition were anxious not to repel the first united advance for a closer union with the colonies. No juggling with the income tax would meet the case. He laid it to the charge of the British fiscal system, that it acted as a handicap to trade and commerce, wages and employment, and suggested the imposition of duties on imported manufactured goods.

Mr. Lyttelton also condemned the action of the government regarding the colonial conference, while Jesse Collins ridiculed the statement by Mr. Asquith that the question had been finally settled by the last election.

Messrs. McKenna and Buxton replied on behalf of the Government, the latter arguing that the financial system of Britain was now sounder than for years. If Britain adopted preference retaliation or protection, it would lead her into hopeless chaos. The debate was adjourned.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. A Tenacious Creditor

Winnipeg, May 15.—The remarkable tenacity of some creditors was manifested there last evening when a man called at the police station and endeavored to collect $2 from Fred Hawkins, burglar, who was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary. Hawkins didn't pay him.

The sentence was imposed by Magistrate Daly yesterday, and is the heaviest ever given in the police court here. Several burglaries have occurred lately, and this is intended as a salutary example.

In the building of the early ships for the United States navy many of Mr. Seawell's constructive plans, improvements and inventions were used. He was first chief engineer and engineer in chief in the navy from 1836 to 1851. Thunder Bay District Rich in Gold

DOUGLAS MINING COMPANY, LIMITED

Has six claims (240 acres) in this wonderfully RICH GOLD BEARING DISTRICT. This deposit has every appearance of depth, and numerous large veins have been uncovered showing values from $10 per ton up to $5,000 per ton. The St. Anthony mine, four miles from our claims, has at a depth of over 100 feet taken out samples of visible gold running into the thousands of dollars per ton. This offers one of the best opportunities in Canada for mining investment. Out of our six claims we have at least four, each one of which we are confident will make a mine.

The capitalization is low being only 500,000 shares, par value $1. Of this there will only be 350,000 shares outstanding on which dividends will have to be paid. Of the 100,000 shares of Treasury stock issued about half has been taken up, leaving only 50,000 shares for sale at the low price of

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 25 cents a share; par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 6200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 30 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 300,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and, the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

CHAPTER I.

"WAS you calc'latin' to buy one of them turnovers, bub?" casually inquired Mr. Clark, ceasing to gaze at his steaming boots, which were planted against the bulging center of the station stove, and turning toward the boy at the lunch counter.

"Yes, sir," said the boy. He had taken off one worsted mitten and held a five cent piece clutched tightly in his red fist.

The station agent wrapped the pastry in a piece of newspaper and handed it to his customer.

The boy, a youngster of about twelve years of age, with a freckled face and a pair of bright gray eyes, took his "turnover" to the settee in the corner of the waiting room and began to eat. He had on a worn cloth cap with an attachment that could be pulled down to cover the ears and a shabby overcoat of man's size, very much too large for him. As he munched the greasy crust and the thin layer of "evaporated" apple he looked around him with interest.

The station itself was like the average railway building on Cape Cod. Except for the sign "Harniss" that hung outside it might have been the station at Wellmouth, which he had seen so often. Battered settees around the walls; lithographs of steamers, time tables and year old announcements of excursions and county fairs hung above them; big stove, set in a box of sawdust—all these were the regulation fixtures. Regulation also were the "refreshments" on the counter at the side—"turnovers" arranged cobhouse fashion under a glass cover, with a dingy "Washington" pie under another cover and jars of striped stick candy, with boxes of "jawbreakers" and similar sweetmeats between.

It was snowing hard, and in the dusk of the winter evening the flakes rustled against the windows as if unseen old ladies in starched summer gowns were shivering in the storm and crowding to get a peep within. The air in the shut waiting room smelled of hot stove, sawdust, wet clothing and Mr. Clark's cigar. To this collection of perfumes was presently added the odor of kerosene as the station agent lit the big lamps in their brackets on the wall.

From outside came the sounds of creaking wheels and stamping horses, the stamping muffled by the snow which covered the ground.

The door opened, and a big man with a face of which gray whiskers and red nose were the most prominent features came stamping and puffing into the room. He jerked off a pair of leather gloves, playfully shook the congealed moisture from them down Mr. Clark's neck inside his collar, tossed a long whip into the corner and, holding his spread fingers over the stove, began to sing "Whoa, Emma!" with enthusiasm.

Mr. Clark, being too busy clawing the melting snow from his neck to open a conversation, Mr. Bodkin observed: "Hello, Barney Small! How's the trav'lin'? Have a rough time drivin' over?"

"Oh, middlin', middlin'," replied the driver of the Orham stage, unbuttoning his overcoat and reaching for his pipe, "but this earth's a vale of tears anyhow, so what's the odds so long's you're happy. Hello, Dan!" The last a shouted greeting to the station agent in the little room, whose answer was a wave of the hand and a sidelong nod across the telegraph instrument.

"What's doin' over in Orham, Barney?" inquired Mr. Clark.

"Prissy and Tempy's adopted a boy.' The agent evidently was interested.

"The old maids?"

"Yup, the old maids. I s'pose they come to realize that they needed a man 'round the house, but as there wa'n't no bids in that line they sort of compromised on a boy."

"You don't mean the Allen old maids that live down on the 'lower road,' do you?" asked Mr. Bodkin.

"Sartin. I said the old maids, didn't I? There's plenty of single women in Orham, but when you say 'the old maids' in our town everybody knows you mean Prissy and Tempy."

"What about the boy, Barney?" said the station agent, coming into the waiting room.

"Why," said Mr. Small, "it's this way: Seems that Prissy and Tempy's father, old Cap'n Darius Allen—he's been dead six years or more now—had a niece name of Sophia, that married Cap'n Ben Nickerson over to Wellmouth. Cap'n Ben and his wife had one son. I think the boy's name's Bradley. Anyhow Cap'n Ben and his wife was drowned off the Portuguese coast two years ago when Ben's bark was lost. Maybe you remember? Well, the boy was left at home that voyage with Ben's half brother, Solon Nickerson, says the youngster could go to school. When his folks was drownded that way the boy kept on livin' with Solon till 'bout three weeks ago Solon was took with pneumony and up and died. Prissy and Tempy's the only relations there was, you see, so it was left to them to say what should be done with the boy. I cal'late there must have been some high old powwowin' in the old house, but the old maids are pretty conscientious spite of their bein' so everlastin' 'old maidy,' and they finally decided 'twas their duty to take the little feller to bring up. That's the way I heard the yarn. They kept it a secret until yesterday, but now the whole town's talkin' 'bout it. You see, it's such a good joke for them two to have a boy in the house. Why, Prissy's been used to shoein' every stray boy off the place as if he was a hoss."

Mr. Small laughed so heartily at this that the others joined in. When the hilarity had subsided the station agent asked:

"When's the Nickerson boy comin' over from Wellmouth?"

"Why, today, come to think of it. He was to come up on the afternoon train from Wellmouth and go to Orham with me tonight. You ain't seen nothin'"—

The station agent interrupted him with a sidelong movement of the head.

"Huh?" queried Mr. Small. Then he, in company with Mr. Clark and Mr. Bodkin, turned toward the corner of the waiting room.

The boy who had bought the apple "turnover," having finished the last crumb of that viand, had turned to the window and was looking out through a hole he had scraped in the frost on the pane. He had shaded his face with his hands to shut out the lamplight, and, though he must have heard the conversation, his manner betrayed no interest in it.

Mr. Small interrogated the station agent by raising his eyebrows. The agent whispered, "Shouldn't wonder," and added, "He came on the up train this afternoon."

"Hey, boy," said Mr. Clark, who never let consideration for other people interfere with his own curiosity, "what's your name?"

The boy turned from the window and, blinking a little as the light struck his eyes, faced the group by the stove. His freckled cheeks glistened as the light shone upon them; but, as if he knew this, he pulled the big sleeve of the overcoat across his face and rubbed them dry.

"What's your name, sonny?" said the stage driver kindly.

"Nickerson," said the boy in a low tone.

"I want to know. Your first name ain't Bradley, is it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Sho, well, there now! Guess you're goin' to ride over with me then. I drive the Orham coach. Hum, well, I declare!" And Mr. Small pulled his beard in an embarrassed fashion.

"Come over to the stove and get warm, won't you?" asked the station agent.

"I ain't cold," was the reply.

The trio by the stove fidgeted in silence for a few moments, and then Mr. Small said uneasily: "Ain't it 'most time for that train to be in? She's a ha'f hour late now."

"She was twenty-five minutes late at Sandwich," said the station agent, "and she's prob'ly lost ten minutes or so since. She'll be along in a little while now."

But in spite of this cheerful prophecy a full fifteen minutes passed before the train, which had been started from

"What's your name, sonny?"

Boston with the vague idea that some time or other it might get to Provincetown, came coughing and panting round the curve and drew up at the

There is No Better Buy in Cobalt Than

THE STRATHCONA

Fourteen veins of pay ore are uncovered for 1,200 feet on our 40-acre claim in Bucke Township. One vein runs directly into the Thompson mine, just west of our property, where at 40 feet depth they are now sacking

Ore that Assays 800 ozs. to the Ton

Every vein in the Strathcona trends in the same direction, and has the same contacts (diabase and conglomerate) as the biggest and richest veins in Cobalt camp. Our neighbor on the east, the Loeb, has yielded ore assaying 3,000 ounces to the ton. Two independent engineers, Mr. John Black and Mr. J. Hyland, making separate examinations of The Strathcona coincide in pronouncing it a property of remarkable promise. Work is being vigorously pushed on the claim, and we expect to have two shafts sunk and begin shipping before summer is over.

The Strathcona also owns 240 acres of

Gold Claims on Larder Lake

Not "snowshoe" stakings, but discoveries made last summer—the very pick of the Larder Lake Field. Assays from SURFACE show free milling gold in paying quantities. The Strathcona has a very low capitalization, only $800,000. Properties not nearly so good have been floated at five times that, and are paying dividends. Shares are to secure moner for development (not promotion) expenses. The stock is selling rapidly. The investment is a good one in every sense of the word. Investigate this—The Strathcona will stand investigation. But ACT NOW—the fortunes in Cobalt have been made by the early investors, not by those who hesitated till the stock rose in price.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 15c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

No industry in Canada, or in fact, in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 174,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,100,000 tons valued at $16,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

FERROZONE

"I was in poor health nearly all last winter," writes Mrs. Cross, of Wakefield, Ont. "My appetite was variable, I was weak and unfit for work. I suffered a good deal from nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. My digestion was generally out of order. By springtime I had lost flesh, color, and had a bad cough. The doctor didn't help me very much, so I decided to try Ferrozone. It did me ever so much good in one week. I gained strength looked and felt a lot better. When I had used six boxes of Ferrozone I weighed myself and found a gain of fifteen pounds. Ferrozone rebuilt my constitution, and made me a new woman. Daniel Cow Jr. Laid to Rest

Yesterday morning the last mortal remains of the late Daniel Cow, jr., were conveyed for interment, from the home of his parents to the Hiawatha cemetery. The deceased was twenty years of age, and was a son of Daniel Cow, driver of the Hiawatha stage. His brother, James Cow, resides in the city on Victoria avenue.

Regiment Goes to St. Paul's Church

The church parade of the 57th Regiment this year will be to St. Paul's church, Rev. Dr. Torrance will be communicated with in reference to the proposal to hold the church parade, and will be asked to preach the sermon to the members of the regiment, on the suggestion of the chaplain.

Mr. Morrow on Cemetery Board

The annual spring meeting of the Little Lake cemetery directors will be held this afternoon, when the improvements to be carried out this season will be decided upon. At the meeting to decide this, Mr. W. B. Moore, president, occupied the chair. Mr. W. G. Morrow was elected a director in place of Mr. R. M. Denniston, resigned.

Sandy Point Fire Still Burning

The Sandy Point, Clear Lake, fire first reported in these columns was yesterday said to be still blazing, and now heading west towards Burleigh, where the farm property of Wm. Ayottee may be placed in danger, although the clearing around the buildings will likely save them. It is hoped that the rain of yesterday will be sufficient to extinguish the flames.

New Master for Bugle Band

Mr. Chas. E. Cookson, who for some time past has very acceptably filled the position of bandmaster of the 57th Regiment bugle band, has left the city, and, of course, has given up the position of bandmaster. —The Lindsay Post makes the following suggestion to the council of that town, which is worth considering here; "If our council would follow the example of Orillia and some other neat towns, and place receptacles for waste material at sundry points on our main streets, our people and visitors would speedily get the habit of depositing paper bags, fruit peelings, etc., therein, instead of littering the pavements and roadways with them."

Let me send you free, for Catarrh, just to prove merit, a Trial size Box of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. It is a snow white creamy, healing antiseptic balm. Containing such healing ingredients as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., it gives instant and lasting relief to Catarrh of the nose and throat. Make the free test and see for yourself what this preparation can and will accomplish. Address Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Large jars 50 cents. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Moved to New Quarters

The Knights of Columbus, who recently acquired the premises formerly occupied in the old Bradburn opera house, by the Elks, and before that by the Albany Club, are now ready to move into their new quarters. It is possible that they may acquire the rooms at present occupied, on the second floor by the Palace restaurant. If such a suggestion should be consummated the Knights would have most commodious and easily accessible rooms. This rumor seems to have some substantial basis as Mr. Darcy has already advertized his premises for sale.

Prizes for Lawn Bowling

Lawn bowling will this year meet with greater patronage than ever before. The retiring president, Mr. D. B. Moore and Mr. A. H. Stratton have donated each a pair of bowls to be given in the singles competition, and Mr. W. G. Ferguson and the vice-president, Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, have also given a pair each, as prizes in the Scotch doubles. In addition to these prizes the Frost trophy will be again up for competition. It was won last year by Mr. McIntyre's rink. The lawn will be ready about Victoria Day.

Tours to the Maritime Provinces

From indications which may be relied on the number of tourists and sportsmen visiting the Maritime Provinces and Eastern Quebec will be larger this year than ever before. Under the head of tourists may be classed the large and ever increasing number of people who are seeking suitable accommodation at the various watering places and attractive inland villages. In order that intending visitors to the country along the line of the Intercolonial Railway should have all the information available, the Passenger Department has again issued its annual series of pamphlets, and the very useful "Tours to Summer Haunts" for 1907 will be sent free to all applicants.

The text details the character of the country, the historic and scenic points of interest and facilities offered to votaries of rod and gun. Interesting and instructive reading is thus provided for even those who have no opportunity of visiting the places described. The book contains some hundred pages, and is generously illustrated with artistic half-tone reproductions of scenes incident to the text and supplemented with a schedule of tours and excursions from Montreal to the eastern parts of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Write for free copy to N. Weatherston, 61 King street east, Toronto.

Quaker Oats Co. on Full Time

The first shipment of western oats has arrived in the city from Fort William and now the Quaker Oats company's Works here are running day and night. The shipment consisted of thirty-one cars of oats. These were immediately lifted into the big elevator and started through the different machines. The Quaker Oats Co. Quas a standing order at the western Qelevators for forty cars of grain a day. As long as the said material is available this company's yast mills will work 24 hours a day, ie., if they can get enough men to do the work. This company pays good wages but it seems there are a lot of men "looking for work and praying they won't find it.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

PLOT AGAINST LIFE OF CZAR REVEALED

A Guardsman Confesses That He Accepted Large Money Bribe to Assist in the Murder.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—A Terrorist conspiracy directed against the life of Emperor Nicholas the existence of which has been suspected for some time past, has been revealed by the arrest at Tarskoe-Selo of a soldier of the Guard regiment. Yesterday the man confessed to the acceptance of a large money bribe to assist in the murder of his majesty.

According to the details of the plot, the existence of which has been confirmed by one of the highest officials of the court, suspicion was directed to the soldier by the fact that he was seen to have in his possession considerable sums of money. He was at once placed under observation. When he noticed that he was being shadowed he became panic-stricken and sought the authorities. He then broke down and voluntarily made his confession, after which he begged for protection.

All the threads of this conspiracy, which is radically different from former attempts of this nature, are not yet in the hands of the secret service men. A few underlings have been apprehended, but the real instigators of the crime, and the men who furnished the blood money, have not yet been identified. It is thought that the money used is part of the proceeds of several political robberies committed during last fall and winter. Many of the participants in these so-called expropriations have been arrested and executed, but the loot was never located.

The police officials maintain a mysterious silence when question regarding this conspiracy. They refuse to either affirm or deny the story, and limit themselves to stating that there is indication that he men arrested last week in this city were connected with this conspiracy.

This statement coincides with information obtained in revolutionary circles, where it is declared that the men apprehended last week were occupied with the reorganization of the fighting bands of the revolutionists, which the police succeeded last year in breaking up, and that the authors of the present conspiracy must be sought outside of St. Petersburg.

Millionare Woman To Face a Jury

Trial of Mrs Emma Kaufmann, at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 17.—The case of Mrs. Emma Kaufmann, wife of a rich brewer of this city, charged with the murder of Miss Agnes Poirels, her sixteen-year-old domestic, will be taken up for trial in the state circuit court here next week. Since a week or two after her arrest last June, Mrs. Kaufmann has been at liberty on bonds of $25,000. The best obtainable legal talent in the entire North-West has been engaged to defend the accused woman, and the trial undoubtedly will be among the most notable in the history of the judiciary of South Dakota.

The girl whom Mrs. Kaufmann is alleged to have killed, Agnes Poirels, was a Bohemian and could speak but little English. She died in terrible agony at a local hospital early last year, a few months after taking employment as a maid in the Kaufmann household. Her body was interred at Parkeston, S. D., the home of her parents.

It was but a short time until ugly rumors regarding the manner of the girl's death were circulated. The remains were exhumed and, according to the statements of the physicians, the body was a mass of bruised and scalded flesh, covered with gashes and scars. Through the testimony of other servants of the Kaufmann household, who told tales of almost fiendish brutality, the wife of the millionaire brewer was placed under arrest, charged with having caused the death of the girl.

At the preliminary hearing, the coachman declared that he had seen Mrs. Kaufmann knock Agnes Poirels down, and that many times he had witnessed the girl on her knees pleading pitifully for mercy while her mistress was beating her. Shortly before the girl was sent to the hospital, suffering from the injuries which caused her death, the coachman testified that he was called to the house by his mistress, where he found the maid lying on the floor in a pool of water, which he believed had been hot. The coachman was told by Mrs. Kaufmann to carry the girl to her room. Shortly afterwards he said Mrs. Kaufmann followed him with a solution containing a strong admixture of lye and instructed the coachman to bathe the girl's feet and legs with it, saying that it would take the soreness out.

Other fiendish acts, alleged to be true, were related by other witnesses, and Mrs. Kaufmann was bound over and placed in the custody of the sheriff. It is rumored that the attorneys for the accused woman will enter a plea of insanity. The statements of former servants in the Kaufmann household sustain this view to some extent. The death of Mrs. Kaufmann's only daughter is said to have caused a temporary derangement from which the woman never entirely recovered. Many witnesses stated that they had often seen Mrs. Kaufmann sitting before a life sized portrait of her dead daughter, staring at it moodily for a time and then bursting forth into blasphemous curses against God for bereaving her. After these spells, it is said, she would be seized with fits of anger in which she was cruel and vindictive against all young girls who came in her way.

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER

Get Rid of That Indigestion at Once by Using Mi-o-na.

Either through slackness or carelessness hundreds of people slowly poison themselves by chronic indigestion. By neglecting to cure at once any sluggishness of the important organs of digestion the system is filled with fermenting and decaying food that results in sick headaches, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

The want of a perfectly safe yet effective cure for indigestion and stomach troubles in their many forms was felt up to the time of the successful investigations that resulted in the production of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion, and the pain and distress which are often felt after meals disappear in a very few days—such is the wonderful curative power of Mi-o-na.

The old-fashioned medicines for stomach troubles merely digest the food, while Mi-o-na strengthens the digestive organs so that they soon become able to care for the food that is eaten.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mions Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Good Exhibition by Y. M. C. A. Gymnasts

Last night the commodious hall of the local Y.M.C.A. was comfortably filled by a well pleased audience, when the closing exercises of the Y. W.C.A. gymnasium classes, were, by request repeated.

It will be remembered that in a former issue of The Times we gave a detailed description of this most interesting and instructive performance. The entertainment of last night whilst practically an interesting repitition of the former exhibition, contained several new features. The costumes and drills presented last night, and previously described, were much as that of the original show. Last night however, Miss M Hamilton, directoress of the Kingston, Ont. Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes, gave a most interesting and commendable exhibition of fencing, with Miss Ivy Coventry, who has so ably conducted the local Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes.

Lakefield Train Brakes Thro' Bridge

Yesterday as the train for Lakefield from Peterborough pulled out at 12.20, the conductor little anticipated the accident ahead of him. The train, a mixed one, consisted of some ten cars, the last few containing coal. At the Bethune street bridge, at Brock street, the second last car broke through. The supports under the rail on the east side broke, through. The supports under the weight of the car bent the rail. About twelve feet of the rail was affected, and it was bent over a foot out of line. After the cars had passed by it remained about six inches out of line. The underwork of the bridge is constructed of timbers about six inches square. Two of these broke under the weight of the coal cars and allowed the rail to drop.

The rail dropped to such an extent that the bottom of the last car dragged on the bridge and put deep scratches in the planking. It was lucky that the car went through was near the rear of the train or it would likely have jumped the track. The train was travelling at a fair rate of speed at the time.

Mr. Hollingshead's Mother Has Gone

The many friends of Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, local manager of the Bank of Ottawa, will sympathize with him in the loss of his mother, who passed away at the family residence in Newmarket, Ont., on Wednesday night.

This blow comes all the more severely on Mr. Hollingshead, when it is remembered that his father died only last January.

Mrs. Hollingshead, who passed away at an advanced age, had been ailing for some time past. Mr. Hollingshead was present when the final summons came.

Handsome Silver Cup for the Intermediate City League

The Review will donate a handsome silver cup for a trophy for the intermediate city baseball league. The cup is being secured from Mr. C. E. Frost and is a handsome specimen of the jewellers' art.

This will be gratifying news to the followers of the game in Peterborough, especially the younger enthusiasts. The cup will be on exhibition in a few days.

One Republic of Central America

City of Mexico, May 16.—There is reason to believe that the present difficulties in Guatemala may lead to the greatest event in the annals of Central American history, namely, the federation of all the republics of Central America. There is also reason to believe that such an outcome would not be unacceptable to either Mexico or the United States.

The first step to this end will be a revolution against President Cabrera, of Guatemala, headed by General Toledo, and backed actively by President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, and the chief executives of Honduras and Salvador. Zelaya is to be President of the Federation of Republics upon giving a pledge to Mexico and the United States that he will call a general election shortly after the scheme is perfected. The Presidents of Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador will act as local governors during the interim.

The Republics of Costa Rica and Panama will be invited to join the federation, and it is believed that expediency will result in their accepting the invitation.

Preparations for the revolution against President Cabrera are being pushed with activity. The revolutionists are being equipped with machine guns and modern artillery.

President Cabrera, realizing his desperate position, is indulging in cruelties at home. Even high-class Guatemalan women are being imprisoned, subjected to indignities, and forced to perform labor for the soldiers and prison keepers.

Winter Drills Will Soon be Held

Season for Training Troops Changed on Completion of New Armories

As is generally known the main percentage of the drilling given our local troops is done during the spring and summer months. With the completion of our new armories there is likely that there will be an important change made in the drill system. When the armories are completed, nearly all the drilling will be done in the winter. The spacious floor of the new hall will make winter drill available.

The armories will be well heated, comfortable and suited for winter drilling. The 57th Regiment, 24th Field Battery, Drugoons, and all other local military corps will have their quarters att he new drill hall.

Large Bakery in the City Begun

Mr. W. Stock, the local baker has taken out a permit for his new bakery on Sherbrooke street, which will cost about $2,500. Mr. R. J. Marsh of Deer Park, Toronto, is contractor and architect. He is owner of the Marsh oven, which is especially designed for quick work, and has proven satisfactory in other places. The new building will be 63 feet long, 34 feet wide, and two stories high. There will be two large Marsh ovens, of pressed brick. Each oven will have a capacity of 650 loaves every twenty minutes, or 30,000 loaves per day.

Rubber Contributions Still Received

The rubber contribution assistance towards the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives will be in evidence today. Anyone having rubber goods of any kind, wanting to help along one of Canada's most commendable charities can send such goods to Mr. W. H. Hamilton's grocery store, Simcoe street, until a late hour tonight. Remember every pair of old rubbers sent means so many minutes of life to some poor sufferer from the "great white plague."

Free Samples of "Preventics" and a booklet on Colds will be gladly mailed you, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., simply to prove merit. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cure tablets. No Quinine, No Laxative, nothing harmful whatever. Preventics prevent colds—as the name implies—when taken early, or at the "Sneeze Stage." For a seated cold of LaGrippe, break it up safely and quickly with Preventics. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Ontario Crops Very Backward

Toronto, May 17.—Reports from many parts of Ontario show that apprehension is being felt over the outlook for the crops of the province this year. Though it is now about the middle of May, there is practically no growth in the land outside of a few warm sandbanks. Western, Central and Eastern Ontario are all very backward. With warm rains and warm weather, however, the situation may yet be saved.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"The Wife"

The Tom Marks Company, presented the rural comedy drama, entitled "The Wife," at the Grand Opera House last night. The company are showing marked versatility in their changes of program each night, and their offerings are all of an acceptable and attractive nature. A good evening's entertainment may be relied on when the Tom Marks Company hold the boards at the Grand.

The musical comedy turn of Miss Carrie Garlow and Sam Archer, stands in the front rank of instrumental specialties and musical novelties. Miss Garlow is marvellously skilful in extracting popular airs from an arrangement of brass rods and Sam Archer's phenomenally clever performance on either glass bottles or delf bowls, is productive of marvellous musical concord. This couple's duets last night on the dulcimer and on the violin and mandoline, called for well-earned and repeated encores. Miss Garlow and Sam Archer are indeed musical wonders, and one of the best specialties is a charming duet on the bells, from which they wring out wonderfully sweet music.

Unnecessary and Useless Advertising

More than one merchant of this city has called at The Times office recently and when there entered a vigorous protest against a practical "hold up" that exists here, as elsewhere, in the matter of continued and continuous calls, particularly on the merchants, for advertising, not wanted and in many cases of no use.

The main burden of such merchants' tale of woe is that hardly a week passes without some society, church, fraternity, concert committee, or other similar body, having a representative call and ask the merchant in question to take a page or column of advertising space in a program, folder, or other document, at so much "per."

Now, in the case of a church "touch," the merchant may belong to the church in question or have customers among its communicants. He does not like to say "nay." The usual thing is for him to remark, with a subdued sigh: "Oh, well! All right! Just see Mr. or Miss So-and-so, and he, or she, will give you the copy." The merchant knows this to be a polite sub-rosa way of asking aid, and, recognizing its futility as far as advertising value goes, passes the applicant along so that he, the merchant, may get busy and make up the loss.

In this city there are so many of these advertising schemes, often "fake" as far as practical results go, that it is time merchants should definitely decide to "cut out" all such schemes and place an advertisement in the daily newspapers, and particularly in The Times, where thousands of disinterested readers will see the adv. and thus be induced to patronize the advertiser. We have no animosity against any of these advertising schemes, but as our paid columns of advertising space brings in so much in value, it is plainly our duty, both morally and in a business sense, to show where and how the least amount of expenditure for printers' ink will bring in the largest and quickest returns to the merchants.

SPORTING TOPICS

THE TURF.

Mr. Bert McCallum and Mr. Wm. Whittom are arranging a matched race between their two horses. McCollum is confident that his black pacer can show the way to Whittom's Silver Queen. Both horses are in the green class. The black pacer has stepped a half-mile against a strong wind in 1.30, when hitched to a four-wheeled bike. The chances are the two owners will put up $100.

WEALTHY CANADIAN REGISTERED A PAUPER

Alleged Granddaughter of Alex. Ball Took Brain Fever and Was Taken to Hospital

Chicago, May 17.—A despatch from St. Louis says;

The identity of a woman of 29 years, who has been in the City hospital there for several weeks, registered as a pauper, has been established. She is Mrs. Rose Sheridan of Montreal, Canada, and instead of being destitute has money in the bank, as their is an estate said to be worth $3,000,000 in England, and is herself said to be of aristocratic blood.

Mrs. Sheridan arrived here several weeks ago en route from Hot Springs, Ark., to Millbury, Mass. She had been ill of brain fever. At the Union Depot she fainted, became delirious, and was sent to the hospital. When she regained consciousness she told of her sister, her child and nurse, and said they were at the depot. The hospital attaches thought her remarks resulted from a diseased mind. Mrs. Sheridan will start for Millbury, Mass., today. She is the granddaughter of Sir Alexander John Ball of London, England, who died several years ago, leaving a large estate, of which she is one of the heirs.

A DISORDERED MIND.

Millbury, Mass., May 17.—According to Mrs. Louis Dean of this town, who is her sister, Mrs. Rose Sheridan's prospects of great wealth and her connection with British nobility are delusions of a disordered mind.

Mrs. Dean said yesterday that she accompanied Mrs. Sheridan to Hot Springs, Ark. While there Mrs. Sheridan's mind gave way, and it was necessary to start for Montreal with her. At St. Louis she became violent, and was taken to an hospital. Mrs. Dean was surprised to learn that Mrs. Sheridan intended coming here, as she understood that she would go to her sister-in-law, Miss Margaret Sheridan, who lives at 498 Argyle avenue, Westmount, Montreal.

Too Much Delay in New Fire Hall

Local Brigade is Handicapped by Slow Work

The local fire brigade are rapidly getting settled down in the new fire hall on Aylmer street. Already bedrooms are partly furnished and nightly occupied by seven members of the brigade. These bedrooms whilst only, so far, furnished with modern iron bedsteads, good mattresses, etc., will as quickly as possible be supplied with the usual furniture looked for in sleeping appartments.

The pole leading from the sleeping apartments floor to the ground floor to enable the occupants of the building up "Slide, Kelly slide," to business, has not yet been placed, but will soon be a fixture. It seems that a most regrettable and seemingly unnecessary delay is in evidence in this building. With the time given those in control there is no unexcausable explanation for the crude state of this city building as it now exists. Why does not the city demand that the new fire hall be made ready for use? Yesterday a Times man was at the new fire hall. Although many matters to be completed were pointed out, not a man was seen at work in the building. The fire hall is too vitally important a building for the city to stand being made the convenience of any one. In Eastern countries it may be all very well to trust to luck or "Kismet," but in this 20th century age of common sense and business, the city should not allow any contractor or other to "dilly-daily" with the completion of a building that might by its completion or otherwise seriously affect the salvation or destruction of the major part of our city in case of fire. It seems that the fire hall is being completed (?) in a happy-go-lucky manner that, if no serious fire occurs, may not matter so much, but if a fire should take place, the brigade, members of whom every fire risk life and limb for practically nothing, would be seriously handicapped.

In response to possibly a dozen questions, The Times man was answered "Oh no! that's not fixed yet!" It is time the contractor or whoever is responsible should have every detail of the fire hall completed and the whole building in such shape that the local fire laddies may be able to respond to calls without delay.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Dr. Shoop's Restorative sold by J. D. Tully.

Mr. Tom Eastwood Gets Busy

Mr. Tom Eastwood, mine host of Buckhorn, was in the city yesterday and purchased a three-year-old stallion of the Harry Clay strain. We understand the price paid was $300. This fine stallion was purchased from Mr. Clarry of the Trent Valley canal. He also bought a new and up-to-date three-seated wagon from Mr. Harry Nesbitt. This is a handsome conveyance and very suitable for Mr. Eastwood's purposes, being comfortable and commodious.

Great Victory Over Women Suffragists

London, May 16.—At the bye-election held at Wimbledon yesterday Henry Chaplin, Unionist, and ex-president of the local government board, whose candidacy was opposed by the woman suffragettes, was elected by the great majority of 6,964 out of a total vote of 13,562.

"In the Morning"

The cells at the police station were called into requisition last night by a number of men and women inebriates, whose vocal efforts in the musical (?) line could be distinctly heard once in a while at the office of this g.f.j. Today they will be able to appreciate that touching ballad now being sung so successfully by the "Royal Chef," entitled, "In the Morning."

A Coffee Fact!

Many Highly Organized People

Are Definitely and Distinctly

Diseased by Coffee

Not with all people, but many, particularly those highly organized—brain workers and their kind—the alkaloid—caffeine—contained in ordinary coffee, has a direct action upon the delicate nerves of the stomach, and by a pathological law the nervous system is gradually and surely affected.

The result will show in a variety of ways, such as headaches and bowel or kidney trouble in some people; in others, smothering sensations about the heart, dyspepsia, etc., and in many the power of the brain is impaired.

Different people will be affected differently, but common sense should teach that if you have any disease or symptoms of disease you should endeavor to locate the source and cause.

It's useless to take medicine and at the same time continue the use of some injurious article of food or drink that not only caused the disease but continues it from day to day.

Leaving off coffee takes away the cause and the natural food elements obtained by the long boiling of go instantly to replenish and rebuild the delicate gray matter in the nerve centres throughout the body.

Postum Food Coffee

Mental poise and sturdy physical health can be turned into wealth, fame and happiness.

These Medical Facts

You Can Study With Profit

How few realize that twenty-five per cent. of all disease has its origin in some interference with the function of elimination.

The whole body exists by reason of the transfusion of fluids through its component parts.

Up to a certain point the body has power to reject to destructive elements, but this power is limited.

When it happens that the body is loaded with wastes and poisons which it can't eliminate, fermentation, decay, and germ life run riot through the blood.

Serious illness is the result unless nature is assisted by a cleansing tonic like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are purely vegetable, contain no mercury, no bismuth, no injurious metallic ingredient of any kind.

Such a medicine is the greatest possible assurance to every man and woman of health, spirits and contentment.

Grand results are achieved and famous cures made every day by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, as this letter proves.

From Newfoundland, Miss Lillian Anthony, of Upper Gullies, Conception Bay, writes: "In praise of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I must say that I have used them with grand success for three years. They never fail to cure me of indigestion or constipation. Formerly my face was full of pimples, but now my complexion is clear and ruddy. In more ways than I care to mention have Dr. Hamilton's Pills helped me; they would be good for every woman to use."

Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

LIABILITY OF MUNICIPALITIES

How far municipal corporations should be responsible for accidents occurring on the highways or public places, is a question that has been up before the Legislature for some years. The law, as it has been for years, makes the municipality liable for negligence, but there is a time limit (and in towns it is but a few days) inside of which the initial steps of proceedings must be taken in any action for damages. Clause 606 reads as follows:

"1—Every public road, street, bridge or highway shall be kept in repair by the corporation, and on default of the corporation so to keep in repair the corporation, besides being subject to any punishment provided by law, shall be civilly responsible for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such default, but the action must be brought within three months after the damages have been sustained.

"2—No municipal corporation shall be liable for accidents arising from persons falling, owing to snow or ice upon the sidewalks, unless in case of gross negligence by the corporation.

"3—No action shall be brought to enforce a claim for damages under this section unless notice in writing of the accident and the cause thereof has been served upon or mailed through the postoffice to the mayor, reeve, or other head of the corporation, or to the clerk of the municipality, within thirty days after the happening of the accident, where the accident is against the township, and within seven days where the action is against a city, town or village.

"Provided that in case of death of the person injured the want of notice shall be no bar to the maintenance of the action."

The amendment submitted at the recent session of the Provincial Association provided that a municipality would not be responsible unless the bad condition of the road had been called to its attention in writing by the party injured prior to the injury. This meant practically that no person would ever have an action against a municipality for damages, for once an individual was aware of a bad piece of road, the municipality would argue, if he were injured, that knowing the bad spot existed, he must have been guilty of contributory negligence if he got hurt driving over it, and then he would be out of court.

The Legislature at first amended this so as to allow the notice to be given in writing by any person. A strong effort was made to add to this the very sensible clause "or if the corporation officials had personal knowledge of the bad condition of the highway," but this was bowled out.

After spending a lot of time in discussion, which brought out varied opinions, and during which Mr. McGarry, of Renfrew, charged the Provincial Secretary with being stampeded, Mr. Ferguson (Grenville) moved and Mr. McGarry seconded a resolution, which was carried, defeating the entire amendment, and leaving clause 606 as it was.

Thirteen Children in Only Eleven Years

Jacksonville, Texas, May 16.—The most remarkable woman in the world from a medical and sociological standpoint is Mrs. W. E. Jowell of Jacksonville, Texas. Mrs. Jowell, only 30 years old, is the mother of 13 children, all living, healthy, and perfectly formed.

All these babies have arrived during the period of eleven years. Mrs. Jowell unaware is in perfect vigor, looks less than her real age, and admits the likelihood of at least a few more sons and daughters.

"If the Lord sees fit to send them," says this mother, "they'll be welcome, and I'll be glad to have them."

The father, being entitled to an opinion on this subject, has said:

"The farm is big enough to fit twice as many and as long as we have our health and the crops and stocks turn out reasonably well we can feed and clothe them and send them all to school.

"The worst strain of it all comes on memory. I know the youngsters all apart, that is barring the last triplets, and my wife thinks she knows them, but I can't strike their names half the time. Today I reeled off half the names in the family before I could tell Lee and George to come off the roof."

Mrs. Jowell is last present to her husband was in the form of triplets—all girls and blue-eyed. The last two causes for congratulation were twins; the last pair being boys with brown eyes and the pair before the girls blue-eyed again.

Should the Jowells wish to they could sell their farm and live in ease for the rest of their lives by exhibiting their wonderful brood. The "Greatest Show on Earth" writes them several times a year with most tempting offers, and all sorts of shows and exhibitions have from time to time made propositions.

But neither parent will consider the idea as long as they are able to feed, clothe and educate them all.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION

Offering of Bonanza Belt Stock—See Large Advertisement

The Bonanza Belt Copper Co. announces that subscriptions will be received at its Office, No. 20 Broad street, New York, for 100,000 shares, of the par value of 10 dollars each, at 5 dollars per share, from May 14th to June 1st. The total capital of the Company consists of 350,000 shares. The Company owns about 325 acres, located in the centre of the South-Western Copper District, Cochise County, Arizona, which is now said to be producing 13 per cent. of the copper of North America. This region is noted for rich mines that have been developed by ex-Senator W. A. Clark, Col. William C. Greene, Charles M. Shannon, Phelps Dodge and Co., and the Arizona Copper Co. The well-known mines in this district reported last year net earnings considerably in excess of their capital stocks and the Bonanza Belt officers claim that not one of these mines, with the same amount of development work, made the same showing as the Bonanza Belt makes today.

The prospectus of the Bonanza Belt Co. states that the three miles of underground workings, shafts, tunnels and cross-cuts of the Bonanza Belt have produced over 1,000,000 dollars in carbonate ore. The Company recently struck the sulphides in a vein six to twelve feet wide carrying 9 per cent. copper. The present issue of capital stock is for the purpose of obtaining funds to aid in the development of the Company's mines to a production of 200 tons per day. At the present price of copper such an output, it is claimed, Assures net earnings of 1,200,000 dollars per year.

The officers and directors of the Company are; President, R. Allyn Lewis; dealer in Investment Securities; Vice-President, Ex-Judge Leo C. Dessar; Secretary, M. E. Harby, of Counsel for the Greene Consolidated Copper Co.; Treasurer, Edward V. Loew, President of American Savings Bank; Directors, Charles M. Shannon, Founder of the Shannon Copper Co., and Vice-President of the Oceanic Trust Co. of Los Angeles, Cal.; Bird S. Coler; Lewis J. Morrison; Wm A. Hamilton, Vice-President of the St. Louis South-Western Railway Co.; Robert Huntly, Real Estate; Edward C. Rice, Treasurer of the New York Produce Exchange; Charles B. Merrill, Real Estate; G. M. Gouyard, Consulting Engineer of the Douglas Copper Co.; Superintendent of the Mines, Walter L. Ehrich; Registrar, The Trust Co. of America, of New York.

San Francisco, May 16.—The special train containing the bodies of 28 of the Shriners and others killed in the Southern Pacific wreck at Honda last Saturday, reached the Oakland pier at one o'clock yesterday morning. It was met by Buffalo Sunday noon, where a committee from Reading, Pa., Shriners of Rajah Temple, will meet the funeral party. The train consists of a baggage car containing the 28 bodies, a composite car, a dining and one Pullman. It left Santa Barbara with 19 bodies and took on nine more on reaching San Luis Obispo.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 20 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 300,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $34,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAN

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

station platform. Only one passenger got out at the Harniss station, and he, stopping for a moment to hand his trunk check to the station agent, walked briskly into the waiting room and slammed the door behind him.

"Hello!" he hailed, pulling off a buckskin glove and holding out a big hand to the stage driver. "Barney, how's she headin'?"

Mr. Small grinned and took the proffered hand.

"Well, for the land's sake, Es Titcomb!" he exclaimed. "Where'd you drop from? Thought you was somewheres off the coast between New York and Portland jest 'bout now."

"Got shore leave for a fortnit or so," said the newcomer, unbuttoning his overcoat with a smart jerk and throwing it wide open. "Schooner sprung a leak off Gay head last trip, and she's hauled up at East Boston for repairs. Dirty weather, ain't it? Hello, Lon! How are you, Ike?"

Mr. Clark and his friend grinned and responded, "How are you, Cap'n Es?" in unison.

The arrival was a short, thickset man with a sunburned face, sharp eyes, hair that was a reddish brown sprinkled with gray and a close clipped mustache of the same color. He wore a blue overcoat over a blue suit and held a cigar firmly in one corner of his mouth. His movements were quick and sharp and he snapped out his sentences with vigor.

"Full cargo tonight?" he asked of Mr. Small, who was buttoning his overcoat and pulling on his gloves.

"Pretty nigh an empty hold," was the reply. "Only 'bout one and a ha'f goin' over. You're the one, and the boy here's the ha'f. All aboard! Come on, Brad. You and the cap'n git inside, while me and Dan git the dunnage on the rack."

The boy picked up the carpet bag and followed Mr. Small out to the rear platform of the station, where the coach, an old fashioned, dingy vehicle, drawn by four sleepy horses, stood waiting.

Captain Titcomb followed, his overcoat flapping in the wind.

"Here, Barney," he observed, "have a cigar to smoke on the road. Have one, Dan? Here, Lon; here's a couple for you and Ike. Who's the little feller?" he added in a whisper to the station agent.

"Ben Nickerson's boy from Wellmouth. He's comin' down to Orham to live with the old maids. They've adopted him."

"The old maids? Not the old maids? Not Prissy and Tempy?"

"Yup. All right, Barney; I'm comin'."

The station agent hurried away to help the driver with the captain's sea chest, and its owner, apparently overcome with astonishment, climbed mutely into the coach, where his fellow passenger had preceded him.

The old vehicle rocked and groaned as the heavy chest was strapped on the racks behind. Then it tipped again as Mr. Small climbed clumsily to the driver's seat.

"All ashore that's goin' shore!" shouted Mr. Small. "So long, Dan. Git dap, Two-forty!"

The whip cracked, the coach reeled on its springs, and the whole equipage disappeared in the snow and blackness.

* * * * * * * *

The boy, Bradley Nickerson, had never ridden in a stagecoach before, and after ten or fifteen minutes of jolt and roll he decided that he never wanted to ride in one again.

Suddenly Captain Titcomb, who had been silent so far, spoke.

"Heavy sea on tonight," he observed. "'Pears to me Barney'd better take a reef. She's rollin' consider'ble."

The boy laughed and said, "Yes, sir."

"Goin' all the way to Orham?" asked the captain.

"Yes, sir."

"Got folks over there, I presume likely. Friends or nothin' but jest relations?"

"Relations, I—I guess."

"So! Well, I've got a good many relations over there myself. Fact is, I've got relations, seems to me, 'most everywheres. Father used to have so many of 'em that when he went visitin' he used to call it 'goin' cousinin'. My name's Titcomb. What do they call you when your back ain't turned?"

The boy laughed again in a puzzled way—he scarcely knew what to make of his questioner—and said that his name was Bradley Nickerson.

"Nickerson, hey? That settles it; you're a Cape Codder. Minute I meet anybody named Nickerson I always know they've got the same kind of sand in their boots that I have. Is it Obed Nickerson's folks you're goin' to see?"

"No, sir. I'm goin' to live with Miss Priscilla Allen. Her and her sister. They was some of mother's people."

"Sho, well I swan!" muttered the captain. "Prissy and Tempy, hey? Then Dan wa'n't foolin'. And you're goin' to live with 'em?"

"Yes, sir. Do you know 'em?"

"Who—me? Oh, yes! I know 'em. I'm a particular friend of theirs—that is," he added cautiously, "I call on 'em once in awhile jest to say 'How are you?' Why? You didn't hear any of them fellers at the depot say anything 'bout me and them did you? No! Well, all right, I jest thought— Oh, yes! I know 'em. Nice folks as ever was, but what you might call a little mite 'set in their ways.' Do you always wipe your feet when you come into the house?"

"Why—why—yes, sir, if I don't forget it."

"All right. It's a good habit to git into, 'specially if you're goin' to walk on Prissy's floors. Sometimes I've wished I could manage to put my feet in my pocket when I've been there. I wonder if I knew your father? What was his name?"

Bradley told his father's name and in response to the captain's tactful questioning a good deal more besides. In fact, before long Captain Titcomb knew all about the boy, where he came from, how he happened to come and all the rest. And Bradley for his part learned that his companion commanded the coasting schooner Thomas Doane, that he had been a sailor ever since he was fourteen, that he had a marvelous fund of sea yarns and knew how to spin them and that he (Bradley) liked him.

By and by the captain noticed that the boy's replies to his cheerful observations were growing rather incoherent, and, suspecting the reason, he ceased to talk. A few minutes later he leaned forward and smiled to find his fellow traveler, who had slipped down upon the cushion, fast asleep.

When Bradley awoke Captain Titcomb was standing on the ground by the open door of the coach.

"Good night, Brad," he said. "Here's where I'm bound for. You've got a five minute ride or so more 'fore you git to the old mail—that is, to Prissy and Tempy's. I'll see you tomorrer. You and me's goin' to be chums, you know."

The door was shut. Mr. Small struck up "Camptown Races," and the stage bumped on again. This time the boy did not sleep, but, holding on to the strap, tried to peer through the snow crusted window. He saw a light here and there, but little else. After a short interval the coach turned a sharp corner, rolled on for perhaps twice its length and then stopped.

Forty Men Drowned in Fishing Vessels

Halifax, N.S., May 16.—On April 3d last, four schooners manned with French fishermen, natives of St. Pierre, left this port for the fishing grounds on the Grand Banks. Severe storms swept the Atlantic about that time, and two of the vessels returned shortly after leaving in badly battered condition. The other two, commanded by Captains Girandier and Lafleme, have not been heard of, and it is believed they foundered in the storm. The two crews consisted of 40 men, every one of whom left a wife and family in St. Pierre. Over one hundred children are left fatherless.

It is one of the worst tragedies that has occurred in St. Pierre for some years.

NOTHING BUT CANADA.

Thomas Bent, premier of Victoria, says wherever he went in England he heard nothing but the cry, "Canada!" The newspapers scarcely spoke of Australia, which is a glorious country, and more loyal to the King even than the people at home.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

There is No Better Buy in Cobalt Than

THE STRATHCONA

Fourteen veins of pay ore are uncovered for 1,200 feet on our 40-acre claim in Bucke Township. One vein runs directly into the Thompson mine, just west of our property, where at 40 feet depth they are now sacking

Ore that Assays 800 ozs. to the Ton

Every vein in the Strathcona trends in the same direction, and has the same contacts (diabase and conglomerate) as the biggest and richest veins in Cobalt camp. Our neighbor on the east, the Loeb, has yielded ore assaying 3,000 ounces to the ton. Two independent engineers, Mr. John Black and Mr. J. Hyland, making separate examinations of The Strathcona coincide in pronouncing it a property of remarkable promise. Work is being vigorously pushed on the claim, and we expect to have two shafts sunk and begin shipping before summer is over.

The Strathcona also owns 240 acres of

Gold Claims on Larder Lake

Not "snowshoe" stakings, but discoveries made last summer—the very pick of the Larder Lake Field. Assays from SURFACE show free milling gold in paying quantities. The Strathcona has a very low capitalization, only $800,000. Properties not nearly so good have been floated at five times that, and are paying dividends. Shares are to secure moner for development (not promotion) expenses. The stock is selling rapidly. The investment is a good one in every sense of the word. Investigate this—The Strathcona will stand investigation. But ACT NOW—the fortunes in Cobalt have been made by the early investors, not by those who hesitated till the stock rose in price.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

B. B. MIGHTON & CO.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1897 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 33,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,160,000 tons valued at $16,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,190,000 tons valued at $24,360,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Write us for information and list of stocks which we have for sale.

Gained Both In Strength and Weight

Another Case That Proves the Merit of

FERROZONE

"I was in poor health nearly all last winter," writes Mrs. Cross, of Wakefield, Ont. "My appetite was variable, I was weak and unfit for work. I suffered a good deal from nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. My digestion was generally out of order. By springtime I had lost flesh, color, and had a bad cough. The doctor didn't help me very much, so I decided to try Ferrozone. It did me ever so much good in one week. I gained strength looked and felt a lot better. When I had used six boxes of Ferrozone I weighed myself and found a gain of fifteen pounds. Ferrozone rebuilt my constitution, and made me a new woman. I consider Ferrozone worth it weight in gold to every weak woman. It cures quickly and saves big doctors' bills. (MRS.) R. CROSS."

It is feared that one of the ribs may have pierced the lungs. We hope to hear of his convalescence soon

Apo-Morphia Saves a Dog

Still another dog poisoning case occurred yesterday. The victim of the cowardly poisoner, whilst only a cross between a hound and some other breed was nevertheless dear to those who owned it and the children. The dog was found in a poisoned condition near Dr. Robinson's livery stables on Charlotte street, evidently suffering from strychnine poisoning. It so happened that Dr. King was passing as some 60 or 80 citizens gathered to watch the dog's suffering. The doctor, himself a lover and judge of dogs, at once, opening his medical case, produced a hypodermic syringe and gave the animal a sub-cutaneous injection of apomorphia. This at once operated as an emetic. The dog after getting some relief was taken to Mr. Woltenholme's wood yard and subsequently recovered.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Martin Connors Makes Improvements

Mr. Martin Connors yesterday in addition to the recent extensive improvements made in the City Hotel, placed twelve massive antique oak chairs in the hotel rotunda. Of these six are rockers and six stationery square chairs. They are of massive design and add greatly to the appearance of the hotel's interior. The papering and decorating of this hotel is about complete and the interior of this caravansery is much improved.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood Meet

Mr. R. J. Devey, director of St. John's Chapter, of St. Andrew's Brotherhood, presiding, supported by Canon Davidson, Mr. A. Kingscote, director of St. Luke's Chapter. Mr. Bennett, Mr. F. Linton, Mr. J. R. Bell, at the combined meeting held in St. John's Sunday school. Messrs. Bell and Bennett presented their reports. Those present pledged themselves to the sum of $30 to send delegates to the Winnipeg meeting. Mr. A. McCollum was unanimously elected as a delegate to the Dominion convention in that city; this was a compliment of no mean order to St. Luke's church. The St. John's Chapter hold a fellowship tea in the Sunday school at five p.m. Sunday next.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients — Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

WITNESSES TO BACK UP SHOCKING STORY

Reported That Explosives with Which to Blow Up Carload of Non-union Miners Has Been Found ---Children Unearthed the Stuff

Boise, Idaho, May 18.—Counsel for defense and prosecution in the case of Wm. D. Haywood, which began its sixth day yesterday, express doubt as to the probability of securing a jury for several days. Thursday hope ran high that the seats now filled with talesman qualified to the peremptory challenge point would be changed to a box of real jury men by the end of yesterday's session. But the fact that eleven talesmen were excused in the effort to fill the one seat vacated by a peremptory challenge and that it took two hours and a half to qualify one man for cause alone at the half day session Thursday, showed an increase of reluctance of the talesmen to serve. Notwithstanding the fact that 57 talesmen are yet to be called from the special venire summoned by Sheriff Hodgin, the fear is expressed that this venire may be exhausted and another will have to be called.

Additional witnesses are arriving on every train.

"PETTIBONE DOPE."

Two witnesses who arrived Thursday are here in connection with the discovery of what is known as Greek fire or "Pettibone dope," buried in an old saw mill at Pocatello, and in connection with the confession which Steve Adams is said to have made. Adams is said to have confessed that he went to Pocatello to blow up a carload of non-union miners. In his confession he is alleged to have located the place where he buried the explosive, as the car failed to come through the town.

After the confession was made, Adams himself, with a party of officials, including the Governor of Idaho, travelled to Pocatello and excavated at the place where the explosive was said to have been buied. It was not found. But a farmer, who is one of the witnesses here, yesterday testified that his children unearthed the stuff, and that it exploded, seriously injuring the children.

In the confession Adams told of the hotel at Pocatello at which he registered. At first it was feared that this could not be verified, but another of the witnesses who came in yesterday was the proprietor of the hotel, which was destroyed, and who, it is expected, has with him the old register showing the Adams did register at the hotel on the day he named.

It has been stated that Adams will be called as a witness by the defense, but now it is intimated that Adams may testify for the State.

The interview given by Orchard on Thursday to the representative of the Associated Press has caused the charge that Orchard was kept in communication, and that he was insane or that the confession had been forced from him under stress, or extracted under promises to be completely exploded by the statements and appearances of the men.

Infant's Body is Found at Lindsay

A Lindsay despatch of yesterday says:—This evening a short time before six o'clock, some boys who were playing ball in a vacant lot in the south ward, discovered concealed in some bushes the body of an infant, wrapped in a cotton bag and covered with a newspaper. The chief of police was summoned and had the remains taken to the undertakers. There is at present no clue to the perpetrators of the deed. An inquest will be held.

Stony Lake Trip Arrangements Made

Mr. James Acton, of Toronto, president of the Stony Lake Cottagers' and Campers' Association, is authority for saying that;

The Transportation Committee has made arrangements for a boat to meet the noon train at Lakefield on Thursday, May 23rd, for the benefit of those going up the lakes over the holiday. A boat will also leave on Friday morning, May 24th, returning for the evening train. On Monday, May 27th, a return trip will be made to catch the afternoon train at Lakefield, making connections for Peterborough, Lindsay, Toronto, etc. Please inform the chairman of the Transportation Committee if you intend going up on May 23rd, to that arrangements can be made.

Privilege Let at Jackson Park

Mr. W. C. Andrews Given Right to Take Photographs

Mr. W. C. Andrews, who for some weeks has been engaged in taking photographs that he encloses in a gilt frame, next the Snowden House, yesterday received a reply from Mr. John Crane, secretary of the Nicholls Park Commission, notifying him that his request for permission to establish a photographic tent and appliances at Jackson Park had been granted. It might be mentioned that Mr. Andrews has agreed to give the park authorities a certain percentage of his receipts and on this basis the privilege was granted. Mr. Andrews will establish a tent at the park and proceed to get busy immortalizing the people of Peterborough.

Mr. Harry Nesbitt, one of Peterborough's leading horsemen, and the owner of a well known stallion, in response to a request made by the Buffalo Horse World, had a portrait of himself taken. Local horsemen are coming to the front.

Mr. Andrews, who is a gold wire expert, will, as soon as the park is open to visitors advertise his photos through these columns.

Dog Poisoners are Still at Work

It seems that any man having a spite against the canine race can, by signing his name in a local drug store register, purchase enough poison, mainly strychnine, for, say, 10 cents, to put out of life and business limitless numbers of family favorites answering to the (sic) names of Toby, Fido, Rob, Prioney, Nero, Togo, Teddy, Tracy, Paddy, Larry, Gaius, Rover, Dion, etc. Now The Times has sympathized and sincerely, with those whose pets have recently been poisoned. In addition to the list already contained in nine columns, Mr. W. Drake, 198 Perry street, has lost his valuable collie dog, Mr. M. Philpin also lost a collie dog by poison, Mr. Richard Harris of Perry street, is mourning the loss of his water spaniel. It was a valuable dog and Mr. Harris regrets its loss very much.

If any man, woman or child can, with undeniable proof of such attempted murder, hand in the name of the man endangering the life not only of dogs but little children, by putting out poison, he or she can make enough for a European trip.

Criminal Charge May be Expected

Fredericton, N.B., May 17.—Hon. R. R. Emmerson, is in the city, conferring with his counsel regarding the libel suit against the Fredericton Gleaner. It is understood that, in addition to the civil action instituted against the Gleaner Company, Limited, for $25,000, Mr. Emmerson has advised his counsel to proceed against Managing Director Crockett, on a charge of criminal libel. If a warrant has not already been issued it will be in the course of a few days. Hon. A. S. White is associated with Dr. Pugsley and Mr. Barry as counsel.

James H. Crockett was in St. John yesterday conferring with George W. Fowler, president of the Gleaner Company.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

Mary Slattery, a middle aged woman, was charged with being D. & D. She pleaded not guilty, saying boys had teased her. The magistrate allowed to go with a warning.

Robert Morrison, who was fined $2 on Thursday for being drunk, was up again on the same charge yesterday and pleaded guilty. Again, as on Thursday, he peeled a $5 off his roll to pay a $2 fine.

A man named Raymond was charged with having committed an assault on Charles Stevens and having done him bodily harm. It seems that young Stevens' leg was broken. Mr. Kerr appeared for the prisoner, and, the charge being an indictable offence, postponed making his election as to summarily trial. Mr. Geo. Stevens, the injured boy's father, said his son was laid up in bed, and would not be able to appear as a witness for some weeks. Bail was fixed at $500.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Shamus O'Brien"

The Tom Marks Dramatic Co. presented the Irish comedy drama, "Shamus O'Brien," at the Grand Opera House. The piece is appreciably balanced in emotion and Irish wit and humor, and the several characters are commendably handled by the members of this strong repertoire company. Tom Marks was a favorite with the audience, to whom his Irish comedy was quite contagious.

New specialties were offered, and, as usual, proved a marked feature of the evening's entertainment. The Tom Marks Co. are exceptionally strong in their song, dance, dialogue and musical numbers, and are worthy of liberal patronage.

They also give a good series of moving pictures. There is a considerable variety of amusement offered at each performance.

LEADING ACTRESS DEAD

PETEBOROUGH GIRL'S CAREER ENDED

Late Sergt-Major Billings' Daughter Passes Away in London

Those of our older citizens who remember the once well-known and respected figue of Sergt.-Major Chas. Billings, for many years connected with the 57th Regiment, or, as it was then called, 57th Battalion, will regret to learn that his daughter, Miss Ada Alexandra Billings, has passed away in London, after a highly successful theatrical career.

The late Miss Billings will be remembered by many friends in Peterborough as having shown precocious histrionic and musical abilities of a high order. Early in life influential members of the theatrical profession encouraged the young debutante, who quickly rose to an important position in her chosen avocation. Her stage name was Miss Ada Alexandra, and she was in private life known as Mrs. Chas. E. Haverly, of London. The deceased has a sister, Mrs. John Campbell, of Almonte, Ont.

The following clipping, taken from a London paper, will be of interest:

The announcement in our columns a fortnight ago that Miss Ada Alexandra was lying at her residence, 39 Carlton mansions, Maida Vale, N. W., in the last stages of that dread disease cancer, must have prepared our readers for the news of her death, which mercifully released her from her sufferings at mid-night on Friday, the 15th inst., her devoted husband and her sister (Mrs. G. M. Polini) having remained in continuous attendance for seven days and nights. Only members of the family were invited to the funeral, which took place on Tuesday at new Willisden cemetery, but amongst the many beautiful wreaths from private friends and relatives, one magnificent tribute bore the inscription "With deepest sympathy for their dear old friend"—Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hurley.

Miss Alexandra had been ailing for some time past and had resided in Brighton for some months in the hope of recruiting her health; but on the advice of Dr. Bland Sutton, she was brought to London last month and it was then found that her case was quite hopeless. Her wonderful vitality was the source of great surprise to her physicians.

Born at Hounslow, Ada Alexandra was at an early age taken to Canada. Her theatrical career dates back to 1872, when as a young girl she returned from Canada and immediately bounded into public favor as a German dialect comedienne. Associated with the late Jas. Taylor, she was seen to great advantage in the drama, "Simon; or A Dutch Girl's Trials." Returning to Canada and America she toured those countries with enormous success and eventually came back to the Old Country and produced one of her successes, "The Mason," in which the cheery Dutch girl scored heavily as the vigorous German wife, her breezy manner and her inimitable accent marking her as the New York Herald declared, "the foremost German dialect actress of the day."

After a number of years she again visited America under the auspices of Messrs. Hyde and Behman, and eventually joined Mr. Edward E. Rice's forces. As showing Mr. Rice's farsightedness in theatrical matters, he, having seen Miss Alexandra, made up his mind that she should play the important role of the German servant in the comedy drama "The Globe Trotter." Mr. de Lange, the author, had already fixed upon a well known American star to play the part; but Mr. Rice declared "My money only backs the show, if Ada Alexandra plays the Dutch girl." His ripe judgment was proved by the fact that although the company included Maurice Barrymore, William Hoey (of Evans and Hoey), Mrs. Dion Boucicault, Aubrey Boucicault, and other theatrical celebrities, she, as the veteran critic, Stephen Fiske declared, made "the hit of the piece." Despite handsome offers from Mr. Rice and other American managers to remain, Miss Alexandra once more came back to England and had another seven years' phenomenal run with her sketch, "The Mason."

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or overbusy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dress-makers, seamstresses, "shop girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

Gruesome Find in Waldie House

Gananoque, May 17.—A gruesome discovery has been made in the room where William Waldie killed his wife, his two children, and himself. A blood-stained shirt and socks clotted with blood have been found in the closet, placed away in a corner. Under the children's cot, too, a basin of water was noticed yesterday, though there was no discoloration. It follows that Waldie changed his shirt and his hose after the murder. It is possible that he washed his hands and then rinsed them in clean water, hiding the basin where it was found. All this would take time, and it must have been very early in the morning when he executed this insane design on his family. Waldie's father-in-law says that the dead man "moped" as far back as a year and a half ago, leving his work in the middle of the afternoon, complaining of loss of appetite, and then eating almost to excess. When Waldie repined to his doctor, and hinted at suicide the physician never took him seriously. Even on Saturday and Sunday, when he repeated the threat to a brother and a business man, it excited no anxiety.

Waldie's insomnia was not of the ordinary type, inasmuch as he insisted that his wife and children should remain awake with him.

Of the $3,000 insurance left by Waldie, $2,000 is in the Sun Life and $1,000 in the Mutual Life of Canada. It is said that the fact of Waldie's suicide affects neither policy. Mrs. Waldie having been the beneficiary in each case, her people will inherit the $3,000. As has been stated, she survived her husband an hour or so.

Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Please note it is made alone for Piles, and its action is positive and certain. Itching, painful, protruding or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Large nickled-copped glass jars 50 cents. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Lord's Day Act in Manitoba

Winnipeg, May 17.—A deputation consisting of over one hundred restaurant keepers, wholesale men, retailers, fruit men and others, waited upon the government yesterday morning and asked that certain clauses of the Lord's Day Act ne not enforced, as it was in the best interests of the general public.

The government promised the deputation every consideration possible, and intimated that after the decisions handed out at Toronto and Hamilton recently it would not be likely that restrictive measures would be enforced in Manitoba.

Woman in the German Pulpit

Berlin, May 17.—An Anglicized German woman, Gertrude von Petzold, who is pastor of a church at Leicester, preached in a public hall here yesterday to the scandalization of certain Christians in her audience. There was much hooting and uproar. One man denounced her as an enemy of the Christian Church, and shouted:—"It is a shame that women should be allowed to preach the gospel. The devil take Christianity of this kind." A woman in the audience shrieked hysterically that the preacher was anti-Christ. The assembly broke up in disorder.

SPORTING TOPICS

THE TURF.

A matched race has been made by Mr. Bert McCollum and Mr. William Whittom for $100 a side, between the black mare and Silver Queen. The owners are to drive their own horses, half-mile heats, best three in five. The race will be run this afternoon at the Driving Park at two o'clock. Much interest is being taken throughout the city in this race.

Lady Godiva at Coventry Fair

London, May 17.—The idea of clothing Lady Godiva in the forthcoming Coventry pageant has been abandoned. The advocates of the traditional Lady Godiva have won, and apart from some slight concessions to the proprietors fair modesty will ride the streets in the altogether. The concessions will take the form of flesh tights and some apparently incidental draperies. The role is likely to be filled by La Milo, a statuary poser, who has expressed her willingness to undertake it on assurance that her appearance will be purely for a charitable object."

The Mayor of Coventry, who opposed the decision, is now described as the saddest man in the city. He is rather scared by the turn events have taken. He has long been ruffled by the daily arrival of applications from lovely ladies, who have sent their photographs and measurements recommending themselves, and he now has a fine collection of beauties. When asked to show them he blushed violently and refused.

Spiritual Work in Canada

London, May 17.—The Archbishop of Canterbury at a meeting of the Society for the Propagation of Christian knowledge, again spoke of the immense and grave problem of Canada. Men undertaking spiritual work are going there in quite inadequate numbers. The difficulty is as great as any church had to contend with. The Bishop of Montreal said all the wit and wisdom of England would be needed to solve the problem of how to perpetuate the magnificent loyalty now animating Canadians.

WORKMEN SHOT DOWN BY SOLDIERS

Terrorists Escape After Raids at Lodz and Warsaw---Those Killed Were All Innocent Bystanders---Plot Against the Czar.

Lodz, Russian Poland, May 18.—Forty-five officials and workmen of Kuttner's spinning mill were shot down yesterday morning by a patrol of Cossacks because a band of Terrorists attacked a mail wagon in the neighborhood, killed a Cossack guard and wounded another Cossack and two post-office officials.

BYSTANDERS WERE SHOT.

Warsaw, May 18.—A band of Terrorists held up the city office of the Vistula Railroad in Dluga street yesterday, and got away with $5,000 after a severe fight, in which four persons were killed and nine others wounded. Soldiers fired a volley at the fleeing Terrorists, but only succeeded in hitting some bystanders, two of whom were killed and five wounded.

EMPEROR'S NARROW ESCAPE.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—Further details of the plot at Tsarskoe-ye-Selo against the life of his majesty the emperor indicate that his escape during Passion Week was very narrow.

The plot was deep-laid, and the conspirators were members of the emperor's personal escort. The arrest of one man, a Cossack sergeant, has made it possible to trace the conspiracy back for four months, and shows that preparations were being made on the second of February.

A WILD STORY.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The Paris correspondent of the Russ, in a despatch to his paper published yesterday, announced that he had obtained information from alleged authentic sources to the effect that the Franco-Japanese agreement now in course of negotiation, will contain conditions applying to the eventuality of a European war, and binding Japan to place at the disposal of France 300,000 men, while the British will land a contingent of 100,000 to 150,000.

Great Britain and France, it is added, not only guarantee the inviolability of Japanese territory, but but also engage to float several loans.

The statements are received with incredulity in diplomatic circles here.

New Police Officer is Appointed

Police Commissioners Make a Good Selection in the Choice of an Able and Experienced Man

The local police commissioners when faced with applications for members of the local police force had a hard proposition to solve, as several good men had applied of those applying, Mr. J. B. McDonald, a brother of the late Mr. Alfred McDonald, of Point St. Charles, has been given the appointment.

The new constable is well qualified for the position on the local force as he was for 22 years in the detective service of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad as a head detective. Whilst in pursuance of his work for the C. B. & Q. R., Mr. McDonald had headquarters in Chicago. Mr. McDonald was in charge of 206 miles of the aforesaid railroad, looking after thieves, car breakers and other toughs, his headquarters from which he was daily soon out in charge of from five to fifty men, was located at the corner of Canal and 16th street.

From an old file of a Chicago paper, now in The Times office, we learn that some years ago McDonald made, not only a sensational but a really clever arrest of silk thieves on the C. B. & Q. R. It seems that some $16000 worth of silk consigned to Chicago, en route to New York, was ascertained on arrival in Chicago to have been stolen out of the car. Mr. McDonald with a couple of employes were at once put on the job to find either the thieves, the silk or both. Mr. McDonald, with his men at once went to Minnedota, Ill., the last place the robbed car was billed at, previous to its arrival in Chicago. Here Mr. McDonald ascertained that the car had its seals properly fixed and the same was the record on arrival at Chicago. The party at Minnedota (a country way station) at once got busy searching for the stolen silk, having that the car arrived seemingly intact in Chicago. After a vigilant search Mr. McDonald saw the half inch end of a bolt of silk projecting out of a hay stack. Further investigations disclosed the fact that the whole $16,000 worth of silk was hidden beneath a haystack. Mr. McDonald and his employes expecting the immediate return of the thieves said how. Unfortunately the weather got cold and to use the words of the Chicago Record, "McDonald and his pals had to get in with some pig that had burrowed under the stack for warmth.

However, Mr. McDonald with good pluck awaited the arrival of the thieves. On the second night a wagon and team drove up. Two men jumped off and proceeded in quick order to load the silk onto their wagon. McDonald and his chums did not say a word until the robbers had the wagon fully loaded. Then the waiting detectives arose to make an arrest. At once the robbers whipped up their horses and tried toget away. Mr. McDonald tried to mount the wagon when one of the thieves six times successively snapped a revolver at his head. Fortunately, as afterwards discovered the thief's cartridges had been wet. Mr. McDonald called to one of his assistants who, at the command drew a bead on one of the robbers' horses, the bullet finding its billet behind the steed's right ear, dropping it instantly. Mr. McDonald at once placed the robbers under arrest, and took them to the city where they are assured of long sentences."

With a man of Mr. McDonald's experience on the local force, the city may be assured that crime, with a capital "C," will be reduced.

Carpets Cleaned Quickly and Well

The Peterborough Carpet Cleaning Works at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, whose wonderous machinery may daily be heard getting more dust out of carpets with less wear and tear on the fabric, in an hour, than seventeen dozen perspiring, sulphur breathing language employing husbands, armed with clubs or brooms could in a day, all working overtime and meeting with compliment from many of Peterborough's thrifty and exacting housewives. Their phone No. is 472a, and orders are filled at short notice. Old carpets are given the appearance of new without damage to the goods.

Inmate Escaped From Hospital

Toronto, May 15.—After five weeks of hospital treatment for scarlet fever, Winnifred Everett escaped from the Isolation Hospital in Riverdale on Monday night, walking to a Winchester car, later transferred to a Carlton, then to a Bloor and McCaul, and yesterday morning lay raving at her home on Lansdowne avenue which she reached after two hours spent in the midnight air. The fact that a semi-delirious patient could take such a journey across the city as this, clad only in a bathrobe and slippers, is a remarkable comment upon the lack of observation which is to be attributed to the many who must have seen her and allowed her pitiful condition to pass unnoticed.

Miss Everett lives at 813 Lansdowne avenue, just above the point at which a broken sewer has blocked the car lines. A stub line is run north to this point from Bloor street, but no night cars are run on it, and it was only through the kindness of the conductor of the McCaul car that the unfortunate girl was able to reach a point adjacent to her home. Had this man not run his car down to the break in order to accommodate her, she would have had to walk from Bloor north, and would doubtless have fallen helpless before she reached her home, for she was hardly able to stumble up the steps as it was.

The circumstances surrounding Miss Everett's escape from the hospital are somewhat remarkable. She had been for five weeks a patient, and must have been in an extremely weak condition after being so long in bed. She had been very anxious to get up and the time was close at hand when this would have been possible. It seems that she was determined to get up Monday, but was refused. She therefore began to plan her escape which she managed to carry out.

Remarkable Invention

FOR THE

CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. Love, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopaecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots) without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. Moore, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the EVANS VACUUM CAP is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent post free, on application.

THE DIFFICULTY OF GOVERNING THROUGH A COALITION

The Liberal Government of Great Britain, in spite of its large majority, suffers the weakness of most of the continental ministries that have to govern through a coalition, instead of through a compact and homogeneous party.

It cannot commend a sincere majority for any measure and is at the mercy of the House of Lords. That body learned from its old experience with home rule that it can throw out bills that are passed by the House of Commons without the support of a majority of the nation. It threw out the educational bill of this session, and it can treat the home rule bill in the same way, if it be thought worth the trouble. But the bill is such an imperfect and feeble measure of home rule, that the House of Lords may be content to let it stand.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman owes his majority to three important factions besides the traditional Whigs and the Gladstone remnant. Each pledged him to an act of legislation to which the others are indifferent, though they vote together by party discipline. He promised home rule to the Irish party, secular education to the Dissenters and relief legislation to the Labor party.

Neither of these measures could command a majority of the House of Commons on its own merits. Neither could be passed except by trading votes with supporters of the others. Neither has the strength of a moral majority. That is the weakness of all legislation by a coalition. Continental ministries manage it because their work does not have to run the gauntlet of a second house.

Almost the only power left to the British House of Lords is that of throwing out bills that lack a moral majority. It has repeatedly done this with impunity. Ministers so treated fear to appeal to the country on a merely factional issue, on which the party is not united. They have generally taken their medicine.

Probably Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman will make up his mind to do this on home rule as well as education, if the House of Lords should throw out the former.

No Anxiety in West

Winnipeg, May 17.—The weather this week has been magnificent all through the West. Reports from leading wheat-raising districts show that excellent progress is being made with seeding, and a leading grain authority asserts that fully fifty per cent. of the crop is in. In certain parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan the percentage is even larger.

Advices from the Dakotas, however, indicate that the shortage there will be twenty-five per cent.

Old-timers say that on the average the best yields of wheat have come from grain that was sown late and no anxiety whatever is felt.

What Does It Mean?

Dr. Hamilton Gives a Full and Satisfactory Explanation.

Look at your tongue!

Sometimes it's heavily coated sometimes it's clear and red.

Study this out and you'll find some interference with the functional activity of the body.

This means the bowels are not regular, the liver is sluggish and the blood is contaminated.

Strong cathartic pills act so destructively on the intestines as to provoke deathly sickness; this often frightens people from taking medicine when they badly need it.

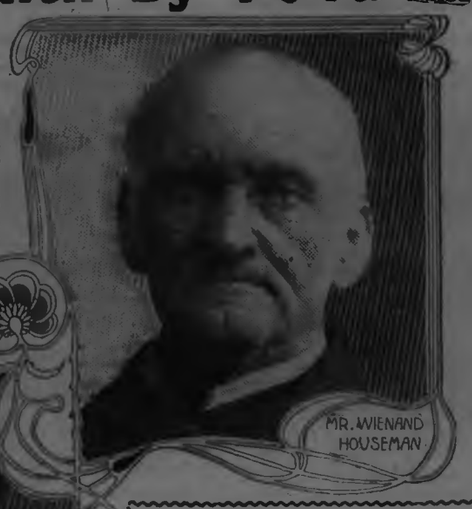
To the multitude of dangerous purgatives now on the market, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a notable exception, they neither gripe, cause sickly feeling or headache, yet they cleanse and purify the entire system in one night. No other laxative acts with such quickness and certainty. Giving proper stimulus to the liver and kidneys, strengthening the stomach and lending valuable aid to digestion, it's small wonder that such marvelous results accompany Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Geo. O'Shaugnessy, of Amherst, N. S., writes; "Last winter I worked in a lumber camp and neglected my health. I was dreadfully constipated and had a headache that fairly made me reel at times. I was sick and miserable, and hadn't the slightest ambition to work or stir around. I felt heavy and dull and had a bad taste in my mouth. I sent into this city for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which I knew were good for my condition. They fixed me up very quickly and have kept me in good condition ever since. There are other men in the camp that use Dr. Hamilton's Pills also. They say they wouldn't be without the pills for ten times their price."

Every dealer in the land sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills—25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

Slaves to Spring Catarrh Restored to Health By Pe-ru-na.

Honest People Tell Their Experiences. Spring,—the Time to Cure Catarrh.



Mr. J. Q. Craig, a well-known athlete, whose home address is Bridgeton, N. J., writes from the Hotel Donavin, Delaware, Ohio, as follows:

"I can say of Peruna that, as a tonic for the spring of the year, it is the best for athletes, and as such I can give it a hearty recommendation."

Peruna does not fail to prevent the lassitude and languor incident to the approach of warm weather, if taken in time.

Mr. Wienand Houseman, a prominent and aged citizen of Seneca Falls, N. Y., is the inventor of a number of implements of modern warfare. He writes:

"For several years past, I and my family used your Peruna as a tonic and for the purification of the system in general and find that it is an excellent medicine to restore weak nerves to a healthy condition."

Mrs. John E. Mills, 86 Mulberry St., Lynn, Mass., writes:

"I have been troubled with catarrh since I was ten years old. At times my head troubled me so that I was obliged to stay in a dark room. Nothing helped me and my physician said I could never be cured.

"I began taking Peruna this spring and find myself greatly benefited by it. I have not had an attack since I took my first bottle. I think in time it will cure me. It has already improved my appetite and my general health and I have gained twenty pounds in three months.

"I have recommended it to several of my friends, who also find it very beneficial. I advise any one troubled with catarrh to use Peruna."

Mrs. A. S. Rucker, 1824 Cedar street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I wish to tell you what Peruna has done for me. In the spring of 1902 I was very sick and so weak I could scarcely be up. I was alarmed at my condition.

"I had a bad cough for some time and I tried several cough medicines, but grew worse all the time. I knew if I did not get relief, I would soon go into consumption.

"So I decided to try Peruna. I had confidence in it before I took it and found it was just the medicine I needed, for in a short time my cough ceased and my strength returned.

"I have enjoyed better health since taking it than I had for several years previous."

Spring Catarrh.

Almost every one has come to believe that spring is a season that brings derangements of the body dependent on blood impurities.

This belief is an old one, is nearly universal, and has arisen, not as the result of the teachings of the medical fraternity, but has been learned in the bitter school of experience.

Nervous Depression.

Depression of the nervous system at the approach of spring is a fertile source of blood impurities.

There are general lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, continual tired feelings, with irregular appetite, and sometimes loss of sleep.

That Tired Feeling.

That tired feeling, which is the natural result of the depressing effect of warm weather immediately after the invigorating cold of winter, quickly disappears when Peruna is taken.

The Correct Remedy.

Peruna meets every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all their varied peculiarities. Peruna invigorates the system, rejuvenates the feelings, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep.

Do Not Delay.

Get a bottle of Peruna when the first languid feelings make themselves apparent in the spring. Take it according to the directions on the bottle. Continue this treatment through the first months of spring

This course of treatment is no experiment. It has helped thousands. Why should it not help you?

A Spring Tonic.

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain, and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Everyone who has tried it has had the same experience as Mr. Warren M. Taylor, 1216 8th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., who, in a recent letter, writes:

"I suffered from a general feeling of lassitude, with occasional creeping chills, followed sometimes by fever and biliousness.

"These symptoms manifested themselves mostly in the spring and fall.

"I suffered this way for about seven years.

"Last spring I began using Peruna and followed the instructions as set forth in one of Dr. Hartman's booklets which I picked up in a drug store and to my great joy I noticed that within a week I was nearly cured.

"At the end of two months I was entirely cured and feel as though I have a new lease of life."

Nature's Assistance.

Spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews herself every spring. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective.

A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will often relieve old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years.

A Word of Advice.

To those who have been afflicted with chronic catarrh we wish to say that the spring season affords you a splendid opportunity to get rid of your disease.

It may be you have been afflicted for several years; you may have tried different remedies. Perhaps you have become discouraged.

Now Is Your Opportunity.

This failure was during the winter months. But now is your opportunity. Nature comes to your assistance at this season.

Just help her a little and she will bring you out of the quagmire in which you have been floundering so long. Give Nature a little assistance, lest her struggles be in vain.

A Typical Case.

Geo. M. Fillmore, formerly 1st Lieut. 3rd U. S. Artillery, writes from 909 L St., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I brought forward from winter into spring a sickening case of catarrh which was making existence miserable for me, until I was induced to try a bottle of Peruna.

"An immediate improvement gave me hope, if not relief. I kept up taking Peruna and it has so strengthened and relieved me that I am now confident of a cure. I heartily endorse Peruna for catarrhal affections and as a tonic for their weakening effects."—Geo. M. Fillmore.

A short course of Peruna now will be just in time. During the month of April you will find the strategic time to rid yourself of chronic catarrh, one of the most persistent, stubborn diseases in the whole list of human ailments.

After you have tried it you will say Peruna is positively the best spring medicine you have ever used.

A great many years of extensive trials of this remedy in this class of derangements have demonstrated its efficiency.

Numerous Testimonials.

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Peruna has rescued people from the ravages of spring catarrh, and put them on a good, solid foundation of health.

We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving. No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Drowned in Vat

Walkerville, May 17. — William Kenney, aged 22, employed in the mash-room of the Hiram Walker and Sons' distillery, was drowned in a large fermenting vat. Kenney, having finished some work he was performing, started for another part of the building, and slipped on the small ledge over the fermenting vat, which it is necessary to cross in getting out of the mash room. Foreman Chittum found a Derby hat and saw a hand clutching a broom protruding from the semi-liquid mass of mash in the vat. Kenney was dead when he was pulled out.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independant,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5280 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 20 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

Can't Hold Down the Price

MUCH LONGER

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable. 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

A limited number of shares at the very low price of

FIVE CENTS PER SHARE

Use the Wire. Buy before the advance. Be one of the lucky ones.

You Should Buy Gold Bond Stock Because--

You are getting in on the ground floor.

This stock will never sell for less; and may sell to a hundred times more.

This Company owns some of the best ground in Colorado.

WE ADVISED THE PURCHASE OF Golden Message stock at 10 cents—now selling at 25 cents and not a great amount can be bought at that price. Don't wait; start your order today.

An up to date Raffles had struck the countryside and was having things all his own way. Owners of villas armed themselves against him, and country constables watched the highways, but Raffles escaped detection and continued his unlawful way. The male population for ten miles around could see no romance in his doings and threatened to shoot him on sight. As a natural result, the women, and more especially the young ladies, made a hero of him and declared that it was the most romantic thing they had ever heard of.

Ravensrest had not yet received a visit from the gentlemanly robber. Fred Long, son of the widow and owner of the villa and its acres, reasoned it out that Raffles had heard of him, his firearms and his eternal vigilance. The mother hoped the rascal would not come, but expected him nightly. The daughter, Judith, who had just turned twenty, was nervous and heroic by turns, and it was left for Aunt Martha to fret and worry and wake up a dozen times every night shaking with fear. She had a few mining bonds in her trunk, also a few pieces of ancient jewelry, and after the robberies began she was insistent upon going to the city to place her valuables in safe deposit. A start was made one morning, accompanied by the widowed sister and Fred, and they were hardly on their way when things began to happen.

Judith didn't care to make one of the party and was therefore left behind to swing in her hammock and read the latest novel. She had just become interested in its pages when along came Constable Drew, who was supposed to hold all the clews thus far gathered and to be hot on the trail of a dozen more. He stopped his buggy to announce:

"Well, that fellow got into Wilkinson's last night and fairly cleaned out the place, though there were three men and two dogs keeping watch. I'm hot after him and expect to get him before night. If any suspicious characters should be seen sneaking around here, I hope you will let me know. This here Raffles spots off his houses in the daytime and enters them at night."

As the constable jogged along and Ruth returned to her book a young man who looked as much like Raffles as anybody else came sauntering along the turnpike from the depot and had approached within a quarter of a mile of the house. Soon after leaving the depot he met old Mr. Jones and asked his way to the Agnew place. Mr. Jones had been deaf for forty years, but pride prevented his admitting his ailment. He didn't know whether he had been asked who was governor of the state or if the tomato crop promised a good yield; but, wanting to be civil, he told the inquirer to turn in at the first drive he came to on the left. The pedestrian came to a drive on his left and turned in under the old walnut trees.

He didn't act like a man who was expecting to see anybody in particular. From the front of the house, after gazing for five minutes, he passed to the rear and then walked slowly along to the stables and the garage. It was then that one of the maids came running across the lawn to Miss Judith and gasped out:

"It's that Raffles, and we shall all have our throats cut!"

"Who— What!" was the exclamation as the young lady tumbled out of the hammock in her haste.

"I saw him when he came in. He's been spotting off the house, as your brother calls it. He's gone now to spot off the barns. He wants a horse and buggy to take his plunder away. Just to think that we must all have our throats cut from ear to ear in broad daylight! Shall I bring you one of your brother's guns?"

"Y-yes, but I never fired a gun. Perhaps the sight of it will scare him, though."

As Judith looked toward the garage she saw the stranger come to the door after evidently having inspected the interior. Then he disappeared again. It flashed across her mind that he was after the big new auto, and, gun in hand, she made a run for it. The big entrance doors of the brick building were closed, but the side door stood open. In a minute she had reached it, slammed it shut and turned the key. Raffles was a prisoner at last. There was a skylight to the building, but no windows. The prisoner was as safe as if in a village lockup. A few seconds after the door was shut he began kicking on the other side. His voice was also raised in protest, but was heeded not. The gardener and the servant girls came on the run, and the gardener took the gun from Judith, squared off at the door and called out:

"Now, then, it's Tim O'Grady you've got to do with instead of the tenderest hearted and best looking young lady in all America, and the sooner you understand that I'm thirsting for your blood the better it will be for the both of us."

"I say there's a mistake!" came in faint tones through the heavy door.

"You bet your life there is!" replied Tim. "You didn't think there was a man around the place who has shot seven different robbers in his time and cut down no end of thieves in their proud days. You may be a desperate man, but I'll have you know that Timothy O'Grady is desperater."

"Could we have made a mistake?" asked Miss Judith as she caught the prisoner's tones. "He sounds like a gentleman."

"Never a mistake, young lady," replied the gardener as he marched to and fro before the door. "It's the gentlemanly Raffles we've got inside, and it's Raffles who'll stay there till the boy can find and bring Constable Drew and forty other men to take him out and send him to prison for life. Away with you, Teddy. I know that something was going to happen when I got up this morning feeling like—"

Judith and the servant girls with-drew, and the boy hastened in search of help, while the gardener paced up and down and halted at intervals to assure the prisoner that the slightest move to regain his liberty would result in sudden death. For a time Raffles seemed desirous of maintaining a conversation and forcing explanations, but he was discouraged so often and with such bloodthirstiness that he finally gave it up.

An hour later, by means of the telephone, two bicyclists and an auto, Teddy managed to get into communication with Constable Drew. At 2 o'clock that official appeared, accompanied by a crowd of men and boys and dogs to the number of forty. Most of the men were armed, the dogs ready to bite and the boys to yell. Miss Judith stood under a tree and told her story, and when it was finished the constable looked about on the crowd and said:

"If this hain't a clew, then my ten years as a constable goes for nothing. I want you all to take notice that it was my stopping here and giving the gal p'inters that has resulted in the capture of the desperatest and dastardest criminal in the annals of crime."

Then the crowd moved on the garage. Raffles had been very quiet for the last half hour. There was a ten minute discussion as to whether holes should be cut in the door and the prisoner shot down without mercy or whether he should be given a chance to surrender and go to state prison for life. It was the pleading of Miss Judith that decided the constable in favor of the latter course.

The question had just been decided when Widow Long, her son and two sisters arrived from the city, and Fred proceeded to take charge. Under his directions, with the constable a good second and the gardener a shaky third, the force was formed in a crescent and the garage door thrown open.

"Resistance to the law means death!" shouted the leader as he stepped back and made ready with his shotgun.

There was no resistance. Out from the sweat box in which he had been imprisoned for hours came a demure and perspiring young man of eight and twenty. After one long look at him Fred Lang threw up his hands and gasped out:

"Holy smoke, but it's Paul Stevens!"

Paul Stevens, the wealthy young bachelor and clubman! He had come down to look over the Agnew place, which was for sale, and the deaf old Mr. Jones had directed him wrongly. Of course the constable and his crowd departed; of course Paul was introduced all around; of course he stayed to dinner.

The Agnew villa was not bought until a year later, though the "prisoner" carried an option on it. He wanted to be sure of a certain condition before buying, and that was announced several weeks since his engagement to Judith Long.

The garage now being erected on the place will have telephonic communication with the house, so that any one suddenly and illegally and unlawfully imprisoned therein may use the wire to vouch for his identity and respectability.

One of Those Fables.

One day the Fox made complaint to the Lion and had the Hare summoned before the king of beasts. When she had arrived the Lion said:

"As I understand this case, the Fox complains that the Hare runs away from his society and thereby shows a distrust of him and causes him to feel humiliated."

"Yes, that is exactly the case," replied Reynard. "Only two days ago I followed her for over a mile, but she would not heed my voice. It is not a bit sociable of her."

"Is this true?" was asked of the Hare.

"It is, but you must know that the Foxes prey on the Hares and that if I do not run away I stand to be eaten."

"I have no thoughts of eating her," said the Fox. "In fact, it is so long since I have devoured a Hare that I no longer care for the taste. You, O King of Beasts, have commanded that all the inhabitants of the forest dwell together in harmony. I simply desire to carry out my part, but how can I if the Hare looks upon me as a bloody minded villain?"

"That is true," said the Lion after a moment's thought, "and I shall arrange to have one of the Hare's legs tied up, so that she cannot run so fast."

"Alas, it will be my death if you do!" wailed the Hare.

"'Tis a decision that shows your wisdom, O Lion," added the Fox, with a sly grin on his face.

"Yes, it shall be done," continued the Lion, "but that you may not be tempted to eat her I shall order that you wear a muzzle while abroad in the forest. That's all, I believe."

What She Wanted to Know.

"You are going to marry a rich widower who has three children."

"Oh, I know that," replied the beautiful girl, "but I'd like to find out what we are going to do with the children, for, as he says, they certainly need a mother's care."—St. Louis Republic.

Strength in Vegetable Growth.

"Strength is not a thing usually attributed to maidenhair fern," remarked a local florist, "and yet if its roots have not sufficient room they will break the strongest flowerpots. Blades of grass will force the curbstones between which they spring out of place. Indeed, the strength of vegetable growth is wonderful. The most striking example is the island of Aldabra, to the northwest of Madagascar. The island is becoming smaller and smaller through the action of the mangroves growing at the foot of the cliffs. The roots break off immense pieces of stone, which fall into the sea. Into the gaps thus formed the waves eat their way. In a few years it is likely that by the combined action of the waters and mangroves the island will disappear."—Philadelphia Record.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Mr. Small opened the door, and Bradley, looking past him, saw the side of a large house and a lighted doorway, with two female figures, one plump and the other slender, standing in it. From behind them the lamplight streamed warm and bright and sent their shadows almost to his feet.

"Come on, bub," said the stage driver. "Here's where you git out. Miss Prissy," he shouted, "here's your new boarder."

CHAPTER II.

THE plump woman, whom Mr. Small had addressed as "Miss Prissy," was counting into the stage driver's palm a sum in small change from a portentous black wallet that fastened with a strap.

"Good night," said the driver, pocketing the money, with a grunt and a jingle. Like the boy, he had been very careful not to step off the mat. "Good night, Miss Tempy. Snow's lettin' up a little mite. Guess 'twill be clear by mornin'. Good night, Brad."

The plump lady closed the door behind him just in time to shut out the opening notes of the "Sweet By and By." Then she dropped the hook into the staple, wound the leather strap carefully about the wallet, placed the latter in a compartment of a tall chest of drawers in the corner, turned the key upon it and put the key under the alabaster candlestick on the mantel. Then she turned to the boy, who, holding his carpet bag with both hands, still stood uneasily on the mat, while the slim lady fidgeted in front of him.

"Bradley," said the plump lady—she was dressed in some sort of black material that rustled and wore a lace collar, jet earrings and a breastpin with a braided lock of hair in the center of it—"Bradley, we're real glad to see you. I'm Miss Priscilla; this is my sister, Miss Temperance."

"Yes, Bradley," coincided "Miss Tempy," "we're real glad to see you." She was the younger of the two and was gowned in what the boy learned later was her "brown poplin." Her hair was not worn plain, like her sister's, but had a little bunch of curls over each ear. She also wore a hair breastpin, but her earrings were gold.

Bradley shook the extended hands, Miss Prissy's red and dimpled and Miss Tempy's thin and white, with two old fashioned rings on the fingers.

"Won't you—won't you set down?" ventered Miss Tempy after a rather awkward pause.

"Why, yes, of course," said Miss Prissy, "and take your things right off—do."

Bradley placed the carpetbag on the corner of the mat and pulled off the shabby overcoat. The jacket and trousers beneath were also shabby, but it was at his shoes that Miss Prissy glanced, and, oddly enough, their condition served to break the formality.

"My goodness me!" she ejaculated. "Jest look at his poor feet, Tempy Allen! Come right over to the stove this minute and take off those shoes. They're soppin' wet through."

"No, ma'am," protested the boy. "They ain't, honest. They only look so."

"Don't tell me!" commanded Miss Prissy. "Go right over to the stove this minute."

Bradley reluctantly obeyed, stepping gingerly across the spotless oilcloth and taking as long strides as possible. It did not add to his comfort to see Miss Tempy shake the melting snow into the center of the rope mat, fold the latter carefully together and disappear with it into the kitchen.

Miss Prissy piloted him to the chintz covered rocker by the big "airtight" stove. Then she proceeded to unlace the patched brogans, commenting in an undertone upon the condition of the stockings beneath.

"I'm 'fraid," said Bradley fearfully, "that I've got some snow water on your floor, ma'am."

"Don't say a word. Thank goodness your feet ain't so wet as I thought they was. Put 'em right on the rail of the stove there while I go up to the garret and get those slippers of father's I'll be right back."

She hurried out of the room just as her sister entered it by the other door.

"Now, set right still," said Miss Tempy, bustling about, with the steaming teakettle in her hand. "I'm goin' to make you some pepper tea. There's nothin' in the world like pepper tea when you're likely to catch cold."

"Pepper tea" was a new prescription for the boy, and he watched with interest while Miss Tempy turned some milk into a bowl, flooded it with boiling water, added a spoonful of sugar and vigorously shook the pepper box over the mess.

"There!" she said. "Now, drink that, every drop. Ain't you hungry?"

Bradley, with tears in his eyes, the result of the first swallow of pepper tea, gaspingly protested that he wasn't hungry, not very. The sight and smell of the loaded supper table were so tempting that the denial was rather half hearted.

"Not very! When did you have anything to eat last?"

"Mr. Bartlett—he's the s'lectman at Wellmouth gave me a sandwich at the depot 'fore I started, ma'am, and I bought a turnover at Harniss."

"My sakes! Prissy"—to her sister, who came rustling in—"he hasn't et a thing but a sandwich and a turnover since morning. Now, come right over to the table, Bradley, and set down."

As the boy ate he looked about the room. It was a big room, with a low ceiling, spotlessly whitewashed. The oilcloth on the floor was partially covered with braided rag mats with carpet centers. On the window shades were wonderful tinted pictures of cities and mountains. The table was black walnut, and there were five rush seated chairs, each in its place against the wall and looking as if it were glued there. The sixth of the set he occupied. Then there was the chintz covered rocker and another rocker painted black, with a worn picture of a ship at sea on the back. There was another ship over the face of the tall wooden clock in the corner. This craft was evidently the Flying Dutchman, for every time the clock ticked it rolled heavily behind a fence of tin waves, but didn't advance an inch. On the walls were several works of art, including a spatter work motto, a wreath made of seashells under a glass and an engraving showing a boat filled with men, women and children rowed by a solemn individual in his shirt sleeves, moving over a placid sheet of water toward an unseen port.

"Cap'n Titcomb," remarked Bradley, whose bashfulness was wearing off, "came over in the coach with me tonight."

The effect of this announcement was remarkable. Miss Prissy looked at Bradley shook the extended hands.

Miss Tempy, and the latter returned the look. Strange to say, both colored.

"Cap'n Titcomb?" faltered Miss Prissy. "Cap'n Ezra Titcomb?"

"Yes, ma'am. He talked to me 'most all the way. I liked him first rate."

"Why—why, I do declare! I didn't know the cap'n was expected, did you, Tempy?"

"No, I'm sure I didn't!" exclaimed the flustered younger sister. "Did he—did he tell you why he was comin', Bradley?"

"No, ma'am, but I heard him tell the man that drove the coach that he had shore leave for a week 'cause his schooner was laid up for repairs. He said he knew you, though, and that he was comin' round to see me tomorrer."

This remark caused quite as much embarrassment and agitation as that concerning the captain's presence in the coach. The two ladies again glanced hurriedly at each other.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed Miss Prissy. "And the settin' room not swept and the windows not washed! I'll have to get up early tomorrer mornin'. I'm so glad I fixed that ruffle on my alpaca," she added in an absentminded soliloquy.

"And I must finish that tidy for the

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1631.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $35,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

B. B. MIGHTON & CO.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1897 to 1905 inclusive, the province produced 33,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 178,000,000 pounds valued at $21,[illegible] with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,100,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Write us for information and list of stocks which we have for sale.

Winter Drills Will Soon be Held

As is generally known the main percentage of the drilling given our local troops is done during the spring and summer months. With the completion of our new armories there is likely that there will be an important change made in the drill system. When the armories are completed, nearly all the drilling will be done in the winter. The spacious floor of the new hall will make winter drill available.

The armories will be well heated, comfortable and suited for winter drilling. The 57th Regiment, 24th Field Battery, Dragoons, and all other local military corps will have their quarters at the new drill hall.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE CITY OF FORT WILLIAM

WITH ILLIMITABLE POSSIBILITIES

The Second Greatest Shipping Point in the Dominion of Canada

Midway between the great East, and the vast West. The opportunities of a man's life is presented at the present time in real estate investments in Fort William, no surer investment anywhere today, than in this City at the head of the Five Great Lakes. If you want to make money NOW is your chance. We have made money for all our investors, and can make money for you.

We are Offering lots in

"The River Park Addition"

Which is only a short distance from the centre of Fort William. It is nice, high and dry properties, and, no doubt, will repeat the history of other half-acres, close to this property. Three years ago these half-acres close to River Park were sold at from $45 to $75 per half-acre. Today we are selling them from $1,200 to $2,500 per half-acre, according to location. Think of the advance in 3 years. We believe that "River Park Lots" will repeat the history of these other half-acres.

"RIVER PARK" is a subdivison of lot No. 7, Concession No. 3, Fort William. It is subdivided into half-acre blocks which are selling at from $250 to $275 per half-acre, on the terms of 1-4 cash, 1-4 in 6 months 1-4 in 12 months and 1-4 in 18 months. Interest at 7 per cent on the unpaid principal.

Why River Park Lots Should Double Themselves In One Year

IT IS SITUATED on one of the best streets in Fort William today, being on the north side of Arthur Street, which runs direct from the centre of Fort William out a distance of 16 or 18 miles to almost the foot of the Kakabeka Falls, making it the leading road to the city. Arthur Street is travelled by all the farmers from the outlying Townships, and it is also the pleasure driveway of our City.

THE RIVER PARK has now electric lights and telephone communication. The City of Fort William is building towards River Park fast. If property three years ago was selling at $75 per half-acre, and if it has advanced to from $1,200 to $2,500 per half-acre, WHY WILL NOT River Park increase equally as fast, when it is in such an ideal location. The Grand Trunk Pacific bought their right-of-way through the west portion of this property, affording track frontage for manufacturers.

DO NOT FORGET that the C. P R. handled 2,090,000 tons of freight during 1906, in Fort William. Over $500,000 was collected in Customs in 1906, and over 850 vessels arrived in the Harbor in 1906. There was over 750,000 tons of coal handled, and over 175,000 tons of steel rails received at Fort William in 1906.

The Grand Trunk Pacific will expend over $400,000,000 in 1907 here. The C.N.R. have 3,000 miles of railroad, bringing freight into Fort William. The C.P R. have 5,000 miles of railroad, bringing freight into Fort William, and the Grand Trunk Pacific also have their Terminals at Fort William.

There were over 51,000,000 bushels of grain handled at this Port in 1906.

The above is just a little illustration of what the City of Fort William is doing, and it cannot help being one of the greatest Cities in Canada in the near future. Look at your map, and size it up for yourself, and we feel sure that you will be convinced that there is money in Fort William real estate.

Write or wire at our expense and we will pick you out one or more of these valuable lots. Price $250 and $275. Terms 1-4 cash, and the balance in 6, 12, and 18 months.

Rheumatism

Eats Up Strength
Racks the Joints
Prevents Sleep

UNCHECKED, it Finally Strikes the Heart and Kills Its Victim.

It originates in the blood and develops most quickly in the system of persons who are run down and lacking in vitality.

The only specific of ALL forms of Rheumatism is Ferrozone, which is a perfect solvent for uric acid and a splendid stimulant for the kidneys and liver.

No remedy is so successful as Ferrozone. It has never failed to cure, because it attacks the cause of the disease in the blood. It neutralizes the uric acid poisons, quickens the sluggish circulation, and relieves the system of all irritating matter.

Every distressing symptom is cured swollen muscles and aching joints are relieved of their pain. The disease will not return if once cured by Ferrozone, which does its work thoroughly. Its cures are lasting.

Unlike other treatments, Ferrozone does not depress the heart or deaden the nerves. It rebuilds the system, promotes better health, establishes good appetite, sound sleep and freedom from weakening pains and aches.

The perfection of all rheumatic remedies is found in Ferrozone. It is in tablet form easy to take, convenient to carry, guaranteed to cure, and costs only 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists; don't fail to test Ferrozone.

Arrangements Complete at Fire Hall

Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, has arranged for caretakers for the firemen's bed rooms. For a day or two it looked as if there might be trouble, because no one had been appointed to make the beds. Ald. Johnston has arranged with the drivers to look after that work.

Possible Local G. T. R. Changes

It is now rumored that the G.T.R. is about to call for tenders for new freight sheds to be erected here. It was stated that the company had purchased more land on Aylmer street, south of King, and will put up big sheds close to the street.

Upon making enquiry at the G.T.R. offices yesterday morning it was learned that there was nothing in the rumor. All that could be ascertained was that at present it is intended that the J. J. McBain warehouse be removed, and the new building put up there.

Free Samples of "Preventics" and a booklet on Colds will be gladly mailed you, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., simply to prove merit. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cure tablets. —The engagement is announced of Miss Katie Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Black, Albert street, Orillia, to Mr. Lawson Whitehead, the well known lacrosse player, now in Toronto. The wedding will take place in a week's time.

—The Ontario Bank has begun two actions at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, to recover the amounts of promissory notes. S. D. Baldwin and Baldwin & Co. of Davenport, are alleged to owe $1,703, and O. T. Hezzlewood, who gave his note for $696, is the other defendant.

Mr. Gillespie Handicapped by Strike

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, the well known local cheese buyer and a member of Messrs. White & Gillespie, the George street grocers, is among those in trouble through the longshoremen's strike in Montreal. This local merchant had 200 cheese, and part of them loaded on the car for Montreal, but he has had to make new arrangements, and at noon yesterday did not know what he was going to do.

Mr. R. H. Jackson at Bels Creek

Mr. H. Jackson, formerly of the Crozier Hotel, and his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Stroud, have gone to Drown's Landing, for the summer, and will be the first cottagers to locate on Kawartha Lakes this year. Mr. Jackson will open his cottage at Bels Creek and will paddle his stores across the lake. It is the earnest wish of all her friends that the bracing air of the back lakes will bring back the roses to Mrs. Stroud's face.

No Action on Local Water Power

A deputation from the city council waited upon Hon. Adam Beck of Toronto yesterday morning in regard to the city's proposal to acquire an existing electric power. Legislation for this purpose was secured at the last session of the legislature, the purchase to be subjected to the approval of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Yesterday's meeting was in the nature of a conference with Mr. Beck regarding the matter. Nothing was decided upon.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Mr. R. J. Munro Brings Gold Brick

Mr R. J. Munro, the popular proprietor of the local hotel of that name, has returned from a visit to the Star of the East mine at Kalador, and brought back with him a gold bar worth about $250. Mr. Munro has forwarded it to the mint at Philadelphia, where a similar bar was also sent a couple of weeks ago. Mr. Munro stated that the ore is turning out well, the percentage of gold bearing is higher than at any previous time, A new mill and another engine are being added.

Former Citizen Recognizes a Dog

Mr. A. D. Brown, an old Peterborough boy, but now at the head of a large Chicago publishing house, has given a most flattering account of his recent impression of this city. Whilst looking out of a window on his way up town he saw many familiar names over the lintels. In reference to the advance and progress of the city as represented by its stores and manufacturing industries, we are told that, midst some emotion he recognized an old carriage dog, a stranger for twenty years, by a peculiar spot on its left ear.

ALCOHOL IN SICKNESS.

At one of the London public hospitals a special point is made of giving alcohol to the patients as rarely and sparely as possible; and each time that one of the physicians does so he submits a special entry of the reasons that actuated him. In the thirty-two years of the existence of the hospital alcohol has only been given seventy-one times. The cases received are exactly like those received by all the other hospitals. For 1904 they numbered 1337 in-patients only. The death-rate among these was 7.3 per cent. For the same year the average death-rate among the other London public hospitals was 9.1 per cent. Therefore the use of alcohol in sickness is not to be regarded as a necessity. Although most physicians prescribe alcohol in solution with drugs for their patients—there was one physician of national reputation who did not believe in using alcohol. Many years ago when Dr. R. V. Pierce decided to put up his valuable "Prescription" for the diseases of women in a "ready to use" form—he used as a solvent and preservative chemically pure glycerine of proper strength, which is a better solvent and preservative of the active medicinal principles residing in most of our indigenous or native plants than is alcohol. Dr. Pierce found that the glycerine, besides being entirely harmless, possesses intrinsic medicinal properties, of great value.

No woman who is suffering from inflammation, from the pains and drains incident to womanhood can afford to be without Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. An honest medicine which has the largest number of cures to its credit and a deserved popularity for two score years all over the United States. Dr. Pierce tells you just what is contained in his "Favorite Prescription."

ITS INGREDIENTS ARE:

Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Lady's Slipper root (Cypripedium Pubescens), Black Cohosh root (Cimicifuga Racemosa), Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica), Blue Cohosh root (Caulophyllum Thalictroides), Chemically Pure Glycerine.

Among the prominent medical men of the country who recommend the above ingredients as superior remedies for nervous conditions depending upon disorders of the womanly system and for the cure of those catarrhal conditions in the affected parts are: Edwin M. Hale, M. D., Professor of Materia Medica, at Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of the American Dispensatory, Woman and her Diseases; Professor John M. Scudder, Doctors Hale, Ives, Wood, Bartholow and others. Address a postal card to Dr. Pierce for a complete treatise on the subject—sent to you without cost.

DR. PIERCE'S PLEASANT PELLETS

cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation of the bowels, loss of appetite, coated tongue, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

Persons who are subject to any of these troubles should never be without a vial of the "Pleasant Pellets" at hand. In proof of their superior excellence it can truthfully be said that they are always adopted as a household remedy after the first trial.

One little "Pellet" is a laxative, two are cathartic. They regulate, invigorate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day. To relieve the distress arising from overeating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They're tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules, scarcely larger than mustard seeds.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

How to live in health and happiness is the general theme of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This great work on medicine and hygiene, containing over 1000 pages and more than 700 illustrations, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 50 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume, or only 31 stamps for the book in paper covers.

Local Citizen on Gasoline Prices

Yesterday a prominent automobile owner and operator in this city, called at The Times office, and raised a strenuous objection to the existing combine price charge made for gasoline. This gentleman noted that gasoline, on the other side, costs only ten cents per gallon. He claimed that whilst the duty has been removed on this product, owners or operators of motor cars are charged now 40 cents per gallon. He added that should one put in an order for a gallon or a hogshead of gasoline to headquarters, those in control of the combine simply smile sickly and hand over the order to the American representative of the producers there who make a big profit in filling the order and who seeks the buyer for four hundred per cent. above cost price. The Canadian papers rebel very naturally what they call the extortion and practical swindle put on the people by the Rockefellers and other American oil magnates. It is now up to the press of this country to try and put an end to this extortion.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

Mr. Thos. Rehill Gets a Contract

The many friends and numerous customers of Mr. Thos. Rehill, the local ice dealer, and vendor of lime, lumber, etc., will be pleased to learn that he has been awarded the contract for the excavation work in connection with the new Normal School and commenced work yesterday. Mr. Rehill has a number of his splendid teams and men and work. Mr. Rehill also had the contract for the excavation at the North Ward school, where a six-room addition is being erected. This work was most satisfactorily done and the foundation is now being built.

Czar Sanctions It.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—An imperial order was issued yesterday creating the Princess Anastasia of Montenegro, who was married May 12 at Yalta to the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholajevitch, a grand duchess and announcing the emperor's sanction of their union. This was the first official reference to the marriage, of which no formal cognizance hitherto has been taken, on account of the attitude of the Orthodox Church towards the remarriage of divorced persons, the grand duchess having been divorced from her first husband, Prince George Romanowski, Duke of Leuchtenberg. The newly married couple are still at Yalta. Yesterday they received a deputation of Mohammedan villagers, who presented them with the traditional bread and salt, and assured the grand duke that in future, as in the past, they always would be true to the emperor and his family.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. HIGHWAY ROBBERY ON SATURDAY NIGHT

P. C. Newhall After a Long Run Captured the Man Suspected of Snatching a Lady's Pocket Book

Saturday night considerable excitement was created in the vicinity of St Peter's cathedral, when a lady passing had her purse snatched violently from her grasp. The lady was walking alone when hearing footsteps behind her, turned to let the party pass. However the young man whilst passing suddenly grabbed her purse and, giving it a sudden jerk, tore it from her grasp. The lady screamed and the robber fled at top speed with the stolen goods. The lady at once telephoned to the police station, and P. C. Newnall at once went to the scene of the robbery. The man was not in sight, but the officer instinctively took the street he considered the man would have chosen for his "get away." Within a few minutes he saw a man answering the description given by the lady, and ran towards him. On this the man took to his heels and ran for some two or three blocks until captured. When arrested the purse was not in his possession. He was brought to the station and locked up. He will probably be given a hearing this morning.

Yesterday morning a member of St. Peter's cathedral discovered the purse on the street on which P. C. Newhall chased the man under arrest. The finder took it into Father McColl, who yesterday morning announced its having been placed in his possession.

Suspected Money Turned Out Good

Norwood Register says;

A stranger came to this neighborhood one day last week, and drove out to the home of a prominent farmer in Dairyworth neighborhood, where he bargained for one of his drivers and paid for the same in American currency. After the stranger had left he grew uneasy, fest the greenback should prove a gold brick and he forthwith hitched up and drove to town. He tried to exchange the money at the bank for Canadian currency, but the teller was not quite sure about the genuineness of the bills and refused to take them, thereupon the farmer got after the stranger and forced him to leave the steed behind until he could pay for it in more acceptable currency. The stranger bought a set of harness and paid for same, and also purchased a cart, intending to drive the animal to Peterborough. Contrary to expectations of many, the man returned on Tuesday and made satisfactory settlement with the parties concerned, and left the same afternoon for Peterborough with the outfit.

This Mine is a Producer

We are shipping high grade ore—we have an immense quantity of ore running from $10.00 up, on the dumps—we want to raise money to build a mill to treat this ore at cost of $2.75 per ton—this means tremendous profits to stockholders. Our property is in the great SILVER MOUNTAINS in Nevada. To raise this money we are offering a limited amount of stock at TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER SHARE.

Wanted—Brokers to sell stock on commission.

A Shave and the Penalty

Kingston, May 19.—An instance of the stringency of the discipline at present maintained in the Royal Military College has transpired. Some time ago an order directed the cadets to grow moustaches. Not long ago a cadet sergeant shaved his upper lip. The upshot was that he was reduced to the ranks.

The punishment is severe, as the cadet graduates next June, and the reduction in rank carries with it a loss of marks which will affect his class standing, and as the cadet is one of the two or three leaders in the class, such a reduction might affect his career, even losing him the nomination to a commission in the imperial forces which high standing involves.

Barn Struck By Lightning

A peculiar freak of lightning was in evidence Saturday evening in Otonabee. The barn on the Dickson Company's farms, in that township, just outside the city limits by the electric fluid. At the time Mr. Roberts and two boys, as well as some fourteen horses and about 20 head of cattle were in the barn. Although all present distinctly felt the shock no serious damage was done.

England's First Steeple-Chase

Mr. Harry LeBrun, who has for many years taken a great and practical interests in all classes of field sports, on Saturday had four valuable colored illustrations of "The first steeplechase" in England, framed and inserted in one of his store windows. This unique series of pictures is most interesting, showing the steeplechase from start to finish and gives one a capital idea of the fashions of the time. They were published on March 1st, 1839. A peculiar point of interest is that the race was run by moonlight and the novelty of this the first steeplechase is well depicted on the faces of those looking out of bedroom windows, evidently, in many cases, the country folk having been aroused a peep by the thundering hoofs of the horses. This set of pictures is very rare and valuable and was brought from England many years ago by the late Mr. W. Chamberlain.

Oakville Citizens Used Dynamite

Oakville, May 18.—Some time ago a fire destroyed Oakville's opera house, but the walls stood intact. W. S. Cummins was asked to have them removed, and took the dangerous part down.

This did not satisfy certain of the authorities, and he was often requested to raze the walls. However, they still stood intact.

Thursday night, shortly after midnight, and after the lights went out, a gang of men attacked the wall facing Dundas street, and cutting a hole in it blew it up with powder.

Mr. Cummins says he will find out those who took the law into their own hands if it costs him a small fortune.

It will cost the town a neat sum to remove the debris from the corner.

Steel Steamer Saxon Sunk in Superior

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 18.—The steel steamer Saxon, owned by the Pittsburg Steamship Co., stranded Wednesday night during a fog on the north side of Caribou Island, Lake Superior. It is said she will be a total loss.

"We were running a short distance ahead of the Saxon," said Captain Brown of the steamer W. W. Ogilvie, "and my steamer must have missed the reef which the Saxon struck, by only a few feet. The Saxon was going along at full speed and struck the rocks with terrific force. I tried to get near enough to take the Saxon's crew aboard my own ship, but was unable to do anything because of the danger of running my own steamer on the rocks in the storm. The Saxon's men were also later to reach the island in small boats."

The wrecked steamer registered 2,318 tons, and is valued at $110,000. She was built in 1890.

Deaf Mutes are Getting Attention

Appeal Made to Have All so Afflicted Sent to Belleville

The Canadian Mute, of Belleville, says;

We have reason to believe that there is a considerable number of deaf children in this Province, of school age, who are not attending our institution, but who should be doing so. We are desirous of obtaining the names and addresses of the parents of all such children, and we earnestly appeal to the readers of these lines to assist us in securing this information. Clergymen of all denominations, physicians, assessors, inspectors of schools, and public school teachers, are in an especially favorable position to assist us in this direction, and by so doing they would be conferring an inestimable boon to these silent members of the community. Our desire is to enter into correspondence with the parents of all deaf children with the hope of inducing them to send them to our school at Belleville, where they may receive such training and instruction as will fit them to become useful, self-supporting and respected citizens. It is a lamentable thing that any deaf boy or girl should be deprived of the advantages of such an education when it is freely provided for them by the people of the Province. We earnestly hope the newspapers throughout Ontario will call attention to this matter as emphatically as possible, and thus aid in this good work.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

Britain and Germany

Paris, May 20.—The Petit Parisien is still prosecuting its enquiry into the international situation, and now its London correspondent gives an account of an interesting conversation with Sir Charles Dilke, who professes no anxiety on the subject. Sir Charles assured the writer that there was not one sane man in the United Kingdom who would favor an attack on Germany, and that he certainly did not believe that Germany dreamt of attacking England. What harm could Germany do to England, who possessed, and would retain, the supremacy of the seas? If Germany built more and more ships England would do the same, and as she was richer than Germany she would win in that game. He was convinced that the peace of Europe would last many years.

Schmitz Mayor In Name Only

San Francisco, May 18.—The Call of yesterday's date says; From this time forward Eugene Schmitz will be the mayor of San Francisco in name only. He has relinquished the reins of government to a committee of seven, representing the five great commercial organizations of the city. Beginning with today the city is under the control of men whom the mayor selected to administer the city's affairs on the lines demanded by the public. The capitulation of the mayor is complete. He has transferred in writing his authority, tantamount to a power of attorney, to F. B. Anderson, F. W. Dohrmann, Percy T. Morgan, F. W. Van Sicklen, Louis Rosenfeld, C. H. Beesley and Charles W. Slack.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"The Hypocrite"

The Tom Marks Company concluded a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House Saturday night, when they presented the comedy drama, "The Hypocrite," to a large and appreciative audience. Much applause was in evidence during the whole performance. The several characters were impersonated in a creditable manner, and the specialties were varied and pleasing.

Mrs. J. Hoovy was the owner of the lucky ticket drawn, and which entitles her to sufficient material from Richard Hall & Sons, with which to make a handsome silk dress.

Inflammables Must Be Removed

No Boxes, Barrels, Straw or Other Easily Ignited Goods Allowed

Chief Rossel desires that the following clause of the building by-law be taken particular note of, especially by some merchants, who have their back yards full of old rubbish. The oil boxes are liable to take fire and might cause a serious conflagration. The chief intends to strictly enforce this bylaw and all offenders will be dealt with severely.

Clause 23a of the amendment to the building bylaw reads;

That no person shall place, or shall have or shall allow, suffer or permit to remain, or be in any yard or near any building within the fire limits in the city of Peterborough, any boxes, barrels, paper, straw or other inflammable waste or refuse materia.

Will Fight to Finish And Spare no Expense

New York, May 18.—Announcement is made today that he finance committee of the International Mercantile Company has approved every act previously done by its officers, and has ordered that the strike of the longshoremen be fought to the end.

The committee has also taken from every officer the power of compromise or arbitration, and has authorized the expenditure of any amount of money to carry out the agreement entered into with thirty-five other deep sea lines to fight the strike.

Among those at the meeting, at which this action was taken, were J. P. Morgan, jr., Charles Steele and J. Bruce Ismay.

The strikers show the same determination as the companies do to fight it out, and the prophecy, in some quarters, that they would be starved into submission, has not materialized. The men generally are orderly.

Peary Will Win This Time

Boston, May 20.—Commander Robert E. Peary has decided upon some changes in the method to be followed in his next attempt to reach the north pole, according to an interview with the explorer.

"The main improvement over the last plan," said the explorer, "will be that I shall continue farther to the westward along the north Grant Land coast, and then when I take to the ice, I shall bear always to windward and thus offset the continuous drift to the east.

"I shall so arrange matters that there can be no recurrence of the unfortunate contingency that cost us the prize last year. There will be no separation of the parties this time, and I shall have the relay system so perfected that in any event, I can obtain amply supplies from the supporting sledges, and press forward with the Pole party. For the rest there will be the dogs and the Eskimos just as on the former expedition. This time I shall win.

John L. Did It

Washington, May 18. — President Roosevelt has granted a conditional pardon to John L. Lennon, a nephew of John L. Sullivan, serving a sentence at Governor's Island, for alleged desertion from the marine corps while in Cuba. The condition named by the president is that Lennon re-enlist and serve the full term of four years, the having been dishonorably discharged. When Lennon was captured after his alleged desertion he had been absent three days. Mr. Sullivan while in Washington recently saw the president about the case, and argued that his relative did not intendt o desert but had merely over-stayed his leave of absence.

Asks $250,000 For Burial at Sea

New York, May 19.—Dr. Chalmers Prentice of Chicago, announced to the press last night that he had instituted suit against the North German Lloyd Steamship Co., demanding damages in the sum of $250,000, because master of Koenigen Luise of that line caused the burial at sea of the body of the plaintiff's wife.

The papers in the case, Mr. Prentice said, had been served on the agents of the steamship company.

Mrs. Prentice, who was in ill-health, was a passenger, homeward bound, from Naples in the Koenigen Luise, when she was stricken with a fatal illness and died April 27. Against the protest of her daughter, who accompanied her, the body of Mrs. Prentice was buried at sea.

Later the captain explained that such immediate disposition of the body was imperative because of sanitary reasons.

It was also stated at the time that the burial was due to insistency of the representative on board of the Italian government, in charge of the immigrants. The steamship company is subsidized by the government for immigration purposes and the government representative was able even in this matter to over-rule the authority of the captain.

Travel Exhibit in London

London, May 19.—An interesting travel exhibition opened in Horticultural Hall today and will continue for three weeks. The exhibition illustrates in a comprehensive manner all the modern facilities and commodities appertaining to travel. Equipments for living in tropical, subtropical and Arctic regions are also shown.

Smith's Veteran Farmer Recovers

Mr. W. Graham has Returned From Toronto and is Convalescent

The many friends of Mr. William Graham of Smith, were pleased to see him on Saturday on his return from Toronto, where he has been under treatment at the Victoria Memorial Hospital under charge of Dr. Walker.

Mr. Graham left Peterborough some weeks ago with little or no hope of recovery. He had been suffering for some years from a disease which local physicians considered incurable, but which under Dr. Walker's treatment was successfully cured. Mr. Graham assured The Times Saturday that he feels as well as ever in his life. He spent Saturday receiving the congratulations of his many friends. The immediate cause of his recent illness was gravel-stones and the cure was effected without any operation, but by the new light vibration treatment. Dr. H. C. Burritt, formerly of Peterborough, but now practising in Toronto, assisted Dr. Walker in this case.

Logree in Real Life

San Antonio, Texas, May 20. —A special to the Express from Vera Cruz says;

Charged with subjecting peons in his employ to such cruelties that some of them died from the effects, H. Miller, a millionaire American, has been arrested in the town of Acayucan in this state and is being held in jail pending an investigation Miller is general manager of the Miller Plantation Company and the San Juan Sugar Company, in both of which concerns he is heavily interested.

He threatens to make an international question of the matter and prosecute the authorities responsible for his arrest.

U. S. Jap Society

New York, May 20.—Saturday morning General Kuroki and his party were the guests of General Grant at Governor's Island, the headquarters of the department of the east, and were shown such portion of the harbor defences as the government felt at liberty to show. In the afternoon the general and his party were taken to the races at Belmont Park.

On Sunday General Kuroki gave a luncheon at the Hotel Astor, at which a few of those who have been most prominent in the entertainment of the visitors were the guests. At the luncheon General Kuroki was informed of the formation of an American-Japanese society, which has for its object the furtherance of closer and more friendly relations between the two countries. Admiral Dewey is mentioned as president of the new organization. A large number of the most prominent of the New York Japanese will also be members of the society.

On Monday or Tuesday it is expected the party will go to New Haven to visit Yale University, where there are at present a number of Japanese students, and from which a number of men now prominent in affairs in Japan, were graduated.

Trouble Over Joan of Arc

Paris, May 20.—A striking example of how everything depends upon the point of view is afforded by the reports published in Paris of the Joan of Arc celebrations in Orleans.

The clerical papers state that they were a real failure, owing to the elimination of the religious features, the procession neither arousing the enthusiasm of the townspeople nor attracting people from other towns. The radical papers declare they were never more successful as a pageant, but have to admit that the visitors were fewer than usual, owing to fears of a collision between the clericals and the anti-clericals.

There is some little excitement in Paris owing to the rivalry of two camps to decorate the statue of the Maid near the Tuileries Gardens. A Masonic body has attached to the statue a wreath bearing the inscription; "To Joan of Arc, who was burned by priests."

Members of a Catholic organization tore this down and replaced it with another; "To Joan of Arc, whom the Catholic Church has the courage to honor despite the error of the bishops."

This in turn was removed and the argument was becoming heated, when the police interfered.

Mrs. Yerkes Gets Divorce

New York, May 20. — Mrs. Mary Adelaide Yerkes-Missener, widow of Chas. T. Yerkes, the millionaire traction promoter of Chicago, and London, was granted an interlocutory degree of divorce from her youthful Husband, Wilson Missener.

By the terms of the decree, Mrs. Yerkes-Missener may resume her maiden name and may re-marry should she choose to.

The marriage of the wealthy widow and the young Californian many years her junior a few weeks after her husband's death created wide public interest. Much secrecy surrounded the affair, and it was not until more than a week after the marriage that either Missener or Mrs. Yerkes would admit that a marriage ceremony had been performed. Mrs. Yerkes persistently denying that she had again become a bride, remained in seclusion in the mansion built for her by Mr. Yerkes, while Missener lived in one of the big up-town hotels. He, too, stoutly denied any knowledge of the marriage.

At the end of a week, however, the bridegroom moved his baggage from the hotel to the Yerkes mansion, and the formal announcement of the marriage was made.

FAMOUS BOXER WEPT IN COURT

As Ladies Told How He Struck Blow That Killed Man on Train---Kissed Man After the Blow.

London, May 19.—There were some pathetic and dramatic passages in the evidence of women who were called as the principal witnesses at Saturday's inquest at Putney, concerning the death of Robert Chout, thirty-two, gas stoker, of Creek road, Deptford, the victim of the Epsom race train tragedy, in connection with which a murder charge has been preferred against "Pedlar" Palmer, the well-known boxer.

Emma Jane Hobbes of Erskine road, Walthamstow, an eye-witness of the tragedy, said she was in the same compartment as Chout, who got on first, and had to stand up. Chout said, "Will you have a seat or a dance?" and no one answered. When the train started she made room for him, and he sat down.

DON'T FORGET LADIES.

The coroner; "Was he drunk?"

Witness; "He had been drinking; but was sober. Palmer and Chout got into conversation, and I heard Palmer say, 'Don't forget there are ladies in the carriage.' Another word was said which I did not hear, and then Palmer jumped up and struck Chout in the face four or five times."

"Did you notice if Chout had done anything to Palmer?" Nobody noticed anything.

"Did you hear him say anything then?"

"No; I jumped up and said, 'Stop the train,' Palmer said, 'I will allow nobody to insult me. You can keep your seats, ladies. There is no need to stop the train. I have given him a bit to go on with and he will go sleep. He should not insult me.' Chout dropped his head and did not move He never spoke. I thought he had gone to sleep."

ONLY ASLEEP.

"I then said to Palmer, "That man was in drink, and you should never have struck him, especially as the train was full of people.' He said 'Well, he should not insult me, 'I said, 'I will call the guard as soonas the train stops and have the man put on the platform.' Palmer remarked, 'He is only asleep, and a sleep will do him good.'

"Another passenger, Mrs. Prender, said, 'I believe the man is dying. I believe he is dead.' Palmer then lifted the man up, patted him on the cheek, and said, 'Wake up, old man.' As the man made no response, Palmer pulled the bar and then got down on his knees, and said, "Good God, what have I done! Have I killed you! I did not mean it," and he kissed the man and cried, That was when the train pulled up at Purley Station, and there they got out."

TAUNTED WITH SIZE.

Replying to the jury, Mrs. Hobbes said that when Parmer spoke to him Chout said, "I am not afraid of little people." It was then that Palmer struck the blow.

As witness gave her evidence Parmer rested his head on the table and cried.

Prudent's Devotion Suffers for Wife

Paris, May 19.—Emile Prudent, in spite of his name, is a rash young man, but as devoted as he is unwise. His trial for attempted manslaughter, of which the jury of the Seine has found him not guilty, was one long story of his misfortune in wedlock. He began by marrying his wife after she had had a child, and legitimizing the child as his own. Who was its father? asked the judge. Prisoner had no idea. The judge added that he believed the lady herself was not sure either. The couple went to the far east, and Prudent was manager of a good business at Hanoi, in French Tonquin but his wife helped herself out of the till, and one day £160 were missing. Prudent knew that his wife had taken the money, but gave himself in charge in her stead, was convicted, and did five month's imprisonment. When he came out, the unfortunate Prudent found that his wife, who had been unfaithful already, had lived with a man named Petit openly, and was the talk of Hanoi. He forgave her, and was happy with her a week. He told her that his love for her was unchanged. 'He might be thought ridiculous, but nothing could alter his love for her.' After a week she departed with Petit, went to France, and introduced Petit to her people as her betrothed, when she meant to marry after she had divorced Prudent, on the ground that he had been convicted as a thief. Considering that he had assumed guilt, while innocent, in order to shield her, this last blow was a little too much, and he followed her to France. He went to call on Petit, remonstrated mildly, and got his wife back. He was in bliss again—for one week. His wife seemed unable to remain more than a week with the same man. She told him he bored her, and went off. Prudent, like the worm, turned at last, waited for Petit in the street, and fired twice at him with a revolver. Luckily for both men, Petit was only grazed. Prudent immediately gave himself in charge. At the trial Petit volunteered evidence with engaging candor. At Hanoi, he said, ladies were in a minority. Hence many husbands were as unfortunate as Prudent. He praised Prudent, "whose behavior had been quite correct," He added that "his own behavior had been equally proper." He still lives with Madame Prudent, who declined to appear at the trial, "to spare her modesty." The jury, evidently commiserating the long-suffering husband, acquitted Prudent without leaving the box.

Carpets Cleaned Quickly and Well

—The Peterborough Carpet Cleaning Works at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, whose ponderous machinery may daily be heard getting more dust out of carpets with less wear and tear on the fabric, in an hour, than seventeen dozen perspiring, sulphur breathing language employing husbands, armed with clubs or brooms could in a day, all working overtime and meeting with compliment from many of Peterborough's thrifty and exacting housewives. Their 'phone No. is 472a, and orders are filled at short notice. Old carpets are given the appearance of new without damage to the goods.

Three Men Save Girl By Searchlight's Glare

New York, May 19.—A spectacular searchlight rescue was affected in the swirling waters of Hallgate early today, when Frances Horr, aged 17 years, was saved from suicide by drowning by three young men, after a hard struggle.

The girl, after brooding long over her troubles, threw herself into the river.

Then the love of life temporarily overcame her desire to die and she screamed lustily. Joseph Lazarus, Michael T. Flynn and Valentine Zealander heard her cries and ran to the water's edge. They sought the source of the appeals for help. They could see none and were about to leap blindly into the river, trusting to chance to direct them, when the searchlight of a passing steamer revealed the struggling woman.

They dived in the direction of the light. Lazarus reached the girl first and was nearly dragged by the would-be suicide, whose desire to die had returned with the prospect of rescue. His companions reached them just in time to save the pair from drowning, and the girl was borne ashore and removed to an hospital. She will recover.

While the men were in the water, some one stole Lazarus' coat and shoes which he had cast off on the shore before plunging into the water.

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Etta McEwen, of Haliburton, speaks for itself:

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

SOCIETY OF ETERNAL YOUTH

"The First Society of Eternal Youth" is the name of an organization just founded in various cities of Iowa. The modest and laudable object of this society is to abolish disease, old age, and death. In the more ornate and Delmasesque language of the constitution, the special object and business of the society "shall be to renew and perpetuate the mental, moral and physical youth and strength of all its members; to build up and continue in the highest degree the mental vigor in each individual member, and imperatively to require from each and every member that he live the life of health, thereby contributing his share in banishing the spectre of disease and death from the face of the earth." Any member who is reported sick from any disease, and so remains sick, and is confined to his bed for a continuous period of three days or more shall be fined in the sum of not less than $1 or more than $10 for the first offense. For the second offense a member shall be suspended from membership, and for the third offense expulsion from the society shall be the penalty.

It is to be sincerely hoped the Iowa organizations will be successful in their campaign against the mighty triumvirate—disease, old age and death. It is highly desirable that these grim factors shall be eliminated from mundane affairs. Disease is not only expensive but dangerous; old age is an annoyance and a bore—for few carry the burden of years lightly. Anything that can be done to get the better of diseases that afflict humanity, anything that will ward off the approach of old age will be the boon of all boons to humanity. Ponce de Leon sought the elixir of life in the crystal waters of a Floridan spring; the modern scientist seeks it in buttermilk, in poorhouse soup, in prunes, in a vegetable or nut diet, in this, that or the other fad. There are latter-day prophets who point the way to eternal youth and pretend to perform miracles; but beyond the circles of their own fanatic followers they are without honor. There are others who preach that disease is only a mental condition, that it is necessary only to believe that disease does not exist for one to be immune from sickness. This system works admirably when one is not afflicted with a toothache, or when nothing more than imagination is the matter with him.

Nevertheless all will hope that the Iowans have really discovered the secret of eternal youth; but even if they have they are not wholly original. The Chinese also believe in keeping in a condition of mental and physical health. So long as they are in a condition of health they pay their physicians, but the instant they are in need of medicine or professional care the pay ceases. Consequently it is to the Chinese doctor's advantage to keep the percentage of sickness among his patients as low as possible. In some respects the Chinese plan has certain advantages over the Iowa idea. For one thing, it is safer for the individual. We say this with all respect to the Iowa enthusiasts, for we are serious in hoping that their plan will be successful. We prefer it to the buttermilk, poorhouse soup and vegetable diet schemes of other seekers after eternal youth, even if it is not quite so practical as the Chinese plan.

Bogus Agent Stole Stoves and Sold Them

St. John, N.B., May 17.—By the clever rascality of a former employe the local agency of the McClary Co., of Toronto, has been robbed of hundreds of dollars. William Mahony, discharged by this concern some time ago, has since been doing a thriving business as an agent for stoves and other kitchen utensils. He has been taking orders from householders at very low prices, and in order to fill them had driven a truck to Mr. McClary's warehouse in the early evenings after the store was closed, opened the door and taken whatever he wanted.

Five stoves stolen in this manner have been recovered, together with many other articles, such as silverware and ice cream freezers. The work has been going on for a year, it is said.

Mahony is now in jail and other arrests may follow, as the police suspect that he has confederates, and that other firms suffered also.

Break the Record For Submergence

Newport, R.I., May 17.—With a bountiful supply of fresh air, and with records of submergence broken, the submarines Octopus and Lake rose to the surface of Narragansett Bay at four o'clock this morning, after a test of 24 hours under water.

The Octopus blew out foul air only twice during the 24 hours she was at the bottom of the bay. It was computed that only one fifty-fifth of her air supply was exhausted. If these figures are correct they tend to show that the boat could remain submerged 45 days, provided the food and fuel supply was sufficient.

The Lake also stood the test well, although a leak was sprung in the superstructure. She was pumped out twice, but what proportion of her air supply was used up could not be learned.

Both crews passed the time comfortably while at the bottom of the bay. They slept well during part of the time, and games, books and other diversions helped to pass the long 24 hours below the surface.

A Slight Mistake.

Chitto Harjo was pleading in Washington for the Indians' right to roam in nomad fashion, like their fathers.

"They tell us to trust to fortune," Chitto Harjo said, "and then we'll get our rights. But we are tired of trusting to fortune. Fortune has used us Indians as it used the pale face instructress at the Indian school in 1807."

Chitto Harjo smiled and went on:

"This instructress found a horseshoe, and to get good fortune put it under her pillow, along with her false teeth. In the morning in the hurry of dressing, she substituted the shoe for the teeth and did not discover her mistake till her affianced husband asked her in tones of horror at breakfast what was the matter with her mouth."

When Oregon Was in the Balance.

There is no boundary in the world of greater political importance than the forty-ninth parallel, which divides Canada from the United States. When this boundary was under discussion, the Pacific coast was almost inaccessible, and the ownership of Oregon, now a state of vast wealth, with opulent cities and a teeming population, was in the balance. The matter was settled by the report of Captain Temple, a brother of Lord Palmerston, who wrote to the admiralty "that the country was not worth a cuss because the salmon would not take a fly."—Manchester Chronicle.

The Only Way.

"I am writing an article," he said, "on 'The Way to Manage a Woman.'"

"I suppose it will be a long one," she replied in a slightly scornful tone.

"No," he answered, "it will be quite short. In fact, it will consist of only two words—'Don't try!'"

Long Wait.

"Grandpa, how old are you?"

"I am eighty-seven years old, my dear."

"Then you were born eighty years before I was. What a long time you had alone waiting for me!"

Worse Still.

Griggs—The idea of your letting your wife go round saying she made a man of you! You don't hear my wife saying that. Briggs—No, but I heard her telling my wife that she did her best.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the contorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony gnarls back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These small-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We call, and in confidence recommend

Girls Were Carried Out by Ladders

St. John, N.B., May 18.—Fire broke out about noon yesterday in the basement of McClary Bros. & Co.'s large dry goods store on King street, the second largest establishment of its kind in this city, and the entire stock, worth probably a quarter of a million dollars, will be ruined by fire, water and smoke.

Cotton, and other heavy goods were stored in the basement, and from these immense columns of smoke poured through the building, nearly suffocating the employees.

Girls on the second, third, and fourth floors had to be taken out with ladders.

The damage to the building itself may not be great, but the smoke loss will be very heavy.

Paid in Full.

Two young ladies, evidently stenographers, were having an animated discussion while on their way to work the other morning in a Market street car. The discussion revolved around the question as to the best method to impress their respective employers as to the value of their services.

"Do you know," said the smaller of the two, "my former employer was the worst old granny. He could not spell the simplest words correctly, and he couldn't pronounce them. One day I thought I would impress him with the value of my services. He gave me a letter to typewrite, and I just went along and copied it as he handed it to me. Then I made a second copy with all the misspelled words corrected. With beaming countenance I handed him both copies."

"What did he do?" breathlessly asked her friend, forcing the conductor to hold his car so that she might alight at her corner and at the same time hear the answer.

"He fired me," was the reply.

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

sofy," said Miss Tempy nervously. "I've only got a little more to do on it, thank goodness! Prissy, I'm goin' to put an iron on. I want to press my other collar. Did—did the cap'n say anything more about me—us, I mean?" she added, looking at the stove.

"No, ma'am, he didn't," replied the boy. "He jest asked about me and told stories and talked."

Miss Tempy seemed a little disappointed and made no comment. Her sister, too, was silent. Presently Bradley yawned. He tried to hide it, but Miss Prissy, coming out of her trance, saw him.

"My sakes," she exclaimed, "what are we thinkin' of, keepin' you up this way? It's after 9 o'clock. Let me get the lamp. Tempy, you do up that soapstone for his feet."

* * * * * * *

Bradley was up early the next morning, and his dressing was a sort of jig, for it was freezing cold. When he went downstairs it was evident that things had been going on. Miss Prissy came out of the sitting room, bearing a broom and with her "alpaca" gown covered with an apron. Miss Tempy, her curls done up in papers, was busy with the "tidy" for the sofa. Each of the sisters was nervous and excited.

Miss Prissy said a stiff little grace at the breakfast table. Miss Tempy had a large cup of "pepper tea" for herself and urged Bradley to partake, but the elder sister came to the rescue and gave him hot milk and water instead. After the meal was over and the dishes washed Miss Prissy went out to feed the hens, and Bradley went with her. The house, seen by day, was a big, square building, badly in need of paint. The roof was four sided and sloped upward to a cupola in the center. From its closely shut front door snow covered box hedges in parallel lines defined the path to the front gate, also locked and fastened and, like the front door, only used on occasions. There was a large tumbledown barn, with an empty pigpen back of the house and a henhouse and yard in the rear of the barn.

Next door to the left—on the right was a vacant field—was a small story and a half cottage, separated from the Allen household by a board fence. One of the boards in this fence had fallen down, and as Bradley, wading in Miss Prissy's wake, passed this opening he saw a girl, apparently about his own age, open the back door of the house next door and look out at him. He wanted to ask who she was, but didn't feel well enough acquainted with his guide to do so just yet.

Just as the dozen hens and lonesome looking rooster were fed—Miss Prissy informed him that by and by looking after the poultry would be one of his duties—Miss Tempy's voice was heard calling excitedly from the kitchen door.

"Prissy," she screamed—"Prissy, come in the house quick! He's comin'! The cap'n's comin'!"

"My land!" exclaimed the elder sister wildly, and, her dignity forgotten, she almost ran to the house, followed by Bradley, who didn't understand the cause of the excitement.

"Oh, my sakes," ejaculated Miss Tempy as they entered the kitchen, "what made him come so early? You'll have to see him first, Prissy. I've got to fix my hair."

Miss Prissy rushed into the sitting room, wheeled a chair into place, set a tidy straight, laid the photograph album exactly in the center of the table instead of two inches from the edge and patted her own hair with her hands, dodging in front of the big gilt framed mirror as she did so. Then, as a smart knock sounded on the dining room door, she assumed her "company" smile and marched sedately to receive the visitor.

It was Captain Titcomb who had knocked, and after cleaning the snow from his boots on the "scraper" he entered the house, bearing two packages wrapped in brown paper.

"Well, Prissy," said the captain, laying down the packages to shake hands, "how d'you do? Didn't expect to see me in this port jest now, did you?"

"No, indeed, Cap'n Titcomb," was the reply. "But we're real glad to see you all the same. Come right in. Take your things off. Bradley said he rode down with you in the coach last night. Dreadful storm we had, wasn't it? How's your health nowadays? Walk right into the sittin' room. You must excuse the looks of things. I've been sweepin'."

There was a good deal more, but when Miss Prissy stopped for breath the captain, who had thrown his cap and overcoat on a chair, replied that the storm was bad, that his health was good and that the room looked "first rate," so far as he could see. Then he held out his hand to the boy, who had seated himself on a chair close to the door, and said cheerily:

"Mornin', Brad. Well, how are you after your shake up last night? Wan't seasick after I got out, was you?"

Bradley grinned bashfully and stammered that he was "all right."

"Good! We had a rugged trip comin' over, Prissy. The old coach rolled so I felt like goin' on deck and shortenin' sail. Your new boy here's goin' to make a good sailor, I can see that. Where's Tempy?"

"Oh, she's upstairs for a minute. She'll be right down," answered Miss Prissy carelessly. "Tell me what brought you home so unexpected."

"Sprung a leak and had to lay the old hooker up for repairs. That's a specialty of my owners—repairs. They'd rather patch up for a hundred years than build new vessels. I—al—Brad, fetch me them bundles out of the dinin' room."

Bradley obediently brought the brown paper parcels, and the captain handed one of them to Miss Prissy, saying: "Here's a little somethin' I picked up over to New York, Prissy. I thought you might like it. I ain't got much use for such things myself."

The lady took the package and began to untie the string in a nervous manner, blushing a little as she did so.

"I know it's somethin' nice, Cap'n Ezra. You do buy the nicest things. It's real kind of you to remember me this way. Oh, ain't that pretty!"

The package contained a Japanese silk fan, with ivory sticks and a red tassel. Miss Prissy opened it and spread it out in her lap, exclaiming over its beauty, her face the color of the tassel.

"Oh, it ain't nothin'," said the captain. "I did a favor for a friend of mine that's skipper of a barkentine jest home from Hongkong, and he gave it to me. He had some stuff he'd brought for his daughter, and the duty on it would have been pretty expensive, so I fixed—but never mind that. I thought maybe you'd like it to carry to church in the summer time or somethin'. Why, hello, Tempy! How d'you do?"

The younger sister entered the room, her poplin rustling and every curl in place. She gushingly shook the captain's hand and said she was so glad to see him.

"Oh, Tempy," cried Miss Prissy, "jest look at this lovely fan Cap'n Titcomb brought me! Did you ever see anything so pretty?"

Miss Tempy exclaimed over the fan, but somehow her enthusiasm seemed a little forced. It may be the captain noticed this; at any rate, he picked up the second parcel and handed it to her, saying:

"Here's a little somethin' I brought for you, Tempy. I don't know's you'll like it, but"—

Miss Tempy's present also was a fan precisely like the other except that the tassel was pink. Miss Prissy's interest in her sister's gift was intense, but when it was discovered that in no important point were the fans dissimilar and that neither was better than the mate both of the ladies appeared to be a trifle disappointed, although they tried not to show it.

Fighting For Fire.

A great ceremony in Jerusalem is on Easter Saturday, and commemorates the ancient tradition of the celestial fire that was said to rise from the tomb of Christ. The Greek patriarch enters the sanctuary of the sepulcher the door closes behind him, and the surging, tossing, tumultuous multitude await the coming of the fire. Suddenly out of the right hand window in the wall of the sepulcher shoot flames of fire, and in an instant every one of the thousands has produced a candle and dashes madly forward to light it at the mystic fire. The light thus taken from the holy sepulcher is instantly carried to all the Christian villages round about Jerusalem, and fleet footed young men vie with one another in being first to light their local shrines with the divine flame. The writer has seen two rival runners put down their candles and indulge in a sanguinary battle with knives and sticks until the light of one of them is put out. There is no joke meant here, but each is striving desperately to extinguish the flame of the other.—Travel Magazine.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

There is No Better Buy in Cobalt Than

THE STRATHCONA

Fourteen veins of pay ore are uncovered for 1,200 feet on our 40-acre claim in Bucke Township. One vein runs directly into the Thompson mine, just west of our property, where at 40 feet depth they are now sacking

Ore that Assays 800 ozs. to the Ton

Every vein in the Strathcona trends in the same direction, and has the same contacts (diabase and conglomerate) as the biggest and richest veins in Cobalt camp. Our neighbor on the east, the Loeb, has yielded ore assaying 3,000 ounces to the ton. Two independent engineers, Mr. John Black and Mr. J. Hyland, making separate examinations of The Strathcona coincide in pronouncing it a property of remarkable promise. Work is being vigorously pushed on the claim, and we expect to have two shafts sunk and begin shipping before summer is over.

The Strathcona also owns 240 acres of

Gold Claims on Larder Lake

Not "snowshoe" stakings, but discoveries made last summer—the very pick of the Larder Lake Field. Assays from SURFACE show free milling gold in paying quantities. The Strathcona has a very low capitalization, only $800,000. Properties not nearly so good have been floated at five times that, and are paying dividends. Shares are to secure money for development (not promotion) expenses. The stock is selling rapidly. The investment is a good one in every sense of the word. Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1893 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,460,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,100,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Charm of Beauty

Nothing of More Value to Women.

The glory and satisfaction of beautiful womanhood can be known only to those possessing the unlimited advantages of health.

No weak woman can be happy or enjoy half the pleasures of life. Pallid cheeks, sunken eyes, exhausted nerves, all tell of a terrible struggle to keep up.

What the weak woman needs is Ferrozone; it renews, restores and vitalizes instantly—it's a "woman's remedy"—that's why.

Ferrozone makes women strong, plump and healthful because it contains lots of nutriment, the kind that forms muscle, sinew, bone and nerve.

Vitalizing blood courses through the body, making delightful color, happy spirits, true womanly strength.

To look well, to feel well, to enjoy the unlimited advantages of robust, bounding health use Ferrozone; sold by all dealers in 50c boxes, and refuse a substitute.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Millbrook citizens want to get a competent electrician to light that village.

—The annual roll call and social of the Park street Baptist church will be held on Thursday, May 30th.

—Nine men will arrive in the city today from Liverpool. They will take places on nearby farms.

—The Otonabee Navigation Company have had handsome metal signs placed at each side of The Times office main entrance.

—For an easy running sewing machine that does good plain work, call at 340 1-2 Water street. Price only $4.00.

—Local butchers predict that within the next week the best cuts of meat will cost 20c a pound. This is owing to the backward spring and the cost of feed at present.

—Capt. Hurd of Montreal, on Saturday evening gave an admirably illustrated and interesting special address before a large audience in the barracks.

—There will be a roller hockey match between two local teams at the Charlotte Street rink next Friday night between nine and ten o'clock.

—Chief Cheese Instructor G. G. Publow states that cheese factories throughout the Province this year are kept much cleaner than in the past.

—The annual meeting of the clergymen and laymen representing the several Methodist churches included in the Campbellford district, will be held in the Methodist church, Norwood, on Wednesday, May 22nd.

—See south window of Times Book store for display of stamped leather cards; together with sample cushion made out of twenty-four cards, leather fringe and down filling, all complete for only $1.00.

—The Salvation Army's great annual outing will be held on Victoria Day, per steamer Water Lily and palace barge, at Rhyl Wyld. There is every indication that this excursion will be largely patronized as is usual with outings held under Army auspices.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Dr. Shoop's Restorative sold by J. D. Tully.

Galt Old Boys' Reunion

It is expected that quite a large number of former residents of Galt, now living in Peterborough, will visit the former town next August to participate in the old Galt Boys' Reunion. Mr. W. McIlroy, the uptown C.P.R. ticket agent, is in charge of the reunion and getting names of former residents of Galt, to complete arrangements for a good representative for Peterborough.

City Teachers Meet This Week

The City Teachers' Association will hold a convention in the Y.M.C.A. hall on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, May 22nd and 23rd. A good program has been prepared and papers on timely topics will be read. Mr. H. W. Anden, principal of the Upper Canada College, Toronto, will deliver an address on Wednesday evening, May 22nd, on "Tendencies in Education." The feature will be open to the public.

Park Street Church to be Built

The Building Committee of Park street church have held their first meeting. Mr. T. G. Gillespie was appointed secretary, and Lorne Hicks, his assistant. Frank Coon was chosen chairman, and W. Kempt, treasurer. It was decided the building shall be proceeded with immediately. It was the opinion of the committee that the limit should be $15,000, and that seating capacity should be for five hundred without the gallery. Those present subscribed $1,000 for the undertaking.

Of Interest to Ladies

The visit of Prof. Dorenwend to Peterborough, on Monday, May 27th, at the Oriental Hotel, will afford the ladies of Peterborough and surrounding country an opportunity of consulting him regarding their Hair, its needs, and their requirements in all styles of Hair Goods. Prof. Dorenwend carries with him a large and most varied assortment of his famous conceptions in Switches, Bangs, Pompadours, Wavy Fronts and Wigs. The equal of these high grade natural hair productions can not be procured from any hair goods dealer in America. Prof. Dorenwend has the distinction of being the largest manufacturer and the most noted specialist in these goods. Private apartments are at the convenience of all who avail themselves of calling at the Oriental Hotel, on the day of his visit, May 27.

Nearly Drowned in Cellar

On Wednesday afternoon last Mr. Isaac Denike's little boy and another little child, both four years old, were playing around the cellar of the old cheese factory in which there was about three feet of water. Mr Denike's child fell in. The other child ran for help and Mr. James Anderson rescued the little fellow, he being the first to get there. On his arrival life seemed extinct. Dr. Richards, who was called by 'phone, was in attendance in fifteen minutes, and was successful in restoring consciousness. We are glad to say that the little fellow is all right again.—Warkworth Journal.

Treasure Found in Old Inn

Cleveland, O., May 20.—Erie Railroad bonds worth $116,740 and $575, in blackened gold coins, were found yesterday, when the rusted tin box which Contractor B. W. Hollingsworth recently unearthed in the ruins of the Ohio City Inn, was forced open.

The original owner of the treasure was George C. Moran, who mysteriously disappeared in 1874. A heap of charred bones found several days before the box was dug up by Hollingsworth in a bricked-in fire place seems to substantiate the theory then held, that Moran was murdered.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $262.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 25c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

LAKE BOAT WRECKED CROSSING THE OCEAN

St. John, Nfld., May 20.—The crew of the steamer Morena, which went on a reef off Cape Race on Saturday, abandoned the vessel at sundown, last night, her bottom having been beaten out by pounding on the rocks.

The Morena is a total wreck, and will break to pieces probably in the first storm.

She was a comparatively new vessel bound from Middlesboro, for Toronto, with a cargo of pig iron, and stranded during a heavy fog.

ONE OF THREE COMING.

Toronto, May 20.—The Morena was one of a fleet of three which were being brought from England to Canada for the lake trade by the Canadian Lake Transportation Company. They were to be operated by the Canadian Lake Line, a subsidy company. The other boats are the Boruma, which reached Montreal today, loaded with pig iron, and the Nevada, which is due in the Gulf next Saturday, loaded with Scoria blocks. All three were billed through to Toronto.

CARGO FOR SAMUEL BENJAMIN.

The Morena and Coruna had 1400 tons each of pig iron for M. and L. Samuel Benjamin Co., iron dealers, Toronto, and the Scoria blocks are also for Toronto.

The wrecked boat, while not a new one, was considered to be as good as new. She was built of steel, 1,500 tons burden, and measured 250 feet over all, with 35 foot beam and drive, loaded, 16 feet of water.

LOSS TO THE VENDORS.

On arrival at Toronto she would have been in charge of Capt. McNabb of Sarnia, and have started on the Montreal-Toronto-Fort William route carrying package freight westbound, and wheat and flour eastbound. All the boats were purchased to be delivered in Toronto and are in charge of English crews.

DISARRANGES THEIR PLANS.

Mr. H. A. Young, Manager of the Canadian Lake Company, had not heard of the loss of the boat until told by a press representative. He says that the boat is fully covered by insurance and that no direct loss will be sustained, but that it will inre the plans of the company into confusion as there was plenty of business booked for the whole fleet.

CARGO INSURED.

Mr. Benjamin said this morning that he could not state the value of the cargo but that it was fully covered by insurance.

When is an Indian Not an Indian?

The city has recently had two clearly proven cases where liquor was bought by an Indian not an Indian. The question of whether or when is an "Indian an Indian?" is to be tried before the high court at Osgoode Hall by J. B. Mackenzie soon. Mr. Mackenzie is solicitor for Chief Hill, of the Six Nations reserve, in Brantford.

Chief Hill was prosecuted for practicing medicine without a license and acquitted. Among other grounds that will be advanced on the defence is the fact that as wards of the Federal Government, an Indian is not subject to a Provincial statute. The medical Council, who are pressing the appeal from the acquittal, are a body organized under the Provincial Medical Act.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's police court, Thos. White was charged with having a dog with no tag. The chief explained that White had got a tag after the summons was served. He was assessed 85 cents costs.

Robert Hagerman said he had neglected to pay his taxes on two dogs, one male and one female. He was fined $2 in addition to the tags.

James Beleghem was charged with having on May 18th, taken and carried away a satchel the property of Miss Bridget Haggerty. Beleghem elected to be tried summarily. On Saturday night she went from her home on Elm street to King street, to see her sister. At the corner of Park and Charlotte streets she heard steps behind her. At the corner of Park and Hunter streets she had the satchel in her left hand. It contained her purse with 60 cents in change, two rosaries and a key. In front of Mr. Mills house a man passed her, then stopped and asked her if Mr. Brown lived there. He then grabbed the satchel and ran up Hunter street, leaving the chain handle in her hand. Two ladies heard her scream. She could not recognize the man, who was tall and wore a high christie hat. She did not see the man's face but the prisoner looked like her assailant otherwise.

A young lady in the witness box, said she heard Miss Haggerty scream, and saw a man run between nine and ten Saturday evening. She could not identify the man, but thought he had a christie hat.

P. C. Newhall said he received a telephone message at 9.40 Saturday evening that a robbery had taken place at corner of Park and Hunter streets. The robber was given as a tall slim man in dark clothes, white, white collar, christie hat and of respectable appearance. He was told the man had run east on Hunter street. He went up Hunter street with Geo. Mcberry. On the corner of Hunter and Rubidge street, he saw prisoner standing alone. As he answered the description, he asked him "Did you see any man run past here." He replied, "No, I have only been standing here a few minutes." Prisoner added, "Oh yes, I saw two drunken men at the corner of Reid street. I watched them." Witness then said good night. He told P. C. McInrry to stand behind the fence and watch. The prisoner then started to go and twice looked back. Prisoner turned north on Stewart. Prisoner ran as hard as he could north along Stewart street. Witness twice called him to stop, but prisoner only ran harder. He caught prisoner at Brock street. He said, "Newhall, I am innocent of everything." He took prisoner to Elm street. On arrival, Miss Haggerty came out, and looking at prisoner said, "I did not see his face, but this looks like the man.

As Miss Haggerty was telling how the thief had run, prisoner asked, "Did he cross the street," and on her replying "Yes," he said several times, "It could not be me for I ran straight on."

P. C. Mcharry in the box fully corroborated P. C. Newhalls evidence.

The prisoner in the box, said he left his home, corner of Brock and Stewart street, at 9.10 Saturday night. His route lay up Brock street to Rubidge and to the Catholic church to corner of Park and Hunter streets. A car stopped at corner of Park and Hunter streets. But hen gave a detailed account of his subsequent walks in the neighborhood.

His worship remarked that he would reserve judgment for one week, but would allow the prisoner to go at large on his own recognizance, to appear next Monday.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Old Time Hunter Gives Experiences

When Peterboro Hunters Thought of Going Home Disgusted But Stopped

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Lewis Spry, the old time tinsmith of this city, in the course of conversation over the law suit that recently went against him, was loud in denunciation of the treatment accorded him. This however is not the raison d'etre of this story. Mr. Spry as is known to most of our older citizens and to all who in years gone by have watched on "runways" for the baying and tramp of the hounds as the dogs chased deer to the various adjacent runways, yesterday told a hunting story possibly worth repeating. It seems that a local land surveyor, dead some years, a late colonel of the 57th Regiment, and another local gentleman had arranged to go out to Lovesick Lake for a hunt.

It was there it might be noted that in those days Lovesick Lake and Deer Bay, as now, were stamping grounds of the real hunters. Mr. Spry, whose brother was then connected with a theatrical company, happening then to be playing in Peterborough, was delayed after the rest of the party had gone. Two days later Mr. Spry met the party at Burleigh Falls, where, in those days there was a mile and a half portage to Lovesick Lake. His first question was "Wesley gentlemen what luck. Have you any deer or muskinonge?" The countenance of the party looking sad, replied, "No, Louie, not a scare or a trade." Mr. Spryes in a jocular bluffing mood replied. "Oh you men are no good; why tomorrow morning I'll get you a muskinonge for breakfast and a deer the day for dinner." This sally was received with good natured jeers and assurances that neither would the fish bite nor the dogs get a deer to water. On the way through Lovesick Lake to the camping ground many jokes were cracked over Mr. Spry's promise.

Next morning early three sallows were out with one occupant each after fish. Mr. Spry with rare good luck captured two ten-pound muskinongo on his way to the pre-arranged meeting place, Black Duck portage. The fish he placed under his canoe carpet. When the three met they began to quiz him on not keeping his promise. This was however soon turned to laughter the other way. Next morning early the surveyor put the dogs out. Mr. Spry went on watch at the Narrows and the colonel and his friend watched at Black Duck Lake. Shortly after the dogs were unleashed Mr. Spry heard a deer afield of the dogs running past him towards Black Duke lake. Then, one, two, three, four, five—a pause—six, seven, to ten shots fired. In about ten minutes later he heard one of the dogs, a pup, bringing a deer towards the Narrows. He quietly slipped into his canoe and got ready. In possibly two minutes a splendid doe took to the water and within as many more minutes had a bullet through its jugular vein. Mr. Spry put this trolling line round the doe's neck and landed her. He then carefully covered his deer with rushes and grass and awaited the colonel and his friend. On their arrival he remarked, "Say you fellows must have about six deer dead over there. I heard you firing a regular fusilade."

The 57th officer replied, "Say Louie I'm going back to Peterborough via Burleigh. This is my first attack of buck fever. I fired eight shots at a buck 30 feet away. Don't give me away on this, but I'm going home. I've missed a deer at 80 feet, after killing them at 150 yards and you've got no venison. Say let's all gome and get into some other business."

At this juncture Mr. Spry showed his deer when everything was lovely and teh party did not separate.

Hockey Match on Roller Skates on 24th

Arrangements have been made for the evening of May 24th, for a hockey game on roller skates in the Charlotte street rink, and it is expected that there will be a big crowd in attendance. This unique match will be between two local teams, the Kenoras and Victorias. Practices have been held regularly during the past ten days. The boys have improved greatly since the match played a week ago Friday night and the majority of them now handle themselves as well as on ice.

There will be skating between seven and nine o'clock and the hockey match will be played between nine and ten. The band will be present all evening and will play at half time during the hockey match.

The Steamer Otonabee

The Launching May Take Place This Evening

It has been hoped by the Otonabee Navigation Company, that their large and staunch new steamer the Otonabee would be launched this evening. There is still every possibility that this latest and largest addition to the local craft will tonight glide like a thing of life into the placid bosom of the Little Lake, between the hours of six and eight p.m. Preparations for the launching of the new steamer are proceeding rapidly and it is expected that this first chapter in her life's history will be written tonight, unless some unforseen trouble intervenes. It is, of course, impossible to foretell definitely in regard to this action.

If launched, as anticipated, tonight the company's steamer, Water Lily will, at once tow the new hull to the Wolfe street wharf, where her new 12-ton hoister, now ready on the dock, will together with the other machinery and elaborate electric light plant, be installed at once. Every arrangement has been completed for getting this splendid steamer into active service at once.

COURT DEFENDS THE REPORTERS

Row Over Idaho Case Has Blown Over

ORCHARD WAS MYSTERIOUS

It Was No Wonder the Reporters Clamored to See Him—No Ulterior Object in View

Boise, Idaho, May 20.—The row stirred up by the publication of interviews obtained by three reporters on Thursday with Harry Orchard, who will be one of the chief witnesses for the Haywood prosecution, appears to have blown over. Just before court adjourned for the day this afternoon Judge Wood announced that County Attorney Kochab, whom he had instructed to look into the matter, had submitted his report.

The report states that with the propriety or taste of the publication he has nothing to do. It was for him only to see if any attempt had been made do corrupt or intentionally approach the jurors. He goes on to say that this investigation utterly disproves that improper motives actuated anybody connected with the publication called to his attention by the court. The interviews with Orchard, he says, had been repeatedly and persistently sought by the reporters, and had been repeatedly denied to them. When the opportunity was finally give them, they seized it with avidity.

"This was perfectly natural," the report continues, "Orchard being denied to all newspaper men, he had become mysterious. Stories had been circulated that he had broken down in body and mind. Is it any wonder that the reporters clamored to see him? The granting of the interview was the result of a slow yielding to their insistence."

When court adjourned today the prosecution had exhausted five of its peremptory challenges and the defence four. It needs only one more peremptory for the defence to use up half the total of peremptories. The prosecution is supposed to be pretty well satisfied with the complexion of the jury box at the present, and will probably not use up all its peremptories.

Many New Buildings to be Erected Here

Up to early yesterday morning it seems that 97 building permits had been issued from City Clerk Armstrong's office for edifices aggregating in value $480,335. This does not include six or eight issued by the city engineer, before the bylaw came into force. Up to Saturday night the largest permit taken out was for the Canadian General Electric Works, for the new factory, started last fall. This amounted to $70,000, the other permits were all for private residences. There are to be included, the new mills for the Colonial Weaving Co., the new R.C. church, the new Charlotte street church, and the new Park street Baptist church. The building operations, however, should reach close to the million dollar mark, before the year closes. The permits issued Saturday were;—

Jas. R. McIntyre, two dwellings, on Gilmour street, cost $2,000 each. Contractor, Thomas Houlihan.

Jas. Gray, dwelling on Park street, cost $900.

D. Guthrie, dwelling on Elm street, cost $400.

Canadian General Electric Company, new factory on its property, to be completed by June 30th.

W. J. Lundy, dwelling on Pearl avenue, cost $1,950.

W. J. Lundy, dwelling on Margaret avenue, cost $1,950.

W. G. Freeburn, dwelling on Maitland avenue, cost $2,000.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

Readily Yield to Soothing, Healing Treatment of Hyomei.

Bronchial troubles are purely local. They cannot be helped by stomach dosing. They are caused by irritation in the air passages and can be relieved and cured by medicated air alone. In this lies the secret of the great success of Hy-o-mie in the treatmnet of bronchial troubles.

The Hy-o-mei medication, laden with nature's remedies, is breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaching every part of the bronchial tubes and killing at once the disease germs. It allays all irritation and heals the inflammation of the mucous membrance with astonishing rapidity.

Treatment with sprays, douches and atomizers in bronchial troubles is condemned by the best physicians, as they cause further irritation.

The first breath of Hy-o-mei's medicated air seems to soothe the inflammation, stop the cough, and thus relief soon becomes permanent and a cure results.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Wonderful Future of Fort William

Land in and Adjoining This City Will Rapidly Increase in Value

Possibly no city in the Dominion or in fact on this continent has comparitively speaking greater prospects of rapid growth and importance than Fort William, Ont. This city has now attained the enviable position of second greatest shipping point in Canada, owing to its unique lakes. Last year the C.P.R. handled location at the head of our five great 2,090,000 tons of freight in Fort William; over 850 vessels arrived in the harbor; over 750,000 tons of coal, 175,000 tons of steel rails, and 51,000,000 bushels of grain, were handled at that city. The G.T.P. will in 1907 expend over $400,000,000 in Fort William. These figures are a definite guarantee as to the wealth and future prospects of Fort William.

A great opportunity for investment in "The River Park Addition," only a short distance from the center of Fort William, is now offered at most reasonable terms. Half acre lots close to River Park Addition which three years ago sold at, from $45 to $75 each, are today selling from $1200 to $2500 each according to location. River Park is a subdivision of lot 7, con. 3, Fort William. Half acre lots are now selling at from $250 to $275 each on easy terms, viz., one-quarter cash, one-quarter in six months, and the balance in twelve and eighteen months respectively. Interest at seven per cent. chargeable on unpaid principal. River Park is provided with electric lights and telephone connection.

A MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

Gains 12 lbs. on Change of Food.

When a change in food can rebuild a man 77 years of age, it is evidence that there is some value in a knowledge that can discriminate in the selection of proper food to rebuild the body. A few months ago the physician attending a man 77 years old, told him that death from old age would soon claim him. He suffered from general weakness and debility.

An old lady advised him to quit coffee, drink Postum Food Coffee and eat Grape-Nuts food every morning. He took the advice, and has gained 12 pounds. Says he is as well as ever he was, and can take long trips in the mountains, which he had been unable to do for a long time.

There is a reason for this; in the first place, coffee acts as a direct nerve destroyer on many highly organized people, both young and old, and many people haven't the knowledge to select nourishing, healthful, rebuilding food.

Both Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts food are made from selected parts of the field grains that contain delicate particles of phosphate of potash and albumen. These two elements combine in the human body to quickly rebuild the gray matter in the brain and int he nerve centers throughout the body.

Direct, sure, and certain results come from their use and can be proven by any person that cares to make the trial. "There's a Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Port Hope Brewing Co, Vs. Cavanagh

Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co., vs. Cavanagh — Judgment (L) on motion to set aside praecipe order changing solicitor taken out by one or two plaintiffs. Held that plaintiffs, however numerous, can have only one solicitor and must act jointly in order to effect a valid change. Praecipe order set aside with costs. See re Matthews (1905) 2 ch. p. 463 and cases there cited, also 2 ch. p. 747. D. O'Connell, (Peterborough) for plaintiff, and solicitor on record. A. B. Morine, for new solicitor.

Jumped From Window

New York, May 20.—Emilio Ballart, a Spanish music instructor, aged 69 years, committed suicide today by jumping from a window of his room on the seventh floor of an apartment house on West 57th street. He was instantly killed.

Ballari formerly enjoyed the patronage of many prominent New Yorkers, but lately has been suffering from nervous prostration, which is believed to be the cause of his suicide.

Miss Isabella Roger Has Passed Away

The many friends in this city of Miss Isabella Roger, sister of ex-Mayor G. M. Roger, were shocked yesterday to learn that this popular local lady was laid up seriously ill from a stroke of paralysis. We regret to have to chronicle that Miss Roger passed to rest yesterday afternoon at the Roger homestead "Cordach," at 3.30 o'clock.

The late Miss Roger's sudden death will be a great blow to her brother, Mr. G. M. Roger, who, with Mr. E.H. D. Hall and other Peterborough citizens recently left on an extended trip to California and British Columbia.

The deceased who was born at "Cordach," was a daughter of the late Rev. J. M. Roger, Rev. Dr. Torrance's predecessor as pastor of St. Paul's church. Besides her brother, the late Miss Roger, who was born in 1836, leaves to mourn her loss, two nephews Mr. Roger Fairbairn of Montreal, and Mr. John Fairbairn of Toronto, and a niece, formerly Miss Fairbairn, now Mrs. Smith of Chicago.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been arranged, but will be announced in tomorrow's issue.

BITTER FIGHT IN THE EDDY SUIT

Trustees Who Secured the Property Want Their Names Substituted as Plaintiffs

Concord, N.H., May 21.—Although the celebrated suit in equity to secure an accounting of the property of Mrs. Baker G. Eddy has been a matter of record for almost three months, the first legal battle of council engaged in it will take place here today, when arguments will be heard on the motion of the trustees of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy's estate that they be substituted for the "next friends" as the plaintiffs in the original suit. On March 1, 1907, there was filed a bill in equity signed by George W. Glover of Lead City, S. D., the only son of Mrs. Eddy; his daughter, Mary Baker Glover, and George W. Baker, of Bangor, Maine, a cousin of Mrs. Eddy.

These three, as "next friends" in legal parlance of Mrs. Eddy, complained against Calvin A. Frye, Irving O. Tomlinson, Herman S. Hering, and Lewis C. Strobg, of Concord; Alfred Farlow, Ira O. Knapp, Wm. B. Johnston, and Joseph Armstrong, of Boston; Stephen A. Chase of Full River, and Edward A. Kimball, of Chicago, alleging that Mrs. Eddy is incompetent to do business or to understand business transacted for her by others, and that the defendants have possessed themselves of her person and property, and that there is reason to fear that they have wrongfully converted her property to their own use.

On these grounds the plaintiffs ask for an accounting on the part of the defendants and the creation of a receivership for Mrs. Eddy's estate.

On March 11, Ebenzer J. Foster Eddy, of Waterbury, Vermont, an adopted son of Mrs. Eddy, and Fred Walter Baker of Elsom, N.H., her nephew, were joined as plaintiffs.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY.

On April 2 announcement was made that on March 6, five days after the institution of proceedings, Mrs. Eddy had conveyed all her property to a board of trustees, Henry M. Baker of Bow, N.H., Archibald McLellan of Boston, and Joseph E. Fernald of Concord.

These trustees asked of the court the right to intervene and be substituted as plaintiffs in place of Glover and the other "next friends" in the suit of Eddy vs. Frye.

Counsel for the "next friends" countered this step on April 6 by asking that the trustees be joined as defendants in the original suit instead of as plaintiffs.

To this on April 16 the trustees made answer requesting a speedy hearing on their motion. On the same date the original defendants filed their answer to the original bill, entering a general denial of its allegations, and charging a lack of good faith in the institution of the proceedings.
